New York, Feb. 19.—(AP)—An hour now Joe Gould will announce he has taken Tommy Farr (and how that pet name, Manager!) under his wing . . . Sammy Baugh wants one more year of pro football, then a coaching job . . . He can have plenty of both . . . Walt and one of it isn't Joe McCarthy and not Cunnel Huppert who swings Lou Gehrig into first . . . Tony Galento has been appointed a Deputy Sheriff in Jersey . . .

If old Dolph Luque decides to retire, Travis Jackson will be moved over from Jersey City to help coach the Giants infield . . . Lindbergh will go in as manager at Jersey City.

. . . We have an idea you're going to see the old Joe Louis (or the Carnera and Baer fights) against Nathan Mann next week . . .

Ceferino Garcia, crack coast welterweight, is planning another easy-em invasion . . . Champion Henry Armstrong, New York heavyweight, has such large hands he has to have the boxing gloves formerly used by Primo Carnera . . . GEORGIA LEARNS TO SWIM AGAIN

GEORGIA COLEMAN AND FRED CADY
Losing use of her legs as a result of infantile paralysis, Georgia Coleman must learn to swim all over again. The former Olympic diving champion is shown in a Los Angeles, Cal., pool with Fred Cady, famous teacher.

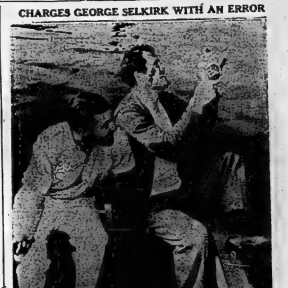
"CHUCK" CONACHER RESTS IN FLORIDA

Taking ice literally his fiery chief's motto "Keep Punching", little Al Murray, half-pint defence man of New York Americans, body-checking big "Doc" Dutton right into the hospital. Dutton was actively coaching his Amerks in a training session and as he rode into the defence Murray whacked him with a check. It spewed the major loss on the ice from where he was taken to hospital with torn back muscles that will keep him in bed for several days. This picture shows how both compare in size and that's Murray in the corner, but you can't tell Dutton Joe's as small as that!

OUT—Five times Johnny Kent slid this smile he was finally knocked out by Solly Krieger in match in New York

Far from the hectic hockey scene which he left when ill health forced him to quit the Toronto Maple Leafs in mid-season, Charlie "Chuck" Conacher, peerless right winger, picks his choices at Hialeah race track in Florida. The hockey ace went south in an effort to rebuild physically. He may come back to the ice wars next season.

STILL THE CHAMP



BERGER RUUD
Demonstrating one of the reasons why he is world's champion skijumper, Birger Ruud made a leap of 162 in Chicago the other day, setting a new Soldier Field record.

BETTER KEEP A WEATHER EYE ON THAT RIGHT, JAMES

Ex-champ James Braddock (LEFT), tells his successor Joe Louis that he has something there—a hand-ful of dynamite, of course, Joe knows it, but Jimmy was hit with it and still has the knockie marks on his jawbone. Joe is in training at Pompton Lake, N.J., for his bout with Nathan Mann.

CHARGES GEORGE SELKIRK WITH AN ERROR

He missed a catch, so it's only fair that George Selkirk, New York Yankee outfielder, be charged with an error and the fish that got away should be credited with a run. The annual angler at Lake St. John Murphy, Yankee pitcher. This is their way of limbering up in preparation for spring training.

MIDGET AL MURRAY DOWNS BOSS DUTTON

KNITTING PULLS TOWN OUT OF RED

Three years ago this man and the community in which he lives faced virtual starvation. When its lumber mill closed in the face of depression, Shirley, Maine, lost its only source of income and faced the prospect of becoming a ghost town. But a wealthy summer visitor, so far unnamed, took pity at the plight of Shirley and bought every resident of the town a knitting machine. A new boom started which now makes Shirley a thriving prosperous community. Here is how the Shirley folks work: Each family with a machine specializes in a different pattern for the socks they turn out. Other families finish the socks. Still others prepare the wool for knitting, waxing it by hand. Children stamp the finished product and old men pack and cart shipments to the local railroad station. It's Shirley's mode of fighting depression. And this muscular fellow, who once spent his days tossing lumber and sawing logs, now tools a knitting machine along the road to prosperity— and likes it.

A TEXAS RANGER

Pictured during a visit to New York is Mrs. Frances Haskell Richardson, deputy sheriff of Bexar county, Texas, and the first and only woman Texas Ranger. She's in New York to study law enforcement methods.

Clash Between Czech Nazis And Democrats May Provoke German Intervention

The Nazi net tightens on Czechoslovakia

KONRAD HENLEIN

With Austria under German domination by virtue of Adolf Hitler's coup and Hungary expected to follow Vienna's lead, the position of Czechoslovakia, now virtually surrounded by Nazi—or pro-Nazi states, becomes increasingly dangerous. Middle Europe's last democracy has long feared that German expansion may eventually take effect at her expense and the Austrian developments are not likely to calm her fears. A rabidly pro-German party already exists in Czechoslovakia led by Konrad Henlein, which seeks a united front with the Reich. Two of Henlein's lieutenants were seriously injured at Prague in a clash with political opponents and Europe's diplomats are not unaware of the danger of Hitler seizing upon such an occurrence as excuse for embarking upon a military venture that may end with invasion of Czechoslovakia.

POLICE CALLED IN COAL STRIKE THAT PARALYZES CITY DELIVERIES

Strikers dumped truck loads of coal, pulled the transmission gears from a truck and paralyzed deliveries in a city-wide coal strike called in Toronto after the Ontario Labor and Industry Board failed to set up a code of wages under the Industrial Standards Act for coal truck drivers. The picture (ABOVE) shows police moving a crowd of strikers that had gathered outside one of the coal yards. Although the strikers declared they would allow no coal to be delivered in Toronto until a settlement is made and are picketing yards, Alfred Rogers, president of one of the companies, has announced his intentions to deliver if he has to and has stated he will call for police protection.

CAT NOW HAS "PEG-LEG"

"Billie," a pet cat, owned by Mrs. Bertha Thorne, of Philadelphia, Pa., is pretty well tickled with his new wooden leg. When a broken leg failed to receive proper medical attention, gangrene set in and it had to be amputated. Things looked pretty black until Billie's owner had Dr. Bernard Mann, veterinarian fixe him up with this wooden limb. Mrs. Mann is holding Billie.

Scottish Church Head

From London comes notice of the appointment of Sir John Gilmour (ABOVE) former home secretary as Lord High Commissioner of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, a position formerly held by Lord Tweedsmuir. As Lord High Commissioner, Sir John represents the King, titular head of the Scottish church in church affairs and during his tenure resides in Holyrood Palace, Edinburgh.

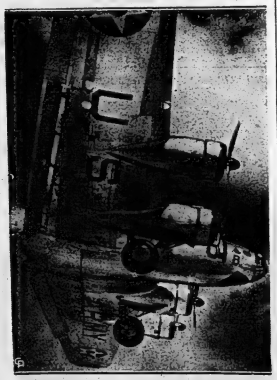
MRS. LAUREL No. 3 HAS BREAKDOWN

Stan Laurel, comedian, shown tenderly kissing his wife, Illiana, as she was taken from their Beverly Hills residence to a hospital for the second time in a fortnight, suffering from nervous breakdown. The Russian singer, who became the third wife of Laurel last New Year's Eve in Yuma, Arizona, rallied from her distress long enough to exclaim en route to the hospital that she was leaving Laurel forever.

NEW SENATE CLERK?

L. Claire Moyer, who is considered most likely to be appointed to the position of clerk of the Senate at Ottawa, when A. E. Blount, 68, who has held the position for 30 years retires at the end of the fiscal year. Mr. Moyer, now practicing law, was for a considerable time private secretary to Premier King.

THREE MOVIE GALS ENTERTAIN GEE-GEE



We'll begin with the horse. His name is Firecracker and he is owned by Raoul Walsh, movie director. The gal on the quarterdeck in the jockey outfit is Dorothy Moore, film actress, and the two gals the horse would be admiring if he didn't have blinkers on are Lorraine Kreuger (LEFT) and Frances Gifford, also of the movies. They're wearing what the well-dressed racing fan should wear at Santa Anita this season.

HARBINGER OF SPRING—BALL PLAYERS HEAD SOUTH

HUGE U. S. "FLYING FORTRESS"

This remarkable picture taken from the ground shows one of Uncle Sam's "flying fortresses"—the huge new bombers which are claimed to be the largest fighting aeroplanes in existence—as it soared over Miami, Fla., after a flight from Langley Field, Va. Note how every detail of the big machine's construction is revealed in accurate detail by the camera.

CAN. EXPLORER DEAD

From the inland jungles of British Guiana, word reached civilization of the death of Dr. Frederick T. Fox (ABOVE), Ontario-born New York scientist, who was with the Waldeck expedition searching for Paul Redfern, missing U. S. flier. The report said that Fox died on Devil's Hole Island from exposure while the rest of the party went for help. The remaining members of the expedition are reported safe.

AFTER GIRL SLAYERS HEARD LIFE SENTENCE

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Feeble but persistent small scale purchases were exhibited by leading stocks in today's brief market.

One of the slowest sessions since last September, gains running to a point or so predominated at the close. There was a handful up to 2 to 3.

Oils, coppers and specialties were principally favored, while most steels, utilities and rails were unable to get out of fractional range.

Slackness of dealings was attributed partly to the fact many traders look an early departure for a holiday, planning to skip Monday's session. Tuesday the exchange will recess in observance of Washington's birthday.

The complexity of European affairs, including the scheduled Hitler speech tomorrow, also put brakes on speculative activity.

MARKET COMMENT

Slowly but surely the market is broadening out and in a comparatively short time, the consensus in the Street believes, a bull market of fair proportions should emerge. Investment funds are plentiful but the majority have been awaiting more definite business indications before taking or commitments. As in the past, the golds and metals will start the bull market going again.

It will take some little time to fully restore confidence. For more than three months now, everyone has been talking of the business recession and how long it will last. It is not surprising, therefore, that public confidence has been badly shaken and it will take an advancing market for at least a month or so before the average trader will gather up sufficient courage to buy stocks. Nothing improves sentiment like a rising market and the longer the present recession lasts the more violent will be the subsequent recovery.

Base metal stocks continue to be the favorites of the speculative element and the recent rise in Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting is a case in point. Nickel and Noranda are also in demand and the former is expected to show a substantial increase in earnings for the year. Noranda is the largest copper producer, with ten mines operating. According to the annual report released by Sir Augustus Roche has disposed of 7100 shares recently and by so doing reduced his holdings of Dome, to 23,000 shares.

Noranda is the Second Largest Producer of Copper in Canada.

The Honorable T. A. Crerar, Minister of Mines and Resources is responsible for the statement that Noranda is now Canada's second largest copper producer, with ten mines operating, out of which copped, 2,300,000 ounces of gold and 5,000,000 ounces of silver.

ACCIDENTS BRING MAN'S ARREST

E. Percy Burnett, Charged With Driving Car While Intoxicated

Culminating a wild and hectic drive north on Front and Station Streets, during which the car he is alleged to have been driving, struck two parked automobiles and proceeded a boy off a bicycle, E. Percy Burnett, 58 Albion Street, was arrested at his home on Friday night. As Evans and today faced charges of failing to remain at the scene of a an accident and also of driving a car, while intoxicated. Burnett was held in custody, after appearing before H. B. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace.

Police stated today Burnett's car was damaged while an automobile door handle, found near the scene of one accident incurred, was believed to have been broken off the Burnett car and was one of the chief clues leading to the accused man's apprehension. Clinton Calnan 37 West Bridge Street, narrowly escaped serious injury, when a motor car crashed into the side of his parked car, near the upper bridge, and on the east side of Front Street. Mr. Calnan reported the vehicle to strike his car sped rapidly eastward.

Opposite MoG's Lumber Company on Station St., Lawrence Hamilton, 15, reddish, 433 Bleecker Ave., was knocked off his bicycle and sustained serious injuries, the driver of the car again failing to stop at the scene of an accident. Cycling easterly on Station St. the wild ride continued with the final hit and run episode occurring near the intersection of Station St., and Bleecker Ave., when another parked motor car, owned by Wesley Gray, Thurlow, was struck.

P. C. Evans investigated the accidents and although eye witnesses gave the name of Burnett as the driver of the licence plate number of the alleged hit and run automobile. A number of conflicting clues finally led the officer to Burnett's residence, where he was arrested. Police stated today he was in an alleged intoxicated condition when apprehended. "It was only a miracle, that young Hamilton was not the victim of much more serious injury, as he was thrown high into the air and fortunately fell on the boulevard, when his bicycle was struck", related P. C. Evans.

Eyre's northerners play the game of life, but not curling, against Toronto's Uptown Golf Club rink on Saturday.

AT THE BELLE

"Love and Hisses"

At last chart of the news about "Love and Hisses" ought to be on page one as an extra. Simone Simon sings! And how the glorious glamor girl sings!

Twentieth Century-Fox's new idea in musical show hits, Now on the Belle screen, is to borrow a phrase from one of its stars, a wowsah! And with seven hot-and-blazing Gordon and Revel song hits.

Under the order of new business it brings up that old loss-aroused between the Rajah of Rib, Walter Winchell, and his "Old Monastery."

Ben Bernie. This TINT-for-TINT two picture has a new kind of "umph" (how do talk creeps into the language) in the co-starring of-fering of the new Simone Simon touching off the fuse.

But what bowls over the audience is that Simone, direct from Paris once a breath-taking little school miss, comes back a sophisticated eye-filling array of gowns that make male hearts pop around like firecrackers on the Fourth of July. And when one is ready to accept Simone's singing as enchanting, her dancing singing as exhilarating experience, she tops the climax by thrilling one with the old-fash-ioned "bell song" from the opera "Lakme."

"Love and Hisses" marks a new teaming for Darryl F. Zanuck who scouted Sidney Lanfield for the job of directing after his success with "Thin Ice," "Sing While You Are Million", "Thin Ice" and "Wake up and Live".

Lanfield must have had his hands full. The greatest return match in history between Walter and Ben (who started it) not only stars Le Simon but Gregory Ratoff, Jack Haley and as featured players a new team of zanies in Broadway's famous comedian Bert Lahr and the zaniest comedienne Joan Davis, you will know) as Gertie.

The story tells us that Ben Bernie the "old Maestro" discovers Simone Simon in Paris and that "Old Professor" Winchell, America's one-man newspaper, has just her up in his column. Winchell turns the band leader down, as should be expected, so Bernie signs Simone as another exotic masquerade, Simone lets Winchell interest her in Hollywood. The columnist showers realms of publicity upon her.

Just before Bernie's new club is to open, with Simone as star, she changes her mind, is happy, remained at having been taken in, Winchell plans a four-star ven-geance party to celebrate revenge by any other man is sweet, but Ben's is a hilarious.

The climax brings the two feuding lists together at the opening of Bernie's club, where Simone first discovery, Simone, singing for them both. The rest is happy, with Lanfield directing the truce may be tempor-ary.

Gordon and Revel's "Sweet Someone". "I Wanna be in Winchell's Column", "Is Love a Good Sport" and "Broadway's Gone Hawaii" plus some more tunes by Pollack and Mitchell, Ray and Scott and Zeno and Irwin make this another all star song-hit festival.

MATCHING THEIR SHOTS IN ELEV ENTH ANNUAL ONTARIO BONSPIEL

Hello, Neighbor!

From Your Hollywood Correspondent

FARLEY FAULKNER

All the broken hearts are not on Broadway. Every day a steady stream of talented, attractive youngsters flows into Hollywood — and every day these same young-sters are thrown back on themselves to seek livelihoods through other channels.

For Hollywood is as impregnable as Gibraltar, and that is the warning note we wish to sound to the 1,000 fresh comers from the film capital. Lovely maidens who flock here to star in pictures find themselves working as "lesse sonne en grite" in local "clip joints." Handsome young men, trying to replace Robert Taylor, find temporary employment for their screen alrtirings by jerking sodas on Sunset Boulevard.

There are countless variations of this, but nearly always the story is the same. Very rarely does one find "A Star Is Born".

It is difficult to keep out of things on the West Coast. Coming here merely for the purpose of writing a column, we were asked to join the army, the navy, a "side-line" mission and the communist party.

Although not being even slightly interested in horse racing, we refused several sure things in horse flesh from no less than six different sources. In our heart of hearts our curiosity was mildly piqued by an oily, persuasive scheme that allegedly was "sure fire"—and all this in seven short days.

There are brains in Hollywood. And where brains are to be found there seems to be those that generally also make their home. Trouble here is that a premium is placed on brains for every brain. This makes it difficult for every one.

Most of the amateur boys and girls are so besieged by these attacking pests that it is almost impossible for any one to gain access to the studios.

"There Is Always a Woman" is under way at Columbia. Starring Victoria Vinton, her sex today, we met a charming young star, whose work impressed us greatly in "Mad Miss Manton."

During our first role in a little up-stairs theatre on Yonge Street. I was "just her up in his Masterlinck—and was scared to death. She assured me:

Miss Drake's mother and father will join us in Hollywood. And when "My sister, dear me! You should see her," exclaims Miss Drake. "She flirts with mother and father, but she is much prettier than I — and younger, too. I am going to persuade her to visit me at my Del Air home this spring." Queried as to the possibilities of a picture career for her sister, Miss Drake replied: "Mother and father are not in favor of it, but we shall see."

Producer Edmund and Gladys Hillman, co-authors of "There Is Always a Woman," have not completed the script, but production goes on just the same. Scene one has to be murdered, but the victim's identity is still in the hands of the script writers. We are advised, however, that much of the mystery centers around Miss Drake, who plays the part of a wealthy New York play boy's fiancee.

Looking in at Hollywood's Trocadero recently we saw the "Big Apple" being revived to "newer oldies" with a kick.

Jackie Coogan with his wife (Betty Grable) in cowboy and cowgirl costumes, were assisting Paulette Goddard, Anne Shirley, Jean Parker, Edgar Bergen and a galaxy of other stars in various interpretations of "Suzy Q. Pecking and Trucking."

We asked Bergen where the popsier Charlie McCarthy was. "You don't think I would bring competition like Charlie along with me, do you?" smiled Bergen. "It's never now but little rascal is keeping a secret rendezvous with some palpitating redhead."

Bergen is one of the smartest men in show business today. His genuine modesty makes him more popular than some of his blah of-fering contemporaries. The "Big Apple" seems to stick in the throats of the latter.

Backstage at the Orpheum we made a discovery. He is 19-year-old Sol Strauser, singing star of Major Bowes' International Unit, who seems to be qualifying by playing and singing three of his own composi-tions nightly. Sol has had phenomenally bounced from a hay wagon right into the Grand Opera Festival, called Vesti 'la Giubbe.

Sol was born in Russia while his family was fleeing from the Cos-sacks in 1919, Sol soon learned what singing was meant. Later after teaching his mother to New York where he has reached no less appreciable degree of success via the Major Bowes' route, Sol decided that home happiness and security for the first time. Sol's genuine love for music finally asserted itself and he lives in his heart for his mother whom he adores.

Mrs. Strauser is the proud possessor of two sons. Sol's younger brother is her father, Sisosha Breithart, the man who actually "played fiddle on the roof."

"Robinoff tried to buy the violin from me a year ago," he said, "but I declared Sol.

Jean Harlow Harbor was fairly bristling with guns when we visited the Paramount lot. Cowboy desperadoes, eleven heavy cruisers, ten battle ships, six mine sweepers, two aircraft carriers, two aircraft cruisers and eight submarines, comprising the battle fleet maneuvers of the American Navy's Pacific fleet, are in port for a week. Or 12,500-odd, breakwater.

Under Admiral Bloch, newly appointed Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Navy, this entire Armada can be made into a realistic scale with a mythical attacking force. We wonder if observers sent something besides Valentines home this week?

Next week we shall discuss the more or less delicate subject of love with Heidy Kiesler, 22-year-old Viennese actress, who has not come to the world with her remarkable perfor-mance in "Ecstasy," the much censored production which emanated from Prague, Czechoslovakia, at a cost of only $50,000.

Basis for Parley On Troops in Spain Reported Reached

London, Feb. 21 (CP)—Havas News Agency today reported Italy had accepted Great Britain's proposal for withdrawal of volunteers from war-wrecked Spain.

This proposal, the French Agency said, was the last obstacle to opening of formal negotiations for a general Anglo-Italian understanding.

Agree on Basis For Parley

The British proposal on volunteer-fighting, made 10 days ago, also provided for the sending of non-intervention commissions to Spain.

The Havas report followed termination of a 45-minute conference with Ambassador Dino Grandi of Italy and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

"It is understood that he (Grandi) and Chamberlain agreed upon a basis for formal parleys," Havas said.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist
Temperature Control

In some parts of the Alps the Swiss have learned to build their dwellings at elevations much higher than the valley floor because it is warmer higher up. This is contrary to the whole theory of the higher the colder. In winter in the middle and higher latitudes the reverse of this is often true. The air arrangement is somewhat as follows according to their densities, the greater density being at the bottom. This condition is brought about by the cooling of the surface of the earth and hence the air during the long winter nights. In Switzerland it has been observed, especially in the cyclonic weather, that the valleys may be colder by 36 degrees than places only 300 feet higher.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 21—(CP)—Synopsis—An area of high pressure of wide extent is centred north of the Ottawa Valley and the weather is fair and moderately cold from Ontario to the Maritime Provinces. Lake Superior—Moderate southeast to southwest winds today and Tuesday and Tuesday with a little higher temperature.

Manitoba—Partly cloudy today and Tuesday; probably scattered snowflurries; not much change in temperature.

'Firm Spirit' Need of Britain Says Retired Foreign Chief

"Agreements that are worth while are never made on the basis of threats," he declared.

TWO OSHAWA MEN VICTIMS OF HOLDUP

Car And $100 Taken by Gunmen Near Whitby

Oshawa, Ont., Feb. 21 (CP)—Two men, three of them said to be armed with guns, held up James McIlroy of Oshawa and Michael Zap of Toronto, Saturday and made off in Zap's automobile and $100. The robbery occurred on the highway 8 miles from Whitby.

Zap and McIlroy told police they noticed a car following them and when they got to Brooklin it began to throw a roll of bills into the back of the automobile just before the car overtaking the five men drove up. Brandishing revolvers the bandits forced the men into their car for a search. They found little cash in the men but the roll of bills in the car, leaving theirs behind.

The car in which the bandits were driving was later found to belong to A. F. Foster of Toronto, who had left it parked on a Toronto street while paying a visit. Zap's car was found by the police but there was no trace of the money. Zap told police the bandits they were unable to describe the bandits because of the darkness at the time of the robbery.

General Appeasement Aim For Peace—Chamberlain

Negotiations to Begin at On ce in Rome For New Anglo-Italian Understanding Says British Prime Mini ster

London, Feb. 21—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain, replying to the resignation speech of Anthony Eden, told the House of Commons today that Great Britain had agreed to start negotiations for a new Anglo-Italian understanding "immediately" in Rome.

Mr. Chamberlain said that for Great Britain to refuse Italy's desires for such conversations would bring relations to a point "at which ultimately war between us might become inevitable."

The Prime Minister accused Mr. Eden of being "unfair" in implying that he (Chamberlain) had succumbed to Italian "now or never" threats.

Opposition Noisy

Frequently interrupted by jeers from noisy opposition members, who cheered Mr. Eden's defense of his resignation last night, the Prime Minister spoke for a solid hour.

He insisted he had informed the Italian Ambassador, Count Dino Grandi, there could be no settlement without a solution of the Spanish problem and that any Anglo-Italian agreement would be submitted to the League of Nations.

Denying there was any variation at this stage of what the terms of an Anglo-Italian agreement would be, Mr. Chamberlain said:

"What we are seeking to do is to get general appeasement throughout Europe which will give us peace.

Peace Is Hazily Defined

"The peace of Europe must depend on the attitude of four major powers—Germany, Italy, ourselves, ourselves."

Prime Minister Chamberlain pleaded his anxiety to find "common ground" with Italy and General Franco which "we might build general appeasement in Europe."

He said Count Grandi had told him Italy wanted "wider conversations leading to recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia and "not excluding Spain."

He said opposition cries of 'shame' Mr. Chamberlain added formal recognition of the Ethiopian conquest "could only be morally justified if it were found to be an essential factor in a general appeasement."

Says Italy Has Suspicion

Mr. Chamberlain said Italy had a growing suspicion that Great Britain was engaged in "a machiavellian design" to lull Italy into inactivity while British was rearming, and then take "revenge for Italy's conquest of Abyssinia."

This, he declared, was "fantastic."

Then speaking of Count Grandi's visit Feb. 19, the Prime Minister said:

"Mr. Eden represented that the Italian government had called upon us to enter upon conversations now or never, and that we were being asked to submit to these threats. There is nothing in any of the communications to justify that description."

King Accepts Eden's Resignation

Outside parliament it was learned the King had accepted Eden's resignation although he did not, as customary receive the retiring Minister in audience. Mr. Chamberlain's official recommendation the resignation was accepted was sent from Downing Street to Buckingham Palace today. The King signed it.

World Reactions Felt To Resignation of Eden And Address by Hitler

By the Canadian Press

These reactions and developments were noted around the globe today following German Chancellor Hitler's address of yesterday and the resignation of the British Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden.

London—Viscount Halifax, recent official visitor to Washington, took temporary charge of the Foreign Office. Havas reported Italy agreed to withdrawal of volunteers from Spain as a part of an Anglo-Italian understanding. The Times expressed regret an olive branch could not be discerned in Hitler's speech and warned British rearmament must not be relaxed.

Paris—Some French political circles feared Eden's resignation meant British capitulation to Italy and Germany as well as Fascist Italy at the expense of Francoist Britain.

Praha—Czechoslovakian political circles noted Hitler's promised defence of German minorities outside the Reich gave a question of international law of concern to many European states. Germany, with a home of 3,000,000 Sudeten Germans, remained calm.

Hankow—The Chinese government formally protested Hitler's announcement recognizing Manchukuo, puppet state Japan carved from China.

Tokyo—Japan welcomed the Fuehrer's action regarding Manchukuo but his reiteration of "loathing" for Soviet Russia and his statement a Japanese triumph in the Orient would rebuff Bolshevism.

Rome—The Italian press welcomed Eden's resignation and said conversations between Prime Minister Chamberlain and Rome's ambassador to London revealed no real obstacle as an Anglo-Italian understanding.

Vienna — Still uncertain what might develop from last week's Austro-German "compromise," many circles voiced misgivings over Hitler's failure to pledge Austrian independence.

Berlin—Some Nazis viewed the British cabinet crisis as a sign of victory. They predicted early Anglo-German negotiations leading to an agreement linking Britain and France with the Reich and Fascist Italy.

SALVAGE TUG DROPS ATTEMPT

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 21 (CP)—The attempt of the tug Salvage Prince to smash its way through the ice to Niagara Falls, where it planned to smash way through the ice blockade, has been abandoned. It was safe, has been abandoned. It was reported today a shift in the wind tonight would be the starting out again, but officials of the boat said they were not planning another attempt.

ANGLO-FRENCH POLICY TO REMAIN

Some French Quarters See Policy of Conciliation With Fascists

Paris, Feb. 21—(CP)—Resignation of Foreign Secretary Eden aroused fears in some French quarters today that Great Britain was turning to a policy of conciliation with the Fascist states.

Certain elements of the popular front looked for French foreign Minister not to follow such a lead.

Yvon Delbos, Foreign Minister Chautemps, Foreign Minister Blum and other high French officials evinced anxiety lest Anglo-Italian relations take a course which the French government could not follow without risk of alienating Great Britain and communist supporters at home.

French Council Called

Chautemps called a council of ministers this morning to study the foreign situation in the light of Chamberlain's and Mussolini's declarations in Berlin, and to approve France's augmented armaments appropriations.

Belief the close Franco-British relations have been the strongest single factor in maintaining European peace made it appear certain the French government would do its utmost to maintain its present stand, pending a shudder with the London government.

Sees More Fruitless

Pertinax, writing in the Rightist Echo de Paris, 1914 and "disgrace" of Eden probably will have repercussions similar to those which followed the resignation in 1905 following German opposition to his policy of alliances. Delcasse again rose to power after the ensuing years and was, again France's Foreign Minister during the World War.

This well-known commentator added:

"The totalitarian states can register the British weakness in credit side of their ledgers. All dictations are that London will hasten to negotiate with Berlin and Rome. The cause of the western powers will not gain anything by such moves."

FIRE DEPARTMENT TO PROBE BLAZE

Ten Members of Family Forced to Escape in High Attire

Toronto, Feb. 21 (CP)—Fire department investigation of a West Toronto apartment fire was under way today in an effort to determine whether the blaze that sent ten members of one family into fascity, clad in scanty night clothing, into freezing weather was that of an incendiary origin.

Saucers, dregs of a fruit store where last week $300 damage was caused by a gas explosion, helped police begin investigations. The apartment's windows when the fire was discovered early Sunday were found closed. Evidence was discovered early Sunday morning, however, when a group of stores, is situated at the corner of Bloor and Dufferin Streets.

With his 75 year old mother-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Burgess, he crawled twenty feet along a ninefoot ledge on the outside story of the block into a neighboring apartment. Mrs. Burgess, who had jumped to safety upon a store awning, let down by an unidentified person who then escaped, crawling precariously on the ledge. Three other dwellers escaped by breaking a sunroom window and clambering through to the roof of an adjoining garage.

Police said they believed the fire started in the basement and has detailed the arson squad of the fire department to investigate. All of Sansone's personal effects were lost in the blaze, including a $700 rare Italian linen valued at $700.

Political Incident of 1905 Recalled as Today's Parallel

German Pressure Blamed 33 Years Ago for Delcasse's Resignation

AGADIR INCIDENT

London, Feb. 21—(CP)—Political observers today remarked on a "certain parallel" between the resignation of Foreign Secretary Eden and the resignation in 1905 of Foreign Minister Delcasse of France, under pressure of Germany.

The following year came the Algeciras conference in which British diplomacy gave loyal support to France and France's "special position" in Morocco was recognized even by Germany.

The Moroccan crisis in 1911 was marked by the appearance of the German gunboat "Panther" at Agadir "to protect German interests." For a time war threatened but Great Britain stood by the French and announced opposition to Germany's obtaining political rights in Morocco. Eventually, later in

Entitled to Equal Rights With Other Powers Says Adolf Hitler in Reich

Burning Question in European Capitals What Will He Do Next?

DEMANDS COLONIES

Use Iron And Steel if Peace of Reich Destroyed

Berlin, Feb. 21 (CP)—Chancellor Hitler gave Europe's troubled capitals no hint today of his next move as leader of a resurging Germany as he declared he "entitled to equal rights" with other powers.

His momentous Reichstag speech Sunday with its Colonial demands seemingly addressed directly to Great Britain and its threat of possible armed action to protect German minorities on the Reich's borders failed to give the answer.

The burning question, "What will Hitler do next?" resounded in world capitals with undiminished force.

Hardly every in Prague, where the Fuehrer's indirect reference to German minorities in Czechoslovakia was reacted as challenging the sovereignty of the State, began to 3,000,000 Germans who "persecuted" ,re pro-Nazi.

Words Studied Carefully

In London, where the government forced the issue of replacing the resigned Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden, Hitler's statement that Colonial demands would "silence the beating tiger" each year was studied closely.

"With Great Britain," the Chancellor said, "as the British has no illigious questions of any sort, unless it be our Colonial."

He hurled a barb at Eden on the ground the young Foreign Secretary did not recognize that "Reichsowned territories are no longer given foreign States . . . but sections of the Muscovite revolutionary conception."

Although Eden's resignation was officially qualified in London by its due to the immediate prospect of Anglo-Italian conversations, many Nazis viewed it as another Hitler triumph. They saw Great Britain as ready to get down to "brass tacks" in dealings with the Fuehrer, at the cost of Colonial concessions.

Predict Agreement

Some optimists predicted a British, Italian, German non-aggression pact.

STOREHOUSES FILLED ICE MEN CALL HALT

Finished with the annual harvest, commercial ice dealers of the district have hauled their equipment from the bay, leaving only rows of evergreen trees standing in the still solid ice to mark the limits of their cutting, and a half dozen fishing shanties in possession. A second frozen surface has immediately formed over the area from which the ice has been taken, none too solidly for safety, it is stated by some of the skaters.

"We cut some of the best ice this year we have had in some time past," stated Harry Smith, whose ice houses now contain between five and six thousand tons of this year's cut".

Benchers to Oppose Government Proposal

Colonel W. N. Ponton, K.C., attended the meeting of the Benchers of the Law Society of Upper Canada, the governing body of the legal profession in Ontario, Mr. Arthur Slaght K.C., was appointed to succeed Mr. Justice Urquhart for the balance of his unexpired term. Two barristers were struck off the roll and one suspended. There are now nearly 90,000 voluntes in the Great Library at Osgoode Hall.

The new building of the Law Society has so far cost $140,000.00 and with furnishings will no doubt reach the sum of $200,000.00. It is expected to be ready for occupancy in September next.

The proposal by the Government to double the disbursements in the Court proceedings was opposed by the Benchers. This would add greatly to the cost of litigation by the ordinary course of the administration of justice.

MOTOR TRAFFIC QUITE HEAVY

Brilliancy of Weather Allows Citizens to Enjoy Pleasure

A brilliant sun streaming from a cloudless sky brought a welcome respite to a winter-worn public in the city and district yesterday. Reflecting the change, in spite of the fact that there was a frosty tang in the air, the brilliancy of the weather drew thousands from the comfort of steam-heated homes to the pleasure of the open road, motoring day this year.

Heavy traffic along the main arteries of the district was the heaviest seen for some time, as the result of the gala day the mercury had presented themselves. In the city a larger than usual crowd of Sunday afternoon pedestrians filled the streets, while thousands of both sexes whirled over the glassy surface of the bay. The scene added a gay touch of color to a well-nigh perfect winter picture.

Weather conditions in the area to the north, which has long been a motorized traffic, travellers report, presented a picture of drifted snow and ice, while county roads likewise presented good travel conditions.

POLICE COURT

William Cumming and a man who police say is Murray Appleyard, both of Toronto, asked for further remands when arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in traffic court yesterday, charged with the theft of a motor car. Cumming was arrested in Toronto and Appleyard apprehended in his native Toronto, following the theft of a car from the Kentucky Hotel, here Belleville two weeks ago today. The pair are charged with the theft of the vehicle. Mr. Ketchison resides in Toronto.

A woman, who gave 230½ Front Street as her home address, was convicted of intoxication, followed by a plea of guilty. Police allege the woman was drunk and causing a disturbance near her home on Saturday night. A fine of ten dollars and costs or 15 days in default was levied.

"I will you give me until the end of the month to raise the fine?" blended the woman.

"Pay Mr. French up at the jail when you get the money. Next case," replied His Worship.

Charged with the theft of two dollars from a local young man was given a suspended sentence, after it was learned by the court that restitution. It was his first crime of any nature, Crown Attorney Donnan informed the court.

COUNTY MEN ATTEND TORONTO CONVENTION

County Clerk Eric Denyes and Reeve W. H. Sayers, of Tweed, left today for Toronto where they will represent the County of Hastings at the Convention of the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities being held there during the next four days.

County Clerk Denyes, a director of the association, will attend a special meeting of the executive tonight at which all arrangements for the convention proper will be made.

Road Superintendent Sim. Fox leaves tomorrow for Toronto where he will attend the convention of Road Superintendents and Engineers.

ICE JAM SHOWS DISTINCT SETTLING IN RIVER CENTRE

Continual Friction of Current Slowly Wearing Away Base of Jam

MANY OPEN CHANNELS

Further receding of water flowing from the upper stretches of the Moira River resulted in a distinct depression of the ice-jam that has blocked the river between the city bridges for the past two weeks.

In some parts of the river a distinct falling away of the frozen jam is noticeable along the river banks. Lowering temperatures of the week-end further strengthened ice and the warmer days and more further receding of water, it was said.

Little or no change was noted in the heavy field at the river mouth although water is still flowing fairly rapidly in the open channels at this point.

Business men and merchants whose cellars and basements were flooded by the backing up of the river water inundated areas west of the river, report a return to normalcy. Cellars are now dry, and heating facilities normal.

DRUNKEN DRIVER GIVEN 21 DAYS

Additional 15 Days Added For Failure to Return to Accident Scene

Convicted of driving a motor car while intoxicated, E. Percy Burnett of this city, was sentenced to serve 21 days in the common jail by Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in the local police court. On a second charge of failing to return to the scene of an accident, Burnett was sentenced to an additional 15 days, the sentences to be served to run concurrent.

When faced with the drunken driving charge Burnett entered a plea of guilty. He was also charged with the theft of a motor car, but when arraigned on this charge entered a plea of not guilty. The case will be heard at the next sitting of the court as he intimated the maximum penalty would be imposed. His Worship replied in the affirmative and sentenced the accused to 21 days.

When answering to the charge of failing to report the scene of an accident and rendering possible assistance, Burnett replied "I don't remember anything about that at all, sir!" At this point the magistrate intimated that a plea of guilty could be entered, when suddenly Burnett remembered the court and replied "Guilty." He was then sentenced to an additional 15 days and his driver's permit cancelled for a period of six months. During the accident two cars were damaged, also a bicycle, while Lawrence Hamilton was slightly injured.

Motorist Burned as Anti-Freeze Bursts Suddenly in Flames

Seared about the face and hands when an anti-freeze radiator mixture of coal oil suddenly spouted into the engine of his car, ignited from a match struck to find its level in the garage of East Bridge Street on Saturday evening, Wilfred Elmas, 20-year-old lad, was rushed to the Front Street drug store.

Bending over the uncapped radiator with a lighted match in hand to investigate the cause of the engine's steaming, Mr. Elmas received the sudden flare of fire directly upon the lower part of his face. In an effort to smother the flame with a rug hastily whipped from the rear of the machine, he suffered further burns to his hands. Declaring he would first aid, the resident applied to the nearest drug store for personal application of an ingredi-

Robbers Labor Long to Open An Empty Safe

The height of disappointment confronted burglars in Belleville over the week-end, after a safe had been stolen and opened, only to find it was like Old Mother Hubbard's cupboard—empty.

Robbers entered Bourk's service station, Cannifton Road, early Sunday and removed the office safe, hauling it to a secluded spot, behind the service station, where the robbers successfully sawed the hinges off the safe, only to find it empty, with the exception of a few papers.

In the office desk, however, the robbers over-looked a ten dollar bill in their hurried efforts to steal the office safe.

The robbers gained entrance by using a portion of an old picket fence as a battering ram which they climbed to an upper window and thence into the premises. Once inside the robbers carried the office safe out through a back door and southerly towards the Moira River, a distance of 300 feet, where by means of a hand hack saw they cut off the hinges of the safe door, only to find the safe devoid of cash, when the door fell out. Following this action all sawing efforts.

The local police department was notified of the break-in early Sunday morning, P.C. Evans investigating. The robbery had doubtless been completed under the cover of darkness after the premises had been secured Saturday night.

"I'm coming, Spud . . . keep him alive that long for me, please! Tell him I'm on the way. I'll come as fast as ever I can get there!"

He held onto the phone for a long time. Long after she had hung up. And the operator kept repeating, "Number, please? Number, please? Operator!" Then a metallic record. Then she rang back on the connection, and the sharp, angry buzz woke Spud from his lethargy.

"She's coming," he muttered hastily. "Yeah, she is. So what?"

Chapter 28

Summons to the Rescue

A bitter, raw, late fall wind ripped at the door, rattling the glass and buffeted the steel body, as it fled on past. Spud, crouched over, after clipping down the steep sides of the hills on the New York edge of New Jersey. There was a singing, moaning wail to the wind, as if it knew that bitter thought. But the girl crouched in the back seat of the car, straight ahead, into the darkness hurtling at them with every lunging leap of the big car as it rocketed along toward Princeton.

Maydra did not move, did not speak other than to say, "Faster!" at short intervals. "Can't you go any faster?"

The taxi driver could, but he had used the suspended sentences handy over him for accidents due to speeding. He had no intention of landing down at Center Street again. He'd be in safe territory to Princeton for some blonde.

So they kept an even stay, and the driver kept a weary eye on the rear vision mirror in case any troopers were trailing them. Mr. Carteret he began watching twin headlights following him, and then down to fifty, then forty-five, and finally forty. At Woodbridge, the driver was very still trailing them and at New Brunswick he began to feel pretty uneasy.

It wasn't a police cruiser, or they'd have come up before now. He rolled through. Hopewell and hoped rather fervently that the lie-detector in the back seat of his cab was not a gangster's lady That she wasn't carrying a gun from anyone. He was a poor man with a wife and four children in a Bronx walk-up flat, and he had no desire to argue with an off-shoot gun along the lonely marsh roads of New Jersey.

Still, he was a fare, and the girl had paid him promptly, in advance, and you couldn't very well argue with that. He had his money and in a few more minutes a few more miles he'd drop her at Princeton, and be on his way back to town again, and was that not a steak pie and apple pudding. The way his wife could make steak pie was something to cheer away even the thought of gangsters in a lonely marsh road.

Beyond Hopewell, he slowed the car down even more, and the twin headlights began wavering, winked out, and then slowed past, picking up speed. He had a clear, distinct view of Lucky's chauffeur as the car rolled by and relief almost choked him, as he realized that the beautiful autocratic woman in the back seat with Lucky was definitely interested in the girl occupying the rear seat of that cab.

"Hurry!" Sumnie ordered Sam's chauffeur imperiously. "We must get there and ahead of her!"

"Yes, of course, Madame," Sam agreed cooperatively. He was rather wary of this dynamic forceful woman. He had reason to be cautious knowing that she opposed, vigorously his desire to marry Maydra. Knowing that nothing more than a merest coincidence threw him within reach, that Mr. Lucky could enlist his aid in stopping Maydra in her mad flight for a marriage.

Sam was too familiar with ruthless ambition to recognize the fact that Sumnie was using him, using his own ambition where Maydra was concerned, as a something that she hoped would get her there first. Sam thought he had nothing whatever to do with him. Other than that, it would remove him—quite from a picture she had no intention of letting him be a big part of.

He sat back, now, apparently relaxed, his chin in his face averted as he stared unseemingly out the car windows at the racing night scene. He was not. He was very much not looking at him. Knew, well enough, that Sumnie was bored with this problem that so vitally concerned Maydra.

Thinking back, he almost smiled as he remembered what had happened. He had left the apartment, and Gerda had answered.

A TONIC AND BUILDER

YOUR health is too important to be neglected. Poor appetite, indigestion, gas, sour stomach have been relieved by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Read this: "I had no appetite and was hardly able to sleep at night," writes Mrs. W. J. Swayzie, 447 Main St. W., Hamilton, Ont. "I had become thin, nothing I ate seemed to do me any good. I was hardly able to do my work." After taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery a couple of days, I noticed a change for the better. In a few weeks I had gained ten pounds, could sleep soundly and felt as good as ever. Good by constipation. Fluid or tablets.

Maydra was not in yet but she would be soon. Would he come over and wait?

"Perhaps you can help her, Sam," Gerda had explained. "It's that college boy again—Tommy. He's ill. And I'm afraid she's considering going down there to him! His room-mate wired her. Practically ordered her to come. Can you beat it?"

"What did Maydra say?" Sam asked curiously, in a muffled tone. He realized, afterward, that he had been very still, had not breathed, waiting for Gerda's reply.

"Maydra? She told him less than a week ago that they were all through. He came up here and staged a dramatic scene, threatening to quit college and go to South America to make his fortune."

Sam smiled broadly. Well he remembered his own dramatic decisions of about that same age though he had not had the college career to give up.

"And Maydra?" he asked quietly.

She told him she was sorry, but whatever he did could not concern her any more. I . . . she'd been a fool something about marrying a man with millions to his dimes . . . I didn't hear much of it, of course!"

"She did!" Sam asked eagerly, excitedly "You're sure she said that, Gerda?" And then, before she could affirm or deny it, "It'll be right over. I'll be —standing by! Your little girl!"

Now, riding along the windswept marshes, he had time to think. To remember Wakefield Ballinger—and the rumors that were rife about town concerning Maydra and him. "What blonde," Wallace Wingtrigham, the Broadway columnist, had written a while back, "with the authentic violet eyes is slated to be Mrs. Wakefield Ballinger when the current Mrs. ex-es her much-married millionaire playboy?"

It had been rather positively intimated that Mr. Wingtrigham had worn an authentic violet, and navy-blue eye for several days after the lady appeared in the morning edition of the Broadway Cavalier.

Sam, Sam, hadn't ten millions, and even discounting feminine exaggeration, and allowing that Tommy had but one dime, it was reasonable to assume that the way columnist, had written a while back, "with the authentic violet eyes is slated to be Mrs. Wakefield Ballinger when the current Mrs. ex-es her much-married millionaire playboy"

It had been rather positively intimated that Mr. Wingtrigham had worn an authentic violet, and navy-blue eye for several days after the lady appeared in the morning edition of the Broadway Cavalier.

Sam, Sam, hadn't ten millions, and even discounting feminine exaggeration, and allowing that Tommy had but one dime, it was reasonable to assume that a large sum wasn't included in the stash.

Still, he was stringing along. He was playing the thing through to the last stand. Until the day Maydra was definitely married. And he wasn't stepping out of the race to run sniveling behind her on the ground without battle royal. He loved to fight too well for what he termed —fondly— from Mr. And he was not yet convinced that Maydra would choose the countless married millionaire playboy from them here his own not to be discounted three millions and a little better, plus the fact that he had never married, never even loved before!

They came to the hospital and went in, and he waited in the small, luxurious room just off the main office while Sumnie made inquiries, gave orders, settling down to funning restless waiting for Maydra.

That she had arrived, and gone straight to a side door, where Sam stood waiting for her when the car rolled up the drive, Sumnie could not guess. The minutes dragged; a half hour had passed. Then an hour.

The girl must have got here by now!

Sumnie inquired at the office. The desk girl phoned. And presently it was learned that a Miss Graham was with Mr. Chisholm now.

Side stood militant guard outside Tommy's room. His brown eyes blazed when he saw Sumnie approaching. Bearing down on him he decided. Like a bull charging, all slight and spoiling for trouble.

"Were you looking for someone? Or he inquired with poisonous politeness dripping from every syllable. Spud having learned him swiftly, graphically.

"My niece." Sumnie stated tersely, "is in there. With that . . . that Tommy person! Let me by, young man. At once!"

"Oh, my no," Side correcting her-self. "You're mistaken, Madame. Mistaken. Nobody goes by! Nobody at present! Orders!" He rolled brown eyes appreciated briefly her fuming frustration but Tommy's dandy was her friend and he was loyal to his friends to the last drop of his heart like a green scar and the appellation never even approached the smiling stage. Merely, "Sorry, but you can't go in there, Madame!" Though Sumnie looked at least fifteen years less her normal age.

"Is Maydra in there? In that room?" Sumnie demanded, measuring each word carefully as if a little afraid to utter it for fear it would either jab, goad of other, some injury, there was so much tension behind it.

"In there?" Jerking his head backward, a little puzzled. "I don't dame." With such exasperating, such utterly maddening finality since that Sumnie had difficulty restraining the enraged insolence to stamp her foot at him, to kick his shins, or slap his face out of that stolid, calm, lofty superiority.

COMPLETES 39 YEARS ORGANIST OF TWEED CHURCH

Elliott, who for the past thirty-nine years has been organist of St. James' Anglican Church. This faithful service was recognized by the rector, Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne, and the Wardens on behalf of the congregation by presentation of a radio and a beautiful lamp. The following address accompanied the presentation:

Dear Mrs. Elliott:

We feel sincere and deep regret we learned that after forty years as organist of St. James' Church you would have to relinquish your position.

During our times of joy and happiness, sorrow and sadness, in peace and war, you faithfully led us on the organ in our praises to Almighty God.

Your resignation, therefore, is hard for us to accept, but we realize and appreciate the reason for it and so we acquiesce but we feel that we cannot allow it to pass without expressing to you our appreciation and heartfelt thanks for a duty so well and faithfully done.

In order that you might have some token of our thankfulness, we ask you to accept this radio and lamp from the members of St. James's congregation whose names are here appended, as a very small token of our heartfelt thanks for your services during the past forty years.

That you may long be spared to us is the sincere earnest prayer and we trust that in God's mercy you may soon be able once more to play the organ in the services of the church.

Signed on behalf of the congregation, Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne, Rector.

GAS-RAID DEFENCES

A "new" life is being learned in London where gas and air-raid shelters have been opened for the people. They consist of a steel-lined gallery and it is said will be able to stand very heavy pressure. There are air locks to keep out gas and luminous paints may be used for emergency lighting.

There are said to be about 26,000,000 respirators for civilians in Great Britain now and they are being added to steadily. A London newspaper describes how the respirators are prevented from deteriorating, based on the statement of the Under Secretary of State for Home Affairs at a recent meeting in Birmingham

Over nine million respirators were at present stored in the London area and production was being maintained at about 650,000 respirators every week. In order to insure that respirators might not deteriorate they were being stored in special depots under careful conditions. For this reason it was not possible for the respirators to be distributed at the present time to the people.

Such is the unreal reality, the grotesque, the actual picture, civilization is up against with the trend of modern times and so much fear of war. Never since man inhabited this planet has such a situation been equalled. Early races lived in caves but it was the progress of civilization and security which brought them out of caves into the healthy air and the home became a dwelling set on the earth, not a hole in the ground, which men had formerly occupied

Once the air and sun brought only light and darkness and health, they now bring also the burning death from an inhuman foe, gas which asphyxiates. So mankind may go back to the earth for security.

Ever since man developed on this earth there has been pure air, except in the vicinity of the areas of active volcanoes and man has always been able to breathe life-giving oxygen, until now when man with his smattering of science has found how to make poison gases and distribute them. Man's home has been his castle, but if the worst fears are realized, it will cease to be that castle of defence and will have to be abandoned for the underground.

So has international madness gone! But there is hope that such dire emergencies may never arise. The defences are ready should they be needed. The earnest prayer and the earnest effort of all will be that such may never be required, that the life-giving air in which man, woman and child trust for very existence may never be made to bear cloudy masses of poison gases.

INCREASED READING

Increased reading by the young is considered by educationists as one of the healthiest signs of the times. Children bedowned in their reading will find their country's delinquency much more readily than those who take pleasure in reading. That is what the staff of Westchester schools have found. "Failure to read for many children becomes the first serious personal experience of their lives" is the finding in these schools Today children have time for play and for reading to a greater degree than ever in the history of childhood.

Reading with ease is one of the essentials of training and children are fortunate to live in lands where they may read to their hearts' content, and be able when they grow up to think for themselves without having to listen as they do in totalitarian states to monotonous voices which tell them what to do and how to think. Reading is the defence of not only wealthy but also the poor. It is the way of progress for struggling peoples and democratic lands and is free without dictation. In other lands that is not the case.

So the boys and girls today who read are sowing good seeds for the day when they will be in charge of their country's affairs, as well as having the enjoyment today with a world wealth in word and picture before them. There is no limit to what they may acquire through the medium of books.

In the annual report of the Corby Public Library it was pleasant to read that there has been a phenomenal growth of reading among the children. Parents and others may be certain that these children are gaining knowledge which is preparing them for the future.

CURE DELINQUENCY AS MEASLES

That delinquency is as easy to cure as measles is the assumption of a group of British psychiatrists who have opened the first crime clinic in Great Britain, the treatment consisting of diverting anti-social tendencies into healthy channels.

Its success will be watched. Patients have been sent by a number of magistrates to the group. After taking tests and history of the patients, the doctors diagnose the cases and present to the police court recommendations as to the sort of treatment which is required

Not many days ago there was a statement of an American body which does not agree with this opinion in its completeness as it finds numbers of cases so deeply rooted that it has been impossible to find a technique which will cure such pronounced cases of delinquency.

Inspiration for the above was furnished by a poem in a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post, titled "THOSE GOOD OLD DAYS, which began back in those leisured tranquil years of horse-drawn buggies and keg-drawn beers. Of Queen Anne houses and Irish coppers, of long-tailed coats and beaver toppers; Back when we fell for Corinne and Lotta, and things by Roger in terra cotta. Respect for the copyright law forbids repeating "Those Golden Days" in this column, suffice it to say that it throws on the poetic screen the names of many who enjoyed the spotlight when we were younger than we are now, including the great "Jawn L'", Tony Pastor and Maggie Cline, pleasant wraiths of Auld Lang Syne, Buffalo Bill and Captain Jack, Fiske O'Hara and Andy Mack, Jack McAuliffe and Kid McCoy, Whitcomb Riley and Eddie Foy—many others besides. However, to return to the ditty at the beginning of this article, it was written by Harry Conor Fay, native Old Boy, now of Buffalo, executive in a large dairy concern. Harry was born in Coleman Ward, and has never lost his love of the Old Home Town, corresponding frequently with friends here. He studied law in a Belleville barrister's office, but gave that up when the wanderlust called him to the great open spaces of the United States. From punching cows to punching a typewriter he contributed humorous sketches to Judge and other joyous publications of the day. Says he, in a letter to a Belleville friend, enclosing "Those Olden Days" by Irving Dillon, which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post—"Have an idea that the author is one of the formerly well-known vaudeville team of Dillon Brothers, who got many a laugh from me at Shea's in days of Yore."

That Body of Yours

Acne—Pimples—Due to Lack of Activity of Certain Glands

Some years ago I tried to interest a skin specialist in diet as a possible cause of acne—pimples. I pointed out that, although some gland change was partly responsible, food must be another factor because the acne in many cases improved or became worse according to the amount of certain foods eaten. He believed that the gland change, likely the sex glands, as the boy or girl emerged into a man or a woman, was entirely to blame.

It would seem that more than one gland is at fault in causing acne, that, in addition to the sex glands, the pituitary gland lying on the floor of the skull is also partly to blame. It is now known that the front part of this pituitary gland has much to do with the way starch and sugar are handled by the body so that slowness or laziness in the development of this gland may account another cause of pimples or acne. In fact, some months ago Dr. C. H. Lawrence in the Journal of the American Medical Association, told of his success in treating acne, even a "number of cases of acne, given daily treatments of pituitary gland," any extract for sixty days. And just recently Dr. Joseph Wortis, research fellow in psychiatry at Bellevue Psychiatric Hospital, New York, reported the successful cure in cases of acne by the use of insulin—the extract of another gland, the pancreas—used to keep diabetics alive.

Thus it would seem that it is some lack of activity or some delay in gland development, as the case may be, that is partly the cause of acne. The fact that acne first, or chiefly, appears at the age of puberty would support this idea.

Even when acne occurs in older people it may be due to lack of activity of one or more glands and extract from such glands or from therapeutic gland should prove helpful. But this is a matter for medical treatment; why does it help in so many cases?

Cholerol is rich in vitamin D. Vitamin D stimulates all the body processes into activity and helps certain minerals—lime and phosphorus—not only build bone but to circulate to the body, but helps to destroy harmful organisms in the body tissues. Also it helps the activity of the body processes stimulates skin activity and helps to prevent and cure acne.

conversations, Viscount Cranborne, parliamentary Under-Secretary for the Foreign Office, stepped down with his chief.

Mr. Eden, leading proponent of collective security and the League of Nations, in his letter of resignation to the Prime Minister said a difference had developed "between us on a decision of great importance in itself and far-reaching in its consequences."

His departure was widely interpreted as opening the way for Chamberlain to pursue a plan close to his heart—a far reaching settlement of outstanding issues with Italy, opposition Liberals, and possibly the younger Conservatives believing the government for "betraying" the Foreign Secretary.

Mr. Chamberlain possibly will face the House with a foreign policy of speeding a Mediterranean settlement with Italy, a colonial settlement with Germany, and perhaps deferring the problem of Italian troops in Spain.

The Prime Minister, in accepting the resignation, insisted there was no fundamental breach between himself and Mr. Eden—merely one of procedure on Italian-British friendship.

Some felt Mr. Chamberlain had wrecked the Conservative party on threats of a split such as the one his father, Joseph Chamberlain, caused among the Liberals on Irish home rule in 1886.

Others, however, thought Mr. Eden, in the true "old school" tradition, would refuse to be a party to any division and yield loyally to party discipline.

Letter Released

The resignation came a few hours after Mr. Eden was attacked by Chancellor Hitler of Germany. Hitler said the youthful statesman neither did not fully understand the implications of the present danger to Europe.

But the clash with Mr. Chamberlain was on Italy, not Germany.

The Prime Minister, in a letter answering Mr. Eden's resignation declared:

"The decision which you find yourself unable to accept is whether the present moment is appropriate for the commencement of Anglo-Italian conversations."

One report widely commented upon is that the moral cause of the break was last Friday's conversation between Mr. Chamberlain and the Italian Ambassador. Count Grandi. It was reported that Chamberlain then laid the ground work for Anglo-Italian negotiations which Mr. Eden found inacceptable.

Viscount Halifax Named

Viscount Halifax, Lord President of the Council, was named to take Mr. Eden's place. Halifax is considered a temporary charge of the Foreign Office.

Newspapers received the resignation with mixed emotions. Some ranged from the Times' (independent) statement that an attempt "to appease Italy at the expense of otherwise of building stable relations between democracies and dictatorships would be premature" to the (Labor) Daily Herald's sharp comment that Eden "has gone because he has been sacrificed to Mussolini."

The Manchester Guardian's resignation ended two years and two months in office. His term covered the difficulties arising out of the Ethiopian conquest, the prolonged efforts to end the Spanish Civil War from spreading, the Sino-Japanese conflict and the relentless and dangerous situation in the Mediterranean.

Tense Week-End

The resignation came after a tense week-end such as Britain has not seen since the abdication crisis in December, 1936.

The Cabinet met repeatedly Saturday and Sunday. The resignation was finally accepted at a meeting of the Senior Ministers and approved by the full Cabinet late at night. Mr. Eden did not attend the final meeting.

Crowds thronged historic Downing Street to watch the coming and going of the Cabinet. Mr. Eden was repeatedly cheered while cries of "No Pact with Italy" were heard many times.

France Regretful

The resignation was joyfully hailed in Italy and Germany where Mr. Eden's views on dictatorships, his strong leadership in the anti-sanctions period on the Ethiopian war, and his refusal to consider recognition of the Ethiopian conquest, made him unpopular and the object of scathing newspaper and radio attacks.

In France, however, great regret was expressed over Premier Chautemps' hastened to the Foreign Office for a conference with Foreign Minister Delbos and career diplomats. The Associated Press learned France had advised Britain it regarded the resignation—as a surrender to the dictatorships. Influential French circles said France would have to go along should Mr. Chamberlain achieve an appeasement with Italy and Germany.

VARIETY IN NAME

Surnames, indeed, are as the sands of the shore for multitude and the like, but Belleville has one that is really nothing remarkable in finding boys in the same elementary class, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, England, shepherded by a master called Turnbull. Among the pupils are those of a laundry named Poole, Bath, and Rivers; or classmates of Messrs. Lamb, Hunter, Waters, Banks, and Weir. Such conjunctions are a guaranteed attraction to the Zoo, but only for a day.

I once spent a vacation in a small village where Bridges and Bell-ringers were dubbed Smallpiece, Dry, and Bacon. Batt was the proprietor of the hostelry, and the draper Allright married a Miss Goodenough.

Some people's names are their trade, names is, in fact, a jumble of beauty, fun, and ugliness. A Mr. Sharpe is a cutler, a Mr. Keychild, a jeweler, Brandflower, Barleycorn, Sweetapple, Greenwood and Bell-ringer; but I should be much interested to learn how either Mr. Fish or Mr. Hunter have contrived to endure a lifetime under their particular labels. Mr. Fish has been called Bribe, Bugg, Clodd, Clout, Clown, Cockle, Crabb, Crayfish, Crumpet, Flea, Glue, Gobby, Goosey, Gork, Gosling, Haddock, Hake, Hook, Mullet, Oyster, Pike, Pigg, Poppy, Shirt, Shove, Spill, Spitty, Tick, Tosh, Trout, Turnip, Whale, Whelk and recently offered a prize for the best list of six random names that will fit Mr. Fish) of eel-tying fun and was repeatedly asked for what purpose included were literary inventions either. We should all bless the union of Gentleman and Lady Asquith, Tea and Twee, Greed and Whale-belly, Deacman and Brodie, Hogsflesh and Onions, Allbless and Goodfellow, Haggis and Macpherson, Bacon and Eggs, Bubble and Squeak, Sausage and Mash, Fish and Chips, and Seagrief and Auguish. But as Nature has a provoking way of defying the existence of what we like, out of sheer experimental malice, to invent Fry and Sons, Cocoa and Squance, Squash and Twaddle, Why and Thing, Yallop and Brierley, Curnow and Sandbach, Halfhead and Cannot, and Bullitude and Stimmins, to name but a few which come of such interesting confusions!—John Cook in Scotsman (Edinburgh).

PROTESTS OVER POLICY ENTITLED TO EQUAL RIGHTS

to cheering members of the Reichstag and the World at large, touched pointedly on most phases of Nazi Germany's foreign policy.

Hitler hailed Germany's new cooperation with Austria but gave no pledge to preserve the independence of that former Hapsburg country in which Nazidom took sweeping strides last week.

He aided with insurgents in the Spanish Civil War with Nazi Navy in her fight against "Bolshevism in Spain", and announced German recognition of Manchoukuo, Japan's great puppet state on the Asiatic mainland.

Will Not Rejoin League

Germany, he announced, "does not even dream" of rejoining the League of Nations.

He declared German industry is ready for "a rearmament greater than such as has never been seen before".

"Eighteen years ago", he said, "I vowed I would fight the Versailles Treaty and set up a People's Army. During the last five years I have succeeded in doing both."

"And at another point: 'Iron and steel will be the basis for our national agitation, poisoning public opinion, and seeking to destroy the peace of the Reich".

Do Not Fear War

Germans did not desire war, but they did not fear war.

He declared Germany as eager to foster friendship with all nations but warned that she would repudiate his "horror and loathing" of Bolshevism, which seeks international ties to contaminate the rest of humanity."

In addition to stating the Reich has no territorial demands in the Far East and Spain, the Reichschancellor put aside claims to Alsace-Lorraine, ceded to France in the treaty of Versailles, when he said: "The Reich has no territorial demands with regard to France."

Hitler's reference to Soviet Russia caused some conjecture. The African Cameroons and Togoland, stripped from Germany by the Versailles Treaty, are under French and British mandate.

Demands Return

In opening discussion of colonies, Hitler appeared to give point to oft-repeated demands for their return when he said Englishmen would better understand Germany's problems if the Versailles Treaty were dissolved and England were forced to speak of colonies reconquered.

The Reich had achieved "the impossible in managing to get along without colonies" and that her efforts could not make up for the limitations.

"That is why, each year we shall demand with increasing vigor the lost colonial domain which Germany did not in the past take away from others but which is in fact today, so to speak, without value to us and which would be of immense indispensable to our own people."

Blames Russian Commissars

In reaffirming his belief in the horrors of the Soviet, Hitler blames anti-communist front, he blamed Russian Communism for the outbreak of the Spanish Civil and China. The attack "inspired and carried out by bestial Bolshevist methods against the resistance of the National population" of Spain. He said the aim of Soviet Russia is to set the world on fire there shall be a Nationalist Spain. Hitler stated positively.

Declaring he did not consider China strong enough to resist a Bolshevist attack, Hitler said: "I fear that a defeat of Japan in the Far East would be a misfortune for Japan more than America, but would benefit Soviet Russia exclusively".

He promised the Reich would remain loyal to the League of Nations "because we do not intend to allow ourselves to be excluded from justice". He sympathized with nations "which misfortune incites to leave the League, and to the method of bringing them effective aid."

Says He Is Leader

Referring to his February fourth announcement of a reorganized government, the Fuehrer said no one could doubt that "I am the authority that is behind it."

If potential enemies would find comfort in recent Reich reorganization had weakened both the army and government, he said, and good, but he warned such enemies to consider carefully before putting their conclusions to a test of arms.

It was then he cried "Iron and steel will be the basis for our national agitation against the Reich enemies European peace."

Strike Quickly

His attacked what he called "international Press agitation against Germany" and said he would not let the next campaign start as long as accompanied the Feb. 4 reorganization, by attacks.

The National Zeitung of Essen, organ of General Goering, gave a hint of what Hitler may have had in mind. It said, "organization of victory had been created which could "strike with lightning rapidity" and "annihilate a gigantic wave of reveal and assassination which threatens to engulf the Reich. The form of the organization was not explained.

In flailing the International Press, the Chancellor singled out Reuters, the British News Agency, for "inventing attempts against my person."

He congratulated Italy as a country where the "understanding of the State and the policy of the great Fellow the same road."

TWO VIEWPOINTS

jority of his colleagues.

When Mr. Eden challenged Germany's designs on Austria and Czechoslovakia he said he encountered in substance the query "Are we our brother's keeper?"

At the same time Mr. Chamberlain was reported as discussing a projected agreement of amity with Italy, without first insisting on preliminary concessions as a basis for discussions. Withdrawal of Italian troops from Spain was among the conditions Mr. Eden set.

The crisis in a way represents a conflict between the policy preached and views of the Prime Minister and what some of the very conservative cabinet members considered impractical idealism on the part of the younger Eden. Only time will tell where the horse-sense lies as between these two viewpoints.

Mr. Eden is no favorite of Mussolini or Hitler. His resignation must have been good for a cheer.

It was he who was largely responsible for persuading the League of Nations to impose sanctions against Italy in an attempt to halt the Italian invasion of Ethiopia. This action infuriated Il Duce and caused Mr. Mussolini to turn from the League.

Recently Mr. Eden has been trying to block the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo alliance of central Europe. That was not calculated to increase his popularity with Hitler.

"BOOM" TOWN IS QUICKLY RISING

Cluster of Buildings on Front Street Knee-Deep in Mud

Zeballos, B.C., Feb. 21 (CP)—British Columbia's newest gold mining "boom" town is rising today out of the rugged rock and wilderness of Island's west coast.

A cluster of frame buildings already has been set up along the town's only street, now knee-deep in mud. Beyond that tents and shacks dot the hills, housing 375 men and more are expected to come to stake gold claims or work on mining developments.

Three restaurants and a 16-room hotel have been equipped to take care of the influx of prospectors and job-hunters, arriving on ships that call three times a month to establish the only contact with the outside world.

Two more hotels are under construction. Both here and Ocean Falls has been granted for the rising settlement. British Policy With France

Sources close to the Foreign Minister said Chautemps and Delbos, after summoning Sir Eric Phipps, the British Ambassador, to the Quai D'Orsay, last night expressed hope Eden might remain as British foreign Secretary.

Phipps was reported to have told them it was too late to prevent Eden's resignation but gave assurances the change in cabinet personnel would not affect British foreign policy or collaboration with France.

Sections of the French press maintained hope that Eden's withdrawal would be only temporary and that he would be restored to office before British-Italian negotiations reached the stage of any concession, such as British recognition of the European conquest.

The Socialist paper, Le Populaire, warned the French government that "democracies can not longer permit themselves the luxury of evasion."

Sees Car Stop

From the time of the arrival of Sergeant Harman, P. C. Arnott and H. T. O. Sam Irvine at the scene of the accident, shortly after 3.00 a.m. Sunday, Provincial Police established a police cordon throughout the entire Eastern Ontario area in an effort to locate an automobile with a broken windshield, but without results. The police continued their search on Sunday also.

Late last night a resident of Coleman made known to the police he had seen an automobile stop abruptly in the vicinity of the accident at midnight Saturday night. "The car was proceeding easterly and had stopped and backed up some feet. As I approached it drove rapidly away. My attention was drawn to the car and I did not look towards the side of the highway," the man, whose name police refused to divulge, is reported to have informed the police.

An autopsy was ordered by Crown Attorney R. C. Dorman, K.C. yesterday and was performed by Dr. R. A. Flynn.

Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Irvine stated today the name of the person referred to in the inquest of deceased was Ernest Legendo, of Hull, Que., who was west bound with a Motorways transport.

The body was taken to the Marlin Funeral Parlors where Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson took charge. An inquest was opened this morning, and following preliminary testimony and identification, the proceedings were adjourned pending developments and subsequent investigation by Provincial Constable W. E. Smith, High County Constable.

The jury empanelled by Sergeant Arthur Harmon included W. A. Woodley, Dee McKinney, Fred Gantzler, H. McGinnis, H. Abbott, H. Bateman and Sam Johnson.

Born in Thurlow

The late Edward LaBrash was 69 years of age and was born in Thurlow Township, his parents being Mr. Joseph LaBrash and the late Mrs. LaBrash. All his life was passed in Thurlow Township and he had been employed for some time at Rollins' brick kilns, Kingston Road, in Thurlow Township. He was unmarried. Friends and acquaintances will regret to learn of his untimely end.

Surviving him are his father, Joseph LaBrash, who resides on Herchimer Avenue, Thurlow Township; two sisters, Mrs. Edward Little, Thurlow Township and Mrs. Charles Cousins, Toronto; two brothers, Frank LaBrash and Joseph LaBrash, both of Thurlow Township.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

Afflicted With Deafness

The late Mr. LaBrash was described by ex-alderman David Rollins of the city this morning, part time employer of the victim as being afflicted with deafness.

"Invariably he used the left hand side of the road, facing the oncoming cars, when he walked on the highway. He had followed this practice for years.

"He was considered a very careful man and as a pedestrian he took no chances."

"I cannot tell a lie," said the ADVERTISEMENT

A precept every GOOD advertisement knows is: "I cannot tell a lie—and get away with it." Even if it wanted to stretch the truth, just a teeny bit, that wouldn't be smart business. Advertisements, then, are essentially truthful. If not from moral scruples, then on a hard-boiled basis of good business practice.

Carry Body Gracefully For Beauty

IT'S SO DIFFERENT AT McFEE'S

MAXINE JENNINGS
Knows importance of graceful movement.

By HELEN FOLLETT

TELL THE pretty dollies about eye shadows and they are "all agog." Report that the Duchess of Windsor has a marvellous gift for make-up, uses a gardenia powder and oil pomegranate blushes, and they become so attentive. Suggest that they find out how they look when standing and walking, and they'll turn their backs on you. Have you, too, this gift?

Yet, grace of movement is not only health-giving but it is the thing that makes the 90.95 dress look like a million dollars. If they movie queens didn't have it, they wouldn't be where they are. Many of them had to go full thrones, a course of calisthenics before they made the grade. Too many of us are unmindful of posture. It is a disgrace, this business of not carrying the body beautifully.

Try walking along the edge of a curb as if you were walking a tight rope. It won't be easy unless you have body balance. Keep the arms out straight from the shoulders, the palms of the hands turned down with a graceful movement as you take each step.

Walk with a book on your head. It won't stay on from falling you will have to stand erect, keep the head on the level, high. Spend five minutes a day at these exercises and you'll see a marvelous figure improvement in no time at all.

An interesting wedding took place at Harold when at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sharp, their only daughter, Miss Anna Mae, became the bride of Mr. George Melvin, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Melvin, Sr., Toronto. The ceremony conducted by Rev. Dr. C. S. Reddick, took place beneath an arch of evergreens in the prettily-decorated living-room. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white velvet with matching accessories and carried Sweetheart roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Jean Wilson, wore navy taffeta and shoulder bouquet of mixed flowers. Mr. William R. Sharp, brother of the bride, was groomsman. After the reception and wedding luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin left on a trip before taking up residence in Toronto. Going away the bride wore a red crepe dress with brown coat and accessories.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Famous Authority on Love and Marriage.

MRS. ROOSEVELT — THE IDEAL MOTHER-IN-LAW

(Copyright, 1938, King Features Syndicate)

Mrs. Roosevelt accepted an invitation to attend the annual Mother-in-law Day festival to be held at Amarillo, Texas, on March 9th. She is to be honor guest and has received a basket of 1,500 roses, which weighed at least a ton.

It would be difficult, if the country were canvassed, to find anyone more suited to be an honor guest at a mother-in-law festival than the President's wife.

Her sons and daughters-in-law both ex- and present, all adore her. And she has had to do some very skilful steering among the previous and present marriages of her children. Her sons-in-law and their various loyalty and Charybdis feats is positive proof that a ton of praise was none too much for the First Lady to receive in recognition of her gifts as mother-in-law.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Winser were graciously received at the White House, shortly after their marriage this autumn. Mrs. Winser, the former Elizabeth Donney, was Elliott Roosevelt's first wife. And young Mrs. Winser, from the moment of her marriage, was host at the children's party held in the White House during Christmas week. He and his first wife were also entertained as the guests and saw that everyone had a good time. Bill is a splendid mother-in-law.

Mrs. Dahl, Anna Roosevelt's Sterling's first wife, is another who fails to mention the First Lady with affection. And since his divorce from the President's daughter, he has been a "guest of the president's mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, at Hyde Park when his children were visiting their great grandmother. All of which serves to show that Mrs. Roosevelt has brought about a triumph of amity when it comes to assuming that most difficult of all roles — the mother-in-law.

A very famous clergyman in Washington used to say laughingly that the commandments didn't go far enough, that there should have been an eleventh commandment reading: "Mind your own business." And Mrs. Roosevelt, in dealing with her in-laws, has scrupulously followed this particular Golden Rule.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., married Ethel Dupont and they were getting their Charlottesville home in order, one of the newspaper women inquired at a press conference: "Are you going to help select the furniture?" Mrs. Roosevelt took refuge in that wise, kindly smile which she reserves when asked a question like "Would you like to see a woman president of the United States?" In answer to the first question, she said that if her advice was asked she would be very glad to give it, but she thought it was much wiser to let young people arrange their homes to suit themselves. Naturally, they would know what they want, better than anyone else.

And this seems to have been the First Lady's method in successfully dealing with her in-laws. She's always there when she is needed but she is conspicuously absent when she feels it's up to her children to straighten their own affairs.

More than half the mother-in-law trouble in the world comes from the women of one generation trying to impose their ideas and ideals on the women of succeeding generations. And that just can't be done and still maintain friendly relations. Perhaps ten thousand years from now, if the world hasn't blown up with "Holy Wars" and such, historians delving into our archaic civilization will try to gather data about the lady who got a ton of roses for being an ideal mother-in-law.

She announced the other day that she would never sit for her portrait. Mrs. Roosevelt apparently has decided to see St. Eleanor, patroness of mothers-in-law, — not as we know, but with the usual halo.

GOOD MANNERS

LATE SUPPER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to entertain a few friends at supper on a certain date. I would like to serve a cold supper at about ten o'clock.

Would tomato juice followed by a shimp salad be proper to serve at that hour?

2. I would also like to know if a table decoration would be correct for such an occasion?

B.

1. Yes, these foods would be proper to serve at that hour. You also should add something hot too.... coffee or hot chocolate (or both, for a choice), and small rolls, split, buttered and thoroughly heated or toasted.

2. Nothing could be more charming than these table decorations that you have planned, a floral centerpiece and crystal candelabars.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have received a formal announcement of a twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Our presence is "requested", and in one corner is the word "Reception" and in the other corner "Dancing".

1. Are we to take a gift should we be called, or isn't a gift expected?

2. My husband has only a business suit. Should I wear a dance dress and shoes and other shirt?

A.

1. It would not be necessary to take a gift, but you may if you wish. Or you might prefer to send a box of flowers to arrive on the morning of the reception.

2. Yes.

REMOVE THE TISSUES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to graduate this month and a few of the girls who are graduating disagree on two questions.

1. When sending announcements is it proper to remove the tissue from the announcements before mailing them, or should the tissue be left in.

2. Is it proper to sign pictures which are given to relatives and close friends

A.

1. It is better form to remove the tissues. And since these announcements are usually engraved well ahead of time, the ink probably will be well dried and then the engraving will not blur or rub off.

2. Whether or not we autograph photographs depends on our choice. But if you do write a message on them the form of the message should be carefully chosen. The appropriateness to the person to whom you are giving the photograph.

WIFE'S NAME FIRST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When sending greeting cards at the holidays and also to my friend's family, I signed my name first and then his name. My family feel that as they are "his" family, I should have signed his name first, and then my name. Is there a rule governing this matter?

Reader.

You did just the correct thing. Your cards are signed with the wife's name first....Mary and John ....even if John's family feel he is my wife, and even if they are to be sent to the husband's family.

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please inform me if it is improper or rude not to send announcements of a wedding to friends and relatives? I have been informed that friends and relatives will feel hurt and insulted if the announcements are not sent to them. Their wedding is not to be secret, but we are not having invitations printed, and I can see no reason for having announcements either.

H.

It is not at all necessary to send formal announcements of a marriage. The bride and her family decide what they want to do about this, and their decision is all that counts.

NO ENGAGEMENT RING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When the bride does not care for an engagement ring and still wishes to make known her engagement to relatives and friends, what is the procedure?

W.

The correct procedure is a very simple one; she tells the news to her relatives and friends. She will live near enough to be told verbally, and writes notes to those who live at some distance. Her fiance does the same. Her family may, if they wish, send the announcements of the engagement to the newspapers.

What Local Theatre Managers Say About Coming Attractions

AT THE REGENT

"Navy Blue and Gold"
"Trapped by the Mob"

Three rollicking midshipmen provide as many triple threats in romance, drama and football in "Navy Blue and Gold", coming to the Bells Tomorrow (Tuesday) and Wednesday, matinee daily.

This is the adaptation of the novel by George Bruce, which reaches the screen at precisely the correct time. In the opinion of the writer, it is the foremost gridiron picture of the year. This is due not only to the excellence of the football sequences but to the power of the narrative and the first rate acting of the players, to which Samuel Wood has contributed the finest sort of direction.

Robert Young, James Stewart and Tom Brown are the midshipmen, with Lionel Barrymore as a veteran Navy coach, long retired, but still active in heart and spirit. Florence Rice is the girl for whom Young and Stewart are rivals in romance. Much of these sterling players gives a flawless performance.

Others in the cast whose work will receive high rating, include Billie Burke as the society matron, Bernard Patrick as the English butler much concerned in the intricate wedding plans, Paul Kelly and Regis Kelly as the navy coach and Samuel S. Hinds as the dignified father of Miss Rice.

The story presents the drama of a midshipman who comes up from a ballyhoo to win commission at the Academy but is blocked when it is learned he is the grandson of an assumed name. It then develops that his father, a former navy officer, had been dismissed under mysterious circumstances, using the same and is reinstated with the aid of his classmates and an old coach.

There is real drama here, which Young, Stewart, Barrymore and Brown portray with telling effect. The love interest is maintained in a high degree by Rice and there is real art for the girl who finally chooses the lad from the finer.

"Trapped in the Alps"

The companion feature attraction on the same program is "Trapped in the Alps", the original story of a terrific story of Scotland Yard that will thrill audiences with its thrills and excitement.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Wrong Road"

Does anyone ever beat the crime game? Is it possible to cheat the law, and get by, year after year, with no mental, moral or corporal retribution?

Thousands of prisoners in our institutions, who have spent the greater, fuller part of their lives staking for their social wrongs, would chorus an unanimous no.

"The Wrong Road", now playing the Capitol until Tuesday night as a first run hit, presents in a gripping manner, the folly of attempting to beat the law. As a novel departure, the propaganda is not presented as two nice kids, not intimately bad, but misguided by a hair's sense of values. Brought up in the lap of luxury, they cannot accept a fate which means nothing in store for them but poverty and hard work. The world owes them a living they decide. So they set about to collect that living by stealing a hundred thousand dollars from the bank that employs one of them. Much of these sterling players faithfully paying the penalty prescribed by the law.

Coming out of jail, however, they find that life is not as easy as they had anticipated. First of all, they find that the antique dealer to whom they had entrusted the music box containing the money, had died, and his effects were to be auctioned off at a public sale. Meeting at the end of the trick of time, they strive valiantly to get possession of the treasure which they are robbed by a wealthy auction hound. Visiting his home, they attempt to by negotiation to buy the music box, and he discovers that his friend's former confederate, had been dismissed under mysterious circumstances. Finally using the same and is reinstated with the aid of his classmates and an old coach.

There is real drama here, which Young, Stewart, Barrymore and Brown portray with telling effect. The love interest is maintained in a high degree by Rice and there is real art for the girl who finally chooses the lad from the finer.

ChildDoesn't Have Sense Of Time

But He Can be Taught When He Should Go Home After a Visit

By LISA GRENELLE

MRS. WILLIAM Salmon, a good-natured woman, is genuinely fond of children, her neighbors' and her own. Her own grown children should associate with others their own age, without interference, but asked her daughter Amy's friends, her son Alfred's friends and her own friends' children, also the little ones next door and across the street, to come over on any afternoon to play in her back yard.

The result was that she asked them they did drop in. And they found in her a genial, good-natured woman, a friendly soul, and had to be reminded twice that it was time to go.

The third day she came a little earlier, stayed a little later and brought a few more friends.

Children Everywhere

Mrs. Salmon was very fond with children. They overflowed her kitchen and overflowed her house. Mrs. Salmon couldn't move about her kitchen without stepping on or tripping over some child.

But sometimes genial Mrs. White would become irritable and quiet; a little time to herself to get things done, without interruption. But the children kept coming earlier, staying later, bringing their lunch. Mrs. Salmon's visits became longer the bowls, shrieks, scrambles, laughter, tears and piling laughter. With sudden and unexpected ferocity and tenderness the children one day and chased them home.

A kind fairy turning into a witch at midnight, such a sudden and alarming transformation. Mrs. Salmon's children were so frightened that none of them came back next day or the next. Alfred sulked and Amy wept.

Solves the Problem

After some consideration Mrs. White came upon an idea. Sunday afternoon, or some other more, she called three of the older ones to her and presented them each with an inexpensive watch. This she explained, would tell them when to come, also when to go, and they could tell the others. She dubbed them generals, put them in complete charge of the "gang". She named three o'clock as the time to come, and six to go.

The generals were delighted. They felt very important and honored, and took their duties with extreme seriousness. Each of three they marched up to the house followed by the others. If it hadn't been exactly three, somebody might have suspected they couldn't tell time as well as they said they could, and what a disgrace that would have been! And for the same reason, at exactly six they dismissed the "gang", sent them downstairs or in from the yard, then out into the street.

Mrs. Latta Observes Her 82 Birthday

Plainfield, (Special) — Every mail for the past several days has brought letters and congratulations to Mrs. James Gilbert Latta, who on Sunday, Feb. 20th, celebrated her eighty-second birthday. Mrs. Latta was formerly Julia Ann Latta, youngest daughter and only surviving child of ten children born to the late Samuel Latta and Caroline Stapley, is enjoying splendid health and was able within the last week despite the icy walks to journey down to the home of her old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mills and spend a couple of hours visiting with them. Her many warm friends and neighbors extend felicitations and wish her many years of fellowship in her old surroundings.

Mrs. Latta was born in Latta a mile from here and has spent all her lifetime here with the exception of a short time spent in Florida and with relatives in Toronto. She owns her own housework and still makes a hobby of raising canary singers. She is very active and enjoys many visits from her old friends and acquaintance. She is considered to be exceptionally good with children in times of illness. Norman Latta, of Belleville, is her only son and Mrs. Alfred Wright, of Illinois Street, Tweedie, an only daughter.

Father and Brother Rude, Overbearing

Girl Wonders if All Men Are Like That —Won't Wed if They Are

By VIRGINIA LEE

SOME FATHERS and brothers are not much help to a girl in the matter of making them like the male sex in general. In fact, all too often girls long for husbands who are the direct opposite of the men in their homes.

L.E.G. asks me not to print her letter, but I am sure she will not mind my quoting from it to show what I mean. She has a father who is a "good provider" as far as the material things of life go—food and clothes—but he is not at all a companion or good example for his children. The brothers pattern themselves after him. And the home is such that it cannot be a real refuge that it should be.

"Is there such a thing as LOVE? Inquires this young girl (she is only 21), or do you have to learn to love your mate? I think a husband should respect his wife and give her credit for what she does. And above all, I want a husband with good manners and who acts the same all the time. By that I mean that he won't quarrel all the time he is home and then act like an angel when he goes out.

"I simply won't live with a man who drinks, and I won't live with a man who thinks all a woman is for is to be his slave and to bear his children. Do you think there is a man who feels the same about his ex I do?"

She knows I will tell her to go out with the boys, she says, but she cannot bear the silly boys of her own age.

I can assure you most earnestly that there are men—and young men, too—who feel as you do, and who know how to treat women. And women are not always fair and easy to live with either, you know. There are many who are irritable and forever nagging their poor families, but who are as sweet as pie when there are strangers around. But you don't think that all women are like them, do you.

Are you a business girl or have you been to college? You should do one or the other. You will get a different slant on men if you associate with them in either place. That is you will see the difference if you will not shut your eyes to their good qualities. Don't make up your mind that all men are overbearing and rude, as your father and brothers seem to be. And that all boys your age are silly, because they are not.

Accept dates with boys — even with the silly ones—is my advice, and go with them with an open mind. Many younger boys chatter and act smart just because they are shy and want to make an impression. Underneath they have fine kinds and elements of conduct. Learn to look beneath the surface with all the people you meet, then.

Some act as your father and brothers do, because at heart they are not sure of themselves, and don't know how to win affection and companionship. In studying these men of your family and the boy you don't like, and friends with them. You may be surprised. Good luck, little girl!

WONDERING cannot entertain her friends in her home and so hesitates to accept invitations to her girl friend's home. This girl friend has asked Wondering to go and live with her. Wondering wants me to advise her.

As I do not know your circumstances, Wondering, I hesitate to give you my advice. There may be any number of reasons for you to make reasons why you cannot have your friends in your home. And most of these reasons would justify you in leaving home to live with your friend. But there, and your people might be heartbroken if you left.

Another thing is that in addition to obligating yourself to strangers, as you would if you went to live with this chum and could not pay your way. With your friend's income than you gave me on your postcard I would say that it would be wiser for you to stay at home until you have finished school and are earning your own living. Then, if things are too bad at home, leave and go where you will be happier.

A Costume In Brown And Gold

GOLD is very popular this season, and when combined with brown it makes a lovely color harmony.

All in brown and gold is this attractive costume worn by one of the cinema featured actresses, Shirley Ross. Dark brown lightweight wool fashions the flared skirt, which is not visible in the picture.

The blouse is gold lame with a high, shirred neckline.

A dark brown felt turban is accented with Roman-striped ribbon, and massive gold earrings when worn over gauntlet gloves of brown antelope.

New suits are being sent out of important dress houses to show the demand for tailored suits to wear now under topcoats. One successful is a slim black dress over which is worn a bright colored, little suede jacket. This suit is worn under the Persian lamb coat—or any other warm topcoat right now—and when the warmer weather comes it makes a springlike and attractive suit to wear minus the coat.

Women Writers Increase

Women listed as editors and reporters have increased 1862 per cent on a proportional basis in the last twenty years, according to a report by Mary E. Pidgeon, chief of the research division of the women's bureau of the United States department of labor, and reported in Editor and Publisher.

According to the report, 20 years ago men in editorial and reportorial positions outnumbered women more than seven to one. The percentage in 1930 was slightly more than three to one.

The discovery of celluloid was brought about through the accidental upsetting of a bottle of collodion.

Educating Women Girls

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

A HUNDRED years ago, 1837, Oberlin was the first college to open its doors to women as well as men.

Four women attended that year. Now there are about 500,000 women in college education in our nation. No woman had an A. B. degree in 1837. A million of them hold this degree today. At present there are 641 co-educational colleges, 80 men's colleges and 130 women's colleges.

Even up to 1800 the public school laws ignored girls. When they always meant "boys". Until 1822 Boston girls were allowed to attend public school in summer only, and not even then unless there were seats left vacant by the boys.

The constitution of the United States contains no mention of education. The subject of education was not debated or even seriously considered, when this constitution was drawn up. Education then was looked upon as activities of the church, family or individual. Many of the farmers of the constitution had been educated in England; same were reading their first books.

Nathan Hale, while a schoolmaster in New London, 1774, wrote a letter jo a friend:

"I have hops during the summer a morning school between the hours of 8 and 1, of about 30 young ladies; for which I have received 30 shillings a schoolar by the quarter." Hale never saw the inside of "in all my school days which ended in 1901. I never saw but three females in public school in my life, and they were not in the afternoon to learn to write." There is a record in Gloucester, Mass., showing that in 1770 two out of eight hours of each day were to be given to girls.

Married Women Teachers

School boards all over the country have been dropping married teachers. But don't they make good teachers? Should women be for teachers or for children?

The trustees of Barnard college, Columbia university, have adopted a liberal policy that is worthy of emulation. They say that women teachers are not dropped from the faculty. A teacher expecting a baby is given a leave of absence with salary for half a year or with half pay for a whole year. Says Dean Gildersleeve:

"It is of the greatest importance that our teachers should be normal and interesting human beings, with as full and rich lives as may be. Neither the men nor the women on our staff should be forced into celibacy. Apart from the great source of experience, of joy, sorrow and wisdom, which marriage and parenthood offer."

Poems That Live

THE TOIL OF THE TRAIL

What have I gained by the toil of the trail?
I know and know well.
I have found once again the lure of the land
In the loud city's hell.

I have broadened my hand to the clinch and the axe,
I have had my fill of the rain;
I was hunter and trailer and guide;
I have known the most primitive wilderness again.

I have threaded the wild with the stealth of the deer,
No eagle is freer than I.
No man can thwart me, no torrent appal,
I defy the storm sky.
So long as I live these joys will remain.
I have touched the most primitive wilderness again.

SWIM SUITS IN ONE PIECE

Swimming Apparel on Southern Beaches Is Not Likely to Prove a Bit Cumbersome to Lassies Who Love Active Water Sports

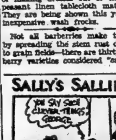
Miss Naomi E. Stapleton, Clinton, Ia., one of St. Petersburg, Fla., Junior college, models two bathing suits, above, "Sam Mould" and right, "Sam Brown," both in crinkly rainbow crepe silk.

THE ONE-PIECE bathing suits have it and "it" this season, according to the models we see parading on the southern and southwestern beaches.

Whether the beach censors in the northern towns will allow their village maidens to parade around in these scanty suits when the good old summer comes is a matter of conjecture. But they are certainly fascinating, and they cannot be called cumbersome enough to prevent milady from doing all the lively swimming she wishes to do.

I wonder sometimes if we moderns realize how short a time ago it was when a woman who could swim was a rare fish. It is no longer ago than when some of the elder mothers and the younger grandmothers were girls. And now, visit any beach anywhere and it's the jolly young mermaids plunging out to the waves and racing their brothers and boy friends to the raft. It is quite a rare thing, indeed, nowadays to discover a woman who cannot swim.

Two New Suits



We are showing two of the new suits which were snapped on St. Petersburg, Fla., Miss Naomi E. Stapleton of, Clinton, Ia., a co-ed at St. Petersburg's junior college, modeled them. The suit worn by her as she reclines on the hot sand is made of crinkly rainbow crepe, just a little simple one-piece with the crinkly material and the colors of the fabric the only decoration. Such a frock is easily laundered and classy suit.

The picture in which Miss Stapleton is swinging down through the arches of palm trees is fashioned in much the same way, but is called a "Sam McLeod maid." Note the many sands she is wearing.

Let us leave the swim suits for awhile and see what else in the line of wearing apparel is coming out of the resort season. One of the more unusual things is the linen tablecloth dress. It is not a new idea. It was several years ago that a dressmaker conceived the idea of making dresses out of the gay peasant linen tablecloth materials. They are being shown this year in inexpensive wash frocks.

Gay Gum Drop Squares Add Some Color As well as Sweetness to the Day's Menu

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Lima Beans With Pork Chops
Scalloped Cabbage Buttered Beets
Pineapple Cottage Cheese Salad
Gum Drop Squares Coffee

Gum drop squares are a gay little confection which will brighten up any meal, or between meal snacks.

Today's Recipes

LIMA BEANS WITH PORK CHOPS—One-half pound dry lima beans, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon brown sugar, one-fourth teaspoon mustard, one-fourth cup tomato catsup, one tablespoon finely chopped onion, three or four pork chops. Soak beans overnight in cold water to cover. The next morning drain and cover with hot water. Heat to boiling, simmer 30 to 40 minutes. Drain, saving liquid. Combine salt, brown sugar, mustard, catsup and onion. Stir into beans. Turn into a greased baking dish . Add bean liquor to moisten. Add onion. Rub pork chops with salt and pepper, place over beans, bake in a hot oven until chops are browned on top, then reduce heat and bake slowly until chops and beans are tender.

GUM DROP SQUARES — Two cups brown sugar, one-half cup shortening, four eggs, one cup milk, three cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon salt or less, one pound gum drops cut fine, one cup nut meats cut fine. A variety of colors in the gum drops adds to attractiveness. Mix in usual way and bake on cookie sheet about 24 minutes, or 40 minutes in oven set at 350, having it 350 to begin. Cut into squares or bars while still hot. Remove from pan at once and ice if desired with confectioner's sugar moistened with small piece of butter and juice of one orange.

SHEPHERD'S PIE—Six medium potatoes, one-third cup unsalted evaporated milk and one-third cup water from potatoes, mixed, two cups leftover beef or canned roast beef, two tablespoons fat, two tablespoons flour, two cups hot water, salt and pepper to taste. Pare potatoes . Cut into quarters or eighths and boil in only enough salted water to prevent scorching. When tender, drain and mash. Add enough diluted milk to moisten. Beat until light and fluffy. Place beef in saucepan in which fat has been melted. (Fat from roast beef gives an excellent flavor.) Sprinkle with flour and stir to blend well. Add water, salt and pepper to beef and cook slowly until gravy thickens slightly. Pour into baking dish. Drop mashed potato by spoonfuls over top. Serve at once or set in a moderate oven (350 F.) to brown top. Creamed salmon or tuna may be used in place of the beef and gravy. Serve six to eight.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Cinnamon a Favorite Flavor

It's not surprising that cinnamon, becoming America's favorite flavor, for last year 11 to 12 million pounds of this spice to supply the needs of the United States market. That's a good million pounds more than was required in 1936. Cinnamon, which looks as if cinnamon buns and cinnamon toast must have cinnamon, always were filling the national sweet tooth.

Spices are not the only foods for which cinnamon is an ideal flavor. It is a favorite flavor also popular in beverages, especially in such drinks such as Bal Cafe (hot tea and spices), chocolate, and after-dinner coffee in the form of a tall stick of cinnamon serves as a muddler as well as an aromatic flavoring.

BACK AGAIN as an evening color is brown. A handsome frock is of brown faille taffeta, very form fitting, with feather sprays of rhinestones.

THE ONLY TOUCH of color on a black frock is a wide belt of light metallic cloth. It is very smart. The frock is of dull black sheer woolen with huge sleeves and a pleated skirt.

LOOK AND YOU WILL FIND plenty of printed satin for evening wear. A clinging frock and matching bolero is made of white satin with a wallpaper design in navy and big pink velvet roses at the center decolletage.

UNDER THE SUN lots of girls down south are wearing scoop bonnets with scalloped edge brims. These are of felt; a nice model is of pale pink felt with an inserted crown band of matching dyed exactly to match the felt.

SNOW ON SUN, either extreme will be right in Reason's opinion for a smart dress of navy crepe with a belt made of white pigskin leather and white pigskin piping for the slanting bodice pockets.

TAKE GOOD ADVICE and shop for the cruise shops for clothes to wear right up north. Investigate those simple dresses of sheer, dainty woolen made in pastels; ideal for a warmer clime as you sail on under a Florida sun.

Relative of Garbo Has Mind of Genius, Avers Instructor

Ruth Louise Olsen

By Central Press

PRETTY Ruth Louise Olsen of Ogden, Utah, has the mental ability of a genius, according to John Benson, psychology instructor at Weber college, Ogden, where she is a freshman. Incidentally, Ruth is a second cousin of Greta Garbo.

Miss Olsen passed the Otis-Haste psychological examination for university students with a score of 142.

"This gives her a percentile rank of 100, the highest possible, and places her in class No. 1, or that of a genius," Benson points out. "Properly directed, she is capable of leadership and great success. Mindedness, however, she may fail because she can pass her studies without effort and may just ride through."

She missed but eight of 150 questions in the examination, which is designed to test innate ability, learning, experience, facts and knowledge. She played nine years the flute and clarinet and sings."

Antitoxin Modifies Measles

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

LAST WEEK, a couple of new studies that have been made in the subject of mumps. This week I find an article in a current medical magazine on control of another infectious disease, measles.

Measles, like mumps, is not nearly as innocent a parents are sometimes inclined to believe. There is a definite death rate, but it is comforting to know that it has been steadily declining. In Massachusetts, for instance, in the year 1930, the death rate for measles was 9.1; in 1936 it was 4.8. This has been due probably more to intelligent isolation and quarantine used by parents than to any public health measures. There used to be an idea that children should have measles and get it over with, but that is not generally true.

The reduction in the incidence of nutritional and mineral deficiency diseases in children, together with improvement in housing conditions, has reduced the number of chronically ill and debilitated children in whom measles found many of its victims. Besides that, it is possible now to protect children in the face of an epidemic with various kinds of sera.

Antitoxins Used in Measles

Antitoxins against measles are found in the blood of almost all patients who have recovered from measles, and intramuscular injections of such blood can be given to those who have had contact with a case of measles and show a considerable reduction in incidence. If given during the incubation period—that is, during the time after contact—it protects against an attack during the first of the five days, and modifies the attack during the second five days, and even in the eruptive stage it may have a diminishing effect on the severity of the disease.

Protection by the use of human immune bodies is of short duration, lasting only a few weeks, and is of particular advantage when used in institutions, or where any one chronically ill, debilitated or very young children.

LUBRICATION TO BANISH DRYNESS NEEDED TO KEEP HANDS BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

THERE ARE still some women in this world, I find, who think that hands, to be beautiful, must be small. The person one sees at the glove counter attempting to pack her beefy size-eight fist into a petite size-six glove for example, is apparently laboring under this delusion. But she's only kidding herself. Today, hands must have more than just smallness to command them. To be considered truly beautiful, hands must be graceful and expressive. And most important of all, they must be soft and well-moisturized.

The idea of using lubricants and lubricated gloves for hand-beautifying originated a long time ago, a far back as "Good Queen Bess" by, in England. And they are employed for this purpose by her sons.

Unfortunately, there seem to be a good many femmes who do not take the beautifying effects that are obtained by the use of creams and night gloves. Of course, just rearing plain gloves at night isn't exactly beautifying, but when a rich cream is made on the hands beneath the gloves, the result is smooth and clear hands.

During this cold season, when hands tend to become dry and chapped, it is something to know how to preserve that soft, velvety smoothness of the skin.

Cleansing Important

Also be careful how you cleanse your hands during this cold weather, too, for improper cleansing can do a great deal to chap and redden the hands. It is wise not to use cold water for washing your hands in cold weather. Your water should be warm, or at least tepid, and your soap pure and bland. And always after washing your hands dry them thoroughly and apply a good hand lotion or cream, to counteract any drying effects of the washing. Then, before retiring, clean your hands well, then dry them and massage a rich cream into them. Knead it well into the skin, massaging the fingers all along their length. Then put on a pair of loose cotton or chamolette gloves. Permit the cream and gloves to remain on your hands all night.

Teeth

Eleanor: I would advise you to have your teeth cleaned and polished by a reliable dentist, to remove all tartar and calcareous matter. Daily brushing should keep your teeth white and sparkling.

Shut Out at Home by Americs But Win 3-2 in New York

By A. E. FULFORD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hockey's master minds can start worrying anytime now about how to provide a thrilling stretch drive for the customers who have been so generous with their patronage all season. With a month of the schedule remaining, the mathematically minded doubt that five of the six playoff places have been decided.

If the eventual result becomes any more obvious than five weekend games made it the National League magnates may be driven to bringing in ice shoes to give attendance during the last fortnight a shot in the arm.

The set-up in the Canadian division appears clear enough with Toronto Maple Leafs on top and likely to stay there, Montreal Canadiens running a poor second and New York Americans threatening just enough to keep Habitants stepping.

The tie contrived to maintain the status quo when all won victories. Leafs' Americs splitting a series. The New Yorkers won at Toronto Saturday night and Leafs took last night's game at New York 3-2.

And Canadiens helped to keep it a three-team race by defeating Montreal Maroons 4-3 in overtime Saturday night. Johnny Gagnon's extra-time goal was a coup de grace to Maroons. It is still mathematically possible for them to reach the playoffs but hope's need be a megaton on every Rue to do it.

In the American division Boston Bruins need fear only New York Rangers' threat to their hold on the leadership, and Hewlins pulled 3 1-2 games ahead of Lester Patrick's team last night by defeating them 3-2 in Boston—their second victory over the New Yorkers by the same score in four nights.

That leaves only one real scrap left to enliven things for the last four weeks—the battle between Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings for the third spot. And it looks like an even money bet now with the Hawks a game ahead but Wings one in hand.

Last night Jack Adams' team pulled up close to the Chicagoans by defeating them 1-0 before 18,000 Hawk fans. A second period goal by young Alex Motter, Red Wing centre, gave them victory in a game that had few highlights.

All the power that seems to be taking Bruins along to their first Stanley Cup win since 1929 was evident last night as they came from behind to wipe out two Rangers' first period goals and win with only 21 seconds left to play.

Goldsworthy Scores Winner

Babe Pratt and Happy Watson set up the Rangers lead in the first period and Charlie Sands' score in the second and Dit Clapper's in the third broke it down. That set the stage for Leroy Goldsworthy's winning tally.

The largest crowd of the Boston season—16,400 persons—saw the knock down and drag out affair that reached a high spot in the second period, when Eddie Shore and Babe Pratt tangled. They resumed their fight in the penalty box and drew concomitant penalties for calling each other names.

Americs' shutout of Leafs Saturday was the first that has been registered on the Toronto sound this season. The New Yorkers looked great and Earl Robertson even had the partisan Toronto fans cheering for his netminding.

Nels Stewart, pointing toward the 500th goal of his N.H.L. career, knocked off his 397th in the first period and Johnny Sorrell, with two, and Lorne Carr were the other Americans marksmen.

Apps Scores Two

Bill Thoms and Syl Apps barged goals in the first three minutes of play at New York and Apps added another in the third. Sorrell and Eddie Wiseman scored for the New Yorkers.

Dave Trottier of Maroons was serving a penalty when Gagnon scored the winning goal at Montreal. The overtime was almost half through but there was still room for a fist fight between Gagnon and Earl Robinson and a penalty also for a word to Maroons with which they did themselves no good.

After a scoreless opening session, Robinson and Bob Gracie gave Maroons a lead in the second period with Canadiens keeping cutting it down through Rod Lorrain's effort. Gus Marker shot Maroons two goals ahead again in the third but Lorrain scored his second and Haynes fired the tying counter.

O. R. F. U. May Forsake A. A. U. of C. Next Season

Toronto, Feb. 21.— (CP)— The Ontario Rugby Football Union will remain a member of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada for this year—because its membership fees are paid—but according to ORFU President John Degruchy something will be done in 1939 about severing ties away from the organization.

In supporting a resolution by which the O.R.F.U. would become a member of a proposed Ontario Athletic Association, Mr. Degruchy told the annual meeting here Saturday that steps may be taken to forsake the A.A.U. of C. next year. The meeting adopted the resolution, which criticized the A.A.U. as "not fulfilling the purposes of its incorporation."

Membership of the proposed Provincial association will be confined to gymnasiums and clubs, it was explained in the resolution as a "clearing house only." The President said the Federation has been approached by the executives of most of Ontario's provincial sports bodies and that it would not usurp the autonomy of any of the individual members. It would be a "central council for discussion of problems and recommendations."

Among other things, the meeting decided to ask the Canadian Rugby Union to reopen National finals for Junior and Intermediate teams. Six-man football popular in United States High schools, will be promoted in minor leagues by a committee of the Union.

STIRLING WINS OVER TWEED 2-1 IN FAST CONTEST

Victory Places Stirling in Tie For First Place

CLOSE CHECKING

Gus Leonard Scores Winning Goal For Stirling

Stirling, Feb. 21 (Special)—Shades of old days returned to the Stirling hockey rink on Saturday night, when Stirling was a close 2-1 victory over the league leading Tweed team in the Trent Valley series. Nearly a thousand fans witness a game in the Stirling rink for several seasons, the game was a sparkling display of real hockey with plenty of real body checking thrus in. Lorne Shaw, referee, refereed a tough match and plenty of penalties were handed out with the share about equal.

Close Checking

From all appearance the Stirling crew had been well trained to play close checking and after scoring early lead and tore in right from the bell. Tweed must have had the same idea for in the first frame play raced from end to end with alternate rushes by both goalies having plenty to stop. Stirling had a slight edge in the play in this period if any, for Tweed's forwards covered up plenty on the defensive and found that the slight set break, Ingram and Ackers were hard to break on the Stirling defence and when on the few occasions they turned the trick through, managed to outguess them. The crowd shrieked it approval when Betty Black drew the net through alone on one occasion only to bury the puck deep in the back net. Thompson in the Tweed nets. The first period ended with no score. Both teams had turned it on for twenty minutes without a let up to and the crowd left them a great hand as they skated off.

Two Penalties By Referee

With the speed of the play increasing in the second period even the referees became jittery and surprised Early in the period Tweed staged the most brilliant rush of the night, which climaxed with a side-up in the Stirling defence as they finally became untangled Ingram was left in the clear, and the crowd booed the decision. From the face-off Jack Ackers was sanctioned to the side for charging and then a most unusual thing happened. In the dressing room, they changed their minds again and Ackers was ordered back through the period the first tally was scored, when Butler skated fast into the corner and passed to Ross who banged it paused Thompson to put Stirling out front.

Last Period

Still turning on the speed Stirling checked like fiends and refereed by Shaw, they played unusual rus retaliation, with all Stirling out for the play. Victor Merrow broke away to beat Fox for the equaliser. Play speeded up again and after another minutes Gus Leonard scored the goal, that won the game for Stirling. Tweed carried the play in the last seven minutes and both teams seemed to tire under the strain.

The game was so close throughout the last thirty minutes that only breaks separated the teams. The line up of Tweed verified their worthiness of the position they occupy and the top spot in the loop all season. Nor have they relinquished that spot yet. Stirling by virtue of Saturday's win moved up to share first place with the Tweed outfit.

Leal, Thumson and Merrow were the choice of the visitors but only by a slight margin over the rest of their teammates who all played sparkling hockey. Thompson, Butler and Gus Leonard were the fastest skaters on the ice. Some of the effectiveness of Morton, Dalnard, Reid and Butler was appreciated by the Stirling supporters. Both goaltenders were right on.

Lineups:

Tweed: Goal Thompson; defence Thumson and Leal; centre Courtoreyse; wings Merrow and P. Leal; Substitutes Butler, Dalnard, Reid, and Prevost.

Stirling: Goal Fox; defence Ackers and Ingram; centre Robinson; wings Leonard and Fraser; Alternates Butler, Dalnard, Reid, Morton and Rodgers.

Referee: T. Geraldi and R. Wallace.

Plenty of Action Promised In The Coming Week

By The Canadian Press

Port Colborne Sailors, one of the "dobbies" teams in the Ontario Hockey Association, walked impressively today for their next crack at Oshawa G-Men, the team they beat 1-0 Friday night in the first game of their playoff series. They'll be due to meet Toronto Goodyears in the senior "O" play-downs.

Tomorrow the group's second and third place teams play their series of three games at Port Colborne and the Sailors are counting on winning the game and ending the series in two straight games.

The O.H.A. will see plenty of action this week with playoffs getting under way in the score of groups that covers the senior, intermediate and junior divisions.

Main action tonight will centre in the senior "B" section with Niagara Fall Cataracts meeting Port Colborne Imperials and Brantford Rangers playing Kitchener Greenshirts . In the intermediate "A" section, three group playdowns. Port Colborne and Brantford meet in first game of their series Friday night. Other playoff action is scheduled for intermediate and junior groups.

Things were pretty quiet in the O.H.A. this week-end with the leader-rated Young Rangers of Toronto defeated Oshawa Generals 7-6 in the first game of the important junior A playoff series. A crowd of 1,500 turned out to see the Toronto kids overcome Oshawa's early lead and fight on to victory. The teams are playing a series for the right to meet the winner of another semi-final round between Marlboros and St. Michaels.

SYRACUSE STARS MAKE PROGRESS

Score Win And Draw Over Weekend And Crowd Thousand

By The Canadian Press

Maxie Bennett, who probably will have to buy a set of new teeth with his play-off money, is just one of the reasons why Il likely would be bad business to sell the champion Syracuse Stars down the river in the pick-up series.

Bennett, generally a high-scoring outfit but knocked a bit off stride in the past couple of weeks, hit their championship form again to get a win and a draw for the Stars' efforts in the International-American Hockey League.

It was rather their three points Stars tied Springfield Indians 4-4 in overtime Saturday night, when Pittsburgh Pittsburgh Hornets 4-3 the night at Pittsburgh. Bennett, who has parted with four teeth only a month ago in a game, came out of the second period skirmishing mites several more.

Stars Gain Ground

Stars gained ground in the section-leading Cleveland Barons, for Barons dropped both their week-end games, bowing to Providence Reds 4-3 Saturday and Pittsburgh Hornets 4-2 Sunday. Reds 1-0 Saturday, while New Haven Eagles won by the same score against Indians Sunday.

Maxie, who had to have a half-dozen stitches taken in the roof of his mouth the last time he dropped several of his teeth, met with his best extrutoin in the game against Hornets that wound up in a free-for-all after the final gong. It was quite a battle, broken up by State Police after being started by a spectator swinging at a Pittsburgh player.

N.H.L. STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Johnny Gagnon, Canadiens, tied first winning goal in overtime as Flying Frenchmen came from behind to defeat Maroons 4-3.

Johnny Sorrell, Americans, scored twice Saturday to aid triumph over Toronto and once Sunday as Americs blanked Leafs 4-0.

Syl Apps, Toronto, banged in two goals for Leafs in Sunday victory.

Alex Motter, Detroit, narrowed gap in playoff race by scoring only goal in 1-0 decision over Chicago Sunday.

Eddie Goldsworthy, Boston, sank deciding counter as Bruins clawed Rangers 3-2 Sunday to extend lead.

"CORRECT CLOTHING FOR MEN"

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

It was like old times on the Bay of Quinte and Belleville harbor yesterday, the ice being literally dotted with thousands of skaters while numerous ice boats were seen skimming over the ice in bird-like fashion. While the ice is reported that the skating facilities of out-door recreation and gaining exercise, the ice boat operators also had a break. For some years back there has been too much snow throughout the Bay of Quinte area to permit this ancient and thrilling sport, yesterday day saw the ice boaters come into their own.

Scientists contend that once under all ice boats travel three times as fast as the wind that propels them. Why, well they are trying to scientifically figure that matter out at McGill University this winter. The ice boat record is something like 128 miles an hour, while the mile a minute clip is merely jaunting along, they say. Maurice Callaghan and Harry Ellis of Picton down around Buck's Mill were out en masse yesterday, besides on the ice boats being eagerly sought by many amateurs. It was estimated conservatively, that 2,000 were down around the bay front yesterday. In the old days the bay was the mecca for sharpers and the bowling lovers, and some really spirited races were the order of the daily program. Yesterday's scene brought back many old memories of the gay 70's along the Bay of Quinte.

Coach "Fiat" Walsh of Queen's University moved no less than six of his intermediate O.H.A. squad up to the Students' senior intercollegiate ranks for the game tonight at Harvard on Friday night, which speaks highly of the Belleville Redmen's general hockey ability. It would not be surprised if Coach Walsh and Capt. Jack Gordon, forward of his senior Queen's squad here on Tuesday night. Carver had already played with the Redmen in a quite eligible. Manager Eddie Thomas is also in charge of the club's workout over the week end and reports his charges ready for battle.

In case of a tie between Queen's and Queen's should finish their second playoff tilt still tied, they will go into overtime right here, as the series is of the home and home nature with goals to count on the round. The O.H.A. specifies the second game shall go overtime for a maximum of 30 minutes. The Redmen do not expect to have to play additional periods, however. "If my boys play the same calibre of hockey they showed in the first session, I feel assured they will win in straight sessions," commented Skipper Thomas today.

Bringing "Steele" McBrinn and Norman Johnson up to the second line with Storms looks to have been a shrewd move. Belleville's new Redmen management has completed the season's schedule, however, in having a new lease on life and skates right up with such speedsters as Donohoe, Boland and Carver of the Queen's club. At popular prices the Redmen's board of strategy is looking forward to one of the largest crowds of the season for the return game versus Queen's. Incidentally the squads will sail into battle with the same team they met and defeated by the Tricolor in the first game at Kingston. Tuesday night's game will be the fifteenth O.H.A. game to be played in Belleville this year, which should prove unlucky to the loser. "Good old 13, that's our lucky number and it's as good as in the bag", commented Trainer Harold Bawden of the local squad.

Pete Beach, of the Albert College, informs us his senior Intercollegiate boosters are tied with Picton for the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. basketball title with one game remaining. The Alberts journey to Picton for the final game of the schedule next Friday, the winner taking the group honors and the right to continue into the Provincial interscholastic playdowns.

The Quinte Athletic Club have been featured in several communities throughout Ontario Ontario this season and have been afforded considerable favorable comment for their efforts on the ice. Tonight there are several solo and duet numbers, to be presented on Thursday night. Chairman Ivan Scott assures us. Outside talent from Ottawa and Toronto has been engaged to assist in making the program an outstanding one in the skating circles, featuring fancy and figure skating.

Looking at Friday night's game through the eyes of the Peterboro sports scribe, he says: "Big Lalonde started the struggle but had his left shoulder injured in the first period, Archie Weir—who played his best defensive game of the season and starred with a grand checking exhibition on the rear guard and Jimmy Ward turned in another night in good again. Ned Vitarelli was the shining light on the forward, they all worked their heads off in the hockey going, Lalonde played at a rest over the eye and were a patch. Gibson, Elliott and Lecompte were best for the winners, while the McNeelys twins swung great sticks on the defence. Defence Slemion who was fair but lenient said Harwood that—if handling another of such referees he would be tougher. Both teams were ripe for a general fight after the fifth when Partridge and Vitarelli mixed it and it was all the referee's to keep 'em from tearing into it. This'll be a hot series yet and we look for Peterboro to go to win."

HODGE PODGE—Bill Fry, local district commissioner of the Boy Scouts made his report at the annual meeting of the Association in Toronto on Saturday and will no doubt be returned to office.... Bill was also elected president and awarded its intermediate "B" trophy.... O.R.F.U. refused to join action as possibly forsaking the A.A.U. of C. before 1939.... Freddie Sised of Belleville, middleweight title wheel he K.O.'d Carmen Barth in the seventh, but Sised has still Fred Apostili confronting him.... Mickey Cochrane announced his definite retirement from active service in baseball after 13 years behind the bat.... Canada automatically defended her world's hockey title at the Olympic hockey honors, however.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

After school I went around to the foreboose to talk to Mr. Riley the hooken ladder driver, and he started to ask me questions about school, saying, There's no danger of your studying so hard that you'll forget how to play, is there?

No sir, I said.

Wich there isn't, and Mr. Riley said, That's good, all work and no play makes the black hair come in grey. When old Captain Snooken was alive he used to have ideas about practice making perfect, and it made him furious to see any of boys playing checkers or comiknes instead of some game that would make us more efficient firemen, he said.

Q. what kind of games? I said, and Mr. Riley said, Well, he used to make us play at sliding down the pole fast. 2 men at a time, and if the underneath man let the top man hit him on the head with his feet he got a mark chalked up against him. But his favorite games was hose practice. Captain Snooken would hang an apple on a tree, and the game was to aim at it with a hose from a distance of 30 feet and try to make it stetog without knocking it off the stetog, he said.

It sounds like fun, I said, and Mr. Riley said, Well it wasn't, because we couldn't forget we were doing it for a serious purpose, and that made it seem too much like work. But it got to be fun to some as we hit on the idea of trying it with our eyes shut. Of course it was much harder that way, but it stopped being useful, so that gave us an entirely different feeling about it. Naturelly none of us ever hit the apple with our eyes shut, and it got so into such a habit of wild aiming that pretty soon we were squirting water through the windows of houses a half a block from where the fire was, till finely in despair Captain Snooken let us play checkers and dominoes again and everything was okay once more, and now I've got a little polishing to do, he said.

Meaning good by.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 21.—(CP)— In moderate trading the gold section developed a mildly weak tone in the early trade while the Industrials and the Base Metals held steady to strong. Utilities, Steels and Rubber posted narrow gains and the beverages and Senior Oils were a bit heavy.

Losses in the golds embraced Kirkland Lake, Dobl, O'Brien, Sisco and Shn Antonio. McIntyre and Lake Shore recorded fractional declines. The silver share market was quiet and firm.

After opening unchanged to slightly lower, Base Metals improved around mid-day. Nickel and Monel do posted gains of about a point each. The Western Oil trade was slow and mixed, the only price adjustment was a drop of 1 1-2 for Royalite.

WALL STREET

New York, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Stocks got off to a ragged start in today's market reflected themselves later by posting gains running to point generally and 4 or so in a few "blue chip" issues.

Steels were in the forefront of the leisurely rallies, along with copper, motors, mail order, electrical equipment, oils, farm implements and a wide assortment of specialties. Even selected rails and utilities managed to get behind plus signs. Gold mines, including Dome and McIntyre, were backward. A few Canadian issues edged forward in quiet dealings. Fractionally higher were Lake Shore and International Nickel. Canada 46 slipped a trifle.

Favored the greater part of the day were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Anaconda, Kennecott, Chrysler, General Roebuck, Westinghouse, Du Pont, American Can, Allied Chemical, Standard Oil of N.J., J. I. Case, International Harvester and Allis Chalmers.

MARKET COMMENT

Last week's market was featured by strength in a number of mining stocks, both golds and base metals. This group, as a whole, however, did not participate, although several stocks, where special ore news developed, moved up appreciably. Disappointment on Friday over President Roosevelt's remarks in connection with commodity prices and inflation, brought about some selling in the industrial section, although the liquidation was not of an urgent character.

One of these days, the news both domestic and foreign, will be constructive, and the market will break away from its recent lethargic state.

So many false moves have developed in the last few months that the public does not jump into stocks on the first signs of strength. It will require advancing quotations for at least three or four weeks before the man in the Street becomes convinced that the recovery is no "flash in the pan".

Distillers-Seagrams Have Had an Excellent Half Year

Unofficially it is stated that earnings of Distillers-Seagrams for the first half of the company's fiscal year will run in the neighborhood of $2.80 a share on the outstanding common stock. Two quarterly dividends of 50 cents have been declared on the common for the above mentioned period and with the sales running at an impressive rate it is not possible that earnings for the full year may equal $5 a share on the common.

NO AGREEMENTS

Prime Minister Speaks

Prime Minister Chamberlain, to whom Mr. Eden obviously referred in this phrase, replied in the Commons later on. Eden to represent that the Italian government used "threats" in seeking a reopening of conversations looking toward Anglo-Italian friendship.

The Prime Minister said he had tried to break a "vicious circle" of Anglo-Italian hostility when the Italian Ambassador approached him last week after the Ambassador had had "an amicable conversation" with Mr. Eden.

"There is between us a real difference of outlook and method. Of late the conviction has steadily grown upon me that there has been too little a desire on our part to make terms with others rather than that others should make terms with us.

No Progress by Fighting

"I do not believe we can make progress in European appeasement. If we allow the impression to gain currency abroad that we yield to constant pressure.

"I am certain in my own mind that that progress depends above all on the temper of the nation, and that temper must find expression in the firm attitude."

Viscount Cranborne, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs who followed Mr. Eden out of office, told the House his former chief was "absolutely right."

He added the beginning of official friendship between Britain and Italy was "surrender to blackmail."

Propaganda Rife

Mr. Eden declared the Italian government's propaganda against Great Britain was "rife throughout the world". He declared Premier Mussolini had given "considerable consignments" of Italians" to Spain almost simultaneously with the signing of the Anglo-Italian gentlemen's agreement on Mediterranean questions in January, 1937.

Before the momentous session of the House began, Prime Minister Chamberlain, who accepted Mr. Eden's resignation last night, held a surprise conference with the Italian Ambassador, Count Dino Grandi.

(The Havas news agency said a basis for formal negotiations between the two countries had been agreed upon, with Italy agreeing to the withdrawal of Italian troops from Spain.)

Directly contradicting Mr. Chamberlain's statement in the House accepting his resignation, that the differences between them were not fundamental, Mr. Eden asserted that "within the past few weeks upon one point after another our whole foreign policy which did not conform Italy at all, the difference was fundamental."

Difference Fundamental

"It may be argued," Mr. Eden continued, "that this is not a difference of principle, Governments in the sense that the objective of all foreign policy is the maintenance of peace.

"That is perfectly true, but in international affairs can anyone define where outlook and method end and principle begins?"

Mr. Eden spoke to a crowded, boisterous House of Commons, filled with galleries from the traditional third row bench from which a resigned minister often sits to the rear.

He was given a tremendous two-minute ovation as he took the only visible weariness into his seat at the end of his speech.

The Prime Minister, with whom Mr. Eden had split on the whole issue of foreign policy, received another Labor boo, along with his supporters' cheers.

Mr. Eden recounted "incidents in the Mediterranean and the giorification by the press and leaders of the government of victories of the Italian Army in Spain," including one Mr. Chamberlain and Premier Mussolini had exchanged letters of friendship last summer. Mr. Eden went on:

Promise And Achievement

"We can not risk further repetition of previous experiences.

"We must show the world not only promise but achievement. This country must be strong. Our negotiations unprepared and with full knowledge of the risks attached to their success had not been resolved and because they partly indicated it was 'now or never.'

"This is a moment for this country to stand firm."

TWO VIEWPOINTS IN CABINET CRISIS

Conflict Seen of Coldly Practical Attitude And Idealism

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

New York, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Resignation of Foreign Secretary Eden revives about the lame of whether Great Britain (with France) should stand up squarely to Messrs. Mussolini and Hitler, and call a halt on the dictators' aggressive expansionist programs.

Mr. Eden long has been fighting doggedly for a firm Anglo-French stand against the Rome-Berlin axis. He has maintained in cabinet councils the government was merely piling up trouble for itself by temporizing and neglecting to take a firm stand in defence of previously enunciated principles.

Peace at Reasonable Price

The crusading Foreign Secretary, however, brought against an unstirring policy of peace at any reasonable price. This is understood to have been the chief method of Minister Chamberlain and the ma-

Court Orders Confiscation of Slot Machine

Convicted of keeping a common gaming house, Abe Whiteman, 53, of Marlbank, was fined $25.00 and costs or three months in jail, when he appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, Picton, Saturday morning. A slot machine of which Whiteman was convicted of operating illegally, was ordered confiscated and will ultimately be destroyed.

Indicating the confiscated slot machine that was displayed in court Crown Attorney H. C. Donnan K.C., asked —"Is this a game of skill or chance?"

"A game of chance," replied Carruthers.

The machine will be held for the conventional fifty days, following which it will be destroyed, as ordered by the court. The cash contents found in the machine will be confiscated by the order of the Department, His Worship ordered.

WELL KNOWN

Coroner Dr. Lighthall of Picton Says Inquest Unnecessary

Picton, February 22.—(Special) Mrs. George Emlaw, resident at Port Milford, eleven miles southeast of Picton, in Prince Edward County was killed late Monday afternoon, when a tree, which she was assisting her husband to cut down, fell on her inflicting terrible head injuries. Dr. D. F. Lighthall, coroner of Picton, with police visited the scene of the fatality and taining the facts, declared an inquest unnecessary.

Mr. Emlaw and the victim of the accident were attempting to cut down a 15-foot beech tree, which was located on a slope of ground on the Emlaw farm. The tree was nearly sawed through, when a wedge was inserted to assist in the felling. The couple believed that the tree would fall forward down the slope but instead it "jumped the stump" and fell backward on the woman, although Mr. Emlaw endeavored every possible aid, the woman was dead when she was extricated from under the tree.

Mrs. Emlaw, who was formerly Miss Dorothy Beech, was born in Prince Edward County and resided in that community all her life and she was highly respected by all residents of the community. She was a member of the United Church and leaves a husband and one daughter, resident in Rochester, N.Y.

Skaters Warned to Give Area Wide Berth

Warning is issued to the skating public to use caution while proceeding in the vicinity of that part of the Bay of Quinte in the rear of the Belleville General Hospital tomorrow afternoon and subsequent days.

For a time in the neighborhood of 2 p.m. the sunken derelict, "Grace M. Filer" former schooner plying in the coal-trade between Belleville and other lake ports, will be dynamited by a number of men under government instructions.

The partially-submerged craft will be destroyed in sections and it is reported approximately a ton of explosive will be used. Government officials report the blasting will not be a menace to swimmers and motor and other craft on the bay and is being destroyed for this reason.

Price of the explosives, will, it is expected make the immediate vicinity of the bay unsafe for skating and skaters are warned to keep in the danger of proceeding too close to the scene of the blasting.

The "Grace M. Filer" is one of the last connecting links between the colorful old days when majestic three masted schooners plied the Great Lakes and a present day she was hauled to her present anchorage where she has remained up to the present.

Why the Weather?

Weather at Valley Forge! It was 160 winters ago that Washington and his army along the Old Gulf Road to Valley Forge. They had to face cold and piercing and snow was falling. One-third of the men were barefoot and many in rags. Upon reaching Valley Forge they had to build huts of logs chinked with rocks and clay. These huts as a rule had no chimneys. Fires built outside served as their kitchens. One winter was described as one of uncommon severity; roads were blocked with snow and the Schuylkill River was frozen. Imagine the weather odds, when the normal winter there averages about 30 inches and with an extreme of possibly 13 degrees below zero and 25 inches of snow.

MARSHALL ROAD RESIDENT FOUND DEAD IN HOME

John Bos, Believed to Have Died on Sunday

INQUEST OPENED

Frank Sills, Neighbor, Discovers Man Late on Monday Night

Anxiety as to his non-appearance, coupled with the fact his automobile was seen along the road, prompted neighbors to enter the home of John Bos, Marshall Road, where his lifeless body was found on the kitchen floor early last evening. A neighbor, Frank Sills, became alarmed when no movements were seen about the place all day Monday and investigated last night to find the dead body. Police believe the deceased was the victim of bichloride of mercury poisoning. An inquest was ordered by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

Bos, who was a garden truck farmer residing on the Marshall Rd., was last seen by neighbors on Sunday, but when no movements were observed around his residence where the deceased was residing alone owing to the illness of his wife in hospital, Mr. Sills investigated on Monday night to find the deceased lying dead. Provincial Constable W. Smith, Stark, was immediately notified and fully investigated the matter. A post mortem was then ordered by Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson.

After the above had been raised by Mr. Sills, Provincial Constables Smith and Stark proceeded to the Former Ambassador Foresees Bolder Strokes by Hitler

Says Nazi Program Not Passing Political Fad

WANTS TO EXPAND

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 22—(AP)—William E. Dodd, former United States Ambassador to Berlin, foresees further "bold strokes" in Adolf Hitler's German expansion program.

Speaking here last night, Dodd said recent German Nazification of Austria and Hitler's new demands for return of her pre-war colonies "are only steps in the program." He pointed to the Nazi movement in Quebec and the United States, and said a similar program was being developed in Mexico.

"Austria," he said, "is substantially annexed by Germany as another advance of the Nazi program. Hitler compelled Schuschnigg (Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg of Austria) to take on a Hitler cabinet and took over the nations police."

Dodd warned that "the Nazi program is not a passing political fad," and continued:

"They think they have the greatest system ever devised and they believe in 25 years they will have $5,000,000 people and tell everybody—Great Britain, France and even Italy—where to get off.

"And I don't see how it can fail if they take over the control of religion, economic and educational systems in their program completely, as they are doing."

HALIFAX EXPECTED TO SUCCEED EDEN

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN

VISCOUNT HALIFAX

ANTHONY EDEN

Because of his difference with Prime Minister Chamberlain over Britain's foreign policy with regard to British recognition of Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden is generally expected to resign. Lord Halifax, present opponent against British recognition of his Ethiopian conquest, has resigned. His most likely successor will be Viscount Halifax, Lord President of the Council, a personal friend of Adolf Hitler, of Germany, and an outstanding advocate of immediate friendship with Italy and Germany even at the cost of British concessions. In his letter to Premier Chamberlain, Eden stated "I cannot recommend to parliament a policy with which I am not in agreement."

Bettors Enabled to Place Bets, On Races Run, by Short Wave

Eight Unlicenced Stations Have Been Silenced Already

A SMART RACKET

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 22—(AP)—Federal authorities moved today to punish the operators of a nation-wide short wave system which enabled bettors to place bets on horse races that already had been run.

Eight unlicensed amateur radio stations in western New York have been silenced, Federal Communications Inspector Milton W. Grinnell announced. Explaining how the stations worked, Grinnell said:

"The racketeers placed a man at the race track with an ultra high frequency transmitter to watch the race and transmit the results to a confederate outside before the official results were posted.

"The outside man transmitted the results over the short wave band throughout the country in a code that could be quickly unscrambled. In that way the racketeers were able to receive results in time to place large bets before the bookmakers throughout the country were over."

While the Federal Communications Commission has no jurisdiction over broadcasting horse race results, Grinnell said the operators of the stations could be prosecuted for operating stations without licenses.

Statements from the eight operators have been taken and will be given to the United States District Attorney, Grinnell said. The stations have been shut down and apparatus destroyed.

The Federal Agent described Buffalo as being one of the "key cities" in the book-up. He said two Buffalo men were arrested in New Orleans.

Cabinet Crisis Sidelights

By I. NORMAN SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 22—(CP Cable)—Sidelights of the cabinet crisis:

x x x

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Eden went to the movies Monday evening and saw Submarine D1 an underwater drama with Pat O'Brien and George Brent.

x x x

The most sensational newspaper play this morning was in the News Chronicle which ran a top hat, Mr. Eden's Homburg, Count Dino Grandi's bowler, David Lloyd George's black Homburg, Viscount Halifax's bowler and Winston Churchill's Homburg.

x x x

Rumors of the retirement of Sir Robert Vansittart, chief diplomatic adviser to the government, are unfounded but have not been killed.

x x x

Virtually all English papers published a picture of Mr. and Mrs. Neville Chamberlain and Viscount Swinton, Secretary for Air, walking in St. James's Park yesterday morning.

x x x

Count Grandi's little chin beard will be singed by photographers' flashlights in the greatest degree of news interest continues.

x x x

Walt Disney's "Snow White" appeared for its press premiere last night, which was unlucky for the producers, whose newspaper play was severely curtailed. Britain is not sure about Snow White—"a fantast spoilt by slapstick."

x x x

Cartoonist have been wary of the cabinet crisis. It is a tender subject to poke fun at, but The Daily Herald did print Mr. Chamberlain offering the peanuts Eden at the base of Mussolini's statue, with Count Grandi pecking it through a back door.

x x x

The Anglo-Eire conversations resume today but Prime Minister Eamon de Valera shares with Snow White the inside columns of the newspapers. Perhaps he missed a great opportunity or a gesture with British favor by offering Joepione like tasks a full week.

DEPUTY LEADER OF LABOR MOVES 'NO CONFIDENCE'

Arthur Greenwood, Labor, Deplores Resignation of Eden

NO NEGOTIATIONS

Newspaper Suggests Agriculture Minister May Succeed Eden

London, Feb. 22—(CP-Havas)—The Evening Standard (Independent) suggested today that W. S. Morrison, Minister of Agriculture, may be chosen to replace Anthony Eden as Foreign Secretary. He was delegated to answer routine queries on foreign affairs during a question hour in the House of Commons today.

London, Feb. 22—(AP)— Arthur Greenwood, Deputy Leader of the Labor Party, commented today on Anthony Eden's resignation in the House of Commons, declaring he knew that with the late Foreign Secretary out of the cabinet "the fate of the world rests in the trembling hands" of Prime Minister Chamberlain.

Mr. Greenwood moved a vote of no confidence in the government, but resolution declaring the House "deplores the circumstances in which the late Foreign Secretary was obliged to resign office and has no confidence in His Majesty's present advisers in their conduct of foreign affairs."

After the debate started Mr. Eden had gone to Buckingham Palace and turned his seals of office over to the King.

In the Commons met Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, denied there were any negotiations in progress for the Spanish Loans credits to Italy.

Sir John Chancellor's desire for a speedy termination of Anglo-Italian hostility, which he said yesterday might reach a point at which "war between us might become inevitable" was the issue on which the Prime Minister and Mr. Eden broke.

Mr. Chamberlain declined today to make a statement on the government's policy towards Austria. He also remained silent when Secretary Mander, opposition Liberal, asked whether Austrian Chancellor Hitler had suggested Mr. Edens successor yet.

Offered No Resistance To Two Prison Guards Who Apprehended Pair

Cornell And Blackburn Escaped From Collins Bay on Friday

LEAVE IN FOG

Escape Contrived While They Were Engaged in Outside Job

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 22 (CP)—Charles Cornell and Gerald Blackburn were back in prison today after a short-lived spell of freedom. The youths, 17 and 20, respectively, escaped last night near Gananoque, Ont.

The pair escaped from Collin's Bay penitentiary here last Friday. They offered no resistance when apprehended by prison guards who had organized a widespread hunt for the youths.

Cornell is serving a four year term for armed robbery, wounding and housebreaking at Windsor, Ont., while Blackburn was sentenced to two years for housebreaking at Guelph. Both were incarcerated in the Collin's Bay Kingston, for preferred class convicts at Portsmouth Penitentiary here.

Their escape was contrived while they were engaged in an outside work gang during a heavy fog. Visibility was so limited guards observing the workers from portable towers failed to notice Cornell and A posse of 50 guards was formed to search.

A posse of 50 guards was formed to hunt for the youths when they failed to report at a work abed within the specified time.

A report that two suspicious characters had been seen prowling around cottages at St. Lawrence Beach, summer resort three miles west of Gananoque, reached Eugene Rawley and Guard Eterex last night at Gananoque. They sped to the resort and quickly recaptured the prisoners.

May Face Many Charges

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 22—(CP)—Back in the cells of the Collins Bay Penitentiary, from which they escaped last Friday, Charles Cornell and Gerald Blackburn today faced the prospect of being arraigned on upwards of nine charges, including those of escaping from lawful custody, breaking and entering certain places in Kingston, Frontenac and Leeds, during the last two months they were captured close to Gananoque last night.

The two convicts were captured as they were walking along the highway towards Gananoque. The guards, driving in a car, swerved directly in the path of the two men. Cornell whipped out a revolver but was overpowered by Keeper Rawley who grabbed Cornell and as the gun was apparently knocked out of his hand. The pair was recovered 12 feet away. Cornell was also carrying a piece of lead pipe and a jackknife.

Blackburn offered no resistance. The pair left the cells in the late winter weather. They were not hungry and apparently had obtained food from places they are alleged to have entered.

British Minister to France Killed in Steeplechase Race

Lloyd Thomas, Owner of 1937 Grand National Winner Victim

FATALITY AT DERBY

Derby, England, Feb. 22 (AP)—Hugh Lloyd Thomas, British Minister to France, was killed today when his horse fell in a steeplechase here.

Mr. Lloyd Thomas was the owner of Royal Mail, winner of the Grand National last year. He was also a well known figure in the public during the past few seasons.

Mr. Lloyd Thomas held the rank of Minister Plenipotentiary in the British Embassy in Paris, standing second to Sir Eric Phipps, the Ambassador.

For seven years he was private secretary to the Duke of Windsor when he was Prince of Wales.

Mr. Lloyd Thomas was killed when his mount, Permalite II. stumbled in the three-mile derby steeplechase in which he was riding as part of his training for the Grand National, his first race since last year.

When Royal Mail won the Grand National last year Thomas became the clever Welsh rider, had the mount.

Mr. Lloyd Thomas was considered a good horseman, and he had won races on Royal Mail. But his decision to ride at Aintree was not popular with the betting public and odds on Royal Mail lengthened. He was not a young man—he was 48—and had done little riding in public during the past few seasons.

MANY MOTORISTS USE NEW ROAD TO BEACH

Appreciation of the new road provided by the Belleville Beaches Association as a winter rendezvous by the travelling public is seen in the fact that on Sunday last the largest number of motor cars in the history of the Association made this spot their headquarters during the brilliant sunshine of the afternoon, according to Reg. Moncrief.

Skaters changed their apparel in the comfort of cars, as in the summer time, Mr. Moncrief stated, and a large crowd enjoyed the smooth surface of the bay at this point.

The new road has not been affected by weather conditions as yet, although in all probability it will be closed in the near future while Spring improvements and other work is being done.

B.Y.P.U. HEAR OF LIFE OF LINCOLN

The Young People's of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church enjoyed an interesting address last night, when Mr. K. M. Bird, Principal of Prince of Wales School, eulogized the life of Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday was celebrated recently.

The gathering was favored with two splendid musical numbers rendered by Mr. J. M. Hodgins, musical director of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, who is an accomplished pianist.

The Service Commission was in charge of the meeting and to it much credit is due for an interesting and varied program. A large number were in attendance.

TRUCK SLIDES AGAINST POLE; DRIVER NOT HURT

The unusual sensation of watching one's truck skid on a glare of slippery ice, out of control, and head directly for a heavy telegraph pole with the driver powerless to help himself was the experience of Mac Harrington of Newburgh on Saturday.

As the vehicle swung toward the pole on the ice near the old theatre in Napanee, Harrington noticed a heavy iron step, fastened to the pole, directly in line with his head. The step stood at glass shattering height into space, as Harrington threw up his hand to protect his face. He was not scratched nor was the truck damaged in any way outside the loss of the windshield.

MERCHANTS MOVE STOCKS OF ICE CREEPERS

The crunch of creepers on icy sidewalks may have a more or less grating sound on the ears of other pedestrians but it has sounded a pean of better business to hardware and other merchants handling these articles.

Citizens seeking to combat difficult walking conditions that have been present this unusual Spring in past winter due to lack of snow on icy sidewalks have caused creeper sales to soar and there is every sign a better market than has been seen for a number of years, merchants report.

Obituary

ROBERT SILLS LLOYD
(Formerly of Huntingdon)

The following obituary taken from the Weekly Record of Rossmills, Sask., refers to a former well known and highly esteemed resident of Huntingdon Township. Old friends in this district will regret to learn of his death:

"It is our and duty to report this week the death of one of our oldest and most highly esteemed citizens in the person of Robert S. Lloyd, who passed away on Monday morning, inst., at his home in the Prosperity district, at the age of 78 years, 7 months and 24 days. Although he had been in poor health for the past two years, he was not confined to bed, and took an active interest in the duty of home, always showing his interest in the activities of the community and the world. His sudden death came as a shock causing a gloom over the whole community. He was born at Huntingdon, near Belleville, Ontario, on March 2, 1860. In the fall of 1886 he and his wife came to Moosomin. They spent the winter there and moved to what is known as "the Cunningham farm" in the Trafford district in the Spring. Later they homesteaded in the Prosperity district where they have lived ever since and have done their part in all that pertained to the progress and welfare of the district. In his younger days Mr. Lloyd was leader of the Prosperity Church choir.

His family held a welcome to a large circle of friends. He was a devoted husband and father. His smiling face and cheery greeting will not only be sadly missed by the family but by all who met him. To the last he was keenly interested in politics and the daily read of these topics as well as affairs of the world at large.

The funeral service, which was held in the Prosperity United Church was conducted by Rev. Mr. Sharpley and Rev. McConnell of the United Church, Moosomin, being a lifelong friend of the family. Hymns which Mr. Lloyd loved to hear were chosen for the service. "Scatter Seeds of Kindness," a particular favorite was given as a solo by Mrs. B. Chase.

The large number who came to pay their last tribute to the departed bore evidence of the respect and esteem in which he was held.

"The Wapella Masonic Order of which he was a member had charge of the burial; interment being made in Webster cemetery. From the home to the church the pall bearers were old neighbors: W. Goodman, W. Palmer, J. Christian, R. Perry, S. Chase and T. Watson. From the church to the cemetery members of the Masonic Order who acted were A. Spence, F. Cooper, W. Christian, J. Dalziel, J. McFadden and W. Campbell.

"He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, five sons, one daughter, a brother and sister and six grandchildren, Dr. Milton and Miss Thelma Reg. Eng. of New York City; Garfield of Pin Hoo, Man.; Stanley of Whitewood; Mrs. W. (Dr.) Sagitus: Whitfield and Clifford, at home; his brother Caleb and a sister, Mrs. L. Runnalls, both at Harold, Rawdon township.

"The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful."

LATE ALLEN McGARVEY
(Marmora)

Marmora, Feb. 22 (Special) — Manifestations of deepest respect were in evidence at the funeral of the late Allen McGarvey, which under auspices of Marmora I.O.I. 318 left his late residence at 2.30 p.m. on Monday for service at St. Paul's Anglican Church. Many beautiful floral offerings included those from members of the family, I.O.I., 318, R.B.P. 86 and C.O.F.F. 279. The service was conducted by the rector Rev. Canon A. B. Caldwell who delivered a very impressive sermon. The hymns were "O, Love That Will Not Let Me Go," "Just Thy Care on Jesus," and "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go." Mr. L. R. Rundle and Mrs. F. Perry sang as a duet "Sweet Peace With God My Saviour."

Rural Dean Caldwell also conducted the committal in the family plot in Marmora Protestant cemetery. The active pall bearers were taken by Deputy County Master J. Morrison of Marmora, Past District Master T. E. Potts as Deputy Master and Past County Master Chas. Chaplin of Madoc. Past County Marshal John Bateman was in charge of the parade.

The bearers were A.-T. Neal, A. Hicks, Wm. Fry, C. Gray, A. Bartlett and L. E. Neal.

REV. A. G. CAMERON
(Ottawa)

Ottawa, Feb. 22 (CP)—Rev. A. G. Cameron, 67, former chief justice of the Yukon territory, died yesterday.

Mr. Cameron was born near Renfrew, Ont., but received most of his education in Montreal and Ottawa. He was organizer of the Ottawa branch of the Soldiers' Aid Commission, and held charges in Glengarry County, Brockville, Ont., Vars, Ont., and Dawson City, Alta., before accepting a call to the Church of the Redeemer in Deseronto, Ont., in 1930.

Police Blotter

Activities were purely routine in the Prosperity police court on the city-to-four hours, no arrests being made. Police were called to a disturbance this morning but matters proved to be a mistake on the part of the arrival. Seven transients were given warm sleeping quarters at the police station last night. Petty thieving in the area was brought to the attention of the authorities today and an example will be made of the perpetrators of petty crime that has premises in the future, Chief Kidd announced following a check up of the report. Dressing rooms are being provided for the Inter-Provincial Rugby and soccer matches resulting in the stealing of personal articles.

Inspector Grant of the Highway Traffic Department Police, accompanied by Inspector S. Hunter of the Brockville Division, were in the city today on official business.

Parks Board Moves to Have Victoria Park, Dock Lighted

$1,000 ESTIMATE

In hopes of beautifying Belleville's water front and attracting summer visitors who travel by water, the Belleville Parks Commission moved to have both Victoria Park and the Government Dock lighted in the future, when the commission convened for its fortnightly meeting last night at the City Hall.

Commissioner J. M. Callaghan was appointed to wait upon the local Harbour Commission regarding the lighting of the government dock. "If the park and the dock were both lighted at night I feel assured such accommodation would prove an inducement to tourists, who travel by boat. We have been losing a lot of business through the lack of proper lighting along our water front of late," Commissioner Callaghan.

Commissioner Robb Shapiro queried the meeting as to why the city council's recommendation of 1937, regarding the lighting of Victoria Park had not been placed in the hands of the local Utilities Commission. "I understand from the Utilities Commission that they did not receive the recommendation as passed by the 1937 council, namely the lighting of Victoria Park would be absorbed by the city street lighting appropriation," added Mr. Shapiro. Commissioner Clapp was appointed to look into the matter.

"Our board adequately lights Victoria Park, I see no reason why the Harbour Commission should not consent to light the government dock and then all our trouble in that part of the city will be eliminated for all times," added Chairman W. J. Woodley. "What is it going to cost to erect standards and lights on Victoria Park?" asked Commissioner H. J. Armstrong.

"The old board had estimates of $1,000.00, including poles, wiring, erection, reflectors and lamps," replied Commissioner C. J. Symons.

A full board was present, the remainder of the meeting being devoted to routine business.

Operating Profit Near $6,000 In Gas Department Club Told

Chairman Geo. A. Reid of Public Utilities Speaks To Y's Men

TALK ON HYDRO, WATER

Eulogizing upon the Belleville Utilities, George A. Reid, chairman of the Commission, gave a word description of the vehicles had advancements of Hydro-Electric, Water Works and the Gas Department of the local Utility Department before a gathering of Belleville Y's men at their weekly meeting held in the Y.M.C.A.

Commissioner Reid used statistics and departmental figures to forcibly bring before his listeners the value of a dranconstant to the Belleville Utilities since its inception of one year ago. Speaking of the gas department, Commissioner Reid said: "This department was handed over to the Utility in 1937 and our records for ten months of last year, roughly about an operating profit of $6,000, most of which will be handed back to the city to cover the gas debenture debt," as he added that the prospects for the gas department were most encouraging. "I can assure you gentlemen the Utility Commission has no intention of giving up our city gas department," he stressed.

"I will divert, but not deeply into the hydro-electric end. Our hydro plant was purchased for $175,000 and today is valued at $270,236.81 and we also have purchased our own distributing plant on Reid street, which will soon be paid for and at present time our holdings will be valued at $356,236.81. These, with reductions in hydro rates every year since we took over is a wonderful saving to the consumers stated Commissioner Reid as he went further into details.

Compared Figures.

"Let us take a smaller consumer using 300 kilowatt hours per month in the city took over their own hydro. The cost to the consumer then that was $2.25 including service charge and discount, in 1937 this same consumer was charged as he assessed $1c per month. In a larger range let's take the 1,000 kilowatt hours in 1929, as compared to the same rate in 1937 we find that in the latter a person using 300 kilowatt hours per month paid $7.07, including all discounts, as compared to the rate for that same consumer under the same conditions was 1.65c per month. I wonder if our users stop to fully realize what your Hydro Commission has been actually doing for our city?" asked the speaker as he turned to the subject of the Water Works Department.

"Last year we pumped 788,900,000 gallons of water, Belleville, think of the immensity of that quantity. That pumped over the Water Works Department $6,328.87 for the power alone but for the same amount of gallons pumped in the city of Detroit it would have cost $13,114.64, assured the speaker as he added that the daily per capita consumption of water in Belleville was 162.5 gallons, a figure that Commissioner Reid believed to be much too high and he hoped co-operation in the effort to cut this enormous figure down.

"There are at present some 25 open air rinks being used for skating purposes in the city and these rinks are being flooded with filtered water from the department and the Utilities Commission did not complain this year, but meters will have to be established another year unless our per capita water rate is vastly reduced another year," warned the speaker.

May Change Billing.

"It has come to the attention of the Commission that some landlords in the city, taking advantage of the new Utilities billing of gas, water and hydro, are assuming their tenants, in some cases, for the water rate. If this practice continues the Commission is prepared to change the present billing in order to cope with the situation," warned Commissioner Reid as he concluded by assuring his listeners that the water works debentures were rapidly being liquidated and the users would soon benefit. "We value our city Water Works Department at $636,289.36 and as soon as possible we will be having a balance there on the line in the hands of the consumers, as the Commission cannot hold any surplus," Mr. Reid concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Y's Man Preston Parker and given the club's thanks by Y's Man Jack Wilson. President Ray McDougall occupied the chair and announced the annual Y's Men's Club St. Patrick's night dance would be held as usual and also that over $25.00 had been made in a recent Y's Men's telephone bridge party, which proved highly successful.

Maydra Decides Against Millions

"Suzanne is this my punishment for trying to .....to turn my back on love?" Maydra whispered, when they had finally got her into the big quiet limousine. Suzanne had tucked the thick, woolly robe snugly about her head, another over her elbow. "Suzanne, I'm sick, because I ..... I couldn't bear to ..... think I nearly let his mother be suffered? Can ....can God be so ..... cruel?"

"You're distraught Maydra, darling. You've tired out, and all upset. Things seem so distorted when we're under great emotional strain, Suzanne began smoothly, "Nobody dies because of an ordered patient's or life announce to attend family, is a matter of microbes, infection, carelessness, and a number of other ..... But Tommy isn't going to die, so stop worrying about that. He's going to live. He's young, healthy, and quite husky. There's no reason why he should not fight back, this all right. Only ..... you mustn't expect it to happen in a few moments! These things have to run their course ... like ... like measles."

She felt exhausted with the effort she had thrown into the argument, but it was worth it, for in that, really, that had spent her. It was the children's fear of their new conviction creeping in on her, coincidental with the emotional flood that nothing can stem, nothing abate. They knowledge that Maydra loved Tommy, knew that so much that she'd do anything across to anything, if only he were spared. That same brand of selfless, unstinting heroic drama that her sister Maydra had given Peter Graham. A love so far beyond material things that it was doubtful if such influences could ever penetrate the thick, hardy shell, once it existed. A love she could neither batter down, climb over, or shatter. That ambition could not even touch or feel.

"You're kind, Suzanne," Maydra whispered shakily, "so very kind. But it's no use. You see, I ..... I know, I've been there, hours, eternities, days, watching him fight so desperately, so cruelly, for every single breath. I've been there, watching that oxygen tent, watching each one of those desperately weak breaths ripping and tearing its cruel course through his tortured lungs. ...ah, I can't bear it, Suzanne! I can't, I can't! Why must he suffer so? Why does it have to be him, not me, who pays?"

"Hush, Maydra, dear, hush .... you mustn't let yourself go to pieces like this!" Suzanne murmured gently. "This is just exhaustion, nerves ...after you get home and rest a little, have something hot to drink, you'll feel better."

"She can ne I rest!" Maydra sobbed brokenly. "How can I, Suzanne, knowing what he's enduring? You don't ---understand! You can't!"

Suzanne's troubled eyes met Shan's, and there was a wordless eloquent exchange between them. Sam's dark, vital face dig not change. There was no defeat, no despair, there. Nor did he appear to devise from any plans or hopes or ambitions he cherished.

Rather, it was as if he had heard none of the emotional outburst. As if Maydra's broken weeping, her passionate outburst, her humble, agonized words had fallen on deaf ears.

The car rolled smoothly along, under the chauffeur's expert hands and presently the familiar scenes of residential New York began flashing past. They turned west and went up a ways, and presently the car stopped, and Shan came alive.

He jumped out quickly and helped Maydra out, and firmly to her arm as she crossed the pavement, and entered the building. Suzanne came close behind, carrying Shan's things. Her purse, gloves, and ..... coat. The elevator followed directly behind her, bringing Sam's hat, gloves and stick. It was an impressive entourage.

Gerda was waiting for them at the door, quite as if she had known fully that they would be back presently at this hour, that nothing had been said to that effect. She helped Maydra to her room, and then came back directly saving Suzanne alone with her sister.

Sam followed her into the kitchenette, and stopped the coffee percolator in, while she started the toaster, and began making a tray.

"I'd forgotten you knew how to be useful, Sam," Gerda observed drily, and he glanced at her inquiringly. "Your button-pushing employed servants, Sam. Knowing that 'grad' once hustled around almost as industriously as we have to!"

"What is money for," Sam reminded her unperturbed, "if not to lift irksome duties, pave the way to a more practical living?"

"Right of course," Gerda nodded. "But why not enjoy it, Sam? And you know even millionaires find it necessary to fill their pretty, bright new dollars!"

Her mocking golden eyes were narrowed slightly, and her soft, odd mouth pressed firmly together as she put on the percolator. Sam sensed that she was laughing at him, mainly; Deriding, deeply, deep down inside, lest he suspect, it annoyed him. As she probably knew.

"Now," she went on softly, "if only money had enough power! If only you could clap your hands, give one of those brief, clipped orders you're moderately famous for, and watch that college boy recession fade away into thin air, then you'd have something. A power as 'real power!' she ended mockingly.

"Tommy may die Gerda," Sam warned her coldly, "so your humor is in a little bad taste."

"It's not that ill," Gerda commented cheerfully, "or they'd never let Maydra come back home! When people are about to die, Sam, the important members of their life cluster about. It's an old custom!"

"Was his family there?" she went on innocently, taking the tray of coffee, cooling it easily and stacking it under the cover of the spare dish. "His father and mother I mean?"

"Ah .....his mother is quite seriously ill, so the doctor told me and his father is detained there, with her, Tommy, of course, does not know that his mother is ill!-

"He had all the luck, Sam," Gerda commented tersely, "last all his life! Only that day I say it, will you? Do you good to see how the other 95 per cent of the world lives!"

He picked the tray up in stiff disapproval, and followed her into a tall, pajama clad form into the living room, and thence into Maydra's room. He stood back, by the tall windows, staring intently, but unseeingly down at the lighted street while Maydra drank the coffee, and obediently ate the toast according to Suzanne's firm, strict order.

"You've got to keep up, Maydra! You can't go back there unless you're stronger. It will be quite useless! The doctor gave us strict orders. And when we do start, you must be rested, and strong. You can't hold up on Tommy when he needs you most!".

"All right, Suzanne," Maydra agreed wearily.

Presently Suzanne motioned to him, and Sam followed her out, aware that she had no intention of leaving her alone with him, even--for a moment or so, if she could help it.

"You've been most kind,' Suzanne thanked him perfunctorily, "in this dreadful mess, Mr. Locke. I .....we're more than indebted to you!"

Sam recognized dismissal, cool, firm, and aloof, and bowed.

"It was nothing, Miss Vale. I was most happy to be of any assistance possible, under the painful circumstances."

"But you're praying." Suzanne thought calmly, coolly, "provided you believe in God, you don't die. You know you've a chance when it comes to mere money. But you know this college boy has you tied to the mast in the first quarter, and no handicap!"

Aloud she said, merely, "Thank you .....and good-night."

"About tomorrow," Sam suggested, his hand on the door, his hat, gloves and stick in hand, "I'd most happy to place my car at your disposal, and my chauffeur, He'll take you anywhere--you wish, do any errands you might care to have him do for you."

Suzanne smiled thinly. She had made it a hardy, stern rule to use everything that came her way, provided she could slip the strings attaching ....or, if necessary, lack the ropes away, once the time came.

"Most thoughtful of you, er .... Mr. Locke? I'll let you know, or tomorrow?"

"I'll send the car around," Sam said formally. "You can tell him whatever you decide, then. Good-night Miss Vale!"

Gerda, busy at drying her hands on a wisp of gay checked towel, said, "Good-night, Miss Vale!" she added softly.

Suzanne nodded a trifle weakly. That of course, Gerda, the moment she regains her strength she will return to her own apartment, again, more determined than ever! "Don't open bridges until they're built," Gerda advised. "It's been my experience that such things are fairly unpredictable."

"We have to go back there tomorrow," Suzanne sighed, dropping limply into a deep club chair, nervously lighting a cigarette. "Nothing warrants supposing that will change, at least!"

In the morning, when Suzanne and Gerda began their day, Maydra had fallen into the deep, dark, effortless sleep of exhaustion.

"Don't let anything disturb her under any circumstances," Suzanne told Gerda. "Tell anyone and everyone that she's out!"

They tiptoed about the kitchenette, and Suzanne hurried to the shop, for a few things she'd forgotten, her quiet until I get here!" she said, pulling on her gloves and jacket and tucked her fat square purse under her arm. "And when Locke sends, have him politely locomotive around tell him we can use it. Maydra will need it, and that's the subway less strain and more exercise, and 5 P.m at last finding a car and driver as comfort!"

"Undiscovered taste for luxury," Gerda murmured, "undiscovered."

"Not undiscovered, Gerda," Suzanne corrected. "Sam unearthed it. They were not to use Sam's car, however, Suzanne decided. For while Maydra, slept the deep sleep of utter emotional and physical exhaustion, Suzanne spent briskly about the complex business of her own affairs, all there through the magic influence of much money and many hours of it. She was a name familiar to every college, athletic, sorority girl in the country, Wakefield Porter Bellamy!.

He had decided to leave everything, get away, from the crushing memories of Kay and their happy companionship by running over to Europe. And then he had also decided on the spur of the moment to spend several hours of the time he would have to leave if he was to catch the only fast mail boat out for the week.

So Miss Durantly flung things, his servants packed, closed the place, and received full instructions on closing the Long Island estate for six months.

"I'll be back sometime in June," Wake told them, "and you can take a few months vacation ..... with pay."

Sam Bowers, Tweed, 97-Years Old Today

Tweed, Feb. 22—(Special)—On Tuesday, February 22nd, Mr. Samuel Bowers, Tweed's oldest resident, celebrated the 97th anniversary of his birth. He was born in 1841 in the township of Thurlow on the fourth concession, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Britain Bowers. Two years later he moved with his parents to the fourth concession of Hungerford, about the present site of Tweed. Here he passed his childhood and boyhood years, living in a log house in the primeval forest.

Many interesting experiences of pioneer life can still be recalled by Mr. Bowers whose mind is remarkably keen for one of his advanced years. At the age of 19 came the first taste of the life of a lumberman, a calling which he followed until well past the age of 30, when he married and left the hazardous tasks of lumbering and river-driving ad became a successful farmer. In 1908 Mr. Bowers purchased the Badgley farm which he worked until 1920 when he retired to Tweed where he has since resided.

The familiar figure of Mr. Bowers has been seen but little during the present winter, as the exceedingly icy condition of the sidewalks and streets has made walking extremely hazardous. On fine days he lacks but three years of the century mark, Mr. Bowers is still hearty and vigorous.

Mr. Bowers enjoys good health, and is possessed of a splendid appetite. He attributes his good health, their toil, and his natural vigour is gratefully to

Two sons and four daughters are still living, also a brother and two sisters. The townsfolk join with them in extending felicitations on this joyous occasion, the celebration of a ninety-seventh birthday.

TWO EVENTS

The resignation of Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary over differences with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and ministers on the policy in regard to Italy in the Mediterranean and Spain and on the present situation among the nations in Europe coincided with Adolf Hitler's address speech in the German Reichstag in which he referred to the present status of the Nazi party program, the relations with Austria and with the German minorities in states outside of the Reich and to the colonial problem. Between the two Europe was in excitement and reactions were felt as far as China and Japan and across the Atlantic in Washington and in Ottawa. Yesterday the retired Foreign Secretary explained his reasons for retirement and the Prime Minister told of plans already underway for immediate study of the problem as far as Italian-British relations are concerned.

In the English-speaking world, in France and in other lands, the resignation of Mr. Eden was of paramount importance.

In press comment, it is felt by some newspapers that Mr. Eden is too much the idealist in a world where intensely practical methods are necessary in dealing with Germany and Italy. Others feel that Mr. Eden has been sacrificed on the altar of friendships of Europe, which have indicated their satisfaction in Eden's retirement. Some editors say that timidity has won a victory over principle, nerves over character, the shortsighted attitude over the long view, and call it a bad bargain made by a business man in a panic. One paper welcomed the resignation stating that a spirit of uncertainty had developed at home and bewilderment abroad.

Only time and events will reveal which is the better policy — the method and diplomacy of Eden or the more cold practical policy of getting immediate results regardless of the instability of war, credited to Mr. Chamberlain.

The Prime Minister said that the impression had grown in Rome that Britain did not want appeasement and that "we are engaged in a machiavellian design to lull the Italians into inactivity while we complete our rearmament with the intention of eventually taking our revenge for the conquest of Abyssinia." While all these views are fantastic, the Prime Minister said, it engendered an atmosphere which led to growing suspicion, the movement of troops and the stirring up of propaganda. He added that Count Grandi had informed him on Friday that Italy was ready to enter conversations and that it was his feeling that a rebuff of this gesture would have been disastrous as it might be read as a confirmation of the accusation held by some in Italy. But he also assured France of the solidity of the Anglo-French alliance, and held the hope for an ultimate agreement of France, Britain, Germany and Italy as likely to mean peace for a generation.

The Foreign Secretary pointed out that the differences on policy between himself and the Prime Minister were fundamental, that he could not treat with Italy under a threat and while there was a propaganda against him and British.

He declared the time was one in which the British spirit had to stand firm.

His views gave great weight to the opinion that he has a policy which will mean further expansion of Nazism among German nationals even in other lands. It is his pan-Germanism and the possible development of something new in Middle Europe that cause concern. He has stepped into Austria and has declared his jurisdiction over German nationals in other lands outside the Reich. That of course would be his glorious towards Prague, and it might mean a powerful German bloc in Central Europe. How Italy would fit in is yet to be seen as any arrangement with Italy is naturally not unfolded. Some have an opinion that the Central Europe idea may grow into something like the old Holy Roman Empire, in which Germans or Austrians were the leading figures, while Italy played a lesser part. During the Holy Roman Empire Italy was a group of disunited states and dreams of such a grouping would not prove an attraction to the Italians. Hitler also has mode it clear that Germany is building a war force that will defend Germany if necessary.

In the face of this, whatever improvements in the situation may come from any understandings, Britain meanwhile proceeds with her rearmament plans to become so strong that no one attack her and that so that what she speaks she will be listened to. Britain allowed her defences to lessen until the outlook became ominous and in very safety she had to rearm.

The situation enters the newest of many phases. Such great problems as face the world must naturally pass through many phases before final adjustment and before security is assured. The present situation seems a far cry from the day of the founding of the League of Nations and of the Treaty of Versailles.

WINTER WHEAT

Here lie the seeded furrows under snow,
Sparkling and white as scarves that Sheba wore
And yet more frail, for when the wild geese soar
Toward the north star, their brittle thread shall go.
The steaming loam shall break where row on row
The seeds demand the sun. An open door
Shall beckon life where death has lain before
And waken blackbirds to their glad rondeau

For time has always worked this miracle
Of crystals giving way to tender blade
And then to gold above the nesting lark.
Some morning when the blackbird anthems swell
Shall I, who bent in sun above a spade,
Find loam will break as surely from the dark?

MY FRIEND FROM WELLINGTON, that pretty and picturesque community on the edge of Lake Ontario, in Prince Edward County, waxes enthusiastic about his Home Town whenever the subject is brought up. Wellington has everything, according to this booster, including hard-headed business sense in its citizens which keeps it in the front rank of Canadian communities. Wellington originated the free automobile gift enterprise which has been so widely copied, and every year Wellington puts on a Big Day which attracts thousands of patrons from near and far, and piles up many dollars for the war veterans association. This is a real ambitious undertaking with a high-class program put on by artists from the city. Wellington has also a Continuation School which serves a large area, with buses to bring the children to the school; also a covered skating rink, financed by the citizens, and made a paying venture. For the skating rank the sum of $10,000 was raised in two days, one hundred citizens underwriting the investment. Wellington also has a splendid public library presented by a former resident, a man who made millions out of a nationally advertised article—maintained by the community. Wellington has a canning enterprise, practically co-operative, which puts much money into circulation locally. Wellington has a community park adjoining the Main street and facing the lake which is one of the prettiest little parks in Canada, and patronized by motor tourists who can spend the day or days there, eat their meals on handy tables out in the open, with fine water and other conveniences at hand. No wonder our Friend from Wellington says that Wellington has everything, — and he generally qualities this by adding, everything but a high tax rate. Best of all, Wellington has no relief rolls, one of the few municipalities in Canada with no one on relief.

"GO UP THOU BALD HEAD". Most people will be but sizeable sums that no such sentence appeared in the Bible. Others who faithfully attended Sunday School and had Family Prayer night and morning in the home might remember and be sad that a few children were taught a prophet of the Lord because of his lack of hirsute adornment and were fed to the bears. We have not thought of that Biblical incident or allegory, until Stouffer — for many long years until reminded by an article in the Bowmanville Statesman, referring to a visit to Enniskillen public school seventy years ago by the late Robert McLaughlin, father of Sam and George McLaughlin of Oshawa. Robert McLaughlin was a school trustee and on a visit to the school told the story of the journey of Elisha, the Man of God, from Jericho up to Bethel, and how the children of the city came out and mocked the prophet, calling him "Go up thou bald head," and as a punishment two she bears big and hungry came out of the woods and made a meal of the scoffers. The exact wording of the story is as follows:

"And he went up from thence unto Bethel. And as he was going up by the way, there came forth little children out of the city, and mocked him, and said unto him, Go up, thou bald head. Go up, thou bald head.

"And he turned back and looked on them, and cursed them in the name of the Lord. And there came forth two she bears out of the wood and tare forty and two children of them." - - - Second Kings, Chapter 2, Verses 23, 24.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

The Deep Narrow Chest Is Most Likely to Develop Tuberculosis

A physician was examining a prominent business man in a large city. As the man stood to examine the chest he casually remarked, "You did not play much when you were a boy".

"No, I became the office boy of this organization when I was eleven years old, and now I'm the General Manager with 1000 employees. I've never had any time for play. How did you know I never played?"

"By the shape of your chest. When a baby is born its chest is about as deep as it is wide, but if the youngster develops properly — by play or otherwise—the chest gets much wider in proportion to its depth until, when he reaches the adult stage, the proportions are about as 7 to 10".

Thus a youth or man with a 7 inch depth of chest should have a 10 inch width, and with an 8 inch depth, a 12 inch width or 24 inches. The measurement is taken with tapines as when using a tape line in line with the nipples.

In examining recruits for overseas service we found that those whose chests were not large enough to pass the standard were told to go home to their width than they should have been. And, as mentioned before, a large number of men were asked about their boyhood days to see if they had ever played much because their mothers were afraid they would get hurt. Consequently, we have developed a generation of men who have not been built to withstand the rigors of life. Tell-us that it is the "deep" chest which is particularly free from tuberculosis, it is more likely to develop tuberculosis because the deep narrow chest is really the type of miniature chest.

Dr. S. A. Weisman, Glen Lake Sanatorium, Gravenhurst, Ont., chief of the American Medical Association, says:

"In a study made on the shapes of the normal and the tuberculosis chest, it was found that the wide average normal chest was flat and wide, and the tuberculosis chest narrow and deep and narrow. It was also shown that the deep chest narrows at the underdeveloped region of chest resembling an infant's chest in shape."

This does not mean that all those who are flat chested are likely to develop consumption, as deep chests (in proportion to width) will develop tuberculosis, but the moral does present that the narrow deep (undeveloped) chest is more likely to develop tuberculosis.

LITERARY RUSTLERS

Books bearing the brand of author have a strange fascination for many an otherwise impeccable person. A literary friend of ours, a reliable that he is keeping what "isn't his's," and forgot that the acceptable rules about returning books after reading matter as well as to coin of the realm. If aware of his acquisitiveness he may regard it as something innocent and amusing and forget it—and actually prove himself on his honesty the while his shelves cross beneath the weight of borrowed books.

Called to account his plea would be found to be innocent, for he would not escape his attention, and would promptly return it. He would devour with coupons yalting to be cut. Failure to return's a loan would be a trifle to him, and he's written down as a misdemeanor in any branch list of morals. That appears as anything it will be found under the heading of "Lost," seems to be generally regarded as a minor matter. And so the acquiring of a literary loan is a light matter, and "I'd like to read this" method goes merrily on with unconscious depravity. Taken piecemeal the spoil seldom has much value, and the result of the gathering is a library that one might bring a charge no more serious than "Book-keeping" before.

One can understand, without forgiving, the amateur book-borrower who thoughtlessly breaks a set by retaining a volume. There might be an occasional error on their part, the man who falling in love with a book likes the binding and the illustrations, and makes it his own by appropriation. These things are not new and are not likely to disappear completely all who loan not wisely but forever. But the petty graft has been and is to the ways in which books may be gathered without paying the price.

In some of the larger cities the public libraries have met the complaining of what might be described as the book-leak by making a charge a name and address are enough to make an accepted subscriber out of the borrower. For a small exchange of this, a grafter will pick out a volume, promise to read it, return it, and never return. As a business it cannot be lucrative, for a second hand book rates about with "coffee and—" would cost in a cheap food emporium. Returns must be so small that snow shovel wielded under municipal guidance would give better financial results. But a petty racketeer would hardly have the nerve to figure that out, or accept it as a fact when demonstrated.—Ottawa Journal.

The Editor's Mail Bag

One mail brought to this desk yesterday contained, in addition to ordinary correspondence, 15 specimens of advertising matter, presented in the form of news matter; one letter to interpret for a five cent piece; a week that is going on at Ottawa, sample of a new feature article well arranged with plans and stripes, and the printed program of several large associations which are about to hold conventions but which have no funds for announcement thereof, and these should be added a bulky envelope from a government department at Ottawa, containing items which would be news if they had not already been received over the wire. Of the advertising matter for which free insertion was sought, two contributions were from manufacturing organizations in the United States, one from a trade "institute" in Canada, two in the same mail came from an Ontario society which has a chairman of publicity" and one particularly lengthy article was the product of an advertising agency which ought to know better.

Any community newspaper is willing to attend to a point, occasionally, for people in its own constituency, when all the stuff here mentioned and it arrives daily—was from outside organizations. The publication of it would be unfair to readers, because it would crowd out "spot" news and equally unfair to advertisers who depend upon the newspapers. Its preparation is of benefit to stenographers, press agents and paper manufacturers, and its transmission profits the post office department. Its destination, however, is more suggested by a recent address by Stephen Bolles, editor of the Janesville, Wisconsin, Gazette, before the Audit Bureau of Circulation in Chicago. He said:

"The editor of the community newspaper must have an asbestos hide, wear-tight waste-basket, superior dimensions, its contents often bathed with his tears, and so often supercharged by a vocabulary limited only by his environment and various education. Into that waste-basket flows that flood of entertainingly written, smack-exciting literature so glitteringly and glamorously composed to give free space in the news columns to something which has spent its nation's paper dollars in magazine ads. That editor must realize above all that anything appearing in his columns looking like free space must be pure as its source and entirely free from suggestion that someone is to profit or that there is a quid pro quo in connection therewith. He must be jealous of free space in the abstract possibility of extension of that space in advance of things hoped for and often the evidence of things not seen."—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Canada's First Cheese Factory

East Missouri council has passed a resolution calling attention of the Historical Sites and Monuments Board to the fact that the Adams cheese factory was operating in 1857, and therefore a tablet commemorating the Farrington factory near Norwich, which first operated in 1864, is not in order.

The council has possibly fallen into the common error of failing to differentiate between private dairy plants, which were operated on many farms before 1864, and those organized to serve a community in a commercial way. The late Alvah Sharpe, author of 400 acres in East Missouri and very much interested in the history of the district, started a co-operative venture. According to the manuscript of Sharpe's address presented to the patrons of the factory, probably in 1857, it appears that the cheese from New York state fair at Utica in 1856, and six scores of the cheese factories in this state, as result of which he called some of his neighbors together in the spring of 1857 and they agreed upon a price for milk to be used in cheese-making. Meantime, Harvey Farrington had come over from New York state and built his factory near Norwich in Oxford county.

Much research into the claims of various factories was conducted a few years ago by Dr. J. A. Ruddick, then Dairy Commissioner for Canada, who found the contemporary farm journals and local newspapers numerous allusions to the beginning and success of the first cheese factory of its kind in Canada. Born at Ingersoll, writer of Ontario, and a boy, if we recall correctly, hauled milk to the cheese factories and would not be likely to overlook any claims it might have to precedence. Dr. Ruddick recently read the Historical Sites Board was made, moreover, already considerable data on the point, Prof. Fred Landon, of the University of Western Ontario, read a paper presented at the convention of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario in London on January 13 this year, and doubtless said the board had no doubt as to the Farrington factory in North Norwich being the earliest established for a cheese manufacturing plan.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Baffling Mystery of Cancer

We know that cancer is not contagious nor infectious, or every doctor and nurse would contract the disease; therefore the source must be through the mouth.

During the past thirty-five years (to my knowledge) there has been a death from cancer in every home in this city, along the course of a small stream that winds around a cemetery, known as a hill. One is led to conclusion above the source of this stream, there have been a few countries in which there is very little subterranean water, cancer is practically unknown, e.g., Australia, Persia.

We have no proof that cancer is not like black knot in our fruit trees, which spreads from one tree to another through the air currents.

Is it not reasonable to believe that cancer is caused by a germ, a condition that science has not been able to identify, and spread by the drinking water from our cemeteries, supplying the springs, which it finds on the list, going down hill?

I kept a limb that was amputated at the hip for a malignant growth at the knee joint. The growth continued to enlarge on the dead bone. Cancer, not being as prevalent in uncivilized or primitive people might be due to the fact that they do not receive their water supply from a common reservoir, as would also account for the American Indian accident suffers from the disease.

Many years ago, the British authorities exploded the idea that poor sewage was the cause of typhoid fever in meat, etc., which was held by certain sects.

Matters not conclude that contaminated drainage water from our cemeteries has been a cause by the cause of old (typhoid epidemics) might be the cause of cancer?

Pirnowville, Ont. Population, 8,000. Cases, 1,200. was supplied by contaminated drainage from cemetery stream carrying drainage water from cemeteries.

Madoc, Ont., 1897. Water supply badly contaminated. Population, 3,-000. Cases, 1,000.

We know the typhoid bacillus lives in the soil for a indefinite period. Why not the organism that causes cancer?

Songs You Used to Know

Both the ephemeral and the persistent qualities of popular songs are exemplified in the list of 132, each of which was played over the radio 10,000 times or more in the month of January, as recorded by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, which appears in the current ASCAP Journal. Some of these hits are yesterday's and "forever yesterday" at that, but some of them are perennials. Sixteenth on the list, placed there by the fact that the Sousa march, "The Stars and Stripes Forever," is played by a host of beneficiary of a transient vogue.

"Did I Remember," which Gus Edison and Sigmund Romberg wrote for the motion picture "Suzy," led the roster with 19,961 performances, an especially good record in view of the fact that it was not published until June 13, 1936. Tune 2 on the list, "Melody From the Sky", "Three Little Words" and the film hit, "Trail of the Lonesome Pine", was the first standard composition to which these came a tune neither from a film nor the stage, Irving Berlin's "Alexander's Ragtime Band" by Marks, Caesar and Lerner, played 19,766 times.

No tune from a stage show was in the leading 10, the Rodgers-Hart success, "On a Small Hotel," from "On Your Toes" being the first of the list, close to appear, standing 11,215 place with 25,942 performances.

"I'll Be Seeing You" and "Forever" the next perennial to appear was the "Stardust" of Carmichael and Parish. In 65th place, played 18,902 times, Swing enthusiasts may take this to growing appreciation of their favored form of music. But there is enough to it, and there certainly they cannot claim the next number, "Sweet Leilani," "Lobengula" which took 68th place with 15,101 playings. They cap-and will please, however, by "Begin the Beguine" by Young and Harris, which was played 14,888 times, and "Honeysuckle Rose," by Waller and Razaf, 52nd with 14,958 performances.

The next veteran cannot now be called by belong to the school of music; there are places everywhere for Handy's "St. Louis Blues" which was played 13,561 times and reached 84th place. Swing again must be recognized in "Sing, Sing" (9,461 playings which put "Dinah," by Akst, Lewis and Young in 106th place, but there are other reasons for the persistence of "Dinah." Kenneth Scott, played 11,432 times and set 93rd place, is another Scott success and appearance when 10,767 performances put Washington Post" in 97th place.

It may surprise some reminiscent radio listeners to be told that, "The Music Goes 'Round and 'Round, by Farley Riley and Hudgens, which was 64th, was played only 13,377 times; for a while it seemed to be everywhere and was a favorite melody. There was an instance of quick popularity and as sudden fading. Montreal Star.

HON. EARL ROWE GIVES STATEMENT

Says Leadership of Conservative Party in Ontario Not Vacant

Toronto, Feb. 22—(CP)—Hon. Earl Rowe, Ontario Conservative leader and member of parliament for Dufferin Simcoe, has no intention of giving up leadership of the provincial organization.

"I have not embarrassed you as leader in the past and I will not embarrass you in the future," he told the annual meeting of the Toronto Central Conservative Association.

"There may be those who aspire to the leadership, but I want to say very definitely that the leadership of the party in this province is not vacant now and what is more it is not going to become vacant unless it is in the interest of the party."

Mr. Rowe said he was sorry he was not a member of the legislature. "However, we have an able house leader in Leo Macaulay," he added.

PAUL A. WRIGHT SOON TO BE FREE

Entitled to Return to Life Among His Fellow Men

Los Angeles, Feb. 22 (AP)—Paul A. Wright, slayer of his wife and friend, John Nimmel, remained in the county psychopathic ward today, but the last barrier to his ultimate freedom had been cleared.

Superior Judge Ben. R. Lindsey held yesterday that Wright is sane, therefore entitles to return to life among his fellow men.

However, he said he could not liberate him for five days, to give the District Attorney's office an opportunity to have two jury trials on his mental condition.

J. Miller Leavy, Deputy District Attorney, said such action would be "ridiculous. This hearing settles the matter as far as the District Attorney's office is concerned."

Wright was convicted of manslaughter by a Superior Court jury after pleading insanity, trying him on his plea of innocent by reason of insanity decided he was not sane when he slew the couple.

Under California law, this verdict automatically erased the manslaughter conviction. The hearing yesterday was to determine Wright's present sanity.

ARMY EVACUATES CITY OF TERUEL

Loyalists Take Action in Face of Encircling Attacks

Hendaye, France, Feb. 22.—(CP)—The Spanish Government announced today the strategic city of Teruel has been evacuated by its forces.

The eastern city, capture of which late in December was hailed as the greatest government victory of the war, was abandoned in the face of Insurgent encircling attacks.

The Defence Ministry at Barcelona announced that a single soldier, weapon or morsel of food was left in the city, civilians of which were evacuated some time ago.

When the evacuation order was given the Insurgents had occupied one-fourth of the city and hand-to-hand street fighting was in progress.

Government troops numbering 1,-200 to 1,800 had been surrounded in an earlier communique as under terrific pressure but still in command of their fortified positions.

Insurgents said their infantry with fierce machine gun fire, stormed the bull ring, and pushed into the provincial capital. But the Loyalist Insurgents in the suburbs, the government army exploded mines tunnelled under areas held by Insurgent troops.

For many days the struggle for Teruel had see-sawed with both sides claiming victory. The government succeeded in holding the city and strategic outlying positions before the initial Insurgent attacks.

A solo was sung by Jean Sills, namely: "Let Me Be a Sunbeam." A poem was read by Floyd Ray. At this point, Allan Lott took the collection. Miss Treverton told the children a story. Then Teddy Ray recited a poem. The meeting was closed by singing a hymn followed by quiet music and prayer.

HIGHLIGHTS OF ONTARIO'S BATTLE AGAINST EPIDEMIC

'Iron Lungs,' Splints, Canvas 'Strains' Lined up Against Poliomyelitis

Poliomyelitis, that dread disease which swept over the North American continent a few months ago leaving a ghastly wake of death and deformity, formed the basis of discussion at Belleville Rotary Club's weekly meeting Monday at the Hotel Quinte. The meeting was in charge of the Crippled Children Committee of the Club under the chairmanship of Chas. J. Symons. The guest speaker was Reg. Hopper, executive secretary of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, member of the Toronto Rotary Club.

Mr. Hopper, in very interesting manner described the organization of the Ontario Crippled Children Society, and its organized representatives of ten Rotary Clubs met in Toronto in 1922 to consider concerted action on behalf of crippled children. "Daddy" Allen, of Hyrta, Ohio, who has given a lifetime to work on behalf of crippled children, attended the meeting and gave the delegates the advantage of his long experience. This was born the Ontario Society for Crippled Children with Rotary Clubs as godfathers but expanding until it included all community clubs interested in the care and cure of crippled children. Here the work is financed was explained by the speaker. A government grant is received, service clubs contribute, and contributions are received from private citizens. The budget for 1938 is $40,000, and while that amount of money for the work is not met in sight the officers of the organization have faith that it will be forthcoming. Working in conjunction with other agencies much good has been done by the society and the work is being ever extended into distant rural sections where service clubs do not reach. Northern Ontario's new mining and agricultural districts are also covered by the society, and help given to crippled children wherever they may be.

Homemade "Iron Lungs"

After describing the work of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children in general Mr. Hopper told the story of poliomyelitis in Ontario and the part played by the society in the care and treatment. Right from the beginning the society, its officers, engineers and experience helped to organize the battle against this disease, making available hospital and nursing services for victims and providing arm and leg splints for others, and the available canvas couches to protect the patients from possible deformities.

Great credit was given the superintendent and staff of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, for splendid work in combatting the disease. "Iron Lungs", necessary for treatment of respiratory patients could not be secured in the required way quickly enough and arrangements were made by the superintendent to rush the making of a number of home-made "iron lungs" for respiratory patients, who would have died otherwise. These articles, though crude, were efficient, and no doubt saved a number of lives. Some of them are still in use.

Call from Denver

The Ontario Society for Crippled Children sponsors seven nurses, skilled in the treatment of poliomyelitis, who are following the cases to their homes after hospital treatment. Their experience have proved the necessity for their work, in one case a child patient not yet fully recovered was found sleeping with two other children in the same bed. A separate bed was secured for the patient and proper precautions insisted upon.

An incident of the epidemic worth mentioning concerns the call from Denver, Colorado, for one of the home-made "iron lungs", manufactured under supervision of the Hospital for Sick Children staff. The case was desperate and the iron lung was flown to Denver between sunset and sun-up, did its work and was returned with grateful thanks.

Worthy of note is the fact, pointed out by the speaker, that all necessary organization to fight the epidemic was quickly made without any understanding who was to bear the expense incurred—there was a job of work to be done and those concerned consecrated on the job and let finances care for themselves. A good job was done and finances were taken care of without any friction.

Such is a brief outline of the story of Ontario's battle against poliomyelitis as told by Toronto-Rotarian Reg. Hopper to Belleville Rotary Club. Appreciation for the very interesting talk was voiced by J. A. McFee and President Fred. Douglas.

"It was much fun." — Olympe Bradna, after receiving her first kiss on the screen from George Raymond.

Defeating Mayor J. E. Gregoire, a lawyer and former Professor of Economics who sought re-election for a third term, Borne yesterday rolled up a margin of 5,984 with seven polls in the six wards unreported.

The new mayor received 15,530 of the record-breaking 28,414 counted ballots.

Influx of Residents Discussed by Council

Napanee, Ont., Feb. 22—(CP)—Problem of dealing with influx of residents from surrounding Townships into this town with the view of obtaining relief was discussed last night by council.

It was explained that all the work the town will have to offer during the summer will hardly absorb the regular town residents.

A review of the relief list showed many names were added in the last three or four years. Some of the newcomers claimed they will be forced into town from their townships.

Relief vouchers presented for January totalled $795, an increase of $40 over the preceding months. There are 224 persons on direct relief, including 53 heads of families.

VEIL OF SECRECY IS DRAWN ASIDE

Canada Noted for Re-eligibility of Spain to Enter League

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—(CP)—The veil of secrecy which covers some of the activities of the League of Nations was drawn aside momentarily by Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday when he revealed in the House of Commons that in the vote on Spain's re-eligibility for election to the League Council last September, Canada supported Spain.

Reading from a prepared statement, the Prime Minister answered a question by M. J. Coldwell (CCF, Rosetown-Biggar), and said he was moved to reveal Canada's stand in the secret ballot on Spain lest "refusal to give the information might lead to renewed controversy and misrepresentation of Canada's position".

Two news reports (not by The Canadian Press) from Europe last fall stated Canada had voted against Spain and there was considerable editorial criticism which, because of the secret nature of the ballot, the Prime Minister did not see fit to deny or confirm at that time.

LEGISLATURE TO OPEN WEDNESDAY

No Ceremony Excepting Boom of Guns 'In The Back Yard'

Toronto, Feb. 22—(CP)—Guns will boom "in the back yard" of Ontario's Legislative buildings for the last time tomorrow when the second session of the province's 20th Legislature is officially opened by Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews.

"There will be no ceremony so far as I am concerned," Premier Hepburn said. "At the request of the Lieutenant-Governor there will be the usual firing of guns in the back yard but this will be the last time."

Matter of a military escort will be left to the lieutenant-governor, Mr. Hepburn said.

Mr. Hepburn said that except for possible introduction of one or two bills, the Legislature will adjourn Wednesday afternoon following the throne speech. The address debate will be opened Thursday by Lionel Conacher (Lib., Toronto Bracondale) with Romeo Begin (Lib., Russell) seconding it. Friday will be devoted to introduction of private bills.

The premier added he hoped to arrange with Leopold Macaulay, conservative house leader, to have the traditional "Leader's Day" debate Monday.

Meantime, the government is putting finishing touches on the legislative program. The cabinet will meet today and possibly tomorrow to vote bills in final shape. The Premier declined to forecast any legislation.

"The problem of when normal prosperity and progress will be restored seems to be mainly the question of how soon a state of reasonably assured stability and permanence can be brought to prevail".—Lammot du Pont.

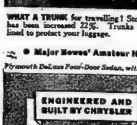
EARL OF PERTH PARLEY MEMBER

British Ambassador to Rome Now on Way to London

Rome, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Earl of Perth, British Ambassador to Rome, will leave tomorrow for London to receive instructions of the Anglo-Italian negotiations Premier Mussolini is ready to begin at once.

The Duce insisted the conservative take place under his eye, between Lord Perth and Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister, rather than in London.



They will be o' wide scope, possibly including revival of Mussolini's cherished four-power pact. Officials were cautious, however, and orders were sent through Fascist ranks not to muddy the water with predictions at the outset.

Prime Minister Chamberlain's reference yesterday in the House of Commons to peace resting with the four major powers, Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy, encouraged Fascists. They interpreted it as a victory for Mussolini's thesis Europe ought to be run by a major power hierarchy instead of by the League of Nation's ideal of universality in which smaller powers have a voice.

Mr. H. Shortt, who is ill in Belleville General Hospital, underwent an operation today.

Friends of Mrs. Clayton Chambers, West Bridge Street, regretted to learn of the death in Madoc, last week of her brother, Allan Henry Hosker.

One of the pleasant events of the past week was the surprise call on her parents that awaited the home-coming to Belleville of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. G. Franklin, who were married in Elim Chapel, Winnipeg, Man., on February 16th. Following the reception at 1204 Wolseley Ave., they left for Belleville. They might well think home in the east Miss Beatrice Jones planned a small surprise supper for Friday evening, February eleventh. The table had a large appearance with its pink and white decorations topped with a real wedding cake brought by a friend, and Miss Helen Redner, sent brides, in miniature, lighted pink surrounded by smilax. Lighted pink tapers lighted an attractive glow to the bright and unexpected company. Those included Mr. and George Milling, Rev. A. Sinclair, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Parliament and Miss Jones, the hostess. Mr. and Mrs. Franklin have taken up residence at "The Oaks", 200 E. Dundas Street.

High praise for Reginald Geen, organist and choirmaster of Simcoe Street United Church, Oshawa, whose choir was heard in recital on Wednesday evening, was offered by the Toronto press. Friends in Belleville will be interested in the following in the Toronto Telegram which is in part:

"What is an ideal concert? An auditorium filled almost to capacity with an audience that can listen—a program lasting nearly two hours that hasn't a phrase in "canned stuff" in it—and singing and instrumentalism that delight listeners and leave them wanting more. Therefore—last evening's concert in Oshawa's Simcoe Street United Church was ideal, because these conditions reigned absolutely. And good as the music was on the program and was in point of academic fact—the manner of performance was the best thing of all. Brightness—intensity—intensity—brightness—liveliness, fine craftsmanship and finer intuitions for what is beautiful and such an expressive music was never lacking. Bach was never forbidding —Tschaikowsky's moodiness had courage in it—Scholtz's sentiment never got sentimental—Grieg was a fellow-Canadian for the time being —and Handel never sounded so lusty and frank in his splendid dignity. Mr. Geen's singers make choralism sound the easiest thing in the world. Their tone is never forced nor pinched, and they phrase so broadly that the listener gets the real self wondering if they ever run out of breath—they shade expressively because they sing on the words, and their forte singing has rich power and resonance. The Bach Chorales were lovely—Tschaikowsky's eight-part Cherubim Song was in best Mendelssohn Choir tradition. So was Scholtz's beautiful Jubilate for women's voices. Some of us remember Mr. Geen's Vogt Choir of Guelph, lovely singers who could make a madrigal graceful as a teen poem and bold as a "charge" challenge. These choristers of Oshawa sing in the same fashion and last evening's program proved it."

First of All, Be Fastedious!

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

DRESSERS of wool and knitted slipovers have been popular this year—cute little things, youthful and gay. But there's one bad feature. They pick up the exudations of the sweat glands and they hang onto them. Dry cleaning doesn't help much; body odors cling. So it is up to all of us to give special attention to the armpits.

Deterrent and perspiration remedies are numerous. Nearly all contain chemicals inclined them to their list of products. They come in various forms—powders, lotions, creams. They have been so improved of late that there is almost no chance of causing irritation, even to the most sensitive skin. They cost little, and benefit is just a matter of faithful application.

Some of the lotions close the pores of the skin. No harm in that. There are thousands of pores elsewhere on the body to carry on the work. When the pores are closed, it may be necessary to use the deterrent only two or three times a year.

Bath powders contain astringents that bring splendid results. They are fragrant, give one an elegant feeling of refreshment. We must urge the member of the beauty chorus to pay attention to this matter. There's no sense in offending the public nose.

Get a glass tray for your cream jars, powder boxes and lotions. Then, when somebody protests at being "piggy" about the bathroom, you can take your beauty kit into your own room, place it on the dressing table, take all the time you want for beauty rituals.

Cosmetic containers are likely to get oily and messy. Powder spills. The fastidious woman wants everything neat and in order.

Self-indulgence, idleness and selfpity—these are the foes of good looks. They mildew a woman to the marrow of her bones. Kill her spirits.

Animation is the light that makes the human face interesting. It is the reward of a well-spent life, plenty of work, interest in human affairs, fun outdoors. No cosmetic can supply what it gives. So up and at 'em, those of you who have fallen into ruts and fancy that you have nothing to live for.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Self Introduction on Street a Crude Method

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I live on the same street with me lives a very nice girl, whom I'd like to meet. I see her pass by, quite often. Would it be too forward if I just introduced myself to her? I don't know anyone who knows her, to introduce myself to her?

Sanford.

Now, my dear Sanford, young people who speak on the street without an introduction usually delay themselves open to the charge of "picking 'em up", and really the people don't do that. Use your imagination and ingenuity, and I'm sure you can arrange an acquaintance with this young lady.

Find out to what church she belongs, and go to some of their young peoples affairs. Shed likely be there and you could ask someone to introduce you then. She may be looking for some organization including boys and girls, and you could join that. You can really become acquainted properly if you use your head.

She Saw Him With Another Girl.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I found out that my boy friend has been going around with another girl. I happened to pass him when he was walking with her and he didn't even notice me. Then I thought perhaps he was dropping me. A few days later I happened to see some money in the street, where he saw it, and he came over to help me find it. He was very nice to me, and asked me where I had been keeping myself, and I remarked that I thought I was getting in someone's way. I can't get him out of my mind, so I decided to get some advice from you.

Shall I bother with him because he was nice to me, or shall I go back and act second fiddle? I really hate to be deceived and then taken back again.

Delia.

It's a great mistake for boys and girls to take that "forever and ever" attitude about each other's faces. When you get "mad" and won't speak, and you're ready to, or won't see, you're cutting yourself off from so much pleasant and interesting fun. Because a boy you've been going with does choose another girl, why should you stop speaking? Learn to be a good sport, and prove the wisdom of that ancient maxim "There's good fish in the sea as ever were caught".

However, if your friend and show the world you're not eating out your heart. When that old sweetheart gets a little tired of his new flame, and you experience the same emotion with yours, you two old friends can have all the fun of finding each other again. To recover an old friend is like finding the winner of a sweepstakes ticket you threw away in mock. Balls last or ring down the curtain on the last act, you can't find the old friend walking like the comfortable extension of your own right hand. Don't burn your bridges; that's common sense; even if it's mixing metaphors.

Birth Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—What is the correct time to mail birth announcements?

2—Is the small card form correct?

3—Would it be all right to send an announcement to my former employer, for whom I worked ten years? I was the only person in the office and knew his wife because she used to stop in the office very often; I also met her at some social affairs. Should this be sent to his home?

4—When sending out such announcements, is it correct to sign the husband's and wife's first name or Mr. and Mrs.?

5—When sending out birthday cards to married women, should the envelope be addressed to

Mrs. Elsie Marriage-Name or

Mrs. Robert Marriage-Name.

M.

1—Birth announcements are sent out as soon after the "blessed event" as it is convenient to do so. .

2—If birth announcements are sent (and it is of course not necessary to send them), the best form is the use of the engraved Mr. and Mrs. card with the tiny card tied to the top of this with a narrow white ribbon. On the small card is engraved the baby's name, and the date of birth. If you buy birth announcement cards, try to get ones that are as simple as possible and still white. Don't buy ones that have spaces for the weight and the place of birth. The baby's name and the date of birth are sufficient information.

3—It would be appropriate to send an announcement to your former employer and his wife. It should be addressed to both, and sent to their home.

4—If the announcements are to be signed, the use of the first names would seem consistent with this type of informal card. Or perhaps you could find ones that have a space on the first line, and are worded in the third person. Then you write Mr. and Mrs. John Smith on the first line.

5—Never should we address an envelope to a married woman by her first name. A letter to a married woman or to a widow should be addressed to Mrs. Robert Brown.

Calling Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you be kind enough to tell me now many cards one leaves at a tea party and why do only some hostesses provide trays for the cards? In the East I would never think of going to a tea without leaving cards. All is so different here.

L.

This question of card-leaving is so much one of the customs of the community that this is undoubtedly the explanation of the frequent absence of card trays in the place in which you now live. Or perhaps they expect the cards to be left on the entrance-hall table.

In any event, I think that you should carefully observe just what is the custom of this place to which you have moved, and abide by this, rather than attempt to do something that they do not expect. If they do not leave cards at a tea, then you had best not leave cards. If you do find that they do, or that some of the women do, leave one of your cards for each hostess.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The February meeting of Shannonville W. M. S. was held on February 3rd, at the home of Mrs. Fred Bullard with seventeen members and 5 visitors present. The group leader, Mrs. Vivian was in charge of the meeting which was opened by singing Hymn 366, after which the Lord's prayer was repeated in unison. The Devotional Leaflet was read by Mrs. Stanley MacKenzie with verses being given by Flossie Terry and Ina Liddle. Mrs. Bullard then led in prayer.

The president, Mrs. J. Stratton, then conducted business period. It was decided to have the Day of Prayer meeting and the next monthly meeting together. Collection was taken, amounting to $2.77 and for flower fund 66c.

The chapter from the study book was read by Flossie Terry. The closing hymn 363 was sung. The meeting closed by repeating the Mizpah Benediction. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

W. M. S. Quilting and Dinner

The ladies of Shannonville United Church W. M. S. held a pot luck dinner and quilting at the church hall on Tuesday Feb. 15th. A delicious meal was served at noon for twenty-five cents. A lovely quilt was done for Mrs. Orval Stratton. Needless sewing was also done on aprons. Proceeds amounted to ($7) seven dollars.

Take a Tip, Gain Good Posture

Bette Davis

Her posture is excellent

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

Now OF THESE things child specialists insist that parents teach their children is good posture. They say that good posture once learned, will never be forgotten. Its importance has reached beyond its bounds of beauty. Apparently, standing and walking correctly through life can be the difference between health and sickness.

Besides making you graceful, lithe and compact looking, it really takes years off your age by keeping you in the best of condition. The doctors say that poor posture pushes the internal organs out of position, it causes improper breathing, poor circulation and bad digestion. But fortunately it's never too late to rectify mistakes of carriage.

So if you want to walk like a queen and feel like a million, try these exercises that will set you out of the slumps. Take a tip from the natives of the tropics. Walk around your room about half an hour every day with a book balanced on your head. This will be a hard balancing act at first, but it gets easier all the time.

Here's one that is a little harder, but it certainly takes the kinks out of your spine: Sit on the floor, with your feet apart, and your knees bent. Put your hands behind your knees and lean your head and shoulders forward, bending your back. Then sit up straight, pulling from your hands and knees. Throw out your chest and straighten your shoulders. Lift your head and pull it back at the same time. Do this about six times.

Down to Floor Again

Try another standing one next: Stand with your feet apart, head up, shoulders straight, with your arms raised but not held rigidly. Keeping the body in this position, turn half way to the right, bending both knees slightly then turn to the left and repeat. Do this exercise slowly and do it ten times.

Down to the floor again: Kneel with your head up, and your hands clasped behind your body. Then bend slowly forward, keeping your head up and your back flat until you are sitting on your heels. Then drop your head to the floor. Keeping your head down, lump your back, pull in your stomach, and slowly raise your body. This is really not too tiring, and it can be done about 12 times.

These four routines will give you a swell start on the road to regal carriage. You'll be getting in the habit of having good posture without knowing it. But it will be a big help if you'll be a little conscious of it during the day, and walk around with your body erect, and when you are working or reading don't droop over your task. Sit up, it's easier on other people's eyes as well as yours.

Help Child to Adapt Self To Others

It is Mother's Job to Teach Him to Get Along With People

(By LISA GRENELLE)

I HADN'T seen her for a great many years, nearly 20, I think, when she walked into my office one does she. But the casual bit of information she let drop in the middle of the visit was tremendously important, for it brings up a point that I've been wanting to discuss with you for some time to me.

It made the usual trite exclamation "Adelaide! What on earth are you doing here?"

"Looking for Adelaide," she said. "Those kids of mine refuse to stay home with the maid without me, and Father's to go back on the midnight train."

"Kids! Flattering!" said the woman next to me.

But I thought just the opposite. Of course, it's grand to have one's children want one near. It would be interesting and hardly flattering if they were obviously relieved to be rid of you.

Yes, it's a very real compliment to have your children want you as well as need you, like you as well as love you; to have them feel that things would be dull and flat without you. But it is not a compliment to have the children refuse to remain without you, even with their own relatives.

Revealed a Failure

I don't mean that the Adelaide's case is unusual necessarily her fault. Possibly the children's grandparents were very indulgent with them, or let them myself, so I couldn't say. But there are a number of grandparents to whom no mother on earth could adjust her children.

Nevertheless, I'm inclined to be pronouncing that her children would not remain as they grandparents, when they were with her, was announcing a failure, not a success; a failure, though possibly through no fault of her own, which it would have been more appropriate to be ashamed than flattered.

One of the first and most important duties of any mother, it seems to me, is to adjust her children not only to the personality of herself and their father, but to all their relatives, even those she herself doesn't like.

If a child is helped and encouraged to get on with and to adjust himself to the households of his various relatives, he is learning to live with other people, to adapt himself to different ages and types.

And although the child of a successful mother likes to have her around, he is independent when she leaves, she has taught him to regard others than as his friends; to see the best in them, so that he is not afraid to be left with them, but looks forward to the adventure of a visit on his own.

4000 Housewives Pledge to Demand 3¢ Cent Butter

Toronto, Feb. 22—(CP)— About 4,000 Toronto housewives met last night under the leadership of Mrs. Bertie Lamb, Presidents of the Toronto Housewives Association, and pledged themselves not to buy any more butter until it is reduced to 30 cents a pound from its present rate of about 40 cents.

Mrs. Lamb told the housewives that they received a letter from Premier Hepburn wishing this organization every success in the Premier is sincere, and we have every reason to believe he is, we expect full cooperation on his part, and on the part of Hon. P. M. Dewan. Ontario Minister of Agriculture.

Stuttering Is Cause Of Worry

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

DEAR DR. MYERS: My little girl three years old stutters. She is worse when tired or excited. If I know what it is she wants to say, I usually finish the sentence. Is this right? What else should I do?

"I have always kept her to schedule, given her the proper food, etc. . . . But if she gets the least bit excited over a new toy or the coming of a favorite relative, it takes her hours to calm down and go to sleep. Her only playmate is a little girl five months older, but they still have difficulty in getting along together."

How I answered her: You seem very wise and sensible toward your little child. Obviously she is extremely nervous. Go on giving her the good she can't get as long as it does not vex her. Never stop her or interrupt her or ask her to repeat. Do not look at her mouth as she stutters. Avoid holding your breath or any other gesture indicating your awareness of her stuttering. Give special heed to her, you and dad, to give her good phrases and sentence patterns. Select non-fearful materials. Sing lullabies to her. Keep the radio whistle silent while she is awake regardless of the personal sacrifice to the family. Work for a serene family atmosphere, with the whole family talking in gentle tones. Let more than 9 p. m. you can get more rest and sleep yourself. Don't let her play parents of close neighbors. Have her play out of doors but not for long periods at a time. Protect her from strong excitement and fatigue.

Expect Quarreling

Expect her to quarrel some with other children. Train them to take turns and respect each other's possessions. Gradually subtract a few other children from her play hour, usually only one at a time. Never more than three. Remember that a threesome group won't mix. You also say her like a twin brother. Consider jealousy as an irritating factor, rendering her more emotional. You and Dad should pay more attention to her and less to baby. Don't hesitate occasionally to sit down and cuddle her. Patiently answer all her questions. Encourage her to build with blocks, and to draw with crayons on large sheets of paper. Keep in close touch with your doctor. He probably has advised you to help her get ample sunshine and cod liver oil. I discuss your problem at length in my book, "Building Personality in Children", which you probably can borrow from your public library.

Poems That Live

MORS ET VITA

We know not yet what life shall be,
What shore beyond earth's shore be set;
What grief awaits us, or what glee,
We know not yet.

Still somewhere in sweet conversenet,
Old friends, we say, beyond Shall meet and greet us, nor forget us;
Those days of yore, those years when we Were loved and true—but will death let
Our eyes lie longed-for-vision see?
We know not yet.

Chicken Loaf Can Be Made Of Canned Meat, Leftovers

By MRS. MARY MORTON
Menu Hint

Chicken Loaf Scalloped Potatoes
Spiced Pears
Green Salad Rhubarb Pie
Coffee

Canned chicken soup is used in this chicken loaf recipe. If you cannot get fresh rhubarb for the pie (it is in city markets), maybe you have canned some. Rhubarb tastes wonderfully springlike and refreshing at this time of the year.

Today's Recipes

CHICKEN LOAF—One cup of chicken, either canned or leftover from roast chicken; one can condensed chicken soup, one and one-half cups soft bread crumbs, one tablespoonful pimiento, chopped; one-half teaspoon salt, two eggs, beaten, one rice, celery and chicken from the chicken soup. Combine them with the chicken and put through the food chopper, using the coarse blade. Then mix this chicken mixture with the soft bread crumbs, chicken consomme from soup, chopped pimiento, celery, parsley, salt and eggs. Put into a greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 45-60 minutes or until firm. Serves four or five.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Use Washing Machine Carefully

The washing machine is one of the most helpful of the inventions that lift the burden of work from housewife's shoulders. It should be given good treatment, therefore, to keep it functioning well.

For instance, be sure to wash a heavier load than the manufacturer recommends. You won't do as good a job of washing if you put too many clothes in the machine and you also put a strain on the motor.

Heed the water level mark and keep the water level from where the machine is loaded. You can actually damage a machine by having too much water in it. Too little water and your clothes drag and "overload" the machine. Remove wringer roll tension when you aren't using it so it won't stick, and when cleaning the rolls use a damp cloth or a non-inflammable cleaning fluid.

To eliminate any danger of a blow fuse, be careful not to plug in washer when the spinner, wringer, agitator is in gear or when the pump is engaged.

And one last point: Don't overload the tank of oiling motor and mechanism about once every three months—according to the directions of the manufacturer.

Cures Rattles

"We've found a way to cure loose, rattling doors in our house. My husband cuts strips of rubber from old inner tubes and fastens them to the doors between the hinges. It does the trick. And to stop a door from squeaking rub its top and bottom edges with soap," says a housewife.

For That Troublesome Cough

We moderns are apt to scoff a bit at grandma's home made remedies for minor ills. But, upon analysis, we find that many of those remedies were based upon elementary knowledge of medicine plus good common sense.

Many a troublesome childish cough—and coughs of the grown-ups, as well—was, and is today, relieved by the glycerine-honey-lemon mixture. To a four-ounce jar of pure honey add two ounces of glycerine and the strained juice of one lemon. Stir and give one or two teaspoons at intervals.

Bright printed blouses are used with matching pocketbooks. Very new and smart.

Bruins And Leafs Meet For Last Time Before Play-offs

HAWKS PLAY MAROONS

Chicago Needs This Game Badly to Keep Ahead of Detroit

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Maple Leafs are heading for National Hockey League finals with Boston, but unless they can bolster their record against Bruins tonight they'll be heavy underdogs when playoff time comes.

In five meetings this season Bruins have won four times and Leafs once, while the most sensational spot on the record is Boston's 9-1 victory in Toronto Jan. 22. Tonight they stage their last scheduled match in Boston and Bruins can make themselves pessimistic prophets by whipping Leafs in the N.H.L. finals and continue in the Stanley Cup series.

Boston's privileged fans, who saw the Bruins stretch their lead over New York Rangers to seven points by coming from behind to defeat Rangers 3-2 tonight, expect to watch another high-powered "preview" between the two clubs. The Bruins will face Toronto for the league title and go against Rangers in cup finals.

Both clubs have but 10 games to go and either can make first place almost sure by winning tonight. Much will depend, too, on the result of the scrabble in New York of Rangers and Montreal Canadiens, who trail Toronto by eight points. In the night's third game Chicago Black Hawks, struggling to retain third place over Detroit in the American section, will invade Montreal to play Maroons, hopelessly out of the race in the other division.

Canadiens will introduce a rookie defenseman, Armand Raymond, brought up from Montreal's amateur ranks to aid the crippled Habitants. He will replace the injured Babe Siebert on defence and enable Siebert to take off additional time to let the knee heal. Eight years old at 19, Raymond played for a junior team sponsored by Canadiens.

The Montreal contest will draw attention only as concerns Chicago, for Maroons have lost seven straight games and to qualify they would have to win their remaining starts while New York Americans were doing a spectacular tail-spin. Black Hawks have a two-point advantage in third place over Detroit but have played one more game.

B. C. I. V. S. SPORTS

Two games were played last night in the High School gym when Western played McGill and Queens played Varsity. In the first game Western defeated McGill by a score of 20 to 13. For the winners Collins and Redfern were the highest scorers getting 8 points each. For the losers Dickens was the high scorer with eight points. This game was a very fast game and if the score had been turned around the positions of the teams in the league would have been changed. In the second game Varsity defeated Queens by a score of 18 to 11. This was about the fastest and closest game that has been played on the floor this year. For the winners Rose Claire was the high scorer with 13 points while for the losers Atyeo got seven points with Reddick getting six points to be close on his heels for second honors. This game also changed the points for the teams placing Queens in first position and tied with McMaster and Western, with four points but McMaster and Western have one more game to play.

Mann Even - Money Choice To Avoid a Knockout When He Meets the Brown Bomber

Odds Are 3-1 on Louis to Win in Fifteen Round Bout

LOUIS WEIGHS 203

(By Alan Ramsay Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Feb. 22 (CP)—Nathan Mann, an aggressive young fellow from New Haven, Conn., became an even-money choice today to avoid a knockout at the hands of champion Joe Louis when they meet tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden with 15 rounds to go.

Odds were 3-1 on Louis to win the scheduled 15 rounds of what is expected to be a one-sided bout before the Brown Bomber, 11 to 1's first defence of the heavyweight title he won on left-jabbed his way past Tommy Farr's 15-round challenge last August.

There was a time when the mere thought of Mann would be sufficient to whip his opponents but Max Schmeling stopped the Yankee mauler, Billy Brown, announced the New Haven hitler considered the fight "the most important in his life." "He'll waste no time boxing Louis," said Brown. "Mann will come out of his corner swinging at the start." Mann's followers over Steve Dudas, Gunnar Barlund, Maurice Strickland, Charley Massera, Abe Feldman, Bob Pastor, Tiger Roy Williams since December, 1936. In training he has expressed great confidence in himself, even to the point of outlining plans for defending the title.

Just Another Tuesday

Should he land a solid, ball-taking blow, Mann is bound by agreement to fight Louis again within 90 days. In his favor is a good right hand and the fact the champion almost always is the fast mover. Against him is the fact Louis likes a stand-up fighter such as Mann. The major-ity of critics view the bout as just another time-up for Louis' outdoor championship series against Schmeling this summer.

Despite a minimum of ballyhoo, promoter Mike Jacobs anticipated a gate of around $1,000,000. Mann's Connecticut fans will fill six special trains and it was their manager-promoter of the bout, Jack Mann's Connecticut fans will fill six special trains and it was their manager-promoter of the bout, Jack Dempsey, who narrowed the odds yesterday from 5-1 to 3-1.

The last indoor heavyweight championship bout was Jack Dempsey's 12-round K.O. of Bill Brennan in the old Garden 18 years ago. For those interested in history the records show Mann as a 190-pound fighter on the Louis-Jim Braddock card and that Gene Tunney filled a similar role when Dempsey fought Georges Carpentier. Braddock too, held the same sort of spot, when Max Baer won the title from Primo Carnera.

Louis, who looked hotly good and mediocre against spermatzes, is expected after the big fight to weigh 203 pounds with Mann about 190. He finished training yesterday after a week-end clouding playing, that flowed two of his partners, Bill Merritt and Jack Tebo, a Canadian.

QUEENS, REDMEN READY FOR TILT

Final Game in Group Play-offs Should be Best of Season"

Commencing on even terms, as the result of a 3-3 draw game played in the first meeting in the group playoffs, the Belleville Redmen and Queen's "students" meet in the final game of their O.H.A. group finals at the Belleville Arena tonight. Both teams will be at full strength for this final tilt, as there is no elimination, while to the ultimate winner goes the honors of advancing into the intermediate 'A' play-offs of the O.H.A.

Manager Thomas has his ace Merrill line of the Jackson and Wilson to toss against the speeding Queen's forwards of Donnithe, Hilland and Campbell, while he has added the veteran Norm Johnson and rugged McGrath with Bill Storms for the second line of attack. A bruising battle is assured as both squads are in fine fettle for the tussle.

The patrons of the game are requested by the Arena management to refrain from smoking during play-off games.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Canada will be represented in the Grand National steeplechase, to be run at Aintree, England, next month, by Rock Lad, owned by H. R. Bain of Toronto. Rock Lad has been in England for the past 14 months and is to be ridden by jockey Gerry Wilson, rider of the "National" winner in 1934. Rock Lad is being trained by Frank Furlong, rider of the 1935 and '36 Grand National winners, but the fact he was quoted at 100 to 7 in the Newbury handicap last week and fell does not hold him as an outstanding prospect. Rock Lad, although many Canadian horsemen are high in their praises for his eight year old gelding. We understand the odds on Rock Lad today are 33 to 1, which isn't out of the way for the average winner of a Grand National winner at that.

Incidentally the approaching Santa Anita $100,000 handicap is attracting more than the usual interest. Jerry Loucheim, owner of Pompoon, winner of last year's event and his famous four year old at 39-8-4 odds, is a private betting favorite for the week end. Sea Biscuit was the last horse at 130 lbs. to be considered another feature attraction as a potential Santa Anita winner. Jerry Loucheim however refused to accept the weight set for the championship event and Pompoon will not be a starter in the big moneyed event.

Drifting along the grapevine we hear the rumoured football war between the senior O.R.F.U. clubs is brewing. Interprovincial Union is nothing today to be compared with the O.R.F.U. battles. Right now it seems a large percentage of the Hamilton fans are unpleased by the Canada Steel Company at Hamilton and that company is seriously considering placing a team right into the senior O.R.F.U. along with the Tigers and Argos. The owner of Hamilton Tiger guards are frantic and guards all season. Any new movement in the Ambitious City would seriously affect their senior football Union squad. To see the old Tigers pass out of the picture would seem regretful, but the O.R.F.U. has its own salvation and we understand they have been producing rugby material. We all like competition and others, just about long enough. "If our association sponsors the Steel Company in the senior O.R.F.U. shouldn't we grab the glory of the Hamilton goal). Queen's University—Donnithee 4; McLean 5; Baker 8; Corbett 9 and McGill 2.

Besides managing the New York Giants and looking after their entire farm system, Memphis ball club and their baseball feuds and has been in operation all at once, Horace Stoneham has still the baseball writers, another with Colonel Gus Mancuso and of course that perennial Joe McCarthy, which seems to get him no where fast, baseball's daffy world's series playing.

If former bantamweight title-holder Harry Jeffra did not arrange for a return bout with champion Sixto Escobar, Puerto Rican, he may right's title bout in the latter's home town, San Juan, Puerto Rico, he was foolish. At any rate Escobar regained his crown, local to Jeffra in the Madison Square Gardens for a 15 round decision. A return bout between these two punching bantams should pack 'em into the Garden in about six weeks. If Mike Jacobs has anything to say about it.

For one Tommy Farr is silent, he's gone into private and undoubted training in preparation for his coming bout with Max Baer. Apparently Texyrandy Tommy's recent actions have the news hounds puzzled.

The decks have been cleared and the new boar is awaited for the second and final game of the Belleville-Queen's O.H.A. group final at the arena tonight. Eddie Thomas' charges reported in shipshape order last night when visited by the Ontario reporter "Aye, Aye, sir," as Skipper Thomas imparted the final instructions. Both the Redmen and "Pat" Walsh's Queen's outfits gave elimination in defeat tonight, so it naturally follows the game will be a battle royal for supremacy and a battle to the end can be expected. In their regular schedule the Redmen won over the "students" by a 3-2 count in the "Pat's" own home ice. The Belleville squad played every man a three all draw in the first game of the group play-offs, so the teams all set for battle on an even keel tonight.

Arrangements for the junior O.H.A. group finals between Ontario semi-finals were announced today. The Kingston Frontenacs play Kingston Thursday night versus the Kingston junior champs. The first game will be played one week from tonight. Tonight sees the Frontenacs invade the Lake Shore loop of the L.O.A.B.A. when Coach Dickie Bellefeuille will meet Jack Dickie's Belleville "x" girls on the local T.M.C.A. court. A few for the boys here, all hell push them out of the L.O.A.B.A. loop, but Coach Dickie is facing an equally as drastic a fate as they will have almost after the close of their standing in first place. The result will be keenly anticipated. These Belleville "x" girls have been jamming their games with thrills and spills all season. The same will be preceded by an intermediate O.A.B.A. game, the Belleville "Y" versus Albert College. Incidentally the Belleville "Y" quintette in the O.A.B.A. are lamenting their lot these days. "we're not getting enough competition," they say. Wait until the playdowns boys, is our suggestion in reply.

Coach "Icola" Holway cut his local Juvenile squad down from 30 to 18 players last night and the 30 rounded today, to those invited to return to the next workout, that principle would be at the Wednesday night at 6.00 p.m. at the Arena, with elimination process to follow. Juvenile is endeavouring to procure a fast-stepping brand of ice hockey before they enter into the playdowns of the Ontario Juvenile Hockey Association.

Here and There: Lookout for a wide, everything goes, hockey game tonight at the Arena. . . . Eddie Hedges has been named Referee Bert Hedges to accommodate the fans and have the contestants provided with a fast, clean cut drag'em out type, which after all is what the public likes, so don't pass this one up—Admission 25c. . . . Fans are asked to refrain from smoking during these play-off games, as secondhand smoke is not the best for athletes at any time.

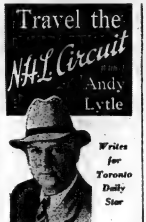
New York, Feb. 22.—(AP) — If you're among those busy picking Brooklyn's 1938 pennant don't forget there's a chap in San Francisco named "Lefty" O'Doul, sometimes called "The Man in the Green Suit."

Little Joe Gould who knows all the answers as well as the angles, will be absolute boss of the new Gould-Clooney five corridor which, after all, is a real break for Tommy who needs one and how! ! !

Sonja Henie's Mona Lo, show did just so-so at the gate. . . . Mike Jabocs, back from down there, says one of the big radio chaius will give him $150,000 for broadcasting rights to La Henie's projected flight to Norway with Dick Merrill. Harry Jeffra had plenty of weight trouble in Puerto Rico and it's not surprising he'd not try to do 118 pounds again. . . .

Five thousand Connecticut Boosters will dump plenty of Nathan Mann money into this burg tomorrow and you may see the odds shortened to 1 to 2 by post time. . . . Harry Danning, who didn't find out how really good he is until last season, wants $15,000 from the Giants this year.



That stuff about Al Weill going out, as matchmaker for Mike Jacobs is strictly the Baloney. . . . A record to shoot at!. Last season Walter Brown, Giant pitcher, played with three championship and two last place ball clubs . . . . He started with the Yanks, went to Newark, then to Cincinnati, then to Jersey City and wound up with the Giants. . . . .

WINTER ICE SHOW PLANS COMPLETED

Quinte Figure Skating Club Arrange Fine Program

With a galaxy of outstanding ice skating celebrities already at their command, the Quinte Figure Skating Club will present its initial Winter Ice Show at the Belleville Arena on Thursday night. The heads of the local fancy and figure skating organization have spared neither time nor talent to assure the patrons of this district the highest quality of rhythm and poise on the ice blades. Aside from some sixty members of their own organization the Quinte Skating Club will introduce skaters from Toronto, London and Sudbury as additional talent for the mammoth evening's entertainment.

Twenty-five numbers have been arranged by the programme committee, with suitable soft-tuned rhythmical music being arranged by a special orchestra now engaged. The fast club ice step, the club waltz and the graceful solo waltzes in 3/4 fashion, but other members of the Quinte Skating Club, assisted by a few outside talent.

Random Pick Up!

Boston—Well here we are again with four clubs in a row on a single street that Smythe, I expect, chose with circumspection when he picked players after finally abandoning that luscious abode of the hard and the decrepit where we used to lay up when here last.

There was a rumor, before we made our first trip this season to Boston, that Smythe had been persuaded to park his hockey business at the Manger, a hotel which has one advantage as it is part of a giant set-up that includes the north station and the Garden as well as Keno, taverns, newstand, reputed mobsters and Lord knows what.

Somebody has whispered that we missed out at the Manger when Smythe remembered certain past incidents in his collision with Art Ross and when he recalled that Art Arthur, having lived at the Manger himself for so many years might have the "in" with the kitchen help and the waiters and so we might get the low with Mickey Finns; or some tricky substances like that, just about to explode inside us.

Ah well, I suppose one can't be too careful dealing with these tricky Americanos but it seems a pity we haven't an archeologist with us here because he would get a real kick out of some of the bedrooms the ancient help and the venerable nature of the surroundings generally.

Adventure does add a bit of spice to life, if it is true but the railway timetables that we of the Leafs party get fitted into were undoubtedly designed by chronic sufferers from insomnia and completely inverted senses of humour. You might say it is impossible for all the trains and buses we ride to leave Toronto fairly late at night and get to all of our destinations at ungodly morning hours.

I am fully convinced that Ross must have advance word of us coming and sends out orders to his railway scouts to see that we are fitted into rocking, creaking coaches and are given an insane freight engineer to plant us who has a record of exploding his train from standing starts second to none on the continent.

And so on for one to two columns a day.

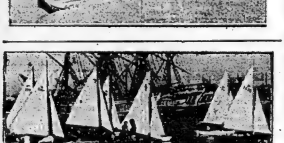
NAVY WEIGHS ANCHOR FOR EARLY START

Spring can't come fast enough for the oarsmen of the U. S. Naval Academy, at Annapolis, Md., so candidates for the Varsity crew do their tuning up indoors with the aid of a rowing machine under the watchful eye of Coach Walsh. From front to rear here are Midshipmen Kinney, Jones, McConnell, Pride, Whitney, Cummings, Andrus and Hooper.

STRONG KEEPS THE PORTSMOUTH CITADEL



Coming out of his nets for a jumping catch, Portsmouth's goal-keeper Strong makes a smart save as his team plays Birmingham in an English first division match on Portsmouth's home grounds. The sphere was hammered from directly in front of the goal as the Portsmouth fullbacks were caught out of position and Strong was called on to hold the fort. He did it magnificently as the picture indicates.

DUTTON IN HOSPITAL FROM HEFTY CHECK

Fifteen seasons of heavy work guarding a hockey blue line couldn't put "Red" Dutton into the hospital, but a hefty check from his own player, Al Murray, after Dutton had retired from the game, sent him to a hospital bed for the first time since shrapnel wounds did it in war years. Murray checked Dutton during a N.Y. American training session and torn back muscles resulted. The fiery red-head is pictured here virtually unable to move with his body in a cast.

WRESTLER TAKES BEATING, BUT LOOK AT THE REFEREE

REFEREE BULL WEIDEMAN

Everett Marshal....Not Among the Daisies

We admit Everett Marshall—is the champion?—took quite a beating in his wrestle bout in Cleveland with Ernie Dusek, the dirty one of the Dusek family, for Everett is out there among the dahlies, or daisies, in the photo ABOVE, but take a look at the referee, Bull Weideman. The boys used Bull for a floor mat, ripping his shirt to shreds. The trouble began when Bull called the bout a draw and Dusek and Marshall carried the thing over for five more minutes of their own accord.

KI-Y LEAGUE

Decisions were gained in all three Ki-Y hockey games played at the arena yesterday with decisive scores registered in two of the matches.

When the St. Michael's "Irish" scored in the last period to defeat the Queen Mary "Wildcats" 3 to 2, the tilliest match of the day was seen, the game being played in the Midget series. Both squads showed a superb style of checking, resulting in a spirited game throughout. Neither team managed to score in the initial period, while both sank the boot brel on two occasions in the middle stanza, only to have the "Irish" put over the winning counter late in the last canto. Mike Powers, O. Healey and Tom McCabe were the marksmen for the winners, while G. Rose and C. Cook scored for the "Wildcats".

In the second Midget game the B.C.I. "Gorillas" continued their undefeated march towards their group title by taking the Flying Wings into camp by a 7 to 1 score. The teams battled to a 1-1 draw throughout the initial period, but four in rapid succession, gave the "Gorillas" a marked edge in the final 20 minutes. Crook led the winners with three. Weller, Illsey, Carter and Lynch each accounting for one while Keller gained the lone Wing counter.

O.S.D. Seniors Win

Coach Frank Cunningham's O.S.D. "Seniors" chalked up their third consecutive win in the Juvenile group by virtue of a 4 to 2 victory over the Maroons. The O.S.D. lads have yet to be defeated in their group. Coach Cunningham's front line of Willie Kinkid, E. Wallon and C. Robertson showed too much speed for the Maroons and accounted for the majority of the winners' counters. The lineups:

Juvenile, O.S.D.: Goal Manley, defence Marshall, "footnar]; centre Walton; wings Kinkid, Robertson; subs, Way, Flower, Blower, Broadway, Smith and Grasiano.

Maroons: Goal McGrath; defence Hay and Mallory; centre McGuire; wings Palmer and Derrey; subs, Moncrief, Rouse and Rosebush.

Referee: Ernie Whelpton.

Midgets: B.C.I. and Y.S.: (?) — Goal Mills; defence Burkholder, Howe; centre Bruce; wings Flying Wings Illsey; subs, Cronk, Carter, Lynch and Wennacott.

Flying Wings (1): Goal Cook; defence Hutchinson, Bush; centre Smith; wings Keller, Redner; subs, Campbell, Rankin and Jones.

Referee: Johnnie Knott.

Midgets St. Michael's (3): Goal Aastiffe; defence O'Connor, Hunter; centre Powers; wings Healey, McCabe; subs, Hebert, Short, Fitzgibbon, Meagher and Rea.

Queen Mary School (2): Goal Smith; defence Rose and Rogers; centre Cook; wings Hay and Barham; subs, Catron, Young, Wigtik, Belnap, Keegan and Reid.

Referee: Johnnie Knott.

KITCHENER GOES INTO NEXT ROUND

Defeats Brantford For Second Time in Senior "B" Playdowns

(By The Canadian Press)

Kitchener Greenshirts, the team who trailed along in the cellar in the Ontario Hockey Association's senior group all season, were looked upon today as one of the surprise packets of the hockey year.

Last night they defeated Brantford Rangers, the senior "A" group's fourth place team, 4-3 and thereby advanced a round in the senior "B" playdowns. The teams had eclipsed the senior "B" playdowns because they were the last two teams in the senior "A" group and Kitchener won the series in two straight games. The Greenshirts defeated Brantford 7-2 Friday.

Another first round series in the senior "B" playdowns was completed last night when Niagara Falls Cataracts laced Port Colborne IntCos 6-2 for their second straight victory in a two-of-three game playoff.

Peterboro Juniors Out

In the association's Junior "A" division, another team Oshawa Generals, face elimination unless they can defeat Toronto Marlboros Wednesday, Marlboros, who finished in the group's second place, defeated the fourth place Generals 7-6 Saturday. The teams are playing for the right to meet winners of a series between Marlboros and St. Michael's, who meet tonight.

In other preliminary playoff rounds last night, Kingston eliminated Peterborough from Junior "B" playdowns while Peterborough's Bees defeat Cobalts 4-3 in the first game of an intermediate "B" series and Guelph Indians played Stratford Midgets 7-1 in a Junior "A" opener.

One of the highest scoring mixups in O.H.A. history ended last night, when Port Hope defeated Cobourg 13-2 and won a two-game, total-goal junior skirmish, with an aggregate score of 32-7. The first game's score was 20-6 in Port Hope's favor.

COURIERS WIN OVER STIRLING TO GAIN GROUND

Score is 10-3 And Newsmen Were Best at All Times

JOHNSON STARS

Setback Put Stirling Squad in Third Spot

Trenton, Feb 22. —(Special)— Trenton Couriers did it again last night. Stirling was their victim this time. The Newsmen showed four hundred fans, that they were to be raised with the Trent Valley League's best, by defeating their rivals 10 to 3. Before the game started Stirling was in a tie with Tweed for the loop leadership but the setback sent the northern town aggregation back to the third rung—back to where they were before beating Tweed on Saturday evening. The Couriers will be in second place unless the Tweed team beat Madoc this week. Then the Couriers would be sitting on the top rung the division with a slim lead. Every player on the Courier aggregation did the right thing at the right time and couldn't seem to go wrong no matter what happened.

Kerr skated through solo to give the Trenton squad a one point lead one minute after the first period began. Eight minutes later Johnson took Davis' well placed pass to sink the Couriers' second counter and exactly five minutes after LaMore and Anderson combined to register the Trenton sextette's third plunker. Leonard, the Stirling team's right winger took matters into his own hands then and put his team on the scoring sheet as the fifteen minute mark then banged the disk into the Trenton cage again three minutes later on Fraser's assist. Anderson tallied LaMore's pass as the period end making the score 4 to 2 in favour of the homsters.

Organized Attacks

The Stirling pucksters organized a scoring combination in the second frame, when Rogers counted from Butler but Anderson and LaMorre equalled their feat with Trenton's fifth. While Reid of Stirling, was on the penalty bench for charging, Kerr of Trenton, strolled up to the invaders blue line and let go a drive, that found its way into the Stirling net. Trenton was three goals to the third stanza, go under way. Johnson and Davis added a point each to their scoring totals, when they teamed to insert the Courier's seventh goal, and they also started an outburst that didn't stop until four Trenton goals were counted. LaMorre and York were credited with the locally sights. MacIlrath netted the ninth sloce and Johnson and Davis fittingly concluded the bombardment with the tenth. Line-ups: Stirling; goal, Hall; defence, Akers, Morton; wings Leonard, Fraser; centre, Robinson; subs, Reid, Butler, Rogers and Dalnard. Trenton—goal, A. Steenburg; defence, Kerr; wings, Davis, Miller, Johnson; centre, Davis; subs, LaMorre, Anderson, Drake, York, MacIlrath; Referee, W. Wallace, Stirling and W. O'Maley, Trenton.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Counsel For Crime"

"Limelight"

Hollywood's forte in transforming a dynamic news event into the melodramatic fabric of screen fiction was never better illustrated than in the picturisation of "Counsel for Crime", a powerfully dramatic exposition of the campaign against crooked criminal lawyers, commencing at the Capitol tomorrow until Thursday nite as smash hit No. 1.

Through the agile artistry of Otto Kruger in the title role, the character of the ruthless criminal attorney, "Smiling Bill" Mellon, emerges as one of the most realistic and sincere performances seen on the screen in many months. Yes-at 8.30.

IN MEMORIAM

SYMONS—In loving memory of our dear ones.
Who passed away seventeen years ago.
Just beyond death's flowing river,
Just beyond the swelling tide,
Blooms the tree of life immortal
And the living waters glide.
In that happy land of spirits,
Flowers bloom on hills of gold,
And our loved ones will be waiting
When the Heavenly gates unfold.

REICHSTAG HEARS HITLER DEMAND COLONIES FROM BRITAIN

terday's audiences were held spellbound as the story of organized crime, protected by shrewd, unscrupulous lawyers of the Mellon ilk, moved at a swift tempo across the screen. In scenes of melodramatic brutality it pictured the rise and tragic ending of the career of Bill Mellon, whose one honest decision in life is his secret love, played to the hilt by Douglass Montgomery.

Montgomery, in the role of Paul Maddox, a recent law school graduate, is the adopted son of State Senator Maddox (Thurston Hall) and Mrs. Maddox (Helen Bryant). No one but; Mrs. Maddox and Bill Mellon know that Paul is their son. Senator Maddox, Mrs. Maddox' private protégé, takes the youth into his law offices. Mellon, by the specious reasoning he has long used to persuade himself, attempts to convince Paul that his shyster law tactics are ethical and just. Paul, horrified by Mellon's unethical defense of a cold-blooded murderer, quits Mellon and launches his youthful enthusiasm into a bitter campaign to drive Mellon from the courts—and to convict him for a killing.

Charming young Jacqueline Wells adds a notable performance to her long list of hits in the role of Kingsley's pretty secretary, Val Vetreen her deep affection and loyalty to her employer and her growing love for the young rebel. Marc Lawrence excels in a brief role as the gangster killer whose tragic clash with Kruger motivates the powerful and unanticipated ending.

"Limelight"

Shown as hit No. 2 on the same program "Limelight" featuring beautiful Anna Neagle and Adolphe Tracy ("The Street Singer") in an intimate and realistic glimpse of scene backstage of a great musical revue. It abounds with lilting tunes, gaiety and romance with your favorites "Street Singer", Arthur Tracy singing new melodies that will haunt you, in a brilliant backstage romance. Last complete show at 8.30.

AT THE BELLE

"Navy Blue and Gold"

"Trapped in The Alps"

Love being the favorite of all themes and football recurring as a competitive topic once a year, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has combined the two and scored a box office touchdown in "Navy Blue and Gold".

This is the picture now on the Belle screen, James Stewart, Florence Rice, Robert Young, Lionel Barrymore, Billie Burke, Tom Brown and a group of other notable players present the story. Originally it was a novel of the same title by George Bruce, which was widely popular. The film goes to the book several points better because it visualizes the virile action and the romance.

The direction by that distinguished veteran, Sam Wood, will rank with the best that has been demonstrated in many months. There is beautiful photography by John Seitz and throughout the picture there is the undeniable stamp of authentic-

My dearest enemy can't accuse me of having a prying nature, but I happened to make an ungreenadated visit to the front door just as the ..ons were unloading the vans, and the first thing to meet my casual eyes was an overstuffed living room set of the mid Victorian vintage of the middle ages, she said.

The site must of driven you rite back into the house, pop said, and ma said, It would of, I assure you, but it was such a nice day, the sun was just like summer sun, so I couldn't resist the temtation to stay out there a while and enjoy it, and I couldn't help noticing the kitchen things the way they protruded out of the barrels, and Willyum my deer you never saw such a collection, it was like something out of the junk shop of the Ark.

My my, what a view to be forced on your attention, pop said, and ma said, I never would of believed it if it hadn't been thrust before my eyes, and the pictures, Willyum, the pictures that were carried in that house.

MARKET COMMENT

Although the Canadian news over the week-end was somewhat disturbing the stock markets yesterday morning did not reflect anything out of the ordinary. Many small traders were anxiously watching for the opening, feeling that the announcement of the resignation of Anthony Eden would bring about a sharp drop on all securities. At the opening, the market appeared to be in a completely sold-out condition and even unsettling news failed to bring about a great deal of liquidation.

That "accumulation" is going on merely because share dealings on the Stock Exchange have been subnormal for nearly three weeks is quite doubtful. Surest clue to inefficiency of a bull market is abnormal dullness over a protracted period, but volume of trading recently has been more certain that constituents of the point of fact the large blocks of stock that are still being offered "off the market" are distinctly suggestive of "distribution" and would be readily absorbed were the markets on the Stock Exchange broad enough to permit their absorption, as in pre-SEC days.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, Feb. 22—Butter prices were generally slightly unsettled on Montreal wholesale markets. In the morning trade butter prices were generally quoted 35c to 35½c for No. 1 Quebec creamery butter; latter was generally quoted at 34¾c and change 100 boxes sold at 34¼c and 600 boxes at 600 boxes nearly 34½c, the latter being posted at the close as the spot quotation. Butter futures were also easier, ¼c lower, closing at 34¼c to 34½c for February, 34¼c to 35c for March and 34¼c nominal for April. Dealers said first of purchases from the United Kingdom will arrive next week, and this may have caused the slight easiness. Small lots to the retail trade were quoted by jobbers at 35½c for solid and 36c for prints.

6 MISSIONARIES ARE PRISONERS

No Word Received by United Church From Those Taken by Japanese

Toronto, Feb. 22.—(CP) — The Foreign Missions office of the United Church of Canada here has received no word from its six missionaries in the city of Hwaking occupied yesterday by the Japanese, so it is assumed by church officials they are in no immediate danger. Had there been any threat of danger, some report would have been received, officials said.

The six missionaries, all from Ontario, are Rev. Leslie Mars, H. A. Boyd, Rev. and Mrs. H. S. Forbes, Miss Jean Somerville and Miss Janey Boyden, a nurse.

All are from Toronto but Miss Boyden, whose home is in Collingwood.

Dr. R. B. McClure, also of Toronto, was believed to have left Hwaking early in December for Chang-chow, situated south of the Yellow River. No other word has been received from Hwaking from the mission station there.

DEER INVADE TOWN LIMITS OF LAKEFIELD

Thought to have been driven from the game preserves to the north by bands of roving wolves, two deer, a buck and a doe, caused quite a stir among residents of Lakefield on Saturday when they made an appearance within the village limits.

Dogs were seen "running" the buck almost from Clonsilla to Lakefield in the afternoon. The big animal crossed the guards at the Lakefield level crossing and then headed to seek safety. Landing at a point between the residences of the Rev. R. Father Garver, and Reeve C. B. Tanner, it halted as if pondering its choice between the north and the nicipality. Alarmed by strong noises the animal turned, turned by the river crossed it and disappeared within the north.

The dead body of the doe was found on the edge of the marsh by a party of hunters, it had been shot to death.

Provincial deer inspector on the property of Eric Grier, led officials to believe that the animals had been in the district for some time.

SWIFT MOVES TO CONFERENCE

Anti-British Attacks Reported Halted by Musaccini

By GEORGE HAMMELSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

London, Feb. 22 (C.P. Cable)— Prime Minister Chamberlain is swiftly moving for an Anglo-Italian agreement. Under instructions the Earl of Perth, British ambassador to Italy, leaves Rome tomorrow for London, arriving here Thursday evening.

He will spend a few days in London, discussing with Mr. Chamberlain, and members of the government terms of the proposed agreement and then will return to Rome to begin official conversations. These probably will begin early next week.

As a further gesture of good will, Premier Mussolini has reported to have stopped anti-British attacks from Bari radio station. Arabic broadcasts from Bari last night, it is stated, were confined to plain statements of facts, without comment.

An Anglo-Italian agreement, it is hoped, will form the basis of a four-power western pact between Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany. Mussolini proposed a similar four-power pact in 1933. The late Ramsay MacDonald, who was then Prime Minister, with Sir John Simon, at that time foreign Secretary, visited Rome and there initialled the proposed pact.

But the scheme fell on stoney ground. Hostility in Britain and on the ground it cut across the League of Nations idea and reverted to the system of group appliances. France eventually declined to ratify the pact which, therefore, fell to the ground.

PRESENTATION MADE TO R.T.W. LEWERS BY BANK ASSOCIATES

A tangible expression of appreciation and esteem of many happy years of association with the past two years was made yesterday afternoon by the staff of the Bank of Montreal, Front Street, when members of the staff presented Mr. R. T. W. Lewers, retiring manager of the branch, with a token of their good wishes.

Mr. Lewers, who has severed his connection with the bank and is retiring from active service, expressed his appreciation of the beautiful gift and also spoke of the fine co-operation given him by members of the staff during his long term of office in Belleville. The presentation was made by Mr. D. J. D. Jones, accountant of the branch. Mr. Lewers' successor, Mr. M. J. C. Dredge, former manager at Leamington, who took over his official duties last week.

Ontario Mayors Meet in Toronto to Protest Federal Action

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP)—Ontario mayors, fighting the announced opposition of Labor Minister Rogers to increased relief payments from the Dominion government, were told today by Mayor William Morrison of Hamilton to "use the big stick on them". He added: "We are not willing to do and the province must be "militant".

Coupled with the Hamilton mayor's statement to the special meeting of the Ontario Mayors' Association, presided over by Mayor R. W. Service of Galt, was the declaration of Mayor R. N. Grey of Trenton: "It has come to the point where either you are going to have a revolution of the unemployed or you are going to have a rebellion of the taxpayers and they can't pay more."

The mayors met here after receiving a wire from Hon. Dominion Labor Minister. Mr. Rogers had refused a conference with the mayors Feb. 9 and said the Dominion government can not "go beyond terms of the agreement authorized by council, under the provisions of which payments of the grants-in-aid for the last quarter of the fiscal year are to be dealt with."

NORTHERN ICE FIELDS INTACT

Fears of Immediate Break-up Fade as Water Volume Increases

Nature removed the anxiety felt yesterday by Front Street business men and residents in the flood area of the Moira River that the immediate stores of the week-end had congealed open channels at the river mouth thus preventing the outlet of the flow of water now coming down the river-levels.

This morning all channels were clear and disintegration of the ice fields between the railway bridge and the mouth of the river is rapidly increasing. Cracks and fissures are slowly gaining in size while water volume is increasing. Chunks from the riverbanks is aiding materially in the increased flow.

General settling of the main ice jam that extends from below the lower bridge to a point well above the upper bridge is still noticeable although fragments are moving and flowing water are making their appearance in the fields.

Reports from the northern areas are to the effect that there is no visible weakening in the ice fields that are locking the river north of the Corbyville and Canniff-ton dams, although the volume of water has shown certain signs of increase.

Water levels, forced out of produces no pressure on the ice in the river are practically normal, city officials stated today.

Trenton

Trenton, Feb. 22.—(Special)—This Wednesday evening Belleville O.A.T.C. will be represented by a strike another page in the Trenton Sports Club rooms when the Tuesday afternoon the Trenton leatherpushers were brought a step nearer to and weighed in at their head-quarters on Murphy Street. The Belleville boxers had slated to be one of the top billed events is creating a great deal of controversy among fight fans in this place. Bills has established somewhat of a sporting reputation by a main street boy-not only defeated his last two opponents but disposed of them the K-O. way. His young brother Ilbe is carded to face a tough rival in the ring, this has not been confirmed.

Two Chimney Fires

Yesterday the Trenton Fire department answered two calls to chimney fires. The first outbreak was at 165 Dundas Street, home of Wm. Sam Street and the second occurred last night at Mr. Hafley's residence on Victoria Avenue. The fire-fighters were "Johnny on the Spot" on both occasions.

Mail Driver Takes New Position

Andy Mitchell is driving the mail from Trenton to Picton and has vera for the position of driver of the mail route to work for J. Wood's local merchant. The stalky mail carrier has driven many thousands of miles through all kinds of weather since he entered the employ of His Majesty's Mail Service, and he has during his career always the saying "the mail must go through".

Bank Head States Business Activity to Show Decline as Compared with Last Year

Graham Towers Believes Drought in West Curtailed Buying Volume

CAUTION IN CREDIT

Ottawa, Feb. 22 (CP)—Business activity in Canada during the first half of 1938 should not be expected to compare favorably with the same period last year, Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, told the third annual meeting of the shareholders here today.

His prophecy was based upon the drought which during the last six months of 1937, Mr. Towers said, and he thought the situation was generally understood and discounted in most people's minds. Interest in the drought had to do the probable course of events later in the year. A satisfactory crop in Western Canada would represent a distinct gain over 1937.

"Had it not been for the disastrous drought which affected wide areas of the West," Mr. Towers said, "I believe the volume of business in Canada last year would have been above the 1926-29 level. In fact, however, the volume was probably somewhat less. Nevertheless, for the country as a whole, 1937 was a good year."

The Bank of Canada, commonly referred to as the central banking or financial catastrophe arising from stock market operations was urged in the governor's address.

Soaring prices and speculative activity in stocks and commodity markets in the spring of 1937 gave rise to belief there was bound to be a much heavier demand for credit and that interest rates would rise, Mr. Towers recalled.

Balance Sheet Favorable.

The balance sheet for 1937, already made public, was discussed briefly by Mr. Towers. "Profits available for distribution $2,268,596 were sufficient after providing for contingencies and bad debts to pay dividends of $260,000 over 1936."

The governor announced that it was hoped to occupy the new Bank of Canada head office building in Ottawa about June first in April. Work was started last March 22 and Prime Minister King laid the corner-stone Aug. 10.

Dealing with stock market quotations, Mr. Towers said: "The experience of the last two years would seem to indicate that more careful scrutiny of the influence of credit facilities upon speculative buying and evidences the desirability of prompt action when the first adverse signals appear."

Suggest Conservative Policy.

"I do not suggest that even the most conservative policy in regard to margins will ensure the stability of stability in prices; experience elsewhere has given proof to the contrary.

"But caution in the use of credit during a period when there is much likelihood of those concerned finding themselves in extreme financial difficulties with all that this involves in the way of an extended period of depression and damage to public confidence."

Mr. Chas. A. Cameron Makes No Comment

In the matter of the report of the City and Ottawa secretary of the wife against Charles A. Cameron, M.P. of South Hastings claiming failure under the Dominion Elections Act to file a declaration of election expenses within the required period of 60 days, Mr. Cameron stated today that he had not yet been served and added "I know only what has appeared in the newspaper and prefer to make no comment until I know more about the matter."

Many Villages Small Towns, May Disappear

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP)— Present trend of industries to larger centres will lead to the disappearance of many small towns and villages in Ontario, F. A. Senechal, secretary of the Ontario Municipal Association, told the annual convention today.

"Is it not natural to expect that in the days of cheap gasoline of life, with large organizations on one side, all tending toward centralization, many of the facilities will be left as shorn lambs?" he asked.

Should the municipal opportunities depends on existence of small municipalities, Mr. Senechal added, reporting membership of 114 municipalities.

A resolution submitted by Peterborough County asked for appointment of a government Commission to investigate rise in cost-of-living prices to the consumer without corresponding rise to producer Ontario farmers have not received their fair share in the advance, it said.

Other resolutions demanded 50 percent of cost of all education be paid by the Provincial government and that relief recipients be barred from voting in municipal elections.

Father of Five Requests Relief In Advance

Toronto, Feb. 22.—(CP) — James Chandler, father of five children, came up with a novel plea for relief here Toronto Council last night. In person, Mr. Chandler asked the Council to grant a year's relief in advance so that he could pay his rent next year Bowsunville. If he didn't get the money, Chandler said, he would have to stay and Council eventually will pay him relief for a year.

Controller Ramsden referred Relief Commissioner, told Chandler there was no provision for payment machinery to cover such a request. But the Council Clerk was told to write to Welfare and tell them about it, anyway.

Chamberlain States League Of Nations Just a "Delusion"

Believes League Unable to Provide Collective Security—Says Nations Must Rely on Themselves

PLAN NOT WORKABLE

London, Feb. 22.—(AP)— Prime Minister Chamberlain today told the House of Commons that the League of Nations as protection against aggression was "a delusion" and demanded that nations throw off "shams and pretences."

Mr. Chamberlain, striving to make his voice heard above the tumult of the Labor benches, declared:

"Let us make up our minds ourselves, and still more we must not try to delude small, we must be protected by the League against aggression.

We know that conception of the kind can be expected."

"The League is unable to provide collective security for anybody," Mr. Chamberlain said. "I would say in the League of Nations I have faith but it will be reconstituted.

Has Real Doubt

"But I doubt very much if the League will ever do its best work so long as its members are nominally bound by collective sanctions to economic penalties or impose force in support of its principles.

"Nations that remain in the League must not be saddled with risks they are not prepared to take.

"If the League would throw off the shams and pretences which everyone sees through and come out with a declaration of what it does propose to do its moral force as a focus for public opinion would be multiplied at once.

He was accorded a two-minute ovation as he rose to succeed Anthony Eden, the resigned Foreign Secretary, looking on from a private member's seat.

Denies Eden's Statement.

He declared that he and never told him he considered conversations with Italy "a breach of international good faith".

"I am trying to be scrupulously fair with him," the prime minister declared. "All the same I wish to say here in his presence that I have no recollection that at any time he ever said to be that the question of international good faith constituted an embargo on conversations with either Italy or Germany.

Mr. Eden had said yesterday he objected to the Italian conversations because of "the attitude of the Italian government to international problems in general."

Mr. Chamberlain directly singled out the statement of Viscount Cranborne, parliamentary secretary to Foreign Affairs, who also resigned, that the split between Britain and Italy was not due to any "principle of good faith in international affairs."

Mr. Chamberlain repudiated the Labor suggestion he had "done anything dishonorable to betray our friends."

He said the French had been consulted on the Italian consultations and appeared to be in "complete agreement" with the decision to be discussed."

Needs Italian Friendship.

He was cheered when he declared that if Great Britain wanted talks with Italy, "we must be free to call them the better."

Reiterating it was essential to talk friendship with Italy now, the prime minister said in a voice that sank almost to a whisper:

"There may come a time when people who make speeches will say: I hold today will have to face again the awful responsibility of war. I will call on me. But does not an equally awful responsibility rest on a man who feels as I do that if we do not take action we may be saddled with a fiasco which that frightful question and who feels that by taking action he shall do something to avert it?

"I would be failing in my duty if I failed to take that action now—as I have done."

Often Interrupted.

"If Conservative members will not listen to me now, perhaps they will be more ready later," said the prime minister after another burst of interruption. "I have given the government to go to the country on foreign policy. The difference between Mr. Eden and the Prime Minister and Greenwood declared, "is that Mr. Eden believes both in faith and works while the prime minister stands for blind faith alone."

"He's a unitarian," came an interruption from the Labor back benches.

"We must see to it that mere people do not lose confidence which make for happiness."—Dame Sybil Thorndike.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1938

STUDY FLOOD RELIEF PROBLEM IN W. ONTARIO

Greater Practical Benefit Is Sought in Education, Throne Speech States

Compulsory Milk Pasteurization Bill to Be Introduced

ONTARIO CREDIT HIGH

Improvement in Economic Conditions is Noted in Address

Toronto, Feb. 23—(CP)—Introduction of a bill incorporating the Grand River Conservation Commission, to study flood relief problems in Western Ontario area ravaged last spring, was forecast today in the Speech from the Throne prepared for delivery at the opening of the Ontario legislative session by Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews.

The Speech also announced the government's intention to revise courses of study in all grades of elementary and secondary schools "which should result in greater practical benefit to the large numbers of pupils who receive no instruction beyond the secondary schools."

Heavy Flood Losses in 1937

Referring to the Grand and Thames River surveys, while recalled from disastrous floods causing hundreds of thousands of dollars damage in 1937, the Speech said:

"During the coming year the Department of Public Works will continue its study of flood control and water conservation. A bill will be introduced incorporating the Grand River Conservation Commission and a survey is being made of the Thames river to determine what measures can be taken to prevent or mitigate floods."

Harvest failure in the 1937 floods was caused at London and Chatham by the Thames.

Compulsory Milk Pasteurization

The Speech promised legislation for compulsory milk pasteurization and amendments to the Mortgagors and Purchasers' Relief Act and several other acts. Additional hospital accommodation for mental patients would be provided at St. Thomas, Brampton, Perth, Cobourg and Woodstock.

Improvement in economic conditions was noted. Increased employment and reduction in the number of unemployed were cited.

"There is little doubt that assistance to those who are unable to find employment will continue for some time to come as one of our major problems, and the government to be introduced in the Federal parliament for setting up a system of unemployment insurance on a national scale will, therefore, be availed with keen interest," Speech said.

Province's Credit Highest

The Province's credit "is at the highest point in the present century," the Speech said and Ontario's finances "are in very sound condition and it is not anticipated the government will require to engage in any borrowing during the some months to come." Succession duty legislation, enacted at the December special session, had proved effectual.

Agriculture has been substantial improvement, also in the finances of the municipalities "under the wider government supervision," the Speech continued. "Of these, eight with obligations of approximately $67,000,000 have reorganized their debts on an acceptable basis. Plans are also pending for 16 other municipalities with obligations of $47,000,000."

Cheese Experts Grow

A bountiful harvest last year was reported and the Speech said dairying proved of equal value to farmers. It noted an increase of almost 30 per cent in cheese exports and the "steady growth of cooperative effort among farmers both in production and marketing."

New agreements between the Hydro Electric Power Commission and four Quebec Power companies—Ottawa Valley, Beauharnois, Gatineau and Mackenzie-Quebec—have been made "at the advantageous rate of $12.50 a horsepower and continue over a number of years the collateral benefits of the power involved" the Speech said.

The agreements, it added, would "maintain for many years adequate reserve for the Niagara and Eastern Ontario system."

Why the Weather?

Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Chinook winds! In sub-zero weather the cattle in the chinook country keep on plodding as they nose the snow aside to get the grass underneath. Nothing can be more welcome to them than the warm, dry chinook winds licking up the snow and allowing them to lie down. These winds start on the western side of the mountains and cool slowly as they go, due to the liberation of the latent heat of condensation as clouds form and rain or snow falls. Upon descending the eastern side, the warming is more rapid than the preceding cooling and the air is also much drier. The warm on the surface, however, stay cool until all the snow is evaporated.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 23—(CP)—A shallow disturbance is centred this morning over Eastern Ontario, where light or moderate snow falls have occurred in nearly all districts from the Great Lakes to New Brunswick. Pressure is high over Southern Manitoba and the Western States and low over the northwestern portion of the continent. The weather is cold in Manitoba, but quite mild in Alberta.

Lake Superior—Partly cloudy with scattered snowflurries; somewhat colder tonight and early Thursday; then milder again.

Manitoba—Partly cloudy and not quite so cold tonight with scattered snowflurries. Thursday, mostly fair and milder.

Saskatchewan—Mostly fair and milder today and Thursday.

Alberta—Fair and quite mild today and Thursday.

MOST REVEREND M. J. SPRATT DIES AT AGE OF 84 YRS.

Eighth Archbishop of Kingston Archdiocese Once Priest Here

ILL FOURTEEN YEARS

St. Michael's, Parish Mourns Former Priest of 1909-1911

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 23—(CP)—Most Rev. Michael Joseph Spratt, 84, eighth Archbishop of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Kingston, died in hospital here today after an illness of many years duration. Archbishop Spratt was taken seriously ill 14 years ago and almost all the time since he had been in hospital.

In 1929 Archbishop M. J. O'Brien was named coadjutor to the Archdiocese.

Outstanding Organizer

An outstanding organizer, particularly in financial development of the Archdiocese, Archbishop Spratt is credited with building Regiopolis College to its present status. He developed many extension enterprises of the church. During his active Archbiocpric (no frequent) was warned against overwork. A native of Cote Township, he was born near Lindsay, Ont.

The sad tidings were received in Belleville that the Most Rev. M. J. Spratt, D.D., Archbishop of Kingston had passed away at five o'clock this (Wednesday) morning in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, where he has been a patient for some time. He was well and favorably known in the city, where he was pastor of the church of St. Michael the Archangel from 1909 to 1911, and when he was appointed Archbishop of Kingston, where he was consecrated on Nov. 30th, 1911. The date of the funeral has not yet been decided.

J. W. Curran Says Best Assurance of South's Future Lies in North

Toronto, Feb. 23—(CP)—Development of Northern Ontario is Southern Ontario's best assurance of the future, Col. J. W. Curran, of the Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Daily Star, said in an address prepared for delivery to the Ontario Good Roads Association convention here today.

"The north is the south's key to a large part of your wealth," Mr. Curran said. "Southern Ontario will never achieve its destiny until New Ontario is fully developed and another provincial capital is connected with the West by a Canadian motor highway."

Property Tax Costs Must be Reduced Say Ontario Mayors

Removal of Educational Cost Would Relieve Burden From Property Owners

LARGE TAX ON INCOMES

Costs of taxation as applied to property owners in various municipalities must be cut.

There must be a complete overhaul of existing methods of taxation, with a view toward not only of reduction but of receiving this revenue from new and other channels.

This was the unanimous view of over forty Mayors of Ontario cities and municipalities at an emergency meeting held in Toronto yesterday, as reported this morning by Mayor Jamison Bone of this city, one of the leaders in the various discussions.

"Every Mayor and representative present voiced unanimously approval of my previous statements and feeling regarding the cost of secondary education being levied on the property owners," declared Mayor Bone.

The meeting, called to protest against the Federal Government's announcement that it would not increase its present grants-in-aid to the Province of Ontario, passed a resolution that the association of Mayors place itself on record as insisting that the Federal Government increase its present grants-in-aid to the Province to equal at

19 Gun Salute Will Greet King's Representative at Opening

TO BE ESCORTED

Lionel Conacher, Former Pro Hockey Player to Move Address

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP)—Booming guns at Queen's Park in mid-afternoon today herald formal opening of the second session of Ontario's 20th Legislature. They will signalize arrival of the King's representative in Ontario, Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews, who will read the Speech from the Throne.

The session will be more formal than the special "Succession Duties" session which Mr. Matthews opened Dec. 14 as his first act following his appointment to succeed Hon. Herbert A. Bruce, but it will be without many of the "frills" Premier Hepburn eliminated after his first administration took office in 1934. The December session marked the first appearance of the second Hepburn administration, returned in the October general election.

Text of Throne Speech In Ontario Legislature

Toronto, Feb. 23—(CP)—Following the text of the Throne Speech, to be delivered by Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews today at the opening of the Ontario Legislative session:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

It affords me much pleasure to welcome you upon the resumption of your legislative duties.

During the short interval that has elapsed since the last session, Mr. McVicar, (Million McVicar, Liberal), the member for Lambton East, has passed away and I join with you in paying tribute to his memory.

I should also like to congratulate the former member for Hamilton Centre, Hon. Peter Heenan, (W. F. Schwenger, Liberal), on his elevation to the Senate.

Economic Improvement Seen

It is gratifying to note that during the past year there was a definite improvement in economic conditions throughout the province. There was a general increase in employment and, although this still constitutes a heavy burden upon the province and upon the municipalities,

There is little doubt that assistance to those who are unable to find employment will continue for some time to come as one of our major problems, and the measure to be introduced in the Federal parliament for setting up a system of unemployment insurance on a national scale will, therefore, be awaited with keen interest.

Credit of Province.

I am happy to state that the credit of the province is at the highest point in the present century, and this is undoubtedly due to the sound financial policy followed by the government, to its excellent budgetary position, and to the fact that all contractual obligations have been met in the exact terms of the appropriate contracts. The finances of the province are in a very sound condition and it is not expected that the government will require to engage in any public borrowing for some months to come.

Succession Duty Legislation.

The succession duty legislation enacted at the special session held in December last, has proven effectual. There has been substantial improvement in the collection of the thirty-four insolvent municipalities now under government supervision. Of these, eight with obligations of approximately $67,000,000, have reorganized their debts on an acceptable basis. Plans are also pending for sixteen other municipalities with obligations of $47,000,000. These adjustments have been of great importance in re-establishing the credit of the municipalities concerned.

Ontario enjoyed last year a bountiful harvest, and dairying proved of greater value to our farmers. Exports of cheese increased by nearly 30 per cent, and production of butter for the overseas trade improved both in quality and quantity. An encouraging feature is the steady growth of co-operative effort among farmers, both in production and marketing, which assumes increasing significance as the areas of distribution are extended.

Modernised Farming.

This indicates a continuing desire

UNDER NO DURESS PRIME MINISTER TELLS COMMONS

British House Quieter Today as Document is Discussed

CHAMBERLAIN'S VIEW

Prime Minister Tells Why He Refuses to Publish Document

By GEORGE HAMILTON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 23—(CP Cable)—In a quieter House of Commons, Prime Minister Chamberlain today denied that the government in opening negotiations with Italy acted under threat or duress.

Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, asked whether the Prime Minister would arrange to publish all recent relevant communications between the British and Italian government concerning the proposed negotiations.

No Useful Purpose Served

Mr. Chamberlain said he declined to publish them on the ground no useful purpose would be served. This request was unreasonable, he added, and was without precedent.

Clement Attlee, Labor leader: "Did not the Prime Minister quote from a document in the course of his speech? Therefore it is obligatory that this document should be laid down."

Mr. Chamberlain: "I think the Right Honorable Gentleman is mistaken in saying I quoted. I described some conversations. I think I did not actually quote words."

Asks For Document

Wedgwood Benn, Labor: "But isn't it the practice that when anything like the 12th document is made the House should have the document?"

Mr. Speaker: "I think the rule is that if an official document is quoted that document should be laid down."

Mr. Chamberlain: "What I said was that there is nothing in what has taken place which I should be afraid to publish, and I acknowledge that I myself should be ashamed to."

Arthur Henderson, Labor, asked whether, as the difference between former Foreign Secretary Eden and the Prime Minister rose over interpretation of a certain document, the House should not have that document

CLAIM POWERS DICTATORIAL

Quebec Liberals Oppose Amendments to Wage Laws

Quebec, Feb. 23—(CP)—Amendments to Quebec's wage laws, which the opposition contends would hand over government powers to rein in the labor field, will be up for third reading in the Province's House.

Liberal claims the amendments would give the government "dictatorial powers" over which collective agreements were aired in the Lower House yesterday before the assembly give them second reading.

Loyalists Strongholds in Mediterranean Threatened

Insurgent Forces Drive Eastward as Warships Range Coast

Hendaye, France, Feb. 23—(AP)—Insurgent land, sea and aerial forces have carried the Spanish insurgents toward the government's Mediterranean seaboard stronghold.

Military dispatches said insurgent troops, warships and warplanes ranged the coast, and planes roared over cities behind the lines after a triple action yesterday brought occupation of Teruel; sea bombardment of Sagunto and Valencia, and attacks on coastal Barcelona and Tarragona.

Defence Line Formed

While insurgent Spain hailed Teruel's fall with street celebrations, government troops hastily formed a defence between the city, 190 miles east of Madrid, and the coast.

In Barcelona, the government charged that insurgents were able to enter Teruel only because of superiority of arms supplied to them by Italy and Germany and said the city's fall was without strategic significance.

The engagement off Valencia and Sagunto, neighboring ports, began with bombing and shelling of the cities by three insurgent planes and two insurgent cruisers, Canarias Baleares and Almirante Cervera and another.

French Boat Struck

During the bombardment the French freighter Prado was struck and shells fell close to the Gaulois, another French ship.

Three squadrons of government planes took off to meet the attack, side of the planes swooping low to drop a bomb on one of the insurgent vessels, Columns of smoke arose from the ship—believed to have been the Almirante Cervera.

ROGERS WARNS AGAINST THREATS

Says Nothing to be Gained by 'Irresponsible Threats' Over Relief

Ottawa, Feb. 23—(CP)— Ontario organizations seeking increased federal grants-in-aid for unemployment relief were warned today "nothing will be gained by irresponsible threats."

The warning was issued last night by Labor Minister Rogers after he had read reports of a meeting of the Ontario Association of Mayors at Toronto at which a resolution was passed "insisting" the Dominion revise the system of grants to cover 40 per cent of relief costs in Ontario.

Basis of Agreements

The Minister said the funds would be paid under agreements covering the last quarter of the fiscal year, April 1-March 31, 1937-38, and that "no change will be made in the grants as set out in the agreement now before the provincial government."

They would be paid within the terms of those agreements and "not otherwise," he declared.

In a press communique the Labor Minister replied to the resolution passed at the Ontario Mayors' meeting.

"He it resolved that this Association of Mayors place itself on record as insisting that the Federal Government immediately revise the grants to the Province to equal at least 40 per cent of relief expenditures in Ontario, failing the assurance which we hereby serve notice that, as our ratepayers are taxed to the point of confiscation, expenditures will be adjusted to least forty per cent of relief expenditures in Ontario, "failing the granting of which, we are notified that as our ratepayers are taxed to the point of confiscation, expenditures will be adjusted to conform with municipal revenues, and the onus for such action will be placed a the door of the Dominion Government."

This resolution will be presented the Federal Cabinet by a delegation of Mayors "not on or before March 15th."

"Mayors of this country are at last awakening," stated Mayor Bone in his report of the emergency meeting.

Will Demand Action

"They have come to the realization that they are closer to the people they represent than are the M.P.'s or the M.P.P.'s of the various ridings. They feel that they are able to present their case better. Instead of asking the Government to apply these needed revisions and better legislation, it was the general feeling and expression of them all that in future they will demand that their wishes be obeyed."

"Mayor Cory of Trenton and Mayor Morrison of Hamilton have the right idea when they say in future we intend to 'the do job.' That is the only thing the Government can understand.

"Educational costs must be taken off the taxpayers. This will result in the property owner getting justice. In future taxation should apply only to the basic services such as police, fire, water and so on in the municipalities. Relief is not one burden; neither is secondary education—they should not be."

More Tax From Incomes

"From what avenue can these other taxes be secured?

"That is a question that must receive very serious consideration. Even if it had to come to a little increase in the sales tax or can be better spared—on incomes. In the past whenever there was an expense to be met they have piled it on the property holder. This in future has got to stop."

Briefly Mayor Bone reviewed the work of 1937 since accepting the appointment as Belleville's Chief Magistrate.

"When I first took office I was warned and told repeatedly that I could do nothing about taxation; that most of the taxes were fixed. The results of my appeal and fight so far have far surpassed even my fondest hopes when I first entertained the idea of offering myself for Mayor. I've got a fight long enough and hard enough we will get anything."

81ST BIRTHDAY OF CHIEF SCOUT HONORED IN CITY

Third Belleville Troop Holds Parents' Night Banquet

LEADER INDUCTED

Program Varied in Its Appeal And Interest

Commemorating the 81st birthday of the World Chief Scout and organizer of scouting, Lord Baden Powell, the Third Belleville Troop of Boy Scouts entertained at a Parents' Night Banquet and Program held in St. George's Sunday School Hall last evening. Parents and friends were afforded the opportunity of gaining a deeper insight into the significance of scout training and the principles of the organization as they watched a typical meeting and heard addresses on the work being carried out locally and throughout the world. The guests enjoyed to the fullest the hospitality extended to them by their scientific hosts, who were in charge of Scoutmaster James Varley, chairman for the evening.

The program, varied in its appeal and interest, was opened on a solemn note by the impressive ceremony of the Scout Investiture of a Scout leader. The Scouts formed a semi-circle about their leader and the parents grouped on the platform followed with interest the ceremony as Jack Carson became an officer and Assistant Scoutmaster. Scoutmaster Jack Varley was in charge, assisted by Mr. B. C. Sisler, Acting District Commissioner and Troop Leader Ronald Varley. As the officer-elect repeated, one by one, the scout points of his profession, he lighted a candle to symbolize each promise, at the end of the room being in total darkness.

Typical Meeting.

A typical Scout meeting followed in which games for recreation and fun knowledge, were carried on with enthusiasm by the Scouts. An instructional period followed the hum at work in the various phases of the Scout development, after which parents were invited to take part in a bean race, with Inspector Frank Gardner proving the most efficient.

Banquet Served.

A delicious banquet prepared by the mothers of the Scouts was then served at long tables. An orchestra provided a lively program during dinner and community singing led by Assistant Scoutmaster Jack Carson and Scoutmaster Morley Anderson of the Sixth Belleville Troop enlivened the gathering.

At the conclusion of the banquet an interesting toast list was presented. The first toast was to the King. Scoutmaster Varley as toastmaster introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. A. E. Beauchamp Payne, referring in his address to Mr. Scoutmaster in Moose Jaw. Mr. Payne in a sincere and interesting manner addressed words of inspiration to the Scouts. He spoke of the World Chief Scout, Lord Baden-Powell whose birthday was being celebrated the world over because he had built up an organization which was shielding a tremendous influence for good, by developing a manhood which would bind together the units of the Empire and the nations of the world. Scouts are taught to be clean of soul and to be alert, to take orders and to carry out each duty faithfully. The good Scout is a good citizen and Scouts are needed to make good citizens of the Empire, respecting God, realizing their duty to fellow men, and being good Britishers. By loyally carrying out the teachings of their leaders who give unsparingly of their time the scouts receive a training into the highest type of citizenship. Today, as never in war days, Scouts must be ready to fit into any emergency for service, the speaker pointed out, was a by doing its bit of usefulness that helped to produce the driving force which moves the machinery of the great British Empire.

Growth of Scouting.

The toast to the Chief Scout, Lord Baden-Powell, was given by the Scout of Canada, Lord Tweedsmuir, Mr. W. R. T. Wensley, gave an interesting review of the early organization of the Boy Scout movement which was instigated by Lord Baden-Powell in 1908. Today there are 49 countries with a membership of 2,-853,000.

Acting District Commissioner B. C. Sisler, replying to the toast, outlined important dates in the history of Scouting and spoke of the need in Belleville for leadership in this movement. The great men of history responded to the inspiration of Scouting, and gave their wholehearted support to it, and the speaker hoped that more in the community would assist the organization by volunteering as leaders. He concluded with an appeal to the parents to give their Scouts regularities and obligations not only at the meeting but in their daily life.

Toasts to Guests

The toast to the Guests was given by Scoutmaster Varley, who welcomed all those present and spoke of his pleasure at being back again after a long absence.

The response to this toast was made by Inspector Frank Gardner, a former Scoutmaster, and father of two scouts in the Third Belleville Troop. The training the boys were receiving, he said, was preparing them, in a way which they did not perhaps fully appreciate at this time, to take a success of life. The "good turn a day" promise had rich rewards, in the inner satisfaction of helping others. The knowledge of a good cause well done inspired and stimulated a scout, while the guilt of a wrong action took away his own happiness and embittered his outlook. From his interesting experience as a police officer, Inspector Gardner gave instances to show how Scout training proved useful in actual life. He counselled the Scouts never to betray their Scout Oath, but to be instructors of their fine leaders and to have as their ideal that great figure, Lord Baden-Powell.

Mr. Tom Marshall, chairman of the committee of the Third Belleville Troop proposed the toast to World Scouting and to the Troop, telling of plans to make 1938 a very successful year in the Troop's history. The response was made by Assistant Scoutmaster Jack Carson, who represented Belleville at the Washington Jamboree. He gave impressions of his experiences and told a thrill it gave him to be a Canadian.

Awards Presented

Scoutmaster Varley congratulated Jack on his success and on having won a Medal Pendant, Mr. Sisler presented Jack with the Medal Pendant and Bar, and Mr. Marshall presented the Cub Pack with badges and added his congratulations to Mr. Varley for his work on the success of the evening's function.

Mr. Fred Symons, secretary of the Committee, expressed appreciation to the soloists, Morley orchestra, the leaders and the Scouts for the interesting evening and presented a cheque to Mr. Marshall for rent of the hall by the Troop. The singing of the Boy Scout hymn closed a splendid evening's entertainment.

Police Blotter

Provincial Police were called to Marlod, last night where a suspicious looking character was seen loitering. Investigation revealed that the person must have been a transient, who left the village aboard a passing freight train before the arrival of the authorities, however.

No arrests were necessary in the city during the past 24 hours, leaving the cell block available for seven transients, who sought shelter in the city last night.

While the weather beats last night, Belleville police recovered a bicycle, that had been abandoned. The bike is at the police station awaiting its owner, Authorities believe the bicycle may be used as a local delivery boy as a large carrier is attached to the front of the machine.

CHINESE PLANES

News of the raid caused great excitement in Tokyo, where the population of more than 6,000,000 was made conscious of the perils of air warfare by a Chinese attack which began today in the Tokyo-Yokohama area.

First Attack in Centuries

TWEED RETAINS TOP POSITION

Come From Behind to Defeat Madoc by 4-3

Tweed, February 23.—(Special)—Trailing by a score of 3 to 2 in the third and final period opened, Tweed's most optimistic supporters didn't give them a chance of defeating Madoc at the local arena on Monday night. But they did it. Goal by goal they whittled down the visitor's lead until they got out of the red and the budget was balanced and investing all their resources in the final period, they added just the necessary margin of gain to win a victory by a score of 4 to 3. It was a great triumph, by a great team over a team only slightly less great.

Fast hockey featured the opening period with Tweed having a decided margin on the play, but being unable to get the puppies past Goalie "Buck" Hulin whose net-minding was reminiscent of the days when he was the leading goalie in—the county. He not only defended his citadel successfully, but by lasso-ed half-way out to the blue-line to bolster up his defence when it faltered and allowed a few enemy backcarried through. Jack Tummon, who played probably his best game of the season, gave the Madoc goalie plenty to do in the later stages of the opening period. Keller took "Bozey" Alexander's pass to open the scoring on a long shot. Hallstone secured the only other marker on a long shot on which Thompson fanned. Several penalties were handed out by Whytock and Gerald, mostly to the locals.

Little Choice

There was little to choose between the teams in the second period, Conroyes and Bozey Alexander both repeatedly but failed to make their plays click. Merraw and Long were the visitors' drive line and Gerald, Jack and Tummon the local trio. Merraw and Long were the visitors' drive line and Gerald, In the late minute of this period, Alexander made the score 2 to 0 as he picked up a loose puck just outside the crease and gave Thompson no chance to save.

A penalty to Madoc as the second period opened paved the way for retaliory to Tweed's victory, Smith was called in the penalty box when Jack Tummon gave the railbirds their first occasion to cheer as he bulged the twine. Madoc tightened their defence and back-checked hard to protect their lead. They were successful until the half-way mark, when Kilbury got his first goal on a nice bit of solo work. The cheering had not died down when the same player took Long's pass from the face-off and repeated his former play to the score.

With but five minutes to go each side started for the winning counter. The locals seemed to have been holding something in reserve for such a contingency and in less than two minutes Conroyes scored the deciding goal on Kilbury's pass. They had little trouble in holding off Madoc's thrusts in the dying moments of the game.

The win places Tweed once again in the lead, a position which they have held all season alone except for two days during which they shared the top rung with Stirling's up-and-coming team. Two games away from home in Campbellford and Trenton will bring the season to a close.

The lineups:

Tweed — Thompson, goal; Tip Tummon, Woodcock, defence; Leal, centre; J. Tummon, Merraw, wings; Long, Conroyes and Provost subs.

Madoc — Hulin, goal; Embury, Hallstone, defence; Smith, centre; Alexander, Keller, wings; Hill, Munro and Naylor, subs.

Several penalties were handed out by Whytock and Gerald, mostly to the locals.

Little Choice

There was little to choose between the teams in the second period, Conroyes and Bozey Alexander both repeatedly but failed to make their plays click. Merraw and Long were the visitors' drive line and Gerald, In the late minute of this period, Alexander made the score 2 to 0 as he picked up a loose puck just outside the crease and gave Thompson no chance to save.

A penalty to Madoc as the second period opened paved the way for retaliory to Tweed's victory, Smith was called in the penalty box when Jack Tummon gave the railbirds their first occasion to cheer as he bulged

Prime Minister's View

Mr. Chamberlain did not accept this view of the difference. The Minister of Agriculture (W. S. Morrison), the Prime Minister continued, told the House last night he saw no time felt himself under threat or duress.

"I have since asked my colleagues if they shared that opinion," Mr. Chamberlain said, "and they unanimously told me they did not feel themselves under threat or duress. The main point raised in this question (Henderson's), whether the government were influenced in their decision, is obviously answered."

France's Rapid Transfer

Earlier Mr. Chamberlain told the House the government had received a reply from General Franco, the Spanish Insurgent leader, to the British note of protest against attacks on British shipping in the Mediterranean. General Franco's reply, Mr. Chamberlain added, could not be regarded as satisfactory.

A company team from the mining centre is pictured at TOP during the course of the race led by Carlos a black and white husky. This team won the event. BELOW, pretty little Alice Robert, six year old Indian girl draws the sign for starting order from the silvered mug emblematic of the championship. It is presented to the winner of each year's race. Dr. M. J. Thompson, physician and magistrate, assists her. Each sled is loaded with a 200-pound cargo.

Nobody "Sells it"..yet Everybody Buys it!

It costs you money, You buy it every day. In fact, it's a buying habit that long ago became part of your daily life. Yet nobody ever "sold" you on it.

It's your daily newspaper.

And in this matchless public acceptance of newspapers there is meat for any advertiser to chew on. For it means that your advertising in the newspapers commands an audience that's unequalled in alert attention — and sheer mass of size.

The universal newspaper habit is a measure of newspaper thrift. Your advertising in these pages shares that influence and pays you better.

GIBBONS' CHART OF PROGRESS

Canada's progress towards prosperity is written in the minds of the people and especially of business men. For details of this advance the research department of J. J. Gibbons Limited, advertising agents, has prepared a chart portraying the distance travelled by each factor from the low of the depression to November 30, 1937, as compared with the point of average prosperity. The low of the depression is determined by the lowest index figure recorded for each factor within the first four months of 1933 rallied from about 104.2% of average prosperity. The average prosperity in this chart is the average of monthly indices for each factor for the four years 1926-1929.

It is clearly indicated by this chart that the factors have travelled toward or beyond the point of average prosperity to the degree indicated by the following figures—exports have passed the average prosperity, as reached 104.2%.

Exports to Empire countries 90.8% of average prosperity.

Imports 69.9%.

Imports from Empire countries 86.9%.

Physical volume of business 122.7%.

Industrial production 126.5%.

Manufacturing production 132%.

Iron and steel production 94.7%.

Automobile production 88.1%.

Electric power production 230.3%.

Newsprint production 310.1%.

Mingral production 339.6%.

Construction 42.5%.

Car loadings 48.3%.

Employment 116.0%.

Retail prices prices 75.8%.

Wholesale prices 61.1%.

Retail prices 85.9%.

Common stock prices 85.4%.

Preferred stock prices 85.2%.

Bank debits 77.8%.

Per capita purchasing power 66.5%.

Basic factors combined 88.7%.

It is to be noted that long term bond yields declined from 4.532% in April 1933 to an average of 3.232% for the twelve months ending November 30, 1937 and that commercial failures decreased from 916 in April 1933 to a monthly average of 79 for the twelvemonth ending November 30, 1937.

The growth of exports, the physical volume of business, industrial production, manufacturing automobile production, electric power, newsprint production and mineral production and employment are very satisfactory. Some other important factors, like farm products, wholesale and retail prices, and the per capita purchasing power and construction have yet to make much progress to touch the average prosperity figures.

The chart serves to explain at a glance the state of the economic situation in the Dominion. The combination of the basic factors indicates that the average is being approached. How much healthier conditions are than in 1933 is clear enough and it is also clear that there is scope for improvement in a number of factors, before there is ground for satisfaction at the development of the majority of the factors.

The J. J. Gibbons Company chart is the story of the recovery in lines and figures, and justifies hope for continued improvement in the future.

THE COST OF CONQUEST

(New York Times)

As the shadow of totalitarianism lengthens over Japan, conservative Japanese industrialists and financiers must be asking themselves whether the price of military conquest is not excessive. This question, which has long troubled liberal elements in Japan is forced on the attention of the public by the release of a forecast of the National Mobilization Bill, sponsored by the army and the Government bureaucrats.

The provisions of this bill, soon to be introduced in the Diet, are sweeping. They contemplate in time of war or of "incident" —a very elastic term—virtually complete regimentation by the State of all activities of the people. Industry, commerce and finance, it has been commandeered; managers and turers told what to produce and how, what to hold and what to sell; trade officially managed; capital—the promotion of new enterprises, the amalgamation of existing corporations, the issuance of new securities—subjected to governmental order. Labor is to be rigidly controlled; compulsory labor service, including regulation of wages and prohibition of strikes, provided for; and the press and other organs of public opinion made instruments of State policy.

Nothing in this program should occasion surprise. For years powerful groups in the Japanese Army have advocated Government control of the means of production. Now, aided by the warfare in China and the prospect of a war with Russia, and holding the upper hand in the Government, they expect to overcome the divided civilian opposition to their authoritarian purposes. Belatedly, but not even now unitedly, Japanese capitalists are preparing to fight for the continuance of the system under which they have created Japan's vast superstructure of modern industrialism and gained for themselves great wealth and power. The larger political parties are joining in the stand against the impending measure.

ZEITGEIST

Eternal Lamp of Life, burn deep, burn low;
These transient beams that shine from Thee to me
Are neither clear nor calm as death's must be,
And even the fires of love devised their glow.
All that the Masters knew I, too, would know:
The untroubled acquiescence which would free
My heart forever from all misery
And that in me which will not let me go.

For I have tried with incense to defer:
To lend my flowers a demi-god's perfume,
Enravish the fragrance of my altar-fire
With stolen frankincense, made no demur;
But all my dreams return again to gloom,
And only God is all of my desire.

DEATH OF SIMON COMMANDA, aged Chief of the Nipissing Band of Indians on the reserve just west of North Bay, at the advanced age of 110, or thereabouts, recalls the fact that it is only within the past few years that there was a highway west of North Bay, Chief Commanda having always resolutely opposed granting any road ways across his reserve. Only the long continued and persuasive efforts of Indian Agent George F. Cockburn, of Sturgeon Falls made possible the North Bay, Sudbury, Sault Ste Marie highway in Chief Commanda's lifetime. It might also be mentioned in this connection that the same Indian Agent Cockburn, of Sturgeon Falls, was the moving force in having released the vast timber resources on the Dokis Indian reserve, across the lake from North Bay in the French River district. Several million dollars were realized from the timber sale and while the Indians are rich, the timber money being doled out to them in payments of one thousand dollars a head, which means much money as the families are large and ten in a family is not considered unduly large. The Dokis maidens, already in demand for wives by the French Canadian lads, became doubly desirous when the timber treasure became manifest and many outlanders with a dash admitted into the Dokis Indians have been long livers in the past and it was nothing out of the way to find stalwarts boasting of over one hundred years and memories of the stirring days when the Hudson Bay Company fought the Northwest Company and white man killed white man to the wonder of the redskins who couldn't understand why a few animal skins could make enemies, especially white men. Incidentally it might be mentioned that the Dokis when fortune dropped in their laps went on a spending orgy and salesmen for parlor organs, enlarged photographs, speed boats and portable bungalows struck a gold mine.

Then gold was found on his property where his workmen were erecting a sawmill. With the finding of gold his peace departed, his workmen were deserting, his crops neglected to return, also his properties and wealth. "Sutter's Gold" is a translation from the French and a very interesting story, brief, but full of action, filling the curtain as it does on one side of the hectic life of California in early gold boom days.

Orillia Street Public School of which Mr. D. Barrage is the popular principal, is carrying on excellent work in the way of relieving distress which prevails with the poor in certain parts of the city. Recently the teachers and scholars brought to the school all bags of potatoes, twelve loaves of bread, one basket of vegetables, other provisions, and several other articles in the way of provisions. The collection was most successful yesterday and the result can not help but be good.

Mr. L. H. Frost of Hamilton spent yesterday here with friends.

The authorities of St. Michael's Church purchased the lot some time ago from the government.

MATCHLESS HARRY

Looking, searching, ever seeking
In his grey dissatisfied way
You will find," says the old adage, and you'll find," says its veracity he does happily on his self-evident quest though, but aware only of the need of the present, regretful of the lessons of the past, and blithely unmindful of the future. Not for him the bothersome habit of saving time and inconvenience of providing for the future, he knows nothing of the Micawber habit of industrious squirrel. Rather does he imitate the easy-going cricket, content with what he has, or whistling for what he has not.

But he is easily satisfied. Fifteen cents buys a day we see him start out, begin to search his pockets, the while looking about with a puzzled, bewildered, questioning countenance. If no one volunteers that which he seeks, he is off, jingling his coins, eating here and there and for the moment all else is forgotten in the one spirit of search. He has but one thought, one immediate ambition, and that is to find it—for since it is such a simple thing he asks his search is made easy, and the evening of contentment steals over his troubled brow. He goes back to what he was doing before this sudden, urgent need made him forget all else, and once again he is happy. For half an hour, perhaps a full hour he remains there, but eventually, never fatlingly, that familiar look comes back to his face, and once more he begin to stumble through his pockets in the old fruitless search, and once again he is off, seeking, sailing and finally attaining the object of his search.

Yes, he is easily satisfied, and would that we all could be made happy as easily and as often as our friend, Harry, the man without a match.

Perhaps you have a Harry your office.—Montreal Star.

THE PASSING WEST

A compuncher came drifting into High River. His sturdy roan horse showed signs of long travel, for the horseman had just completed an arduous trip into the town from a ranch away out in the foothills some miles west. Naturally, the rider's first move was to inquire of the sheriff's office where the nearest livery stable was. "Livery stable?" mused the town resident, and a subsequent investigation revealed that there was not a single livery stable in High River.

But what has happened to the old and wild west when every High River—second only to Calgary as a cow-town in the province—cannot boast a single livery stable? The wild west has certainly tamed down a lot when a puncher can't even find a night's lodging for his horse. The passing of livery stables has recently usurped the place of the last fragrant livery stable; the west of the country is fast becoming a thing of memory.—Calgary Albertan.

BOOM IN BAGPIPES

There are only a few traders in bagpipes in London, but these appear to be busy with the sudden popularity of the Highland instrument which has created demand for kilt outfits. It is thought that the enthusiasm of the members of the Royal Family in Highland dress which have appeared in the world's press has been the greatest factor in this boom. Those engaged in the bagpipe trade received orders for bagpipes from the most remote parts of the world. Labrador and Peru, Honolulu, Johannesburg and Perth, Jamaica and Teheran. One display in London has even brought inquiries from Mandalay and Singapore. Edinburgh Scotsman.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Exercises for Asthma

From time to time we read about new drugs to shorten an attack of asthma. Formerly breathing in from a handkerchief on which three drops of amyl nitrite had been poured, or the use of a solution of nitroglycerin 1 drop was the usual treatment. More recently, the hypodermic injection of 15 drops of adrenalin, or epinephrine was frequently used.

The tendency to asthma is inherited in a great many cases. It is now believed that allergy—being sensitive to various substances—is the cause of nearly one-half of all the cases of asthma. These substances are:—(a) vegetable, cats, carrots, rice, peas, potatoes, beans, nuts, eggs, meat, milk, fish, oysters, lobsters, crabs, beef, chicken; (b) substances in the air from horses, cats, cows, dogs, rabbits, feathers of chickens and geese (feather pillows); (c) pollens such as grasses and timothy; (d) certain drugs, sachets and perfumes.

Other causes, not allergic, are chronic bronchitis; disturbances of stomach, liver and intestine; heart and kidney ailments.

Although the treatment depends upon the cause and the best methods of relieving an attack are effective, the Medical Research Council of Great Britain, which supervises research work in asthma for the past four years, hospitals, strongly advises all asthmatics to practise breathing exercises. These not only help to bring the barrel-shaped asthmatic chest back to normal, but also help to prevent asthmatic attacks.

The exercises consist in breathing air in gently and in small amounts, and breathing the air out with all the force possible.

"In an asthmatic attack the small air tubes in the bronchi become as a result of spasm of their muscular coat filled with mucus manufacture a tough mucous. In breathing in these little air tubes are pulled open and take in of course less obstruction."

The other two breathing exercises which consist in breathing in gently and breathing out forcibly help to empty the lungs. The asthmatic lungs already contain too much air.

"BACK CONCESSIONS"

Evidence submitted to the Chevrier Commission on trade haulage in Ontario brings to attention the profound effect which the motor truck has had on the economic structure. It has effected, during the past decade, a revolution in the cost of goods by motor vehicles has become an important factor in the freight rate intricts which used to be considered hopelessly isolated communities also in the well-known "back concession." Industries have sprung up which find the answer to both their export and import problems in the motor truck. communities in Ontario, more than 2,000 are not served by railways and it is to these that the truck is of particular boon. In an age when transportation is the determining factor success for any locality, the truck is performing a service of the highest importance to the rural areas that most people realize.

In many cases country farmers districts and in half the instances the location of the producer in relation to competition between the truck and the railway for the obvious reason that the truck is the cheaper form of transportation. There is no railway; but there is a truck. The truck has transformed many of those places, bringing them at one great bound right into the heart of things.

Part of the task of the Transportation Commission is to study the relationship between truck and railway haulage. This is by no means a light one. There is a chore of considerable magnitude. The railways are the prime suppliers of the long haul trucks. We have too many railways, and we have too many trucks. The railways complain that the trucks are taking away their business. Towns and cities owe much of their importance to railways, but to an increasing degree they are served by trucks. The two forms of transportation, rail and road, are complementary. The trucks supplement the railways, freight and express train as an added service in the rapid transportation of goods. If they are properly run, the Commission's task in adjusting the relationship of the two in relation between train and truck is not easy, but in those wide "back-concession" areas where there are no railways, there is no problem except how to make the most expeditious use of the truck.—Huntsville Forester.

CHAMBERLAIN

Mr. Chamberlain is the antithesis of the demagogue. He is a first-class administrator, but so far he has not proved himself a first-class leader in Parliament man. In debate he never fails to say just as much as the occasion demands and no more. There are no loose ends and no digressions. A speech from him is always admirably calculated to serve its immediate purpose. But on the other hand it leaves no lasting impression. Lord Baldwin's utterances, both in Parliament and outside, were strewn with unforgettable epigrams and asphorisms.—London Spectator.

Nature's First Artisans

Animals and insects were the first miners, the first carpenters, the earliest tailors, weavers, spinners; producers of paper, silk, and the first artificial light; built the first staircase; manufactured the first wheel; originated the first submarine, the first air craft, the first tent; were the original bridge and road builders, engineers, masons; first made use of camouflage; built the earliest impounding dams, dams.

Beavers are masons, timber cruisers, engineers, canal builders, and authorities on dam and well construction. Wasps manufactured the first paper hundreds of years before the Egyptians discovered papyrus, and they manufactured the vacuum. The darkest wasp constructed of "dobe intergrafts" in inaccessible places long before the cliff dwellers built their cell-like rooms and communal houses of mud high up on canyon walls and both have camouflaged their clay to merge into the background. Both wild and tame animals are darker on top than underneath in the purpose of camouflaging protection.

Spiders originated the signal-stairway, the wheel, the lighter-than air craft, the rope, balloon, submarine, a sticky cement; possessed the first spinning jenny in connection with weaving and basket; under-ground tunnels, skillfully hinged trap-door, lined with tapestried diving bells, rafts, tents, nets, traps, etc. Hunting-birds, orioles, weavers and others weave deep bags or baskets.

The elder-down duck of the arctic weaves a blanket from dried grass and the down from her breast, which she spreads over her eggs when forced to leave them. Caterpillars weave sleeping bags. The octopus throws out a smoke screen of ink. A certain fish carries a sword, while others have lines and hooks attached with which to catch their smaller brothers. Deep sea fish are streamlined with artificial lights, and lantern flies on land possess flash lights. A certain wasp builds a nest like an igloo, with a tiny reed as a keystone, to tie the arch, and the entire family of masons have discovered the advantage of adding grit to their mud, and even straw, or dried grass. The carpenter-grass in autumn, cures it in the sun, then stores it for winter use.

The woodpecker family, including the flickers, carry about with them in their bills a veritable sub-chest of chisels, picks, drills, shovels and hammers, while their feet form strong tongs with which to clutch and hold their stance, and their stiff tails represent the third point of a tripod. Their tongues are barbed. The magpie places a network of thorn branches for wire entanglements over the top of its best as protection from invasion. Many birds and animals first made use of the building tree drum. Some creatures possess within their glands of certain water-proof varnish with which they coat the outside of their homes, while others manufacture a form of upholstered cement mixed with dust and saliva.

Every creature and every insect has at least some worth-while contribution to man's progress and comfort, and it would be interesting to know if ever given where credit is due.—A. H. Morgan in Our Dumb Animals.

Living for One Thousand Years

"How does the sun keep burning like this and its heat radiating at the rate of 4,000,000 tons a second without so far having burned itself out, thus bringing the earth and the other planets to an end?"

The answer was a colossal guess: "Is the sun getts inexhaustible energy from inside the atom!

Do you know that there is enough energy in the atoms of a cube of sugar to "propel the Queen Mary from America to England and back".

Consider, then, the vast changes that will be wrought when atom-power is at last tapped. Consider also what will happen to you and me when we can release the power in the atoms of our bodies at will!

It might then be possible to live for a thousand years or HG our-Wells' Time Traveller has it.—The H. G. Wells.—Benjamin De Casseres in New York Journal.

Journalists In the Senate

If they keep on this way pulling newspapermen into the Senate, the daily newspaper they'll be leaving from the Red Chamber, will be Diamond Jubilee, Ottawa Journal. As it is, they have a dozen of the fraternity in the Senate, to wit:

Senator W. A. ("Billy") Buchanan, president and managing director of the Lethbridge, Alberta Herald.

Senator Sir Thomas Chapais, K.B.E., C.M.G., formerly of the editor of Le Courrier du Canada.

Senator W. H. Dennis, managing director of the Halifax Herald and Mail.

Senator George P. Graham, formerly managing editor and publisher as editorial writer of the Brockville Recorder and Times.

Senator H. W. Laird, once of the Regina Post, still listed as a director of the publication.

Senator William Henry McCully, President of The Liberal, a weekly of Richmond Hill, Ontario.

Senator Arthur Marcil, publisher-director of Le Soleil.

Senator J. K. Prevost, Cookshire publisher of Le L'Avenir du Nord.

Senator C. W. Robinson, proprietor of the Moncton, Transcript.

Senator Arthur Sauve, former editor.

Senator J. D. Taylor, editor and managing director of the Nanaimo, New Westminster, B. C., former reporter in Montreal and Victoria.

But perhaps if these journalist Senators keep getting out a newspaper their ink-brothers in the Commons would match them] with a rival sheet. They could do it too. There would be Mr. King, to begin with, who could call on his experience as editor of the Toronto Globe to bring a "scoop" into the news room of the Ottawa Bennett, with experience in the financial end of the business, anyway to see that they didn't lose too much money; or to put it up if they did lose it, like veteran R. B. Bennett, with experience in the Trade). And there would be Minister Euler (the Liberal Party while journalist about trade (perhaps even about reciprocity) to write for the others. They would give the Senate sheet quite a run.

Moreover, perhaps not curiously, journalism has always been closely linked in Canada with politics sometimes a cradle for journalists, as in the case of Confederation—Brown and Mcdee —were editors—Brown of the Globe, working newspaperman also was the most famous of Canada's Prime Ministers, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Joseph Howe. Two of our Prime Ministers were owners of newspapers; the last to the end of his days, Sir Mackenzie Bowell was a newspaperman

Gilded Orchid

By JANET DORAN

He had an hour before sailing time, and went around to Suzanne's.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Ballinger; Maydra is out of town," Suzanne replied, determined to keep her from making any unwise decision against this very attractive young fortune hoosie of her present network. "Shall I drop in on you a few days — say Friday or Saturday? I know she'll be most happy to see you."

"I'll phone her." Wake promised "In on my way aboard for a few months, Miss Vale, but I'll keep in touch with her."

He went around to the apartment and saw Gerda. He left a note with her that he had written en route.

"Here's your limousine, beautiful,' he had written casually, "and the inverted livery for the chauffeur is being made right this minute. It will be ready for him by your evening."

"His salary is paid for one year in advance and just and oil are also included. Hope you have fun with it darling. See you in June. Wake."

When Maydra woke up, Gerda handed her the sealed note. Wonderingly she read it through, and then passed it to Gerda to read.

"It doesn't make sense, Gerda," she whispered. "Even that many millions do not do such things! Mink coats — five-thousand-dollar ones! And now his town car, his limousine ....and livery— livery for his chauffeur! Because I once made the remark I'd like it!"

"It makes Ballinger sense, Maydra," Gerda said vigorously. "The trouble with you is, Infand, you've never really sighting the Ballinger legend. That man gives away thousands, the way we do pennies. When .....he wants something!" "Well, then what can I do, Gerda? It's —preposterous!"

"Do!" Gerda exploded excitedly. "Do? Why, take it, of course, idiot! You don't go through life slathering millions! Not attractive young fellers and mink coats off a time-bust, Maydra! You act in this age and age you don't!"

Chapter 30

The Gift Turns Out To Be Gold

"It's funny," Maydra mused softly, rubbing the stiffness out of her eyelids, a little while ago I thought I wanted this more than anything else in the whole world, I wanted it so much it was an illness. And now I feel that nothing could cure but possession of the coal."

Only I wanted the car. Like wake's. I wanted a penthouse .... and a country estate. I wanted luxury, the things money could buy. Ballinger decided."

"Not so fast," Gerda warned quietly. "You say 'wanted' as if the past tense. Don't kid yourself Infant. If you didn't know you had them things now, if you would sure Wake Ballinger means all this you'd call the whaling ....frankly I know!"

"That time is it, Gerda?" Maydra countered soberly.

"Almost six. Your aunt will be home soon."

"I must get up, get dressed." "What about the chauffeur planning under cruiser, Maydra? Your aunt thought you'd be going back in Sam's car tonight. Though, of course, she didn't know about this little knick-knack from the five and dime Wake was wishing on him." Maydra decided. "We'll use "Send Sam's car back ...thank you!"

Wake's this time. For tonight, at least...After that ....."

"If," Gerda, breathed slowly, heavily, "you turn down that car, Infant, you're the world's prize dumbbell!"

Maydra didn't answer. She was on her way to the bathroom to bathe and dress, but it occurred to her that even Gerda might find it difficult to explain to a young man of Tommy's hardy principles the possession of a custom-built motor car, with gas and oil paid for a year, and a chauffeur limiting paid for.

She was ready and waiting for Suzanne long before that lady had dined, refreshed herself, and dressed for the trip. She walked restlessly up and down the long studio, smoking, thinking intently. Clear, sharp, accurate thoughts that did not waver, did not hesitate at any point.

"You look much better, dear," Suzanne approved, when she was finally ready to start. And when the big car was bowling smoothly over the steep hills that circled New Jersey from New York: "Now do be sensible about this, Maydra and not involve yourself too deeply with this young man. He will be touchingly helpless and ....appealing. He will employ the usual emotional appeals."

She paused to let this sink in, and Maydra was baffling silent.

"But there still be years and years of healthy, hardy existence beyond this ... this incident of his illness. Years when he will not have illness or emotional appeal to soften the bitter wrench of poverty. Years when the girl he marries will have to pay her emotional weakness with harsh, grinding privation, with suffering and want!"

Maydra remembered something her mother had said:

"Oh, you don't know Suzanne! The arguments she can think up! And all of it right—if you're a materialist!"

"Wake giving you his town car, Maydra, amounts practically to an engagement." Suzanne continued inexorably, "though naturally he can make no slightest mention of such a thing so soon after Kay's unfortunate death. Divorce, or even permit an entirely different procedure but—he meant to marry you. You may be sure of that. And ....even if the marriage didn't last forever, you'd be financially secure the rest of your life, and free, as well, to go back and find romance if it was that important to you!"

Maydra stared at her aunt incredulously. Romance! Romance plotted in such cold blood! You couldn't call that romance! Not when you got it by such means!

"You couldn't say "Love isn't important enough, at first. I'll get what money I need, and then I'll turn back and offer my love again!'? It wasn't love if you could include it in such a program!

"Well," Suzanne said finally, "here we are at last! Now let's get this settled, if we can, as soon as possible and get back to town and civilized living again!"

"You needn't wait, Suzanne; you can go back in the car, and send it back for me, if you'd like!"

"Oh, no, no, no!" Suzanne said briskly. "I'm not going to risk that much rather wait, Maydra!" Each inflection of word saying louder than shouts, "You're not to be trusted here alone, young lady! I'm staying right here to be certain you don't make any silly, unwise moves!"

Maydra followed the nurse into the dimly lighted room, and sat motionless, bent forward, head bent.

"Soon, now," he whispered softly; "the crisis is near!"

Without thought or visition, she prayed silently. As Peter Graham had taught her. The minutes dragged by, in silent, intense vigil continued.

Then, just before midnight, Tommy opened his eyes. He stared fixedly at the doctor, the nurse, and the bandaged head. Then he looked to Maydra's face. And, without moving his head, he let his eyes travel down the counter-pane open, and silently, mutely, she laid her hand in his and held it there. He looked down about it. The eyes closed wearily, and a faint, weary smile lifted the corners of his mouth. Then he slept.

"Thank God!" the surgeon whispered.

"He'll be all right now!"

"Yes, he'll be all right, a relapse!" warned the doctor tersely.

"You'll stay with him, Miss Graham?" the nurse asked briefly.

Maydra nodded. As if she couldn't! Why, many many hours, tortured gasps prior to the crisis.

And in those hours Maydra, reorientated in life, discarded all the, old, confused plans and ambitions, and found love.

She would stay on at Suzanne's house until need her job, and Suzanne needn't be told. Tommy's ship would have to go. She couldn't decide just how, would not until a longer deceived herself.

Then, just before dawn, Tommy's fever broke, and he fell into a natural sleep. Tommy would graduate. Meanwhile there was the week-end day after day, he could make up his lost studies then.

The car—Wake's car, and chauffeur—would go back to him, unused except for the trip to and from with the mink coat. Her old raccoon was quite comfortable, and could be made to last another year with care. It was warm and durable, and that was the main requisite in a coat, anyway.

There was Sam, too, to think of. Sam would probably be difficult. Then Bill Leland's suggestion slipped into her mind, and she smiled.

"With a perfectly legal husband in the office, Maydra, Sam couldn't do much!"

She signalled the nurse, after arriving at this point, and sent a message out to Suzanne.

Tell my aunt to go back home. I'll be at the shop, at work, tomorrow morning early! Tell her I'm sure!" Maydra whispered.

Suzanne objected. She wanted to talk with her niece, but the nurse was firm, cool and immovable. She was sorry; it was against doctor's orders. Mr. Chisholm could not be disturbed under any circumstances! And she did not add that it would most certainly disturb him if Maydra tried to withdraw her hand from his tight grasp. It would never do to tell this cool, aloof, disapproving woman that her niece was spending the night holding tightly to the hand of a boy who would not sleep otherwise!

At five, Tommy opened his eye wide and grinned at her.

"Hullo, darling," he said weakly, "I'm glad you're here. Why so a word!" Maydra said firmly.

"Well, I won't, for not until we're married, honor bright, and I know this isn't some crazy stunt to chew me up until I get well!"

"You'll tire yourself," warned the nurse.

"I don't care! What's the use lying, anyway, if I've got to be an invalid! If you're going killing off with millionaires, and handing me the hinges into the bargain!"

"Tommy," Maydra began softly, "If you'll be quiet, now, if you'll sleep all day, and do everything the doctors ask you to, maybe you'll be strong enough to sit up a little, by side of five days. Then . . . then I can prove it to you. That I'm not ever going to leave you. I can, that is, if you'll ask me!"

Tommy moved violently, and the nurse rushed to his bed and held him firmly, soothing him vigorously.

"No more callers for you, Mr. Chisholm, if you don't behave!"

"Don't worry," Tommy grinned weakly, "I'm going to be so sickenly docile and obedient you'll want to tie a lab under my chin and give me a rattle. Only scram out of here, will you, nurse? I want to ask this girl to marry me, and three's a positive crowd!"

"No!" the nurse declared flatly. "I won't! But go ahead and ask, Mr. Chisholm. I'll turn my back! I'll ... even go with Miss Graham to witness getting the license, and help it, if necessary!"

"Oyez Dahk I'll be able to sit up in five days, nurse?" Tommy asked his nurse, when Maydra was finally back in bed, in town and her job again, with full instructions on how to get the marriage license.

"Not," his nurse discouraged him flatly, "unless you go to sleep this very minute and quit tiring yourself!" He closed his eyes so promptly she had to smile in quick sympathy.

"As if I could sleep a wink in the next five days!" Tommy groaned. "Oooh, how'll I ever bear waiting so long! Worrying for fear something will come up to change her mind!"

He was sound asleep fifteen minutes later, as his nurse well knew he would be, having had long experiences with such cases. Knowing the deep exhaustion that follows such illnesses, causing patients to sleep the clock around, day after day, until balance is again restored.

At home, Maydra had barely time to change to her street clothes, and box the mink coat for storage. On the second trip, the last two rings that must go back to Sam at once, by special messenger. And

DON'T trifle WITH COLDS

● Yesterday Bill was at work. Just a bit a bit grouty and "grippy." Today he's home in bed. He'll lose a week's wages at least.

Anybody who trifles with a cold is cutting his own throat. The same way is to take hold of a cold before it takes hold of you, and drive it right out of your system. The quickest way to do it is to take GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Grove's does the three things needed:

1. It opens the bowels gently but effectively.
2. It combats the cold germs and tones up the system.
3. It relieves the headache and "grippy" feeling.
4. It tones up the system and helps fortify against further attacks.

At the first sign of a cold go right to your druggist and buy a box of GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. They're in a WHITE box. The large size gives you 24 tablets—enough for one cold. Now comes sugar coated or plain.

If taken promptly GROVE'S BROMO QUININE will usually stop a cold within 24 hours. This is the kind of action you need to drive out that cold at once.

The anniversary of St. Valentine passed off very quietly in this vicinity the roads being so very icy that travel was hazardous and few ventured to stir them. No serious accidents were reported although several had a narrow escape due to their cars facing the wrong way. It is hoped that the ice of the past week will not be repeated.

An interesting missionary program was put on by Mrs. D. K. Redner at the close of Sunday School on Sunday morning. Presentations of talks every fourth Sunday are very instructive.

DAILY CARE TAKES SHINE FROM NOSE

Diet is Factor in Curbing Oiliness

OLIVIA DE HAVILLAND
Makes sure her n ose is never shiny

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

TO THE victim of the bright and shining nose, we suggest a slogan, "Hands off your nose." To acquire a dull finish, she is apt to use her powder all too often; and the frictions necessary for its application only arouses sebaceous glands to greater activity.

What the oily skin needs is a quiet life. It should be bathed gently twice a day with a bland soap and every bit of the suds removed with tepid water. Then must be a final rinsing with cold water, a "gentle drying and lavish with an astringent.

Twice a week beat the white of an egg, spread it over the skin, letting it dry until the flesh feels drawn. Remove with cold water, skin an ice cube over the flesh.

Drink fruit juices and buttermilk. They are good friends to the girl whose face takes on a mirror-like glimmer. Pastries must be eliminated from the daily menu, fat cut down to the limit.

In the treatment of acne, general hygiene is important. The diet should be low in fats and free from which cause sebaceous glands to go on a rampage. The daily bath is important; it stimulates the functions of the skin as an eliminating organ. Vigorous outdoor exercises that produce sweating is highly favorable to it.

Soap must be used freely. Laving the skin with a soda solution is recommended by some specialists. Occasional X-ray treatments dry pustules.

If you find that your nail veneer goes sparkly and pasty in the cold days, try making two light applications daily of one heavy coat. Nails must be free of oil and as dry as a bone when you start decorating with the camel's hair brush and the rosy glow.

Father's Bar on Dancing Curbs Girls' Popularity

A gentleman living in an up-get-at-able mountain district—he says he doesn't get to town more than twice a year—has reached me several times. I urged his daughters to learn how to dance.

It seems they live far from the maddening crowd. But the Grange sees to it that these mountain dwellers have a dance occasionally, even though they haven't a fiddle or banjo to accent the rhythm. The dancers resort to the good old method of singing out the figures while they dance:

"Now swing that gal,
That pretty little gal,
"The one you left behind you."

These dances are especially enjoyable, for this reason: If the gentleman is good and husky, he'll quote demurely that his partner's feet never touch the floor during the swing-time.

Now, these three daughters of the mountain father who didn't believe in dancing couldn't even take part in this innocent amusement. They could only look on and see their girls flying around the room like fairies, getting engaged too", the older one, who is 27, wrote me.

So I committed these girls of 27, 25 and 23 to me to help me in learning how to dance, to get the neighbors' girls over to show them how nice they had mastered the step with sufficient agility to get partners, and maybe dance as well.

Father saw my name on the outside of the box letter, and, feeling that he was exercising a parental right, in question a neighbors' mail, read my advice to his girls.

He wrote back that he'd like to give me a trouncing, as well as his three daughters, for suggesting anything as evil as dancing. It seems, though the older girl is 27 year of age, she doesn't know the rule.

He claimed to be a great Bible reader and said I should have suggested Bible reading to his daughters instead of dancing. So I referred him to the 149th Psalm, 3rd verse, which reads:

"Let them praise His name in the dance; let them sing praises unto Him with the timbrel and harp": And the 150th Psalm, 4th verse, which is practically the same thing. He must have missed the timbrel and dance, etc.

I've had a friendly threat from the father, but the girls wrote letters of thanks to me and said they're learning how to dance in the kitchen. Neighbors' girls are teaching them, but when they become less awkward, they intend to invite in some of the young men. Father hates the Life of St. Vitus' dance, why and how the day was kept in commemoration of St. Vitus being had his place in connection with the Women's Institute over the hill this February 29th.

Shannonville, Feb. 22.—On Friday, Feb. 18, about 125 friends and neighbors and relatives met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Goodfellow to extend congratulations to them on their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Cards and dancing were much enjoyed till midnight when Mr. Earl Whiteman invited Mr. and Mrs. Goodfellow to the supper and Miss Janet Grant read the following address:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Goodfellow: We felt that we could not let the occasion of your twenty-fifth wedding anniversary pass without gathering at your home on the eve of your wedding day to congratulate you on having reached the twenty-fifth milestone on your journey through life together, and wish you at least a quarter century more of happy wedded life. We have a surprise you, but Old Man Weather decided it was better for you to know all about it. So, surprise or no surprise, here we are, your neighbors of the second concession and your relatives to have a social time together with you.

We ask you to accept this chest of silver as a remembrance of your friends on this your silver wedding anniversary. Perhaps twenty-five years from tonight we may call again to see you, so be prepared.

Signed on behalf of the callers here—Mr. and Mrs. Earl Whiteman, Mrs. Floyd Goodfellow, Janet Grant, Mrs. Whiteman presented them with a cabinet of silver, also silver knives and forks, tablespoons, tea and Clare, and silver spoons from Frank.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodfellow made suitable replies and all joined hands and circled singing "Auld Lang Syne" and For They Are Jolly Goodfellows. Lunch was served, dancing continued till the wee sma' hours. The guests wished the couple many more happy years of wedded life.

QUINTE BRANCH W.I.

The February meeting of Quinte Branch W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Grange, Bridge Road.

The meeting was opened with the W.I. Ode and repeating of the Lord's Prayer in unison by the president, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell. The minutes were read and approved after which the roll call was taken up. A letter was received from the Red Cross of Toronto asking for the W.I. to help a needy relief fund.

Mrs. Taylor moved that the collection be sent to the relief fund; seconded by Mrs. John Donaldson. This was carried and the amount being $5.00 was received.

The W.I. quilt block second and prize was offered for sale. Mrs. H. C. Brown of Bedford Road won her the beautiful quilt. The roll call —name a traffic law—was well responded to as the secretary's suggestion was offered.

The topic, "Hospitality", Mrs. Dies being group leader and not being able to attend the meeting, Mrs. W. Taylor acted as group leader in her place. Mrs. Dies prepared a very interesting and instructive paper on common law which was read by Mrs. John Donaldson. Song, "Oh Canada" with Mrs. Grange accompanying at the piano in her usual way.

Mrs. White, the guest speaker of the district president, asked that an invitation be extended to the next program to each branch as it is made the visiting ladies feel more welcome. Mrs. White invited the ladies to attend a branch meeting knowing by the program that she expect and under the direction to plan her speech. This made one feel more at home at the meeting, Mrs. White said. The work of the W.I. was a noble work. She was pleased to see the ladies singing and saying it was a credit to be at such a large prepared meeting and that such good ideas to carry home to other branches in the district and the home branch. Mrs. White thanked the Quinte Branch W.I. for their kind hospitality and hoped to attend every minute she was there.

Solos were given by Mrs. Harry Grills and Mrs. Elmer Virtan. A paper was given by Mrs. T. Brown, "The Life of St. Valentine" telling why and how the day was kept in commemoration of St. Valentine had his place in connection with the Women's Institute over the hill this February 29th.

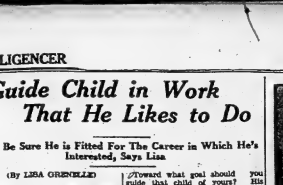
Guide Child in Work That He Likes to Do

But Be Sure He is Fitted For The Career in Which He's Interested, Says Lisa



(By LISA GRENOBLE)

WHERE do your child's abilities really lie? Do you know? What is he going to be? Does he know? For the moment he's interested, in aviation. But has he any real aptitude for it, mentally or temperamentally? Even his present enthusiasm may mean nothing. may be based not on any deep-seated, natural "bent" of the child's own, but merely following the immediate current vogue of his set.

Actually, time will tell, but not always. For even if Jimmie's interest is sustained over a long period, he still may be unfit to fly or possess little or no aptitude for it. Sustained interest is often accompanied by aptitude, for generally we like to do the thing we can do well. But there are soo many exceptions to permit us to rely on that theory; too many people whose chief interest and aptitude are not the same.

No Aptitude

There are many intellectual girls and boys who, because they so love to read, think they can write. Because they criticize the writing of good and literary worth, they want more than anything else to contribute to the world of letters, although they may have no creative ability whatever. Here, also, is where no one whose opinion they respect informs them of the fact. Such people may fail in an attempt to be something they have no aptitude to be, in working at something for which they have no talent.

James Stewart, Tom Brown and Robert Young in "Navy Blue and Gold" at the Belle tonight only.

Toward what goal should you guide that child of yours? His father is a lawyer, and, that, of course, does not mean that Jimmie has any natural aptitude for the law. Even if he seems to have no objection to the idea, of following in his father's footsteps, it may only be because he admires Father. Now they are beginning to give aptitude tests to children as young as 11 years. Although specialization in children of this age is generally considered unwise, it is a great help to parent, teacher and child to have a better idea of where the greatest abilities really lie, what can be expected of him, and what should not.

Tests Give Confidence

The child always seems to regain confidence, too, after these tests, even, and perhaps especially, the less gifted ones.

"Aptitudes", according to David Mack, assistant director of the engineering laboratory at Stevens Institute at Technology at Hoboken, N.J., are inherent traits, cannot be required, reaching maturity in boys of about 15; girls, 17". According to the experiments of this laboratory, in which some 20,000 persons have been examined with the latest 15 years, aptitudes mature at 30 will be the same at 40 or 50.

But, a word of warning, just because you can do this, like Jimmie or Janie get too "precious" about your abilities, and get to think that if they can't get a job that fits them, they must lie idle.

GOOD MANNERS

Don't Notice It

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In the office where I work there are employed two girls of fifteen girls. As is the case in many places, one of the girls seems to have a little more social undertaking. Sometime early last year the leaders embarked on a program to honor each girl on her birthday. Consequently, as the different dates arrived, small contributions were taken, and the honoree received a cake.

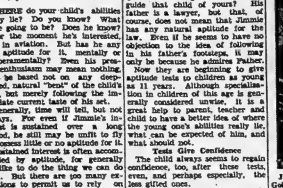
Monday was my birthday, and the date was intentionally overlooked. Perhaps this is true from the small amount of gossip which I could not help hearing, but I would like you think about this before the arrival of the birthday.

Daily Reader

As our wise Shakespeare says, "To be wise and love exceeds man's might"—but there are, in this otherwise delightful world, people who think they can speak correctly. It hurts, as this, dear girl, has hurt you. The test of what we are is how we take it, and I want to have you know that you are not alone in this matter.

MOIRA W.A.

The February meeting of the W.A. was held at the home of Miss J. Herity at the home of Miss J. Herity on Tuesday, Feb. 17, with a splendid attendance. After partaking of a delicious dinner, the ladies engaged in quilting.



At 2:30 the president, Mrs. Frank Bennett called the meeting to order. The opening hymn was followed by prayer by Mrs. Plomondon. Scripture lesson was taken by Mrs. J. Williams. Readings of women in sacred were given by Miss Betty Potter, Mrs. MacDonald, Mrs. G. Foster and Mrs. McGregor. Another hymn preceding reading was given by Miss Lily Post. During the business discussion it was decided to increase the dinner fee from 15 to 25 cents.

A birthday bank was also suggested. Roll call was responded to with birthday anecdotes. The meeting then amounted to nearly $4.00. Rev. Mr. Tristram closed the meeting with prayer.

A social and bazaar was held at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. Angus Mumby under the auspices of the W.A.

Supper was served to nearly fifty persons.

A program was put on by the men and boys. Mr. James Vandewater acted as chairman. Scripture lesson was read by Glen Morton. A trio by Messrs. C. Ketcheson, J. Williams and M. Vandewater was much enjoyed. Guitar selections were given by Mr. Vandewater, Glen Morton and Don McInroy. A comic duet was well rendered by Ivey Cummings and

Party Menu Gives Recipe For Chicken a la King

By MRS. MARY MORTON
Menu Hint

Pineapple Juice Cheese Crackers
Chicken a la King Toast
Waldorf Salad Olives
Pickled Pears
Buttered Cauliflower
Ice Cream with Chocolate Sauce
Fudge Cake
Cake Coffee Nuts Mints

If haven't given you a party menu for some time, no topic I am printing one. Of course there is nothing very original about this menu, but I thought some of you more recent housewives would not like the recipe for chicken a la king, so I would give it to you. Serve in patty shells if you prefer them to toast. You can make your own if you have such pastry dough and bake it in muffin tins. Better prick it so it will keep its shape. Maybe you will have better luck if you bake the shells upside down, placing them on the back of measure. Chocolate fudge sauce can be purchased at your grocery store, but you can't need to make it if you do not want to.

Today's Recipes

CHICKEN A LA KING — One cup sliced mushrooms, two tablespoons chopped green pepper, two tablespoons butter, three tablespoons butter or chicken fat, five tablespoons flour, one cup chicken stock, one cup cream, top milk or evaporated milk, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, two cups diced cooked chicken, two tablespoons pimentos, cut in strips, two egg yolks. Prepare mushrooms and green pepper. Saute five minutes in the first amount of butter. Melt second amount of fat in saucepan or in the top part of a double boiler. Blend in flour. Stir in chicken stock slowly to make a smooth paste. When blended and smooth, stir in cream or top milk gradually. Season well. Add mushroom and pepper mixture, chicken and pimento. Heat egg yolks, add a tablespoon or two of the hot mixture to them, stirring it well. When well mixed, stir into mixture. Heat over hot water and season well before serving. This amount serves six.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Libraries Have "Curves"

Curves are "in" library design, as well as in women's fashions, reports the Modern Home Institute. Libraries in many fine homes today, like shops, are curvilinear in design, that solves an old problem—how to get books into every nook with-out sacrificing reading comfort.

Arrangement of shelves in a "pinched in" manner, at the hand and eye, as it brings books within reading distance and provides a refreshing decorative change. One charming oval library is finished in Phillippine mahogany and has a circular desk in mid-room. Concealed cove lighting illuminates every shelf.

If your house is too small to permit having an entire room for books alone, the institute suggests making a living room alcove into a library. In one Los Angeles residence, a fireplace surrounded at top and sides, by bookshelves has been built into just such an alcove,

"Thinking Day" Observed by Brownie Pack

"Thinking Day" for Girl Guides, which marks the birthdays on February 22nd of the World Chief Scout, Lord Baden-Powell, and the World Chief Guide, Lady Baden-Powell was fittingly observed by Company Three Brownies, with a candle-lighting ceremony at the community service on Tuesday afternoon, the purpose of the day is to foster fellowship with Guides and Brownies the world over, and to show the members thing of each other and to deepen their friendship for one another. In mind. An explanation of the day was given by Mrs. J. A. Brandcombe, Brown Owl of Company Three, at the beginning of the program.

The aims of the Girl Guides and Girl Guide movement, Mrs. Brandcombe, were brought vividly to mind by the interesting ceremony of the Brownies' investiture in large circle, while three of their number symbolized the spirit of Guiding by the Brownie motto and the Brownie law and promise. Each Brownie, called a member of the patrols lighted her candle from these and took her place again in the circle. The candlelights in the room were extinguished, and the program continued with the Brownies thinking of their sisters and Mrs. Agnes Baden-Powell and of Brownies in distant lands, the glow of their candles lighted against the dark, reflected eyes, earnest Canadian youth who would "face the future with joy and courage and build a new world with their love".

The initials "B"-"P" were outlined with flames as the girls deposited their candles in form three letters on the floor on each side of the totem. The collection from the girls was to be contributed to the World Bureau. A roll call of nations brought to mind that there were 44 countries where guides were organized. Mrs. Brandcombe read a story from Finland, and the hearty singing of Brownie songs concluded the program. Special guests were Brownies and officers of Company Two and mothers and friends of the Brownies.

Care of Feet Is Aid To Beauty

Mary Maguire

Gives pedal extremities a dip.

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

IN THE SPRING a young man's fancy lightly turns to love. And if it's your young man he will be wanting to go dancing a lot in the coming months. So look to your feet. Nothing is worse than the married look of a girl facing the music when her feet have turned traitor.

Don't let the pedal extremities be the forgotten part of your anatomy. They will remind you of themselves painfully. Dancers have beautiful feet and they make a living out of them. Most of us just think that they are lucky. But it isn't so. They take care of their feet just as a singer does of her voice or a dancer girl of her legs. And it's the preventive measures that not only keep them looking attractive, but acting up to scratch.

Doctors say that you can't be really a well person if your feet are on the bum. So here's to health and happiness and if you can't get the Big Apple, at least keep the toddles in shape to do as many turns around the room as the boy friend or the music inspires.

If you are one of the lucky girls whose feet have always been a silent partner, then keeping them happy is a simple thing. After you wash them in warm water and soap suds, rinse them in cold water. This isn't any fun, but it will prevent hours of misery, especially if you have been on your feet all day or up half the night dancing. Then be sure to dry them thoroughly and put on a little deodorant powder. Always use stockings that are and change your shoes two times a day at least.

Exercise Helps

Here's an exercise if you are one of the footsore brigade. It will really get your feet into good working shape if they are not so far gone that you have to go to a doctor's care. Strut walk around the house as much as possible wearing only your socks. This is practically the same as going barefoot and will give all the muscles little muscles in the feet exercise that they are apt to miss if you are stand on a step. Let the toes curl over the edge of the step and pretend to go for a little dive. This is marvelous for the metatarsal arch.

Another good tip is to raise the feet higher than the head as often as possible. This will help relieve from swelling and be generally beneficial. If you've got an enlarged big toe joint, massage the joint and toe gently with olive oil, and wear between your big toe and second toe a pad of lamb's wool or a small piece of rubber sponge. Here's a workout which will help straighten the toes: Hook your two big toes snugly together, then move them up and down until they feel warm and comfortably relaxed. Do this about ten times.

This little formula will give you good strong underpinnings and you can dance, girl, dance.

Treating One Form Of Colitis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE TERM "colitis" implies inflammation of the large intestine. In order to understand its nature, we must know something of the structure and function of the colon.

The colon, or large intestine, has an internal lining of mucous membrane, two muscular coats of circular and longitudinal muscles and an outside coat of serous connective tissue so that it makes a fairly tough, flexible, expansible and elongated sac. It is well supplied with nerves so that derangement of its functions are felt in the form of symptoms or pain.

Its most important function is that of holding bulky digestive products and waste until they can be conveniently eliminated. The second important function is delivering to the body the water which has been imbibed and poured into the small intestine during digestion.

Absorption of minerals, sugar salt and some drugs takes place from the colon.

Most of the bacteria which have formed in the intestinal contents are detoxified or killed after they reach the large intestine. The chief secretion from the colon is mucous. Its function is obviously that of a lubricant.

Colitis can be said to exist only when there is demonstrable evidence of inflammation of the intestinal wall or lining.

Various Forms

There are various forms and causes of colitis:

(1) Amebiasis. This is becoming more and more common in the United States, and is due to the invasion of the mucous membrance of the colon by ameba parasites. Amebas usually enter the body with contaminated food. When they invade the mucous membrane of the colon they usually cause ulcerations. These ulcerations may be quite deep and lead to great intestinal unrest, with pain and cramps, diarrhea and the formation of blood, pus and mucous.

Besides the examination with the X-ray, diagnosis will depend upon the recovery of the ameba from the stool.

When treatment is promptly and properly given, acute amebic colitis responds very rapidly. Most of the treatment is designed to kill off the parasite. For this purpose a number of drugs have been used, such as ipecac and its derivatives, emetine, stovarsol, vioform and bismuth carbarsate.

As in all forms of colitis, rest in bed, the use of a soft, low residue diet, should be instituted.

In the United States today nearly all chronic diarrhea should be suspected of being amebic.

Hopeless the lesson! Vainly hath ever cried
Stern Fate to man—No perish the human pride!
Still must the Many combat for the Few
Still must the noblest blood fall with the base;
Tyrants, slaves, freemen, mouldering side by side!
On such a day the World was lost and won,
By Pompey at Pharsalia: such a day
Saw glorious Hannibal a fugitive:
And broke the Macedonian
Sun
Persia's pale star: so empire passed away
From Harold's brow—but He disdained to live!

Displays Indian Art

Amelia Elizabeth White has been making a collection of North American Indian art for the last 25 years. She is now displaying this collection in six museums of the United States, including the Cleveland Museum of Art, Cleveland, O. Miss White, of Florida and Santa Fe, New Mexico, has been interested in the welfare of the American Indian, and has established a gallery of American Indian art in New York to foster this interest.

It has been said that "the life of a Navaho begins and ends in beauty." The pottery in Miss White's collection ranges from prehistoric black-on-white ware, to modern developed black polished ware of the San Ildefonso and Santa Clara Pueblos.

Girl Can't Get Along With Mother, She Complains

By VIRGINIA LEE

A PSYCHOLOGIST recently made the statement that girls are jealous of and hate their mothers (and mothers that a girl's "jealous and envious (of her mother) from earliest childhood, and looks upon her mother as a persistent enemy."

Now, I don't believe that, any more than I think that women cannot get along together, except by envy and poor sports. I know better. If mothers and daughters do not get along together it is usually the mother's fault, or it is that daughter is at an emotional age and so is extra sensitive about things mother says and does.

That there may be jealousy on both sides I admit. Fathers are quite apt to make a fuss over the young daughter and forget that mother likes to hear pretty things said, too. The world revolves around the young, and mother may feel sort of on the shelf at times. It is exactly the same thing with fathers and sons. I have seen fathers who were jealous of their sons, resented the close tie between mother and son, and therefore were not able to be good friends with the grown man.

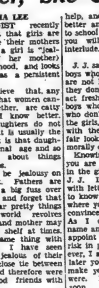
At any rate, my letters the last day or two are full of heartburn in family problems. The latest says:

"DEAR MISS LEE: I'm so discouraged and heartbroken that I feel that I don't want to go on living. I don't know what to do with my mother or the rest of the family. I am the only girl. I do most of the work at home. Mother is in poor health. I have tried getting a position but haven't had any luck so far.

"I'm only 20 and I never get along, although I try awfully hard to do things that would please her, but it seems everything I do is wrong. I'm getting so that I'm scared to do anything for fear you can help me, Miss Lee, or advise me what to do.

"DISCOURAGED."

I imagine that your mother's poor health is the cause of her being so hard to please, Discouraged. Don't you think so? Her nerves are shot and she nags to relieve herself. It is too bad and very discouraging, as you say, but that is about the size of it. Your mother probably feels as badly as you do—even worse—about her inability to get along peaceably with you, but seems unable to control her temper.



If you look upon her as a sick person instead of a disagreeable one, won't it be easier to bear her fault finding? Do the work well for your own satisfaction, and try not to mind her scolding. Get out whenever you can and take your mind off your troubles. That will help, and when your mother gets better and you are free to return to school or find a job for yourself, you will forget this unpleasant interlude.

J. J. says it is his experience that boys who are not "fresh" with girls are not liked by them. Girls say they don't like men who drink and act fresh, he states, but he knows boys who are perfect gentlemen who don't make any impression on the girls, and he knows he is a flop with the ladies although he is fair looking, has a new car and is morally clean.

Knowing girls as I do, I think you are certainly very unfortunate in the girls who live where you do. But J. J. I'll probably be swamped with letters from girls who want to know what your name is and address is, so that they can convince you that you are wrong. As I cannot possibly give your name and address and so must disappoint them, I'm running a letter in printing your views. However, I am very sure that sooner or later you will meet a girl who will make you "eat your words" as it were. I hope that time will be soon.

Redingote Back in Spring

By Central Press

Sally Ellers

THE REDINGOTE is back again, in fresher and smarter guise. It is a most becoming costume for young or mature women. It is no wonder it is not permitted to lapse into innocuous desuetude.

Gold and brown, two colors that combine charmingly, are used in this silk redingote and underdress worn by Sally Eilers, screen actress.

The design is by Miss Renie. The belted redingote is of gold-colored heavy pebble crepe, with self-material binding the open front, collar and short-sleeved cuffs.

A flat bow of the dress material is tucked smartly under the turnover collar, and self-covered buttons give a nice finishing touch to the redingote.

Brown suede shoes in practically the same color as the dress complete the ensemble.

Style Whimsies

Bias-cut brassiers are new this spring, the front section being the part that is cut bias. Evening brassiers are cut low in front and also have a front cut-out to insure separation.

Navy with color is the most popular of the spring suits, say the shops. The navy may be trimmed with yellow, with sun dust grey or pink, dusty blue, with white, cherry red, etc. "Spiked" with color is the term.

Rustling rayon taffeta slips are one of the highlights of spring. Made with divided bra top, they are featured in bright greens, bright red, royal blue, wine, navy, tcarmen black and white.

O'Reesen, Paris designer, shortens skirt lengths of his new spring suits to nearly 14 inches from the floor, and lengthens jackets to wrist length.

Smartly Casual Garments Worn By Spectators

By LISBETH

TO BE properly dressed; not just smartly dressed or even becomingly dressed—but dressed for the occasion. That is the aim of women of good taste. They dress all their clothes in the colors and styles that become them, and then they take from these clothes the garments that are just right for the occasion on which they are to be worn.

Spectator sports clothes is a term to cover a multitude of occasions. You may be walking in the country and correctly wear this type of dress just as you may be viewing a horse race, dog race, a football game or tennis match. Casual clothes is another term that means much the same.

Two casual or spectator sports costumes are shown here. Left, is a green hand-knitted suit with fine lined wide check. With it is worn a simple felt hat with gros-grain banding and a gold wool bag is carried.

The smart tweed jacket, right, is in gray and yellow, worn over a green tweed skirt. The hat is green felt with leather trim.

Flannel Dresses and Suits Popular

Two-tone flannel dresses with jacket tops are among the most popular of spring costumes to date. Pin-striped flannel or pin-striped tweeds are absolutely tops.

The pin-striped flannel suit with slide-fastened jacket in navy, black, beige, luggage tan or slate is being chosen by discriminating women shoppers. The hair-line or pin stripes usually are in white, broader stripes, not so definite in line, are also liked in rough looking tweeds.

Black worsted suit suits in navy or black are other favorites at this stage of the season.

Bolero costumes in wool rayon crepe are very well liked and usually are shown with printed blouses.

GIRL STRUTS HER SELF AT SOUTHERN FIESTA

By Central Press

DOWN IN Brownsville, Tex., during the time of the Charro days, border fiesta, what is known in the north as the Big Apple is known as the Sarape Strut.

Miss Vivian Skipper is shown as she is about to demonstrate the gaits of the Mexi. "I did not appear surprised, but asked him calmly if he had fallen down. He said 'No, do you really want to know?' Then he told me, and added, 'But you might be sick.' He looks much worse'n I do.' He was so calm about it all, that I decided I talked to him about being diplomatic.

"Is it a good idea to let boys 'fight' at this age? Do they 'get it out of their systems'? Some say they do. Dear Mrs. Reed, I would like the opinion of an authority."

Would Not Disagree

Answer: You and I would not disagree widely on the fighting problem. I do not think I want young children to pick fights and we must teach them to control it. As a rule, the better play skills they have and the more useful things they learn to do with the substitution of other boys, the less occasion they will have to fight. A boy once told me that the most quarrelsome pugnacious pupil in his school was one who was not allowed to play on the classroom or at games on the playground.

Nevertheless, the boy or girl from six to ten or twelve who will not defend himself with his fists when attacked, is likely to be imposed on and to develop strong fears and to suffer deep humilities. As a result of these fears he or she is likely to avoid the group, to be quarrelsome with other children, even to be a bully. Such a child at this age ever to fight even in self-defense and you are almost sure to make a bully and suffering coward of him. I prefer to encourage him or her to use the fists in self-defense, hoping the resulting self-confidence will encourage a peaceful attitude.

But in this advice not anti-Christian? No. Jesus was speaking to adults when he talked of turning the other cheek. Why expect young children to have the philosophy of grownups?

Photographs of peace monuments, including the Statue of Liberty, and the Japanese temple on the wooded island in Jackson park, Chicago, were on exhibition at a meeting of the Women's International Union for Peace and Freedom in that city.

The photographs were assembled by Miss Zonia Baber, former associate professor of geography at the University of Chicago.

If you glance at hats you will notice that one enterprising model is the turban of Persian printed satin with a moderately high crown and two wide bands that cross and left loose to trail on the shoulder.

Handling Fighting Problems

"MY DEAR DR. MYERS: I am so very much in sympathy with the great work you do in your column. I was sorry to miss hearing you or Miss Myers when you appeared here personally, but had to attend the P.T.A. convention at St. Paul as president and one of the delegates of our local unit.

"Will you please tell me where I can get your pamphlet, 'Learning to Be Liked'? I am very much interested in your column today. I have stressed the idea of getting along with others frequently, but have wondered if all psychologists and educators would uphold me in this. I see today one must teach however, there are times a boy has to use his fists.

"I have a boy eight years old who is now at the kindergarten age. He is not very anxious to get into a fight, even though goaded by his playmates. He came home with a bruise over his right eye as the result of the fight. I did not appear surprised, but asked him calmly if he had fallen down. He said 'No, do you really want to know?' Then he told me, and added, 'But you might be sick. He looks much worse'n I do.' He was so calm about it all, that I decided I talked to him about being diplomatic.

Belleville Redmen Capture Group Title Defeating Queens 9-1 in Game, 12-4 on Round

Locals Give Finished Display in Downing Students

HINTON A STANDOUT

Jackson Brothers And Wilson Really Went to Town

An inspired band of Belleville pucksters wearing the conventional Redmen's uniforms soundly trounced the Queen's University "Seconds" and eliminated the latter from further O.H.A. competition at the Belleville squad swept to a 9 to 1 victory over the "Tri-color" before a small gallery of patrons at the Belleville Arena last night. The victory gave the Redmen a 12 to 4 victory over Queen's on the round while the victory advanced the Belleville junior line into the first round of the intermediate 'A' playdowns.

Eddie Thomas' charges were never seen at a better advantage this season and undoubtedly were responsible for the seven of the Redmen's nine tally counters. Still Jackson Brothers can split the scoring honors with three goals and an assist with brother Clayton Jackson getting the goal and three assists to his credit as the entire team really turned it on. Storms and Bentley accounted for the remaining two Belleville goals as Dunnibe kept the lone Queen's tally, when he broke away following a Belleville faceoff set in the second period and had only Hinton to beat.

Hinton Superb in Twine

Hinton, superb in the nets, was given fine protection by Bentley and Murphy, both of whom covered well, while the local starting line forwards marring their checks superbly throughout the entire struggle. The Redmen checked back exceptionally well and continued to thwart the visitors' attempts time before they emerged out of the centre ice zone. Storms showed some fine skilful handling, but McIntosh stood out for the Thomas defence while Dunnibe, Queen's junior, Holland, Donnibe, Campbell, Dixon and Baker looked the best for the visitors as Truman skated about all evening without the puck-chip on his shoulder and played rough and personal hockey throughout.

Despite the numerous and one-sided score the game had its moments and developed into a rather rough struggle as the pastime continued. The Redmen in splendid condition at the out-set but slowed up late in the third period, which added to the fracas. Queen's were penalized the usual trend the "students" played a stand-pat game while the Redmen matched them in speed and ultimately skated them into submission. The locals' combination plays were picturesque to watch and resulted in victory.

The Play

Exceptionally fast ice and a small play-off crowd welcomed the gladiators as Referee Bert Hedges set them on their way. The Redmen were the aggressors as Wilson and Jackson Bros. tested Dunnibe early. Changes of lines saw speed injected into the pastime. The Redmen were literally flying when R. Wilson went in on Trumbly, Will Jackson trailing to drive home the rebound and score. Belleville made the score 2 to 0 as the Jackson's teamed up with Clayton scoring only a few seconds later, Hinton rose brilliantly to beat Donnibe and Baker, as Queen's moved five forward. Feeling rose as Storms put on a sensational stick-handling act. On a rink-length combination Storms and boys clicked again as Will scored on Clay's pass. Truman then fanned badly on Wilson's sinsler to give the Redmen a four goal advantage at the end of the first period.

Hit From Behind

On the first Belleville rush in second period Truman hit Clayton Jackson over the boards from behind from behind. Truman was penalized. Belleville applied the pressure and Roy Wilson rifled in Murphy's blueline pass for a five goal advantage. Queen's moved five up and Hinton had a busy session, but the local goalie was standing out superbly. The local first line returned to have the Jackson's register again as Will Jackson poked in Clayton's rebound on a wing shot for number six. Hinton was little less than miraculous as he came out to beat Donnibe. Dixon was penalized for picking up the puck with his hand and as Belleville moved five up Donnibe broke away and beat Hinton for Queen's first goal. The Redmen carried the play and Roy Wilson scored on C. Jackson's pass from faceoff and the second period ended 7-1 for Belleville.

Put on Gong Act

Queen's moved five men forward in a last period attempt to overcome the locals, but the Redmen were checking briskly. McIntosh and Holland entered into a bumping bee and drew a penalty, Storms following for tripping and Hinton was given an exceptionally busy session. Storms came back in form to combine with McCreary and poke home Belleville's eighth. Truman was benched for tripping Storms. Belleville were protecting their advantage as they were coasting in. Bentley finished by scoring on a solo rush. Final score 9 to 1.

The line-ups:

Belleville—Hinton; defence, Bentley, Murphy; centre, C. Jackson; wings, R. Wilson, W. Jackson; subs, Storms, Beadish, Thomas, McGuire and McCreary.

Queen's—Donnibe; goal, Trumbly; defence, Truman, Dixon; centre, Holland; wings, Wilson, Campbell; subs, Donnibe, McLean, Baker, Carter and Nelson.

GIRL CAGERS OF "Y" DROP GAME TO COBOURG 23-12

Defeat of Locals Means Elimination For Group Honors

QUITE ROUGH

Players From Both Squads Banished For Fouling

Fading badly before the concerted last period attack, the Belleville "Y" girls dropped their scheduled O.G.A.A.A. fixture to their Cobourg rivals by a 23 to 12 score on the home floor last night. The defeat resulted in the elimination of the local quintette in girls' basketball circles, while the Cobourg victory virtually assured the visitors of the group honors.

The game was not won without a struggle however, as the homesters put up a torrid argument and utilizing roughness crept into the pastime resulting in players from both squads being banished for the remainder following the continued fouling. Thirteen fouls were called on the home team and ten on the visitors, as the squads battled strenuously for victory.

Coach Jack Dickens' local squad forged to an early game lead and were out in front by a 4-4 count at quarter time, Cobourg came back and were out in front by the score of 8 to 8 at the halfway mark, Cobourg increasing the locals badly in the second frame, however. All of the visitors' scoring was confined to their three regular forwards, J. Young, A. Dutton and L. Thompson while Jones and Ken Dickens led the local scoring, Ken Dickens' accurate shooting from the centre and side of the court, and Jones' speedy dashes during the game. Despite the reverse the locals showed plenty of spirit and drew the admiration of the few patrons as did the visitors' fine style of play.

PORT COLBORNE MEETS GOODYEARS IN THE FINALS

Sailors Eliminate Oshawa G-Men in Two Straight Games

MARLIES WIN

Flashy Junior Squad Blot Out Six Mile Run From Playoffs

(By The Canadian Press)

Port Colborne Sailors had their course set today for a meeting with Toronto Goodyears in the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior "A" group playoff finals.

The Tars rang "full speed ahead" last night and defeated Oshawa G-men 5-2 for their second straight win in a two-of-three game series for the right to meet Goodyears, leaders of the group schedule. Sailors won the series' first game 4-0 last Friday.

The Port Colborne crew, after finishing the League schedule in second place, gave a convincing show of speed and team play last night in eliminating the third-place G-men. They outscored the Oshawa Gang 2-1 in the first period, matched an Oshawa goal in the second and added two more in the final frame.

Lloyd Larocbe, scoring a goal in the first period and the one in the third, was Spearhead of the Port Colborne attack. Doug Redmond and Thompson got the other two. G-men goals were obtained by Roy Dorset and Eric Todd.

Marlboros Easy Winners

Flashy Toronto Marlboros members of the Junior A "Big Seven" group, didn't pull any punches in eliminating St. Michael's College Majors from the playoffs in their division. Marlboros trounced the latter 6-2 last night for a straight-game victory in their round-and-out series.

The win gave Marlboros the right to meet the winners of another round-final series between Young Rangers and Oshawa Generals. Young Rangers, already boasting a one-game advantage on Generals, gave the latter a 5-0 second game shut with Oshawa tonight.

Other O.H.A. playoff action last night saw Belleville advance a round in Intermediate A playdown by defeating Queen's University 9-4 and win a total-goal series 12-4; Stratford Majors win an Intermediate A group title by defeating Clinton Cockeys 7-1 for their second straight victory and Tavistock advance a round in Intermediate "B" playdowns by defeating Simcoe Redmen 4-2.

Petes Put Game Beyond Doubt in Last Ten Minutes

Peterborough, Ont., Feb. 23—(CP)—The Petes outplayed Trenton Flyers, 7 to 3 here last night to even up the O.H.A. Senior "B" group playoff series.

The Airmen had won the first of the three of five series 1-0 in Belleville last Friday and third game will be played there Friday.

The game was fast in the first period, but later became ragged as the icy became sticky. Most of the action and scoring were packed into the third period. The Petes had an edge in play in the first period. Flyers outplayed them in a slower second stanza and the Airmen nearly proved it up the final half of the third but the locals swarmed over them in the final ten minutes to pile up the count.

Roughness Threatens

While the game threatened to be rough, it was fairly clean with the locals drawing four of the eight penalties.

Main difference in the scoring of the teams seemed to be in the Petes having a strong defence and a better goalie. Both Trenton nets-ers had good going and coming, with neat passing, except when the puck stuck in the slush, and some hard close in spots.

But the Airmen looked wobbly without Lalonde on defence, and Gibson in goal muffled several. Harding starred throughout in the Petes' cage, and he had a strong defence in front of him most of the time, Brennan being especially effective.

The teams:

Flyers—Coal, Gibson, defence, Partridge and Cowley; centre, Lecompte; wings, Ernie McNeeley and Legris; alternates, Wigerth, Eric McNeeley, Halward, Elliott and Deming.

Petes—Coal—Harding; defence, Weir and Calladine; centre, Tompkins; wings, Starr and Vitarelli, alternates, McDougall, Bentley, Kingdon, Barnes and Williamson.

Referee— D. A. Houston of Toronto.

Summary:

First Period—

Petes, Starr, (Vitarelli-Brennan)	2.00
Petes, Vitarelli (Starr-Williamson)	18.00

Penalties— Brennan, Lecompte and Weir.

Third Period—

Petes, Weir (Calladine, Starr)	1.00
Flyers, Ernie McNeeley (Cowley)	2.00
Petes, Starr (Tompkins)	2.30
Petes, Partridge	6.00
Flyers, Lecompte (Ernie McNeeley)	7.00
Petes, Kingdon (Tompkins)	13.00
Petes, Brennan (Kingdon)	12.30
Petes, Barnes	15.00

Penalties—Legris and Weir.

LITTLE BALLYHOO PRECEEDS BOUT

Joe Louis Defends His Title in Madison Square Garden Tonight

(By Gayle Talbot)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Anything or practically nothing, can happen in Madison Square Garden tonight, when Joe Louis exposes his heavyweight title for a maximum of 15 rounds against Natie Mann, a rugged, resolute young fighter from Connecticut.

Mann, a good right-hand punch-er, might possibly lay one on the big negro's chin and pick up the marbles. But the smart money, the wagers is about 3 to 1 that the affair will run true to form, that Louis either will knock Natie kicking or slice him up like a Virginia ham.

With the house scaled from a $16.50 top, prospects were for a near-sellout with gross receipts of better than $100,000. Louis always draws 'em, and 4,000 were reported en route from New Haven to watch Mann.

Little Ballyhoo

There has been little ballyhoo, partly because of a brooding uncertainty in the minds of the fight writers. The story first went around that Louis would "toss" his champlonship to Mann for a time, thus relieving himself of the necessity of fighting Max Schmeling next June. But this was decided upon that that wouldn't make sense, because who'd promote the Mann fight when a $1,000,000 gate on the window?

The best belief now is that they are not at it dead on the level, and that if Mann does score an improbable victory he will have to do it the hard way. He looks like a pretty tough one for Louis to be taking on this close to the Schmeling engagement, but Joe's managers have been pointing for this and he did not want a set-up.

Mann, who is about three inches under the Bomber's six feet, two inches and weighs a dozen pounds less, hasn't dropped a fight in the last 18 months, his most notable win in that period having been a 10-round decision over Bob Pastor.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Eddie Thomas' Redmen were what is generally termed as "hot" last night, they just couldn't do anything wrong or their combination plays were clicking perfectly all evening. On the other hand the locals were playing a superb style of defence and literally checking the Queen s pucksters in their tracks.

As for speed the Belleville starting line really turned it on and actually outstrated the "students" when they hustled back during the dying moments to prevent their local net from being the hard-earned victory. Each of the locals' starting front line scored a four scoring points, Will Jackson and Wilson getting three goals and an assist while Clayt Jackson scored once, but assisted on three occasions. Profitic combination, the cubbies displayed last evening is hard to beat and they actually a good thing for either Peterboro or the Airport that they have not racked up against them, as the result would have been about the same, I'm gardion.

It seems the Jackson boys have set themselves a pace that Bill and Mike, Will Jackson is "Ike" and brother Clayt is "Mike". Of course the only call these names on the ice, we hear.

The orchids of the night went to Ab Hinton in the best style he was really sensational as he was given outstanding protection by Reds Bentley and Murphy, while the forwards checked back in big league style. As a matter of fact the Red Hinton checked the "students" dizzy and broke up their plays before they even got started, so fast were the Redmen travelling. McBrath and McCrary proved most adequate substitutes, the latter really standing out. The victory advances the Redmen into the final round of intermediate "A" playdowns, versus the winner of the Hinton-Kingston series.

When the "students" found the Redmen were matching and even beating them at their own game in turn, it did not rub any too well. Truman, their mammoth defenceman, really lost his head and started off his pugnacious night's work by tripping Storms, who was on a rush-ing-in with his stick. As a matter of fact, during the moments Referee Hedges actually having to check the boys up abruptly in the penalty stanzas to prevent fights, despite the score it was really a fast, thrilling game with the locals never relinquishing, despite the fact the Redmen had checked hockey and were tops throughout.

Trailing 2 to 0 to open the third stanza, the Queen's "Students" took it 4 to 3 at one point in the final stanza last night, but then things began to click and the final count was 7 to 3. Harding, in the Petes net, was simply the bright spot of the pastime and stood between the Airmen and a possible victory with his sensational saves, a la Hinton, a supposer. At all events he looked like the real thing and the game was of the rough and tumble type with players tripping and the contestants being banished to the fuzzy squad's off at times. Ernie McNeeley, Partridge and Lecompte were the best for the Flyers, with McNeeley adding an assist, while the Petes scoring honors were divided among five men, Starr getting the "hat-trick" for the Petes on soft, slow ice, the scorer they can depend on for first-period Petes. Of cou'rse- that's only our own contention and if future Petes-Flyer games are played on hard fast ice and the Flyers win, well, we've left holding the well known bag, which wouldn't be the first time, however, 'Tis only a sug. Jo.

We understand the Petes will be accompanied by a special train and 300 rooting hootin' fans for Friday's third and most important game, which should be a honey.

We witnessed a recent rehearsal of the Quinte Club's forthcoming, Winter Ice Show and they really get something. To present an entire programme of fancy figure skating is no mean effort, but the local 'jay birdes' will surprise many with their routines, ballets, solos and duets. The latest Winter Ice Show is the result of individual effort towards a united project, which each and every member of the club has endeavored to assist to the utmost. Undoubtedly Quinte Skating Club executive has created two outstanding Canadian fancy skaters from a well known Canadian skating club, which name will be withheld for publication tomorrow, we were assured. The return of Mrs. Blake Wesse, (nee Olivia Davies), whose popularity was always acknowledged in skating circles adds to the show, while we understand Mrs. Clare Hurley's free style figure skating endeavors have increased considerably. The show is in December sight.

Remember? Way back when hockey players dressed at home and walked through town, the rule, so to-mire, on the day of the game was to wear your warmest kelleys, were worn to sport events?

The Belleville "Y" girls passed out of the I.O.A.A.A. picture last night, but we can assure the "Y" girls, they have something and will ultimately command capacity patronage.

Cobourg fleeced a smart team, but their style of play will be confined solely to their forwards, although they are capable of playing remarkably well. Two of the players were handicapped for reeling and the pastime had its moments. Betty Young and MacLean and the Melchior sisters accounted for the locals' scoring, while J. Young, starred the locals for the winners with ten big points followed by L. Thompson with 5 to her credit. The Belleville girls have laid a fine foundation for the O.A.B.A. basketball in Belleville for the future and the current year's team are showing signs of a great future. Congratulations to the girls and Coach Dickens.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Cowley of Boston and George Mantha of Canadiens improved their standings in the Big Seven last night with important goals in National Hockey League victories. Toronto Thompson of Chicago hurdled into a sixth-place tie with Paul Haynes of Canadiens with two goals and an assist as Hawks defeated Maroons 6-5. Gordon Drillon of Toronto tops the league with 42 points.

BLACK HAWKS

The second Canadian epidemic of flu-like starting away back in the fall when Mondou suffered the leg fracture, has not yet begun to hit until the playoffs. But if the Frenchmen win at home against Boston tomorrow they'll be only four points behind with ten games to go.

Canadiens were enabled to gain by Bruins' 3-2 victory over the Maple Leafs in Boston, and the combination of results left Rangers nine points back of the Leafs, occupying Bruins in the American Division. Chicago Black Hawks entered their grip on the third and last playoff place in the six group by defeating the lowly Maroons 6-3 in Montreal.

Will Cude, who had to take a spell on the sidelines in mid-season because of a broken nose, shared honors with Desilets at New York by allowing Rangers to score only on a breakaway. George Mantha, who got the first Canadien goal unassisted, and Pit Lepine and Alex Joliat, who aided Desilets, all have also laid up at one time or another.

Penalty Helps

Mantha rapped in a backhand shot in the first six minutes while Rangers were short handed and there was no further scoring until Bryan Hextall broke with Phil Watson in the third and fired the leveler while Rangers were short a man again. Desilets winged his shot from the right boards with the side at full strength.

Armand Raymond, brought up from Montreal's amateur ranks, gave a steady display in his debut on the Canadien defence.

Despite its loss, Toronto clinched a playoff place through Maroons' defeat, which left them 22 points behind the Leafs with ten games to play. But losing did the Leafs' playoff prospects no good, for they have but five games in six to Bruins, when they expect to meet in League finals if Canadiens don't catch up.

A capacity crowd of 18,000 saw Boston strike terror in the second period. Cooney Weiland scored first on a passing exchange with Lorry Goldsworthy and Bill Cowley bettered his position among the League's leading scorers with an unassisted goal two minutes later. Thus Thompson's shutout marked the second straight time the Leafs have been blanked—and they always had counted on New York Americans beat them 4-0 Saturday.

Pal Thompson is the brother of Thompson's brother, Paul, was the hero of Chicago's win. In the first period he had the score at 1-1 and with less than two minutes to play he broke away for the goal that gave the Hawks victory in the face of a late Maroon bid.

The teams were tied 1-1 at the end of the first, Thompson's goal making up for one by Dave Outhier. They were still level at the end of the second after scores by Russ Blinco of Marconi, Johnny Gottselig and Cully Dahlstrom of Chicago and Allan Shields of Maroons.

The Hawks went ahead to stay early in the third on goals by Doc Romnes and Alex Levinsky. As the game entered its last two minutes Jimmy Ward cut the margin to 5-4 but Thompson came through then with his second score and Earl Robinson's counter in the last minute only narrowed the gap. Bill Beveridge was pulled from the Maroon goal in the dying seconds but a six-man attack was pushed into the corners by Chicago's big defence.

Forced From Home

Several families in the adjoining Reid block were forced from their homes by dense smoke two hours after the fire was discovered. At least four persons received hospital treatment for burns and injuries suffered when plate glass windows at the front of the establishment were blown out. Patrons of the crowded Palace Theatre made their way to the street without panic.

Shortly after the blaze, most spectacular in the history of Timmins, there came a stream of water played on the hot windows caused an explosion that showered the dense crowd in the street with shattered glass. Arthur Plimoor, whose eyebrows were singed, said he was scorched, said "we seemed to be enveloped in flame".

Maurice Bucovetsky, brother of the store proprietor, stood on the sidewalks as the windows blew out. He suffered cuts on the face and hands and minor burns. A youth, Lawrence Dolan, was one of four persons who were treated at St. Mary's hospital. He suffered a bad burned arm and cuts about the face from flying glass.

Fire Proof Walls Aid

The building's fire-proof walls and absence of wind were believed to have prevented spread of the flames to other stores in the block, located on Third Avenue at Pine Street. Most of the town's inhabitants watched the blaze and hundreds, disregarding flying embers, stood upon nearby roofs.

No accurate estimate of the loss was made immediately. Store officials said the spring stock of goods had just arrived for distribution to other Bucovetsky stores in Northern districts and with the building would be a total loss. It was believed the fire started in the basement and quickly ate its way through the floor and walls.

Crowd Scrambles to Safety

When the windows blew out the crowd scrambled madly for safety. Many threw themselves upon the ground to escape the fierce blast of flame. "Women screamed, men shouted hoarsely and everyone seemed to be trying to get away from the vicinity all at once," said Plimoore. "I don't remember anything very clearly."

For two hours families in the Reid block refused to leave their apartments though the fire seemed momentarily about to break through the fire lines and set other buildings ablaze. A short time before it was put under control they were forced to leave when smoke made it impossible to remain indoors.

Evacuation Methodical

But the evacuation was methodical. Householders packed their personal effects into trunks and suitcase and laid them upon the sidewalk. Moving vans drove up and took the luggage to an hotel where the fleeing householders spent the night after remaining on the scene until the fire was got under control.

Occupants of apartments and offices on the second floor of the two-storey departmental store lost many possessions. Earl Revered, an official, who lived in one of the suites, escaped with only the clothes he wore. So rapidly did the flames spread that Dr. Samuel Jesel, surgeon, whose office and living quarters were on the same floor, had no time to change his surgical jacket.

LIEUTENANT

Will Wear Windsor Attire

Mr. Matthews, who appeared in December garbed in morning attire, will wear today the blue and gold Windsor uniform that formed a traditional bit of color on previous opening days. He will have a travelling military escort, be greeted with a 19-gun salute and inspect a guard of honor on his arrival. These features were absent at the special session called to buttress the Succession Duty Act.

Members will retain their seats on the floor of the House instead of giving way to brilliantly gowned women as was the case when the government met the legislature for the first time in 1935. The Speaker's reception, long a feature until its cancellation by Premier Hepburn, will not be renewed.

Escorted by Dragoons

A detachment of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, commanded by Capt. W. E. Gillespie, will escort Mr. and Mrs. Matthews from their home to the legislative buildings. The [illegible] artillery will supply the firing party, and the guard of honor will be commanded by Lieut. J. H. W. T. Pope.

Today may be the last occasion for the Vice-Regal display. Announcing on Monday there would be a 19-gun salute "at the request" of the Lieutenant-Governor, Mr. Hepburn also agreed this would be the last time for such formality.

The House will hear how a great professional athlete views the political scene when Lionel Conacher (Lib., Toronto Stracondale) moves the address in reply tomorrow. Former great defence player of Montreal Maroons of the National Hockey League, his first jump into politics was successful when he won the riding from A. R. Nesbitt, Conservative, last Oct. 6. Another new member, Romeo Begin (Lib., Russell) will second the address.

Two Vacancies in House

There are two vacancies in the 90-member House—Hamilton East, due to the death of Milton McVicar, and Hamilton Centre, where W. F. Schwenger, Liberal, was appointed a County Judge.

Premier Hepburn counts a force of straight Liberals, one Independent Liberal, Labor Minister MacBride and enjoys the support of four Labor-Progressives. Facing him is the 21-man Conservative opposition led by Leopold Macauley a member for York South, chosen House leader after Hon. Earl Rowe was defeated in the general election. Mr. Rowe directs the party from his House of Commons seat at Ottawa. Only third-party member is Farquhar Oliver, United Farmers of Ontario representative from Grey South.

NORTH CREATES

Natural Resources

He said that while Northern Ontario in the last 10 years had produced $2,500,000,000 in wealth in minerals, lumber and newsprint pulpwood, the North did not compete in any way with Southern Ontario factories. Out of every Northern dollar, 90 cents went south for everything from "socks to saucepans."

Even the Old Ontario farmer had a big stake in the north, "I heard at a Soo Board of Trade meeting that the north doesn't grow more than a tenth of food," Mr. Curran said.

"The chief way to help us and yourselves is to build us necessary road. By the end of the year we are expecting about 375 of the 530 miles from Toronto to the Soo to be paved, and it shouldn't take more than three or four years to finish the job".

Necessity of Highways

He said Sault Ste. Marie was the only place for 800 miles along the international border where a car could enter Canada. He suggested that instead of United States tourists entering the country at Detroit and leaving at Buffalo they be sent north.

"Three United States national highways brought people to the doors of the Soo, he said, and many of them entered Canada to visit Southern Ontario.

Mr. Curran said the trans-Canada highway is now built 70 miles north of the Soo along the shore of Lake Superior. He said this road would open a scenic wonderland in addition to a native copper region, gold fields and an iron mining area.

Roads were needed to develop Ontario's "treasure house" in the north, he said.

CLAIM POWERS

Opposition leader T. D. Bouchard promised "we will oppose again this law" and that approval would be accorded only on division. In that event, Premier Maurice Duplessis was counting on a Major Union National majority to push the enactment through.

May be Amend or Revoke

One section of the amending bill authorizes the government to amend or revoke as seen necessary any collective agreement, and during its discussion Bouchard charged the government sought "absolute rule" in the matter of wages.

Premier Duplessis replied the provincial government merely wanted power to handle "any situation at any time regarding collective agreements." Under present wage laws, he said, collective agreements creating industries, easily rescinded, could not be changed without considerable delay.

The amendment to the act respecting workmen's wages empowered the government to revoke, amend or throw out any agreement, the Premier added, whereas in the past it was impossible to make changes in a wage decree no matter how slight were facts discovered in its operation.

MIGHTY HUNTER
"ADMIRAL" JIM (The She Bloom) MORAN, looked out over the Pacific and reported it full of water but empty of whales. The Moran expedition, of which the admiral is the only member, flew to San Francisco when he heard whales were as common as minnows in San Francisco Bay, but his only catch was a dead one presented him by the mayor. The admiral, shown above, in his Los Angeles, Calif., suite is practising in his bathtub before he starts whaling in Lake Tahoe, Calif. The big idea is to find all the places where there are no whales and then he'll know where they really are.

Madoc

Madoc, Feb. 23—On Thursday, Feb. 17, despite the unfavorable weather conditions, a very successful mother and daughter banquet was held in Trinity United Church, Madoc, by the girls of the G.O.I.T. Between fifty and sixty were present. The tables were attractively decorated in red and white, with candles, heart-shaped doilies, and red cupids place-cards and programs carried out in keeping with St. Valentine's Day.

A short sing-song led by Mrs. C. Whytock at the piano began the program. This was followed by a toast to "The King" proposed by the toast-mistress, Thelma Foster, president of the group. Betty Phillips proposed a toast to the church which was responded to by the Rev. T. E. Kennedy. "Our Mothers" was the next proposed by Madeline Rowe with Mrs. George White responding on behalf of the mothers present. Mrs. Whytock led the devotion and love and understanding they receive in their homes and urging them to be true to the true ideals instilled in them by their mothers.

Doris Broad gave a reading, "The Innkeeper's Wife", which all enjoyed.

A toast to the C.G.I.T. group outlining its purpose in enlarging and enriching the lives of the girls, Mrs. Newell Broad and responded to by Barbara Phillips.

Barbara Phillips contributed a solo accompanied by her sister Betty who also played an instrumental number on her guitar.

The guest speaker of the evening, Miss Robina Templeton of Belleville was introduced by Thelma Foster and all listened with deep interest to the splendid address which followed. Miss Templeton spoke on the slogan, "We, small as the Group, large as the world". Sadie Parks moved a vote of thanks to Miss Templeton for her inspiring address, seconded by Margaret White and followed by a hearty handclap. Miss Thelma Foster also tendered a vote of thanks to those who took part in the program and to the ladies of Trinity United Church Missionary Society for serving and assisting so well with the banquet. The singing of Taps brought the evening to a close.

Miss Wood is spending a few days visiting friends in Belleville.

Misses Jean Whytock and Phyllis Tanner spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. C. Tweed.

The many friends of Mrs. George Huffman will regret to learn that she had the misfortune to break her right arm in two places by slipping on the ice near her home in Peterboro.

Mr. Harry McGuire of Belleville spent Sunday in Madoc.

ROGERS WARNS

conform with municipal revenues and the onus for such action will be placed at the door of the Dominion governments."

Refusal Reiterated

The Minister reiterated his refusal of Feb. 15 to increase the Ontario grant of $465,000 monthly for the last three months of the fiscal year.

It was recalled new agreements governing relief-in-aid were sent to the Provinces previously and that many of the Provinces have not returned them.

The Minister's statement drew attention to an improved employment situation and said because Dominion was under a federal constitution the government must exercise responsibility in making grants and declared the administration had no blank cheque for such grants.

$19,500,000 For Grants

Parliament voted $19,500,000 for grants during the current fiscal year, he said, and the government had loaned to aliens the amount fairly.

One Province, he said without naming it, now sought an immediate increase in its grants, making the demand despite the fact it "is in an excellent position financially and quite able to assist the needy municipalities."

Must Not Forget West

He declared: "The cry is raised the Dominion government is discriminating against the east to favor the west. The fact that conditions due to drought in the west constitute a national emergency, so agreed by all parties, is apparently forgotten. Also it is forgotten that a prosperous west means more prosperity for the east, that the western farmers buy from the eastern manufacturers.

"Apparently it is not clearly understood that if one province receives more than its share another will receive less when a given amount is to be distributed."

Canadian Arrested by Customs on Way to Give Transfusion to Sister

FOOD RUSHED BY 'PLANE TO 400 SNOWBOUND IN CAL. MOUNTAINS
When news seeped out from Glenbrook, Lake Tahoe district, Cal., that more than 400 souls were cut off from supplies by huge snowdrifts and were desperately in need of fresh supplies, food was rushed to them from San Francisco by aeroplane. The picture at (top left) shows the loading of more than 800 pounds of fresh provisions aboard one of the airliners and (below left) a pilot is making a delivery to H. G. Andrew is holding open the aeroplane's door while Monte Mountion crouches to toss out a crate of food. (Right), snow-bound residents are shown setting out on snowshoes to retrieve the rations and have tramped out a big O.K. in the snow to show they have been located.

DEMAND BIGGER AND BETTER WARS AS PEACE PROPAGANDA
Turning to ridicule as a means of protesting against the machinations of would-be war-makers, students from Emory University at Atlanta, Ga., founded the "Institute of International Ill-will" and staged a parade through the university campus proclaiming by voice and motor "We Want War". A coffin-like wagon was their main advertising unit and here it is with the officers of the organization in charge. Left to right they are Jack Tuteur, Buddy Atkinson and Grady Clay, Jr., all university students.

How did I know it hadn't been chucked over there by mistake, and anyway it wouldn't have been fair to my family to give myself indigestion by swallowing a cup of coffee without reading matter, pop said, without meaning to be funny. As a matter of fact I meant to drop it back on their front steps after breakfast on my way out, but the man of the house was just coming out the front door so something seemed to restrain me, he said.

The result being that ma threw 2 cents in the next store vestibule.

Pop was starting to look at the paper after supper and ma said, Willyum, deliver me from a sicspicious woman.

Deliver me from all sicspicious women, pop said, and ma said, That new Mrs. Snigerspky next store has all the earmarks. I got into a little conversation with her on the front steps this mornin, and it seemed like was in a high state of excitement over the fact that her newspaper hadn't been left at the front door as usual this morning, and really, Willyum, I mean really, to judge by her actions you would've seemed to think that somebody had couldn't' gone to the trouble to steal her old paper, ma said.

Preposterous, pop said, and ma said, Isn't it just too unheard of, and the cream of the pudding is still to come, I mean if I'd been a more sensitive person I'd of sworn she had the Mrs. that I had taken her paper myself, I mean really, Willyum, people are suspicious and that ought to have their face smacked just on genrel principals.

Absitutely, by gollies it would serve a woman like that rite if she did up and taken her paper quite accidently, I mean for instants supposing my paper hadn't been on the breakfist table so I went to the front door and the only sign of a paper was one on the next store steps, pop said, and ma said, Willyum Potts you didn't, you

TORONTO

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP)—Although the action on Toronto Exchange continued active in the secondary and junior golds today, the best gains appeared in the base metal stocks in the first three hours of trading. Turnover was fairly heavy with about 300,000 shares changing hands.

Walkers common firmed about ¼ and the steels, utilities, foods, senior oils and papers all displayed a firm, rising tendency. Practically all base metals advanced and features of the trade in the golds were Hard Rock, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Gunnar and Kerr-Addison.

Western oils registered substantial gains around mid-day but some of the advance was profit-taker. Royalite was up 1¼ at 47.

WALL STREET

New York, Feb. 22 (AP)—Buying forces boosted stock market leaders today as tension in Europe lessened through signing of a new trade agreement with Italy. Near the fourth hour many shares had added fractions to two points or more and prices were near their best for the day.

Steel, farm implement, rubber and copper issues were favored. Rails and utilities were able to add fractions only in most cases.

International Nickel was in front in a general advance of Canadian issues. Dominion Power was up more than a point and smaller gains included Canadian Pacific, Dome, McIntyre Porcupine and Lake Shore. Canadian funds slipped 30 1-16 of a cent to 100.31 1-16.

Prominent in the extension of Monday's rally were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, American Smelting, International Nickel, J. I. Case, International Harvester and American Can.

MARKET COMMENT

The local market was without the influence of New York yesterday, stock exchanges across the line being closed in honour of Washington's birthday. The list as a whole held steady although no wide changes were recorded. The metal stocks are being recommended in several quarters and the reaction of these securities has been most encouraging.

Trends appear to be moving in a direction which dictates against liquidation of the securities of advantageously situated companies. Developments between now and around the middle of March should furnish clues to the advisability of resumption of broader purchasing policies.

Sisco

The ticker has been attempting to forecast for several weeks that all was not well with the Sisco Gold Mines. The stock is quoted at $3.75 against a high for the year of $4.40.

Those who have held for the shares is probably discounting the fact that the Ore Reserves are down in grade to about $11.00 from $13.50. This is an indication that most of the richer ore has been used.

The forthcoming annual meeting will be largely watched if the reports on the Street are correct.

CAPPS GOLD MINE - POURS FIRST BRICK

Mine Manager States There is Two Years' Ore Ahead

Charlotte, North Carolina, Feb. 22.—(CP)—Cast, in Canadian money, Capps Gold Mine has joined the ranks of the producers, pouring the first gold brick at the property on Saturday and having an approximate value of $5,700, stated a despatch to the Toronto Star.

Hugh Jardine, manager of the Capps operation here, saw his many months of work come to a successful production when a party of brokers and financial men from Toronto, as well as a group of American brokers, attended the pouring.

Some $23,803 went into the circuit of the mill and filled the cracks and corners, since milling operation began on January 17. In the period from January 17, the average tailings loss amounted to 59 cents with the average recovery showing at $11.22 per ton. The concentration, according to Mr. Jardine, can be improved. Mill heads for the last two days showed at better than $10, while a good part of the development ore has not yet brought the circuit in the early stages.

The property is developed by two main shafts, the No. 5, an incline shaft and the No. 3, a vertical shaft. The No. 5 shaft ores, where most of the current ore is being drawn, has been sunk to a depth of 450 feet. The No. 2 shaft, the vertical shaft, has been sunk to 180 feet.

As explained by Mr. Jardine, the 250-foot level in the No. 5 shaft area has been opened up for 190 feet, the ore showing an average of 12 feet of solid drift width. The 310-foot level, which when figured with the incline shaft gives a vertical depth of approximately 90 feet from the previous level, is showing 200 feet in drifting at an angle of 36 degrees.

The vein has been opened for a length of 500 feet, the south drift showing ore of $11.22 a ton for a length of approximately eight feet wide. In the north drift a shoot has been opened for 75 feet, showing $10 ore over a width of six feet with the face in ore.

The bottom level of this shaft, at 370 feet on the incline, has been opened for a length of 100 feet, the length of 100 feet, with 50 per cent. of the face showing ore in ore. To raise here, through to the 310-foot level, was showing in good ore. In the No. 2 shaft, at the 180-foot level the last face showed $24 over 4 1-2 feet.

Development of the Capps vein, by the No. 2 or vertical shaft, has thus proved the vein to be dipping at an angle of between 30 and 35 degrees. On the 180-foot level, at 60 feet, a cut of 185 feet ratios have been put through. At the 250-foot or 85-foot level, the ore has averaged $17 over five feet for 50 feet in the raise.

The company has a drift ore face ahead of them at the initial mill rate of 100 tons daily, according to Mr. Jardine. He figures the ore to grade between $10 and $13 a ton and together with a conservative figure of $4.50 per ton. With the mill capacity of 200 tons per day and two agitators, for cost of $15,000 the company would be able to raise the milling capacity to 150 tons or better.

Capt. Ben Bohen Falls Thru Ice Of Trent River

Cries For Assistance Attract Attention of Men Working Nearby

Trenton, Feb. 23.—(Special)—Captain Ben Bohen, 74, narrowly escaped death by drowning this morning at eleven o'clock when he fell into a hole while walking across the ice of the Trent River. He was hobbling across the river on foot, water by gripping the jagged edge of the ice when his cries attracted the attention of two men who at the time were working along the riverside. Lorne Beck was the first to reach his side and was assisted by Captain Napoleon Miron. Alex. Sherrard, Harry Sims and Harry Way, in bringing him to safety. He was taken to his home and no ill effects are expected from his experience. Men have been placed along the riverbank to warn children and others of the dangers of continuing to cross the ice as they have been doing.

TEXT OF SPEECH

on the part of Ontario farmers to keep abreast of modern conditions. In this connection, I commend to your earnest consideration the proposed legislation for compulsory pasteurization of milk, which should receive support from all interested in preserving the health of our citizens and combatting the ravages of tuberculosis, and other diseases which may be carried by milk.

We spend millions of dollars annually for health purposes, but the protection afforded is incalculable with respect to human happiness and economic welfare. The health program of the government included the establishment recently of two new tuberculosis clinics at Timmins and Port William. During 1937, Ontario established its portable equipment of poliomyelitis, and my ministers heed it with all possible means at their disposal, providing serum, establishing orthopaedic units and supplying appliances to reduce the after effects.

Health Clinics.

Accurate statistical information now at hand, we consider overcrowding cases treated at the seven clinics in the government-run, Addiction hospital accommodation for mental patients will be provided through new structures at St. Thomas, Brampton, Port Arthur and Toronto.

During recent years, a decided change has been apparent in the problems connected with prison administration. Prisoners now committed to the reformatories, industrial farms and other penal institutions of the province are more and more useful and irresponsible than formerly.

To cope adequately with this situation, staffs have been reorganized and strengthened.

Correctional Work.

To co-ordinate correctional work, the training schools and industrial schools have been placed under the jurisdiction of the provincial secretary.

Important additional facilities and equipment are being provided for both juvenile and adult delinquents. A policy of careful segregation is being followed, and modern and successful methods of classification and training are being applied with the assistance and co-operation of the Department of Health, Public Welfare and Education, and many welfare and child-aid organizations.

Building At Burwash.

A very extensive and adequate building program is under way at Burwash Industrial Farm, construction and Ontario's advanced position in prison reform is being well maintained.

With the assumption by the province of the municipalities' share of old age pensions and mothers' allowances, a complete reorganization of these services, including the appointment of additional investigators, has been established and is operating throughout the province to assist in the administration of relief and make another important development during the past year has been the inauguration of a system of old age pensions.

New Hydro Agreements.

New agreements between the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, the Canada Cement Power Company, the Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company, the Macassa Mines Limited, the Consumers' Gas Company and the Gatineau Power Company have been negotiated and arrangements made for $12.50 per horsepower and postponing over a considerable period the question of taking the power involved. These agreements will maintain for some time an adequate reserve for the Niagara and Eastern Ontario districts and will end the long-standing disputes with these companies and thus avoid further litigation and arbitration.

The total saving in the cost of power provided for in the several agreements entered into during the year, compared with the terms of the old agreements, will amount to more than $92,000,000.

Rural Electric Services.

During the year over 13,000 applications were received for rural electric service. The construction of 2,000 miles of rural lines at a cost of $5,000,000 was undertaken in order to serve these applications. Pole line connections amounting to approximately $2,185,000 per annum will have been made on the actual consumers. In the rural power districts 1,000 farms will be served during the present year, or 155,582 horsepower, of which 100,000 horsepower was in the Niagara system.

Hydro Properties.

The capital expenditure for the year 1938 will be $12,000,000. The extension of Hydro properties, amounting to $8,245,000.

The subject of major importance, namely, the diversion of the waters of Lake of the Woods and Rainy Lake into Lake Superior, has been closely studied during the past year, and while the question involves international treaties, the proposal has been submitted to the Dominion government for discussion with Washington. The benefits from this undertaking would be three-fold: large areas of timber inaccessible at present, would be opened up; additional and necessary Hydro power would be made available; and the water level of the Great Lakes would be increased with consequent benefit to shipping.

Development of Mining.

The development of our mining industry gives us cause for considerable satisfaction. New mining fields are being located, and new mines opened up. As is known, our principal products are gold, nickel, copper, platinum and natural gas.

Each one of these reached, in 1937 the highest point of production yet achieved, both in quantity and value. The number of employees has increased and new towns are taking their place. Large markets are thus being created for the farm products and manufactures of older Ontario.

In this connection, the earnings of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway continue to reflect the developments of the area it serves, and will show an increase of 19 per cent over the previous year.

Re-allocation of Limits.

Under the Forest Resources Regulation Act, the government has continued its policy of re-allocating timber limits, hitherto unproductive, with the result that new plants are being established and work provided for thousands of men. Steps were taken, however, to check the over-production of newsprint which has been a disturbing factor in the past.

Modernization of highways in the Province continued during 1937, and province continued during the past season and, in co-operation with the Dominion government, the construction of roads into the newer mining districts proceeded rapidly. Registration of passenger and commercial vehicles in the Province of Ontario always showed an increase last year of approximately six per cent. Despite this, the toll of fatal accidents, more extended use was made, by the public, of the motor car notwithstanding the privilege of driving from those convicted of serious offences.

The motorcycle patrol will also be increased.

Changes in Education.

During the past year, extensive changes have been made in the courses of study followed by pupils in the grades of the public and separate schools, and in the first year of the Collegiate Institutes and the Province. These changes should bring about a definite improvement in the education of our children. The government intends to effect a further revision of the courses of study in all the grades of both the elementary and secondary schools, which should result in greater practical benefit to the boys and girls of the pupils who receive no instruction beyond the secondary schools.

Ministry of Labor.

Since the last legislature, a fulltime Minister of Labor has been appointed and the Labor Relations Board has been constituted. The latter board is largely concerned with the administration of the Minimum Wage Act, the Apprenticeship Act, and the Industrial Standards Act. A chief conciliation officer has also been appointed and his principal duty is the negotiation of settlement of industrial disputes.

During the coming year the Department of Public Works will undertake its study of flood control and water conservation. A bill will be introduced incorporating the Grand River Conservation Commission, and a survey is being made of the Thames River to determine what measures can be taken to prevent or mitigate floods.

Social Legislation.

The jurisdiction of the province with respect to certain social legislation having been questioned, a reference on these acts has been made to the Supreme Court of Canada and if amendments are deemed necessary, they will be presented for your consideration.

The Ontario Securities Commission has continued its valuable work of protecting the investing public against sales of fraudulent securities and has by providing for the incorporation of small companies for the initial exploration of mineral claims, given encouragement to mining development.

Revision and consolidation of the Statutes has been completed and the revised statutes have been proclaimed and are now effective.

Amendments Proposed.

You will be asked to consider certain amendments to modify the provisions of the Mortgagors and Purchasers' Relief Act. Minor amendments to the Registry Act, Conditional Sales Act, Sheriffs' Act, Execution Act, Assignments Act, Magistrates' Act, Judicature Act, Game and Fisheries Act, Industrial Standards Act and Public Works Act will be submitted to you.

In conclusion, I trust that under the guidance of Almighty God your labors will be fruitful and will enhance the public welfare.

ACCORD WITH ITALY

Report Says Mussolini is Anxious to Reduce Russian Influence

London, Feb. 24—(CP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain's "realistic program for bargaining with the Fascist powers for the peace of Europe today was reported advanced by agreement acceptance of the British German acceptance of the British plan for withdrawal of "volunteers" from the Spanish civil war.

Italy's acceptance in principle already has been indicated, leaving the way for Anglo-Italian friendship talks to open shortly in Rome.

Dr. Ernst Woermann, German Charge D'Affaires, visited the Earl of Plymouth, British Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and informed sources said he agreed to the British "volunteer" proposals.

One Step Behind Il Duce

This would indicate that Chancellor Hitler is but one step behind Premier Mussolini in conciliatory gestures toward the British government from whom Anthony Eden, whose both disliked, has withdrawn as Foreign Secretary.

Further Anglo-German negotiations are expected when Joachim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's new foreign Minister and retiring Ambassador to London, returns here to take formal office.

New Attacks on Peller

Meanwhile opponents of the government's changed foreign policy prepared new attacks. The House of Lords was to debate foreign affairs, with Labor peers attacking the government. The opposition press urged that the British Broadcasting Corporation put on the air the speech Mr. Eden is to make to his constituents.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Sun-bails! We have various kinds of snowballs used by the wind which can easily be imagined. Small snowballs caused by the sun are less plausible. It appears that after a prolonged cold spell, the sun shining on a slope of snow melts some of surface grains of snow. This melting does the particles very deeply due to the cold snow and the cold, inclined insulation. The latter prevents snow grains become dense and set into solid ice more snow as they go. A nice, smooth, unhindered slope of snow is by this action left scarred by the trails of hundreds of "snowballs. When sun-balls coure the snow is then in a dangerous condition for avalanches.

Backward Writing With Left Hand Natural to Girl

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 24—(CP)—Two-year-old Agnes Strasser, Windsor, is just about the tops when it comes to writing. It's more natural for her to write backwards with her left hand than normally with her right—and she does both.

"Agnes' sight is perfectly normal and she doesn't see thing in reverse," her mother said. "But her mirror-writing is actually smoother and more mature than straight writing with her right hand.

"We don't think anything of it. Agnes was unusually keen to learn when she was a baby and we taught her how to write. But she always wrote with her left hand and backwards and the writing had to be held up to a mirror to be read. Some school teacher taught her how to write with her right hand."

The peculiarity is not optometric and could not be changed by glasses, according to P. H. Montgomery, Windsor optometrist.

"As far as I can make out this is a case for a psychologist," he said. "The condition which affects the backward writing is mental, to my way of thinking, and to her a natural thing."

FATHER J. R. COX, OTHERS CHARGED

Use of Mails in Furtherance of a Lottery is Charged Against 14

Pittsburgh, Feb. 24 — (AP) — Father James R. Cox, pastor of historic old St. Patrick's church where as many as 3,000 persons were fed daily during the depression, today faced trial in federal court with 13 others on charges of conspiracy and use of the mails in furtherance of a lottery.

The charges resulted from a "garden basket" contest to choose a name for the church's monastery gardens. The contest was operated as a benefit for the St. Patrick's Relief Fund.

Attorneys explained that under terms of the contest participants paid $1 for a ticket, a medal blessed by Father Cox and the privilege of suggesting a name for the monastery garden. The one suggesting the names adjudged best were to divide prize money.

Postal Inspectors said the books of tickets were sent through the mails and on which, they said, some of the "prize winners" did not receive their awards. A date for the trial, at Erie or Pittsburgh, was not set.

Night Riders Keep Patrol Of Highways in Middlesex

Provincial Officers Keep Watch For Prowlers

PETTY THIEVING

London, Ont., Feb. 24—(CP)— A night patrol of Provincial Police officers is riding highways and byways of Middlesex County from dusk till daylight, watching for suspicious persons whose prowling might indicate nefarious intent.

The night riders are covering the entire county, meanwhile keeping in touch with district police officers for complaints. The municipal police of the district are working with the Provincial Officers.

A request for the patrol was made from Broughdale for a special patrol of automobiles on London suburbs following raids on several private garages. It was stated the Provincial force of 40 men will not be large enough to permit one man being detailed to patrol Broughdale.

It is understood the night patrol will cover the entire county but that special attention will be given London's suburbs to prevent repetition of the thefts there. The patrol was inaugurated last summer and continued until areas of other business required services of the patrolling officers on regular duty.

'TRAGIC ERROR'

Chief of Staff Says His Country Looks to France And Russia

Praha, Feb. 24—(CP)—The newspaper Lidove Noviny today said Czechoslovakia fears the British error, her mother said. "But her mirror-writing is actually smoother and more mature than straight writing with her right hand.

"We don't think anything of it. Agnes was unusually keen to learn when she was a baby and we taught her how to write. But she always wrote with her left hand and backwards and the writing had to be held up to a mirror to be read. Some school teacher taught her how to write with her right hand."

The peculiarity is not optometric and could not be changed by glasses, according to P. H. Montgomery, Windsor optometrist.

"As far as I can make out this is a case for a psychologist," he said. "The condition which affects the backward writing is mental, to my way of thinking, and to her a natural thing."

McNUTT SEEN AS POSSIBILITY

Democratic Presidential Prospect in Commonwealth of Philippines

Washington, Feb. 24—(AP)— A new kind of political debut that smacked more of Hollywood than of Washington put Paul V. McNutt of Indiana before the United States today as a Democratic presidential prospect for 1940.

The high-hatted former Governor who now is High Commissioner to the Philippines greeted 1,141 men and women with a "how-do-you-do" handshake and a smile last night at a reception as sunup success as any of the cafe society productions in the metropolitan area.

The party drew almost as many contributors. Nor did the privilege of suggesting a name for the monastery garden. The one suggesting the names adjudged best were to divide prize money.

Postal Inspectors said the books of tickets were sent through the mails and on which, they said, some of the "prize winners" did not receive their awards. A date for the trial, at Erie or Pittsburgh, was not set.

Nazi Movement Began 18 Years Ago Today

Berlin, Feb. 24—(AP)—Today is the Nazi movement's 18th birthday and an important one for millions of Adolf Hitler's followers in Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia.

It was on Feb. 24, 1920, that Hitler in the now famed Hof Brau Haus in Munich formally announced creation of the National Socialist German Workers' Party and proclaimed in an audience of 2,500 the party program of 25 points.

The first of those points was: "We demand union of all Germans in Great Germany on the basis of the right of self-determination of the peoples."

So it is with keen interest that Nazis of the three countries will for tonight's speech by the Austrian Chancellor, Kurt Von Schuschnigg in Graz his story of the Berchtesgaden meeting with Hitler which put Nazis into first important concessions in Austria.

8-FOOT SAND BAG WALL BARS FLOOD

Red River Level 36 Feet Above Normal at Fulton, Ark.

Fulton, Ark, Feb. 24—(AP)—Fulton's fate rested today in the sturdiness of an eight-foot sandbag barrier and the whims of the turbulent Red River which registered an all-time high stage of more than 36 feet.

Some 50 river miles downstream the restless torrent blew out a levee opposite Dorena City to inundate 100,000 acres of rich farm lands inhabited by hundreds of families. Skiffs were sent across the stream to aid those near the break.

The sandbag dyke here, thrown up by volunteer and works program administration workers, was patrolled by guards who alternately watched the river gauge and looked for weak spots. The bags took terrific beating from the angry stream, which stretched to a width of five miles in front of the town. Normally it is only 1,200 yards.

Most long-time residents agreed that if the river rose any higher the community would be flooded, for the first time in 30 years.

TOWNSHIP NEEDS BETTER ROADBEDS, BRIDGES, CULVERTS

Hon. P. W. Dewan Says Good Roads, Agriculture Prosperity Allied

ROADS AND FARMING

Good Roads Association Told of Necessity of Roads For Fast Transit

Toronto, Feb. 24—(CP)— Good roads and agricultural prosperity are "closely allied." Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture told the annual convention of Ontario Good Roads Association today.

From 1926, when the Ontario government first appointed an inspector of road building, until 1938 the road systems have expanded until there are about 8,000 miles of county roads and more than 7,000 miles of provincial highways, the Minister said.

These highways, whose value "no one will dispute" have given a broad vista of markets to farmers," Mr. Dewan said. "Secondary, in this connection their worth can hardly be estimated. Farmers, distributors and consumers all enjoy the benefits."

Rapid Transit

Because of the "vast business" done from the Niagara fruit belt to Northern Ontario, the Department of Agriculture had approved an inspection plan for farmers-buses to protect Northern Ontario customers.

Secondly, the Minister said, Mr. Dewan said 2,208 trucks were inspected there.

County roads and provincial highways provide for the rapid movement from the truck of livestock to Toronto and the smaller markets. They provide for prompt transit of milk from the farm to the dairy, the cheese factory, the creamery and the condensery.

Township Roads

If agriculture is to get a full share of the benefits farmers must be provided with better township roads of improved roadbeds and more substantial culverts and bridges, the Minister said.

No matter how good provincial highways are Mr. Dewan explained from an agricultural standpoint if farmers cannot get to them. There was an ever-increasing demand from farmers for snow removal on county and township roads.

"Farmers must have their roads cleared for fast, economical and comfortable transportation which can only be had by the use of modern equipment."

Mr. Dewan recommended that contractors be used to keep the roadbeds but should be kept attractive in appearance. At least clear of shrubbery and weeds. A better act for weed control was being considered by the Department of Agriculture.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Feb. 24—(AP) —The famous little "honeymoon steamboat," the Maids of the Mist, may go into the ferry business as a result of the collapse of the honeymoon bridge.

Gow said commuters and tourists had been inconvenienced by the collapse of the bridge.

JAPAN'S REPRISAL

Nippon's Airships Swarm in Skies Over Formosa

Tokyo, Feb. 24—(AP)—Aviation and naval units in southwestern Japan were on the alert against Chinese air raids tonight after a large area of the Japanese homeland had felt the dread thrill of air attack warnings for several hours.

Twelve enemy bombing planes, escorted by fast pursuit craft, were reported to be roaring over the China Sea to carry the war to the main islands of Japan. Formal air raid warnings were issued. The enemy failed to arrive and the warnings were cancelled.

Japan's Plague Ruse Out

Naval officers expressed belief the Chinese armada had returned to its base when it became apparent its coming was known and Japan was prepared. Scores of Japanese planes were out to meet the threat.

Japanese fighting ships swarmed into the skies over Formosa, Japan's island colony raided by the Chinese yesterday in the first air attack in history on Japanese territory, and over Kyushu, the industrially and strategically important southwestern island of Japan proper. The western portion of the main island, Honshu, also was under raid warnings for several hours.

706 Mile Dash

Kyushu is nearly 500 miles across the China sea from the nearest China coast, but Chinese raiders probably are based at points 250 or more miles inland or along the coast of the southeastern province.

100% War Debt, No Interest, Hungary's Plan of Settlement

Nation Would Pay in 30 Annual Instalments of $39,000

QUESTION REOPENED

Washington, Feb. 24—(AP)—Hungary revived the whole question of war debts today by announcing a proposal for settling her obligation to the United States.

She offered to pay "100 cents on the dollar" of her original indebtedness, with interest.

Payments would total $1,207,000, divided into 30 annual non-interest-bearing instalments of about $39,000. The original debt was $1,585,000 from which Hungary would subtract the amount she already has paid on interest and principal — $478,000.

Hungarian Minister John Pelenyi in a statement, said the proposal:

Has nothing to do with any trade agreement with the United States, which Hungary does not contemplate at present, has nothing to do with the Johnson Act. Since Hungary does not desire further loans from the United States. The Act forbids further loans to delinquent nations.

Circulars are being issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture to farmers of the various agricultural districts warning of the sale of an unlicensed variety oats known as Don de Dieu (Gift of God) which, according to the claims of promoters, will yield as high as 300 bushels to the acre. Tests made by the department have proved substantially otherwise, it is stated.

Teh department notes that efforts were being made in Eastern and Western Canada to peddle the oats at $6 per bushel, or three pounds for $1.

The notice reports salesmen travelling through the Province of Ontario selling in violation of the Dominion Seeds Act, because they are not licenced.

People, Who Make Up Church Subject of Brilliant Address By Rev. Archer Wallace

Men's Association of Bridge Street United Church, Hosts

300 IN ATTENDANCE

Jack Deacon Delights Audience With Two Solos

Holding an audience of upwards of three hundred practically spellbound at times with his inimitable wit; striking platform personality; brilliant witticisms, that flashed suddenly to a deep sincerity as he brought out his various points; salient humor that is one of his outstanding characteristics and an unfailing ability to carry his listeners along with the sheer force of his eloquence the Rev. Archer Wallace, Associate Editor of United Church publications in Canada, Toronto, upheld his reputation of being one of Ontario's outstanding raconteurs and speakers last night with a brilliant address on "People I have met in the Church" at the annual banquet of the Men's Association of Bridge Street United Church, their wives and guests in the Sunday School Auditorium.

Many Types in Church

In characteristic eloquence, interspersed with flashes of humorous repartee and sincerity, the speaker brought out in vivid phraseology the many types of people that make up the Church, "Dean Farmer, of McGill University, once said to me," he stated, "and the Church is made up of man and women but a great many like the former than the latter today. The problems that confront us are the same the world over".

"There are a number of reliable, dependable, faithful men and women in the Church," he said, "but, unless men, school teachers, professors, ministers, have studied much of the teaching of the Church they endorse, they are not the ultimate embodiment of the religious life of the community. They feel it is the simple faith of the men in the community".

Then there is that vast army that are loyal to the church simply because they love it. "Here the speaker drew a clever point with the story of Edwin Stannard, English Sunday School teacher, who taught his class for fifty-one years and only missed one day. He was normally referred to as a lady who asked him (the speaker) when relating the story of another occasion what kept him away on that day. And her good soul replied that it was because Stannard's father had died and the funeral took place during the Sunday School hour.

Normal Life Ideal One

"The artists of the Middle Ages", Mr. Wallace said, "portrayed the saints as people who lived a fantastic unconscious type who looked as though they never had a home. Those pictures are not valuable. That is why the thin man gets the reputation for piety and the fat man has to deliver the goods". (Laughter.) "Jesus conceived the life after the aftermath of the times, when men thought to please God were by leading a fantastic life. The abnormal life is not my idea of Christianity. The normal life is the normal life, that of mixing with ordinary people".

"What is a great surprise to some of us in the life hereafter," said Mr. Wallace, "is that we shall, "so find the saints not as those portrayed but those who took their sorrow on the chin and went out and met the world bravely and courageously."

Referring to the great number of people he met in the church, the speaker pointed out that "whenever a man is a crank there is a reason, physical or mental, and those of us who love God should be very patient. David Smith once said we should never go out of our way to crush anyone. Love and Care your strife and when you see what is before you, you won't do it. Love and be striking a wounded animal. There is nothing gained by this."

Religion Cheerful

The speaker here related a story of a man who had been condemned as lazy and worthless during his life. His dad and was found to have been suffering from tuberculosis for fifteen years. The doctor told the speaker to tell the congregation that fact "and when I get there I'll say he was not a dry cry in the church," he said.

"I try to remember that cranks may not be in good health," he continued, "it is good to be natural in the church and in good humor, but our religion is such that we must do the hard things. We must be supernatural. We want to make religion cheerful. We don't please God by wearing cheerless faces".

"Then there are the thin-skinned people who are forever thinking people are whispering about them. Probably it is a case of people not being well."

The speaker here told the story of a man who thought the sermon on "backsliding" had been levelled at him because he was addressed, paid his dues to society, and heard this sermon on his first visit to his old church."

"What is the Church for, anyway," Mr. Wallace asked. "Is it for perfect people, eminently respectable ones who never make mistakes, or is it to be for a man's soul, what a man's body?" Again the speaker illustrated his point with the story of an imbecile, who repented but again broke out and the minister came before God regarding the giving of communion.

"I gave him communion," the speaker said, "and a year after he jumped overboard from an ocean liner while receiving the sacrament," Mr. Archer said simply.

Leather Used Hypocrite

"I loathe the world 'hypocrite'," Mr. Wallace asserted, "in my period of thirty years of preaching, I do not know of any man I would call hypocrite. Yes, men fly in the face of it. I think we should be more careful of its use. There is a difference in those who are weak and lacking in will-power and hypocrisy. Only God knows what is behaviour."

In humorous and serious vein, the speaker told of his experience in visit paid to his home in northern England. "Here he was visited after thirty-one years. "I saw all the boys I used to know," he smiled, "and the girls I used to kiss, and who still remembered it. Perhaps the finest thing that happened me occurred one night when the Mayor a Roman Catholic, and his council officially attended me from the pulpit of the church in which I was brought up. Here the speaker told of an absconding banker who discredited the savings of hundreds of widows and other poor people of the community. For this reason, a

Pasteurization of Milk And Advantages to Health Explained to Kiwanis Club

Howard Clarke, Manager of Citizens Dairy is Special Speaker

LARGE ATTENDANCE

Other Members Speak on Subject of Close of Address

The advantages of pasteurization of milk were explained to members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon on Tuesday by Howard Clarke, manager of the Citizens Dairy, who visited Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn for his action in bringing before the Ontario Legislature a bill to compel all milk to be pasteurized. The speaker was introduced by Eddie Logan and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Captain Scott. A precedent was also established when Fred Deacon, secretary of the year and George Griffin, the efficient secretary of the club, who is also Chairman of the Board of Health for Belleville, added his word of praise, stating that pasteurization was the only logical step to be taken to ensure the health of growing children and preserve the health of grownups. Mr. Clarke quoted from a number of authorities and specialists on this work and the following verbatim address will be food for thought on this important question.

Reports on Visit

Lieutenant Governor P. C. MacLaurin gave a report of his recent visit to Picton with other members of the club in an effort to secure for the Prince Edward County Club a new building. Mr. MacLaurin stated he found the enthusiasm of the former members just as high as ever and from conversations believed the club could be made into a flourishing organization for service work. In the meantime the Belleville Club will visit Picton and pat on the luncheon and afternoon go into session with the prominent men of the community in an effort to get the club back into active work. Albert Boynton presided at the meeting and also announced a meeting of the directors for Friday night at his home on Highland Avenue.

Mr. Clarke, after thanking the club for the opportunity of speaking on the subject of Pasteurization of Milk, stated: Gentlemen: Mr. Clarke had placed before each member of the club a pint of milk from the Citizens Dairy which was thoroughly enjoyed and the thanks of the club for the gift was expressed by the president.)

The Value of Pasteurization of Milk

"I am indebted to Dr. Gordon Bates, General Director, Health League of Canada, for a good deal of material I am presenting to you today.

"Health conservation is a subject of vast magnitude. The average citizen does not realize to fit much of his thought. He is as a rule content to let things as they come —health and disease, life and death alike. The intelligent effort thought size holds medical and lay thought has resulted in a medical profession organized to cure and not to prevent.

"Milk is a great factor in health. 190,000,000 cows produce milk for human consumption. Milk is an essential in human diet, providing with the products, such as butter, cream, clotted cream and buttermilk, over 16 per cent. of the food used by civilized man. Milk furnishes all of the elements essential for the growth and repair of body tissues — proteins, fats, carbohydrates and minerals.

Milk Valuable as Food

"All recognized authorities on dietetics are in unit in the statement that milk is the most valuable single article of diet we possess. To appreciate its economy we should compare it with other foods. The estimate runs as follows:

One quart of milk (40 fluid ozs.) is equal in food value to:

1-lb. of steak or which the average cost is 22c; 11 eggs, of which the average cost is 22c; 3¾ lbs. fresh codfish, of which the average cost is 40c; 2½ lbs. chicken of which the average cost is 56c; $1.00 worth of oysters; 1 lb. of loin pork, of which the average cost is 32c.

"And yet it is a fact that many children, especially in our large cities, are unable for financial reasons to obtain sufficient milk. Especially has this been true during a depression, when caused by unemployment and relief. During this period governments have tended to economize by cutting the budgets of their Health Departments. Similarly it has been found that when relief has been given in cash rather than in goods, there has been an immediate decrease in the consumption of milk and other essential foods by the relief recipients. This would not happen were the value of milk as a food fully appreciated. As said commentary on our unenlightened civilization!

"It is not to our credit that milk should be withheld from any person, especially a child, because of poverty. If health department efforts are cut and if citizens voluntarily withhold this food from their own families it is a condemnation that public education as to the value of milk as a food is not fully the value of milk as a food has not progressed far enough.

Milk Can Also be a Great Danger

"The first essential in the safe-guarding of milk as a food is to know that there is a sufficient supply of milk—and, of course, I refer to pure, safe milk.

"Milk is a food which we cannot do without. And yet the indictment against milk which is not pure is terrific. Milk is the greatest of foods—produced under improper conditions and not looked carelessly, has been responsible for more deaths than war itself.

Raw Milk and Epidemics

"The role of raw milk as a factor in infant mortality has been well known for many years. Milk is by a large measure responsible for the prevalence of diarrhoeal diseases in infants in the hot summer months. But in addition, raw milk carries tuberculosis and bacillus of the enteric infection from cow to human. Milk-borne typhoid epidemics, with many epidemics of typhoid fever, scarlet fever, septic sore throat and diphtheria.

"Epidemics have been traced to raw milk supplies in many parts of the world. For example, as far back as 1915, a report issued by Dr. Charles E. North, Consulting Sanitary Expert, Secretary of the Committee on Milk Standards, New York City, we find a record of the following milk-borne epidemics of typhoid fever:

Number of Cases

Glasgow, Scotland, 900 from one raw milk supply.

Cologne, Germany, 270 from one raw milk supply.

Port Jarvis, N.Y., 90 from one raw milk supply.

Hartford, Mass., 182 from one raw milk supply.

Oakland, Calif., 262 from one raw milk supply.

Montclair, N.J., 197 from one raw milk supply.

Stamford, Conn., 307 from one raw milk supply.

Leslie C. Frank, Senior Sanitary Engineer of the United States Public Health Service, in a recent communication, lists 635 milk-borne epidemics over the period 1906-1926 which result in 37,501 cases of infection and 512 deaths."

"H. J. Schereschewsky, Director of the Division of Sanitation, State of Minnesota, states that between 1916 and 1927, 303 outbreaks of communicable diseases have been traced to raw milk in Minnesota alone. During this period only one outbreak followed the consumption of pasteurized milk and in this case the milk was contaminated after pasteurization. Mr. Whittaker states that pasteurization is the greatest single factor in preventing the spread of communicable disease through milk. Between 1916 and 1927 certain dangers associated with the use of raw milk which even the most highly developed systems of supervision do not prevent.

"Perhaps the most striking example of milk-borne typhoid fever was the epidemic in Montreal in 1927, with its 5,000 cases and 500 deaths —an epidemic which was traced to a cave cost the Province of Quebec $50,000,000.

Prevalence of Undulant Fever

"Undulant fever—a disease transmitted to humans by the milk from cows infected with the abortus bacillus —is prevalent in many parts of the world. In the United States in 1930 there were 1,044 cases discovered in 48 States of the Union, the largest number coming from one case in Colorado, Nebraska and West Virginia, to 214 in New York State.

"The prevalence of this type of infection in cows is an added reason for the institution of methods to protect the public from the possibility of drinking infected milk. In cases was traced to one raw milk supply.

"Epidemics of milk-borne disease develop in all countries. In Canada, R. H. Murray has reported milk-borne epidemics as follows:

Between Years 1906 and 1923

	Epidemics	Cases	Deaths
Typhoid	35	6,311	674
Paratyphoid ..	3	132	9
Scarlet	7	192
Septic sore throat ...	3	534	4

HE WAS AFRAID TO CROSS A STREET

Lost His Nerve After 12 Months' Agony

Suffering from acute rheumatism in both his knee joints—treated in hospital three times—Mr. Kruschen unnerved that he was afraid to cross a street—how readily every rheumatic sufferer will sympathise with this man. Read what he says: "For 12 months, I suffered pain and misery with acute rheumatism in both knees. Twice, I was treated in hospital—but it was no use. I could not walk up or down stairs. I was afraid to cross the street, for I had lost all confidence in myself. Fourteen days ago, I started taking Kruschen Salts, and already I am a new man. I can walk with a smart step, go up and down stairs with ease, and cross the street with complete confidence. My rheumatism is getting better every day."—D.

In a good many cases, of course, you will find that a dose of Kruschen Salts, which dissolve the painful crystals of uric acid—often the cause of those aches and pains and social inhibitions—will eliminate this poison through the natural channels.

Safety of Milk at Source Essential

"When discussing the conveyance of disease from animal to human or from person to person by milk, we must call attention to the fact that in all programmes of safe milk consumption, every attention must be paid to making sure that milk is safe at its source. The proper inspection of cows and premises, and the ensuring of proper methods of handling on the farm are of course essential. The elimination of infectious disease from cows is to insure a safe milk supply. The initial step in all measures to ensure safety of milk at its source should, of course, be considered to be efficient.

Dr. Gordon Bates Reports:
—But Pasteurization Essential as

Final Safeguard

"Recently in discussing pasteurization with a member of the Milk Board of Canada, he told me of the story of a farmer with an accredited, apparently tuberculosis-free herd—a man who thought pasteurization was not necessary. I impressed upon that the value of the value of this process, charged when the farmer that there was a child dying from tuberculosis in the same house. I proceeded to tell him of the case of a similar occurrence in a farm near his home—the child was the son of one of the largest Dairy corporations in Canada that I was one of a number of cases in the family of a near relative. Subsequently the child in this rural areas less than a hundred miles from Toronto. Following the stories all came to me within a week of one another. I need scarcely say that this farmer is now as an argument against all necessity for pasteurization—the health of cows but to emphasize the fact that even apparently safe milk is essential if we are to preserve the health of humans.

A Tragic Example of False Security

"In a recent report to the British Ministry of Health, forwarded to me by Miss Darby, Secretary of the Director United Dairies, Limited, London, England, I find the following statement: "In this case the ensuing deaths were investigated and officially acknowledged. The cattle were groomed and cleaned daily, and the cows were tuberculin tested. The milk was conveyed in sealed vessels, and the conditions appear certainly much in advance of the requirements of 'accredited' production. But because it was left to the decision of an individual who might be careless, the whole system of insurance, by prejudice, or even by ignorance, by prejudice, or even by fraud, was rendered valueless."

Failure to Use Every Safeguard Is Criminal

"The only conclusion to which I can come is, that however close to perfect methods of production may appear to be, it is little short of criminal to neglect to introduce every safeguard.

"A cow cannot tell you she has tuberculosis. A man can happens to be a typhoid carrier may not know it himself and his condition is hard to detect.

"Pasteurization of milk will absolutely eliminate the danger of having as drinking milk is concerned and will practically eliminate and be eliminated by any other means. Pasteurization, not of cream, milk, but of all milk, including certified milk, is essential.

The Development of Pasteurization

"Pasteur in the 60's of the last century commenced a series of investigations as to the prevention and the spread of infections of various kinds. He discovered that heating wine for a few moments to 122-140 degrees F. was sufficient to prevent abnormal fermentation and sour-ing.

Applied to milk, pasteurization means the process of heating milk to a temperature of 142 - 145 degrees F. and holding it at that temperature for twenty minutes, rapidly cooling it to 40 - 50 degrees F. and holding the temperature during arrival. This procedure destroys the pathogenic organisms —those which cause disease and also those of absolute preventive of the series of diseases already mentioned.

"In spite of the fact that we have ready to hand this great life-saving procedure it is not applied and it is for us to ask, Why?

Need for Co-ordination of Canadian Regulations

"The need for unifying all methods of production should be obvious. This need has been recognized in the passage of regulations concerning these matters by various states and provinces. In the United States the existence of a uniform Ordinance issued by the United States Public Health Service and covering all phases of milk production for use by municipalities, counties and health districts, is of great value. The preparation of such a national Ordinance is a tacit recognition of the importance of milk as a national health problem. The Ordinance includes a description of terms and methods applicable to the production of milk, including pasteurization, and includes, forms, licenses, and prohibitions which should be part of all local milk control machinery.

"We should have a similar Ordinance in Canada. Leslie Frank of the United States Public Health Service has outlined the advantages of such an Ordinance and urges its universal adoption. Were all communities to adopt, and keep the provisions of the Standard Milk Ordinance we would be much closer to the production of a universally safe milk supply. In its absence the local producers and distributors labor at a great disadvantage because they are working in the dark and secure though they may be in their desire to produce milk which is of the best quality. The general adoption of the Standard Milk Ordinance would be a definite contribution to the programme to ensure the purity and safety value of milk.

Failure to Adopt Pasteurization Amazing

"But to return to pasteurization. It is amazing that in spite of the known facts of the value of this procedure it is not more widely applied. It is true that the number of localities accepting compulsory pasteurization has increased.

"In the Province of Ontario of 36 cities in 1931 pasteurization of all their milk, and of 141 towns only 13 pasteurize all of their milk. On the whole of Canada only 44 towns and cities pasteurize all of their milk.

"In rural areas, failure to pasteurize is almost universal. In other words, in spite of all efforts, most of our people are still exposed to the dangers of raw milk. Even in cities in which 100 per cent. pasteurization has been secured a trip to a neighboring city, to the country, or to a summer resort, may expose the members of the family to all of the dangers of milk-borne disease.

"Aside from the obvious failure in human logic and common sense which is presented by this story of a great life-saving method, we should, why do we fail to pasteurize our milk?

"Failure to properly educate the public is probably the first reason. Proper dissemination of the facts would bring results. Were our citizens so educated that they would refuse to drink any but clean, perfectly pasteurized milk the situation would soon right itself.

"It has been suggested that pasteurized milk is not as digestible as a raw milk. The experience in the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, is exactly the reverse.

"Dr. Alan Brown, Physician-in-Chief to the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, said in a recent statement prepared for the Ontario Government that during the past twenty years every drop of milk given to in-patients and out-patients in that hospital has been not only pasteurized but in addition boiled to obtain further sterility and digestibility. Dr. Brown at the same time definitely contradicted the statement that pasteurization changes the natural conditions of milk.

Dr. Brown's statement is so striking that I include portions of it herewith:

"The evidence is incontestable, where careful studies have been made, that from 30 to 50 per cent. of bone, gland and abdominal tuberculosis in children is due to milk infection and that scientific pasteurization absolutely prevents tuberculosis of this nature, and in addition prevents all milk-borne epidemics.

"The prevention of these conditions alone would save many lives, numerous cripples and much money for the taxpayer each year.

"Those who object to pasteurization are without the scientific information in the subject, and merely take the stand that pasteurization alters the natural composition of the milk. This, of course, is not correct. Take, for instance, the experience in the City of Toronto since the inauguration of pasteurization of milk by the Corporation of the City of Toronto in 1914, not a single case of bovine type of tuberculosis original tuberculosis has entered the hospital for Sick Children, and last year the hospital gave treatment to over 105,000 children."

"Millions for Curing — Little for Prevention"

"A reflection of the state of public opinion is found in the fact that Provincial and State Legislatures will pass appropriations for hospitals without the slightest hesitation while appropriations for the machinery to prevent illness are passed only after the closest scrutiny and prodigality at that. There is a quotation from Ruskin which is apropos at the moment. Ruskin said:

"Let a child fall into the river before the roughest man's eyes, he will usually do what he can to get it out, even at some risk to himself. And all the town will triumph in the saving of one little life. Let the same man be known that hundreds of children are dying of fever for want of sanitary arrangements, and he will cost him trouble to urge, and he will make no effort; and probably will be the first to resist him if he did."

This illustrates most aptly the attitude of all communities toward city of Toronto currently since activities are guided by their hearts rather than their heads.

Why Not Organize to Prevent Crippling?

"A crippled child stimulates a sympathetic reaction which results in widespread organization for the care of cripples. Spas in the average man about instituting measures to prevent crippling however, and he is not interested.

"As a matter of fact there is a widespread movement both in the United States and in Canada which has for its objective the care of crippled children. The causes of crippling are tuberculosis, largely arising from unpasteurized milk, rickets resulting from diet deficiencies, infantile paralysis and accidents. Crippled Children Boards and committees all over the country pay infinitely more attention to the provision of splints and braces for children after they are crippled than they do to instituting measures to eliminate the tragic figure of the cripple from the streets.

"I have in mind at the moment a Service Club in an area with which I am well acquainted. This Service Club includes in its membership an active Crippled Children's Committee which supplies at some cost splints, crutches and wheel-chairs for cripples. The same Service Club organizes a Boys' Camp and supplies the camp throughout the entire summer with a bountiful supply of raw milk. Raw milk may carry tuberculosis and is one of the major causes of crippling in children.

"Arguments as to pasteurization are beyond dispute. The significance of milk as the most important of foods is known to all intelligent people. That it should be a safe food when delivered to the consumer is essential.

More than 500,000 rounds of golf were played on municipal courses in New York city last year.

FLOOD CONTROL

With the Ontario Legislature planning to appoint a commission to probe into the problem of water control and flood relief in the western part of the Province, there is little doubt that the people who inhabit the banks of the Moira River, which at times gets on a rampage, will assist the city council and authorities in getting a comprehensive view of the possibility of remedy here. The question is a live one almost every springtime, though floods wreak heavy havoc only on rare occasions.

Today the Moira within the city limits looks like the ruins of an ancient river, all fallen in, or resembles a mass of layers of white stone, that once went into some gigantic natural temple or building. That is what the weather has made. The same weather made it unruly a couple of weeks ago, to cause annoyance and disruption of use of basements along the east bank. That same weather may again cause greater havoc some springtime. Citizens have long memories of flood loss in the other decades or generations.

The study of the situation in W. Ontario where the Grand River, when it is rampant, causes disaster to a long stretch of countryside, will doubtless have lessons for the study of the problem created by the Moira River.

WHAT PERCENTAGE TO BLAME?

There is a great variance of opinion as to the number of accidents due more or less to the use of liquor and it is a pity there appears to be no way in which there can be a definiteness on this matter as to the part liquor does play. Some persons place the loss very high, but cannot prove much by figures. Convictions of drunken drivers as compared with the number of persons driving the highways, are few. Naturally they don't include all who may offend in this respect because such infractions have to be proven to become convictions.

If there were anything definite of course offenders would be barred from the roads and the dangerous condition of driving might be remedied, but those who are fighting for the safety of roads have not that means of getting at all the facts.

It does seem that if a driver when sober made himself realize the potentiality of a car for injury, death and damage if not properly handled, there would be fewer calamities on the roads and the driver who offends would not drink— for the sake of avoiding trouble and of avoiding injury to innocent folk or their own passengers, often their relatives.

BOMBING RAIDS

Air raids, whether by Japanese fliers or Chinese, over civilian areas, is likely to take a toll of innocent life, most often that of women and children and elderly men. The visit paid by enemy airships to Japanese Formosa the other day, no doubt made many see fate in return for what harm the Japanese have done on innocent Chinese. But surrender to the economic seem the word in these war days in the Orient. If only those who were responsible for the war were sufferers, there would be no regrets but rather rejoicing, but there are many more who are not responsible than there are those who are responsible, that the innocent must suffer. The same fact is just as true behind both fronts in Spain.

MODERN WAR CHANGES ALL

Even highly-mechanized Japan was excited when a fleet of planes attacked Japanese territory in Formosa yesterday. Yet that is what Japan cannot but have realized as sooner or later to come, whether in an effective or ineffective way or not. The old Japan has not been invaded for centuries and this week despite her great air fleets the home land was invaded and bombs dropped. What will be the influence on Japanese popular backing of the war?

Since Japan has played at the game of bombing helpless cities and peoples, she must have forgotten the rule that tools work both ways or she must have dismissed the possibility of attack from the Chinese as not to be thought of. Japan is one of the nations who have modernized war and in the eyes of the world is to blame for making war where it is believed war on any basis but selfishness was impossible and of course has brought raiding upon herself.

The Japanese military class must have suffered a shock to know that in spite of everything in the way of restraint on the nation for the all-glorious purpose of making war, Japan was invaded by air for the first time in history.

For the Japanese people at heart are like others in large measure. They are said not to desire war, but are in the strong grip of the military society.

Modern war has made the impossible possible. A few hundred miles inland will probably be in time a very dangerous place in time of war because of lack of defence and preparation.

MORE ATTENTION IS BEING PAID NOWADAYS TO THE EYESIGHT OF CHILDREN and it is well that this should be so, for there are few handicaps in life as serious as that of poor eyesight, and youth needs every faculty alert and keen in this highly competitive age to achieve success. School nurses keep close watch of the health of pupils including their eyes and at least one service club, The Kinsmen of Belleville, have taken the care of children's eyesight as their major service. Just what good eyesight in children means can be understood better in a review of a report recently made in the United States on the subject. This report stated that poor eyesight in children costs taxpayers around $120,000,000 each year. That sounds like an over-statement but consider this: Experts say that the average cost of educating a child is about $600 a year. Each year six million (6,000,000) children in the United States fail to make passing marks and are forced to repeat the same work another year. This means that every child who has to repeat a grade costs the ratepayers an added $60.00. Multiply that figure by 6,000,000 and see the financial seriousness of poor scholarship. It is safe to assume, says the report, that one-third fail because of poor sight. The economic loss does not end with sums expended by schools. There is the continued loss to the individual; who forced from school enters the industrial world. There is the handicap caused by the same problems of vision. What happens in the United States can also happen in Canada, and too much care cannot be taken to ensure good vision for the rising generation. It might also be said that equal consideration for adults are handicapped in health and business life by defective eyesight which could easily be remedied by a visit to any good optometrist. Folks are just as careless about their health and often wait until something serious and alarming developes before taking steps to remedy the trouble, running the risk of permanent trouble. The slogan "see your doctor once a year and your dentist at least once a year," could very well be extended to "see your optometrist at least once a year."

CLOSE TO THE CHEST

A dispatch from Berlin reporting Herr Hitler's banquet celebrating the pact of "peace and friendship" with Austria says "Among the guests was Field Marshal General Hermann Wilhelm Goering, wearing a new uniform." This might be kept as a standing line in all accounts of official affairs in Germany, remarks the New York Times. So pronounced is the general's weakness for new uniforms and gaudy decorations that even in the Third Reich, where wisecracks at the expense of party leaders are extremely unhealthy, sly shots about him are frequently made, says the Times.

One of these imported tales discloses the stoutish Field Marshal General standing before a mirror admiring the cut and color of a new outfit delivered only that morning and loudly demanding his medals to hang on his manly chest. "I'm sorry, General Goering," apologizes his valet, "you'll have to wait until I unpin them from your pajamas."

IT'S ALWAYS MONEY

"It seems to me" remarked the thoughtful youth, "that it must be dangerous to marry. I get the impression that in the first place women marry you for your money; if they don't manage to take it all they leave you and sue for alimony; and if they fail at that they outlive you to get your insurance money."

Mr. David Bates, who with Mrs. Bates has been visiting his father, Mr. G. W. Bates, Avondale, Trent Road, left today with his wife for their home at Grand Coulee, Sask. Mr. Bates is one of Saskatchewan's prosperous farmers. He owns two sections of land, most of which is under cultivation.

A citizen suggests that an effort should be made to have a registered government thermometer established outside the Belleville Post Office. At present there are many thermometers and no two ever agree. NORTHERN NESTERS

James Bay region at the southern end of Hudson Bay, is one of the greatest gathering places for wild geese and ducks on the North American continent: While no complete census figures on this subject have ever been compiled, it is believed that about seventy per cent of the wild geese hatched in the Arctic pass through James Bay on their autumn migration. From mid-May all the Blue Geese in existence and possibly one-fifth of the Lesser Snow Geese participate in this great reunion, which takes place across Canada Geese and American Brant. Large numbers of ducks and also Canada Geese nest on the area, but these are over-shadowed by the abundance of Blue Geese and Lesser Snow Geese which make James Bay a stop-over point on their flight from the Far North.

Possibly the main attraction of the James Bay region for waterfowl is the extensive feeding grounds provided in the muddy swamps and tidal flats, but no doubt the outline of Hudson and James Bays, which is roughly funnel-shaped, also plays a part in producing the heavy concentration of migrant geese and ducks around the south end of James Bay. The bay stretches about 220 miles from north to south and 140 miles from east to west. On the south and west sides the land is flat with gradual slope and the shores are bordered by extensive mud flats. Many large river the flats at low tide is, some places, unable to see the distant waters of the bay. Back of the normal high water line lies a strip of marsh averaging about a mile wide, and back of the marsh is coniferous forest, interspersed with large areas of muskeg and swamp. On the eastern side the coast descends more steeply, but even there one finds several large, shallow bays. Fresh water from a large drainage basin flows into James Bay in a number of large rivers, from the east, south and west.—Canadian Resources Bulletin.

TIMMINS GROWS UP

The annual report of the Timmins Police Department contains no startling increase of crime.

A total of 1,540 cases reached the police court last year. Of course this total is not all out of line with the population and the many factors that enter the life of Timmins. There is no big increase in the population too which has not been reflected in the records of the police.

What is annually most striking about any police department report is the multiplicity of points at which the police touch the lives of citizens and of duties where they must ever be on the alert for infringements of little-known laws.

"A policeman's life is not a happy one," says the old silhouette and Timmins finds that which is no doubt true but it is varied and it would seem to be a busy one.

Timmins has escaped one factor which unchastens the police reports to a good many towns. For instance Sudbury rolled up a record number of cases last year for the size of the town but it was claimed by Sudbury residents that this gave a wrong impression of the town for many of the charges were provincial and not municipal. Sudbury was on the main railroad route.

Timmins being at the end of steel in one direction escapes being a stop-over for transients—at least to any great degree, it is a terminal for most of the men who were hired as labor, presently looking for the work and just missed out. There were only 118 transients given lodgings and plenty of southern police stations would think they were quarters for the night—nothing if they don't have that many in a month.

Winding up the report was one case under the Railway Act where a passenger boarded a train with no intention of paying a fare. Just an old-fashioned hitch-hiker.

Whoyer's the shootin'?

Well, brother, this is one mining camp that has plumb growed up.—Timmins Free Press.

That Body of Yours

Methods of Training Bed-Wetting —Enuresis

One of the embarassing conditions that some nervous children have to endure is bed-wetting. Despite punishments and reward, these youngsters are unable to control the outflow of urine during sleep.

Many parents have worked out a system whereby the youngster is made to pass his urine just before going to bed. When the mem-ers are about to retire they wake him up and have him go to the toilet and pass water, and again. Should either parent be awaks during the night the youngster is again wakened and sent to the toilet. This method works out fairly well but is, as you see, dependent entirely upon the watchfulness of the parents.

Many parents have some success by using a dry diet—no meat, milk or other liquids after four p.m.

The use of atropine has been a "standby" in physiology for years as it serves to "tighten" the muscles controlling the opening or neck of the bladder.

Some months ago a "new" idea in treating bed-wetting (enuresis) was suggested in that sandwiches containing a small amount of salt were given just before bedtime. Formerly salt was avoided as much as possible as it was a drug of many possibilities, but salt taken just before retiring was supposed to draw from the whole body to itself; a single gram of salt can hold 20 times its own weight of water. With this great amount of salt in the system the kidneys functioned as well as at such water get into the urinary bladder. Of course there would be no desire or need for the youngster to pass this small amount.

Recently a specialist in bed-wetting comes from Great Britain. He is Dr. Beresford Parlour, Harley St., London, tells of administering ephedrine (the Chinese drug in tablet form) to a child over two periods up to several months. The immediate effect was that in 16 there was improvement in 16 others, slight amount of ephedrine added in tablet form is given at bedtime. The dose is increased by half a grain every three or four nights until, in some cases, as much as three grains are given.

I like to pass along any suggestions on the treatment of enuresis as the unfortunate victims and mas of these youngsters is great indeed.

PROFANITY IN SPORT

Is the use of profane language among athletically-inclined youth on the increase?

If this is true, strong immediate action should be taken to rectify such a regrettable condition. Officials and coaches should make it a point to frown on it. Here is an example in this regard, but also to absolutely refuse to tolerate foul language on the part of any of the dressing room.

This is worthy of deep thought on the part of every athlete, as well as those who have the welfare or clean sport at heart. The old-fashioned code of affairs was confined to one sport only, but in these days branches of athletic activity, it would have little significance, but those who are in charge of boys with sport and are in a position to speak with authority, feel that the situation is much the same in the majority of the branches dominated by strenuous competition and constant bodily contact.

That such a state has arisen is by no means a condemnation of sport in general, rather it might be said that the true sportsman is in every way worthy of respect and even commendation. As in any activity, it is the unthinking careless few and the rash public critcism games in danger of ill repute. Such delinquencies, in the final name of sport and in justice to the many thousands of clean-living, clean-competing athletes, should in fault must be shown, by drastic but kindly methods. Fair play and swearing must disappear entirely from the playing field.—Chatham News.

OF FADING FAME

We do not know who is responsible for it, but some extraordinarily faulty publicity has crept into the world. Almost every one up to date has been warned against trying to build up the wolf as a menace, but somehow the fear has grown and the sales tax. Europe could tell us something about that—also the wolf terror, and we were right there.

But now a story comes from North Frontenac county, and is published in the Star, that carries a maxim that when a man bites a dog it is news. For in these parts a man chased a wolf. He not only chased it but he caught it and gave it the sales tax. To add the final devastating touch, the man was on skates.

There is a magnificent story somewhere about the skater and the wolves, and his mad fight under an eerie Canadian moon with the pack at his heels, but we might as well shelve the yarn now. Like our modern writers, the modern wolf apparently to be a liar. The old-timer has another jump on us. The wolf is now what he used to be.—Hamilton Spectator.

POLICE COURTESY

The efficiency, courtesy and politeness of the metropolitan police force in London, England, are proverbial but it will amaze the average Canadian and certainly our friends in the U.S.A. to study the character of a parking ticket received by a Londoner who left his car parked one night in forbidden territory The Brandon Sun reproduces the message:

"Parking is not authorized here. It is liable to cause obstruction. The police are responsible for keeping the streets clear. They would rather avoid your help than prosecute you. You can help a great deal by leaving your car in proper places. Remember attaining a rich haul from cars left in the street and also suing them freely for criminal enterprises. Cooperation by car owners will prevent crime, protect property, free the traffic and greatly assist the police and the public." — St. Catharines Standard.

"BOSS" CHARLIE

The Vancouver Province says Charlie McCarthy was nominated for a Senatorship. No other evening, for a place on the central executive of the Conservative association. His name was applauded, but he was left out. The members were not sure of his politics. It is too bad, Charlie. If only given an opportunity, should go far in politics. He has quite a number of characteristics that help carry him along.

He is voluble, and irrepressable, and his skin is, oh, so thick.

He is never at a loss for an answer. He is the champion maker of excuses. He can pass the buck to Hitler's taste.

He speaks up with the voice of the boss, and he dances with the boss pulls the strings.

And would it be too unkind to add that he has a wooden head?—Brandon Sun.

HORSES AND FIRE

One of the peculiar traits of horses is that they will walk right back to their stables after they have been led to safety during a fire. Masquerade, an $8,000 show horse, was in his stall at Glendale near Los Angeles when fire broke out. He was led out by a caretaker, who immediately busied himself with the task of putting out the fire.

When no one was looking Masquerade walked back through the smoke and flames and perished in his stall. Just why horses do that is a mystery, but experienced horsemen know that once a horse has been led to safety, it must be watched or it will go straight back into the fire.—Windsor Star.

BLAMING WEATHER

The purported discovery that baby, like the fruit of trees, falls as the temperature drops, is disconcerting. It had long been man's vanity to think that the chill of winter encouraged the growth, rather than the removal of his crowning glory, just as beasts of the field and even plants will do to develop warmer coats against the pitiless cold.

The theory that baldness may result from meteorological causes suggests that the mysterious forces are of a surety not to be sneezed at. After all, why should rain spoil cause chickenpox or a passing comet indicate a slight fever. Now one must expect to escape chilblains in the dark of the moon and why isn't it reasonable to believe that patients, not taxes, are responsible for headaches? Eventually, perhaps everything can be blamed on the weather.—Gait Reporter.

THE JAPS OUTDONE

The strange reluctance of the Japanese to bid up the price of the liner Leviathan at her recent auction was explained by some facetious miller with the sales as resulting from an oversight on the part of whoever supplied them with information regarding the construction.

The great steamship's hull is made of steel, and is therefore a very valuable metal for armaments, but the Japanese did not know this when they bought her. They thought her for $800,000, did, it was said.

Now that the Japanese know why this fact, not because it was a secret, but because nowhere it never got around. Her size and age would create the natural assumption that she was built of steel. Of course, she is the largest vessel ever built from picked steel.—New York Sun.

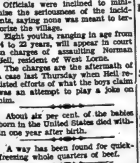
No Terrorizing Just 'Horse Play' Police Report

St. Thomas, Ont., Feb. 24—Provincial Police after a day's investigation at West Lorne, West Elgin Village, said incidents which occurred there recently were planned as "pranks" and as "horse play" rather than anything serious.

Officials were inclined to minimize the seriousness of the incidents, saying none was meant to terrorize the Village.



Eight youths, ranging in age from 14 to 22 years, will appear in court on charges of assaulting Norman Bell, resident of West Lorne.

The charges are the aftermath of a case last Thursday when Bell related efforts of what the boys claim was an attempt to play a joke on him.

Progressive Reduction Of Fishing Licences is Resolution Put Forward

Fisheries Minister Promises Action And Vote Not Taken

CHARGES ASSAULT

Says Japanese Boarded Canadian Boats And Cut Nets

Ottawa, Feb. 24—(CP)—The Japanese have a standing policy of monopolizing the British Columbia fishing industry, having fished out their own waters, Thomas Reid (Lib. New Westminster) told the House of Commons yesterday.

The British Columbia member, who said he was described in Japanese newspapers last year as "number one bad man in Canada" for his attitude towards orientals, introduced a resolution to re-establish the policy followed between 1923 and 1927 of reducing progressively the number of fishing licences granted to Japanese on the Pacific coast.

For 40 minutes, Mr. Reid, who has never lost his Scottish burr despite 26 years in Canada, attacked the policy of granting wholesale fishing licences to the Japanese. At the end he announced he had been assured by the Department of Fisheries the subject would be studied and something done about it. With that promise from Fisheries Minister Michaud he said he was not pressing his resolution to a vote.

None in Five Years

If the terms of the Reid resolution were followed, the number of fishing licences granted Japanese would be reduced 40 per cent next year and in five years none would be issued.

The Japanese control the cod industry of British Columbia, Mr. Reid stated. They control 90 per cent of the export of salt fish from British Columbia. They are in a position to dictate to canners and, through their organization could cut off supplies.

In addition, Japanese control sockeye salmon fishing at the mouth of the Fraser river, the House was told. Japanese fishermen, Mr. Reid said, have been known to assault white Canadian fishermen who invaded those waters, boarding boats, wrecking engines and cutting nets.

No Right to Discriminate

In 1927, 2,008 fishing licences were issued to Japanese in British Columbia, 618 more than in 1927 when the privy council ruled the Fisher Department had no right to discriminate against orientals and forced a restatement of the policy of progressive reduction of licences. Licences for gill-net fishermen in the mouth of the Fraser river had increased 70 per cent in 1937 over 1932 when the policy of reduction was introduced.

No other member spoke today on the Reid resolution. The House spending the rest of the afternoon on a proposal of R. W. Gladstone (Lib. Wellington South) to establish a committee to revise House rules.

Treat Colds This PROVED Way

WHY experiment? Vicks Vapo-Rub has been doubly proved for you . . . proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medicine of its kind; further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made. (Give full details in each VapoRub package.) Only Vicks gives you such proof.

VapoRub is the direct external treatment. No "dosing"—no risk of stomach upset. Simply massage it on the throat, chest, and back (as illustrated).

Relief starts almost at once. You begin to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub starts working direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time, its medicated vapors—released by body heat—are carried direct to the irritation. All-powerful with every breath!

This double action loosens phlegm, relieves irritation and coughing—helps break up the cold.

Repeat treatment at bedtime. After restful sleep comes VapoRub keeps right on working, hour after hour. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Holloway St. Members Observe C. G. I. T. Week

Holloway Street United Church C.G.I.T. fittingly observed the annual February, C.G.I.T. week their commemoration beginning on Sunday morning 20th., when they took charge of the morning service at the church. Ruth Oliphant, senior group, conducted the service, Jean Sherry reading the Scripture lesson, Lois Liddle, leading in the responsive reading of the Psalm. Gwen Surley, Ruth Morden, Brien Brown and June Fitzgibbons took the offering. Mrs. R. E. Newman gave a challenging address basing her remarks on Dr. Moffatt's translation of the Bible, Phill. Chapter 4; verses 8 and 9: "Brothers keep in mind whatever is true, whatever is worthy, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is attractive, whatever is high-toned, all excellent all merit". "Practice also what you have learned and received from me, what you have heard me say and what you saw me do. Then the God of Peace will be with you".

On Tuesday night the girls entertained at a birthday tea. The church parlours were most attractive with blue and white decorations, the C.G.I.T. colours and the birthday tables whose artistic decorative scheme was worked out by the girls themselves. The tables, arranged by the girls according to their birthday months, were very pretty, and were completed with posters, the work of Barbara Lloyd. January depicted a winter scene, February, St. Valentine; March with a St. Patrick tabled; April, a typical Easter scene; May was ornamented with a Maypole and tiny doll dancers; June tabled a miniature wedding scene, July a patriotic centrepiece; August a camping scene, September, an autumn picture; October was devoted to Hallowe'en; November, an Armistice motif and December, the Christmas story. Guests grouped themselves about their birthday table. The tea table was handsome with white damask, yellow daffodils, blue irises and white hyacinths and blue and white appointments.

Miss Shirley Hudson and Miss Helen Anderson poured tea. The guests were received by Misses Jessie Kilback, Gwen Surley, Lois Liddle, Ruth Morden. The treasurers for the tea were Miss Jean Sherry and Miss June Fitzgibbon. A program by the girls was greatly enjoyed the numbers including: Welcome—Ruth Oliphant. Junior Choir—"There's a Rainbow in the Sky".

Piano Solo—Phyllis Cetrom.
Piano Solo—Lois Liddle.
Reading—Beverly Goodfellow
Piano Solo—Gwen Surley.
Trio in Pantomime — "Grand Witch I Sleep"—Misses Rosalind and Beth Robinson, Jean Hall.
Piano Solo—Dorothy Dobbs.
Junior Choir—"Song of the Ocean".

A presentation was made to Miss Lois Green, leader of the Junior Group who is leaving for Peterborough shortly. She was presented with a handle compport, a Sheffield reproduction, by Miss Lois Liddle while Mrs. Newman expressed the appreciation of the girls for her fine faithfulness as leader and extended her every wish for her entire success.

The evening closed with a pageant written and directed by Miss Myra Cunningham entitled "Canada Holds the Torch". Against the background of a white cross silhouetted against blue, the pageant was splendidly enacted with Miss Helen Bell as reader.

Four girls in their trim C.G.I.T. uniforms stood as guards of honour as Canada entered with an open Bible, "The C.G.I.T. choir sang "O Canada". Girls representing Beauty, Health, Wisdom, Purity and Truth, garbed in long white robes, their hair garlanded with white and blue flowers, and carrying lighted candles, lasting their places on the stage. As they took their places in worship the theme was sung. The tableau of Canada surrounded by the virtues, kneeling at the cross in an attitude of dedication to Christ with their lighted candles placed on the steps of the Cross made a beautiful and inspiring picture.

Qualities of a Successful Mother

She Must Not Let Own Weakness Interfere in Rearing Children

(By LIDA GRENELLE)

"DO YOU practice what you preach, Miss Grenelle?" you may ask after reading one of my columns telling you just how to rear your children. And you may add: "And I bet your own children, if you have any, are a bunch of spoiled brats."

I have a lot of nerve, haven't I, telling you how to rear your children? Especially since I don't always practice what I preach. Sometimes it's too late—sometimes I stand between myself and my own good advice. We all do that, you know. Sometimes it's vanity, sometimes laziness, sometimes fear, sometimes jealousy, sometimes some emotional inhibition rooted in our own past. We can't help ourselves. It's hard to help ourselves with baby cravings, honesty and sacrifice.

Sacrifice for Peace

My particular handicap is a horror of scenes that I have had since I was a small child. My passion to sacrifice anything to keep things pleasant, friendly.

But even peace can come at too high a price, much too high. Peace don't pay for "any price". I have forgotten it too often.

It's nice to have a harmonious home. But there are times when that happy harmony must be disturbed readily, for the sake of some lesson or principle. If everything is always sacrificed for peace, antness, the children, and perhaps even Father, will slip into lazy, selfish habits.

But while you probably "know" my particular weakness, still, being human, you probably have some faults, like the rest of us. You don't really always do the best you can, don't always follow your best judgment. You probably can't—at always.

Can Do Better

But you can do better. We can all do better. We can all be a little more honest, at least with and to ourselves. We can first admit that certain weaknesses, laziness, selfishness, cowardice, in ourselves, prevents us from doing the good we know it or have it in us to be. Then we can try hard not to let that weakness, selfish, lazy and stand between us and our best selves, between us and our children and their welfare are concerned.

We take occasional stock of ourselves; face the fact that, because we were brought up too strictly, we are lazy with our children, get completely out of control—as a foolish reaction, overweight, or nervousness, or worrie on our children, cutting off our nose to spite our face.

We can't any of us expect to be perfect parents. We will be bonehead, if we will. If we can't altogether conquer our weaknesses or our faults, we can at least make the effort to keep them suppressed—see that they don't become too often between us and our good intentions to the children.

FINGERNAIL TINTS NOW MATCH JEWELRY

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

FINGERNAILS ARE taking on all the color of the rainbow, a contrast to the recent trend to use natural polish. So it goes with beauty fads. The pendulum swings far to one side, then to the other. "The woman who has jewels to wear can please her fancy by matching her tables to match them. There's a lovely brilliant green vermilion and harmonies with emeralds; and it is no trick at all to match up one's rubies—if one has them to match.

What could be lovelier than fingernails of faint blue when the turquoise necklace or bracelet is worn? Amber is a favorite colorscheme, too. But as yellow fingernails would suggest the cigarette habit, she chooses orange finger tips. To make the picture complete, she films her eyelids with orange shadows.

Does this all sound crazy? Not at all. There are women of the exotic type who look most natural when they beat the system themselves. You've seen them, haven't you? They're always seven steps ahead of the crowd.

Have several pairs of shoes; never wear the same ones for two consecutive days. The shoe trade has come in your shoes.

Without comfortable shoes and healthy feet the body cannot be carried beautifully. Not enough attention is given to the care of the feet. Chiropodists claim that 90 women among 100 abuse their feet by wearing improper shoes.

Water drinkers usually have good skins. Water helps to ward off constipation, aids digestion and stimulates the work of the skin as an eliminating system.

Take a glass of cold water with a little lemon juice added when you get up in the morning. During the day have four glasses; take one more before going to bed. Women who have sallow skins should climb upon the water wagon. They should drink lemonade and orange juice and lettuce.

Advice to the Lovelorn

by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

"Big Sister Act" Catches None of Loves Prize.

Any number of charming but thoroughly selfish girls can learn a lesson from the following letter:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm sick and tired of being the chum, big sister and confidant of every man I meet. I want to be the best friend a man ever had; then, after telling me how perfect I am, he'll elope with the other girl, and listening to my advice, they make up with the other girl and marry her.

"I happened to be very much in love myself with two of these young men to whom I've lent a sympathetic ear. I'd have anything else to have flung my arms around the neck of either one and confidences happened at two-year intervals — and said something like: 'Why waste your love on such a creature? Take me! I love you in distraction. Marry me, and let me make you happy.'

"But, instead, my sense of honor intervened and I had to tell them how to write to those worthless silly-wits of girls and get them back. Well, it worked in both cases. And now the men are keeping on their husbands' noses to the grindstone to buy them things they don't need, in the good old-fashioned way.

"Now, very frankly, I want a husband, a home and a couple of babies. I'm tired of being that 'big sister' to dandified males who have been treated badly by other women.

"I'm 26 and haven't a great deal of time to lose. I'm not bad-looking, and I have $3,500, some of which I saved myself. Most of it was left me by a grandmother. If I found the right type of man, I'd like to put my little nest egg in a home. Why can't I find him? I'm a poor peeler, and don't drink. I have been told I'm attractive. I have no charm, create no illusion. Why should I cultivate these things when I'm not interested? I want to be loved for the things that are natural to me. What would you suggest for Unhappy."

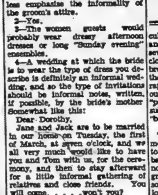
First, my dear, stop visualizing yourself as getting old. Go out and have a good time full of confidence and do not despair.



Never was a truer word spoken than "as a man thinketh in his heart so is he." You've been thinking of yourself as a spinster confidant of your men friends—a sort of sanitary in their troubles with other girls.

Do, for mercy's sake, go into reverse! Then they start telling you about their affairs, say with your gayest laugh that you've troubles of your own—and that being taken for the world's sister complex is one of them.

It would really be a good thing for you to change your treatment. Go some place that doesn't know you. Wear your prettiest clothes and don't start on this sisterly confidence business.

Unfortunately, we're taken at our own valuation in this grim old world, and if you're acting as the "Big Sister" to the distressed, that's the tag they put on you.

Now, do think about it, aren't you poaching on my preserves? Next time they begin to tell you their troubles about other girls, just tell them to write to Beatrice Fairfax.

TEE OTHER night this department had the honor of being the guest with a lot of distinguished visiting foreigners. We sat there entertaining like the cat that ate the canary while they discoursed on the glories of American womanhood. According to them we of the Land of Liberty are the most favored people on earth, and certainly the most delectable of our sex. Naturally, we agreed with them. That fast one cut down on our smirking and burned us up. We usually do, because we're a horrid suspicion that they have got a little bit the best of us.

So here's for sounding as good as we look! For one of Hollywood's voice instructors says that a beautiful voice is a combination of tonal quality and clear diction. This can be learned by practice, as many a star of Hollywood's acknowledge.

Apparently the trick to getting the right tone goes back to breathing properly. Breathe deeply and from the diaphragm, and breathe out more than in, when talking. Remember that the diaphragm presses against the frontal bones. You will feel a vibration in the front of your head and in your cheek and frontal sinuses.

After you have gotten your tone organized, the next thing to do is to go to town on learning to speak clearly. The telephone company has some simple exercises that they give the girls who are studying to be operators. And they really put them to the trick.

Here is an exercise for the lips: Extend them forward in open cir-

GOOD MANNERS

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Second Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am about to be married for the second time. The wedding will take place the middle of next month, and will be in the morning.

1—What should I wear?

2—Is it proper for the mother of either the bride or the groom to be a witness at such a wedding?

3—Should there be a lunch or wedding breakfast served after?

4—What sort of flowers should I wear?

5—Should it be announced in any way—other than the simple announcement in the paper?

H.

1—It would be excellent taste for you to wear, perhaps your travelling suit or a dress-maker suit, or a simple afternoon dress.

2—You should consult with the one who is to perform the ceremony about this.

3—Whether or not you serve wedding breakfast after the ceremony depends on your own choice. It is certainly a pleasant thing to do, and it can be very simple.

4—With your suit or simple day-dress you would probably wish to wear a corsage of gardenias, or white or light-colored orchids, or small sweetheart roses, perhaps combined with lilies-of-the-valley.

6—This too is a matter of your own preference. It is not necessary to send formal marriage announcements, but they are very convenient as a means of telling the news, when the wedding has been a small one. If you are a young bride and your mother and father are living (or if either is living) they may send out the announcements in their names. If you are the groom are older, you might very well send the announcements in your own names.

Bride's Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Would it be permissible for the bride to wear a "semi-formal evening" dress of white, providing the groom is attired in a dark business suit?

2—If so, would it be correct for the maid of honor to wear the same type of dress? The wedding is to be somewhat informal and will take place in the evening—at seven o'clock.

3—Should those attending the ceremony, both friends and relatives be dressed in street or evening clothes?

4—Please give me the correct form of invitation for a ceremony of this description?

M.

1—Yes, but keep the style of dress as simple as possible, and perhaps wear a short matching jacket. Also consider that a dress of this type, but in a darker color (such as a rich burgundy) rather than white, is more becoming and less emphasizes the informality of the groom's attire.

2—Yes.

3—The women guests would probably wear dressy afternoon dresses or long "Sunday evening" ensembles.

4—A wedding at which the bride is to wear the type of dress you describe is definitely an informal wedding, and so the type of invitations should be informal notes, written, if possible, by the bride's mother Somewhat like this:

Dear Friends:

Jane and Jack are to be married on the afternoon of Tuesday, the first of March, at seven o'clock, and we all very much would like to have you and them with us. Please save the money, and then to stay afterward for a little informal evening of relatives and close friends. You will come . . . yours truly?

Dearest love to you both.

Affectionately,

Poems That Live

MY EARLY HOME

Here sparrows build upon the trees,
And cluckdove hides her nest;
The leaves are winnowed by the breeze
Into a calmer rest:
The black-cap's song was very sweet
That used the rose to kiss;
It made the Paradise complete:
My early home was this.

The red-breast from the sweetbrier bush
Dropped down to pick the worm:
On the horse-chestnut sang the thrush,
The lover where I was born;
The moonlight, like a shower of pearls,
Fell o'er this 'lower of bliss',
And on the bench sat boys and girls:
My early home was this.

The old house stooped just like a cave,
Thatched o'er with mosses green;
Winter around the walls would rave
In vain,
But all was calm within;
The year are here all green again,
Here bees and flowers still kiss,
But flowers and trees seemed sweeter then:
My early home was this.

Dainty Cotton Dresses Practical For Child

Washability Needed in Garments for Little Folk

By - LIGHTH

IN THE MIDDLE of February we celebrate children's week—at least the style circles do. It is a time when the attention of fashion is centered on attractive dresses, coats and suits for the growing generation.

Smart young costumes are shown in new and attractive designs, and youthful fabrics take the spotlight in patternings and treatments to combine the simplicity and practicability necessary in clothes which must survive the wear and tear of energetic, carefree play.

Washability, of course, is of prime importance in these frocks for little people. And party frocks, as well as everyday dresses, must be able to be popped into the washtub and come out with no loss of freshness or virality.

Fine Swiss cottons, with their clarity of pattern and smooth, permanent finish are known to be one of the ideal fabrics for little girls' frocks. This year these fine cottons are appearing in new and softer finishes as well as in the well-known crisp types. These soft finishes are just as permanent as their predecessors, and they have a certain amount of body which makes them easy to drape and handle, but they have plenty of perkiness to them.

For Best Dresses

For Sunday or special occasions the new sloane organdies are very charming and practical. These come in new "thick-and-thin" effects with a seersucker-like crepey patterning against a sheer soft organdie ground. This combination of qualities make it possible to achieve unusually interesting effects.

Multi-color floral prints, in large or close designs are equally lovely in pale or deep color combinations. They are an excellent taste, and may be worn for everyday taste, and may be worn for everyday as well as for festive occasions.

A case in point is the grammar schoolgirl frock shown here which uses a bright, many-colored flower print, simply made, and with trimmings of lace-edged ruffles, of plain white organdie round the high neck and short puffed sleeves. A wide velvet ribbon sash in the predominating color of the print ends neatly at the side front of the high waist.

Do Not Wrinkle

These crepey materials do not soil easily and are not marred by crushing or wrinkling.

The allover embroidered or cut-out embroidered organdies are as popular as ever for frocks for the young miss. White dots are embroidered on a clear pink Swiss organdie background for the diminutive frock worn by the little girl sitting on the rock. White Val lace edges the white collar and tiny puffed sleeves. The unbelted frock falls in wide spaced pleats from a tiny shoulder yoke and small pearl buttons fasten the front closing, which is finished with a little pink satin bow.

A pink ribbon in her blonde hair, and pink or white socks complete as pretty and dainty an ensemble for the small girl as any mother could hope to see.

Problems Of Mothers Who Work

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

MANY MOTHERS must work. Some do so merely from choice. Obviously working mothers have problems with their children which non-working mothers who don't and about too much need not have.

Many working mothers cannot afford to hire competent person to care for their children. Others cannot easily find such. The working mother naturally is inclined to have anxiety about the children while she is at work. Besides she may have all the regular household cares following a heavy day, when it will be difficult for her to be a good companion to the children. Fortunately many dads help her with the work. Wonderful when the older children are trained to help also. Doing so, they may gain in character training just because their mother works—self-reliance and responsibility. Some of the finest children and youths of our country have working mothers.

As a rule, children from one to ten or twelve loss much when mother works. They need her companionship for which there hardly can be an ideal substitute. If she has guided them well up to 15 and can be serene and happy with them in the evenings, they might not lose because of her working; they even might gain.

Ideal Care Taker

Ideally, the mother left at home with the children should be one who will have complete responsibility for their discipline in the mother's absence and be fit to have it. When the mother is coming home attempts to discipline the children for wrong conduct in her absence, is a source of troubles will arise. She will be inclined to scold and over-question them and they to deceive her. With growing confidence by the mother and growing deceit by the child inevitable difficulties pile up.

It is hard enough with the large number of working mothers with one or two child between 10 and 15 who steals. He has probably faced more temptations to steal and more successfully "got out of it" than other children have. If the mother is away she has to court with their children, tempting them to lie.

All mothers need to put more trust in genuine love, gentleness and golden rule in home. Certainly the working mother does.

Ocean currents appreciably modify the climate in different parts of the world.

SMOOTH DIET AND REST FOR COLITIS

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.—three ounces of kaolin to five ounces of water, two or three times a day.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

P. A. M.: "Will you say something about gall bladder trouble and treatment for same?"

Answer: The gall bladder is one of those headache spots in the body where fluid lies stagnant for some time before being moved on and, like all such places, is extremely subject to infection. Infection which gets in the gall bladder may form catarrah, or pus, or gallstones, depending on circumstances. Treatment may be conservative, in the form of a mild diet rather high in fats, such as yolks of eggs and cheese, which tends to empty the gall bladder, and the use of salts in a glass of water in the morning before breakfast. Or if things grow more serious, complete cure may be obtained through surgical operation.

H. H. P.: "Could you please give me information on the use of hydrogen peroxide as a bleach stone for superfluous hair?"

Answer: The technique is as follows: A preliminary application of the following prescription is used: Hydrogen peroxide 10cc; benzol, water and diluted nitric, to make 60 cc. This application should be left on the face for one or two hours, or better, if the patient can stand it, all night. The hairs become bleached and brittle under this treatment. After that a pumice stone, which has been moistened by rubbing two pieces of pumice stone together until they are smooth, should be used to sandpaper the area of the superfluous hairs for five minutes, once or twice daily, in the direction of their growth. If the skin becomes irritated, the treatment should be discontinued for a few days and zinc oxide ointment used to allay the irritation.

TWO TART FOODS MAY SPOIL MENU

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Beef Pot Roast	Riced Potatoes
Harvard Beets	Cabbage Salad
Date Cake	Tea or Coffee

I would use a mild dressing for the cabbage salad, as the beets have a tart taste.

Today's Recipes

HARVARD BEETS. — Twelve small beets or two cups cooked beets, cubed; two tablespoons butter, one-half tablespoon cornstarch, one-fourth cup sugar, one-half cup mild vinegar, one-half teaspoon salt. Canned or cooked beets may be used. The small beets may be left whole, if desired. Melt butter in a saucepan. Add cornstarch and blend it in well (three-fourths of a teaspoon flour may be used instead.) Stir in sugar. Add vinegar slowly, stirring it in carefully to make a smooth paste. Add beets and let stand in a warm place until beets are warmed through and nicely flavored with the sauce. Add salt and pepper, and more sugar, if needed. This amount serves four.

DATE CAKE. — Two-thirds cup butter, one and one-half cups brown sugar, three eggs, three and one-half cups flour, five teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one teaspoon salt, one and one-fourth cups sweet milk, one and one-half cups dates, chopped. Cream butter and sugar together. Add well-beaten eggs. Beat until light and fluffy. Sift flour once. Measure. Add baking powder, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt, and sift again. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk to butter mixture. Add dates, which have been pulled and chopped. Mix well. FACTS AND FANCIES

Keep Your Car Clean

Our automobiles, just like our homes, cost less for upkeep when we take regular care of them. So give the car the care it deserves and a thorough cleaning every so often, suggests Helen M. Ridley of Good Housekeeping Institute.

To clean the car take out the seats and floor rugs and brush the dirt and gravel with a whiskbroom, she advises. For the upholstery use a medium stiff brush. Be sure to clean the windows, ledges and polish the instrument board. Then plug your hand vacuum into a convenient outlet in the garage and clean the backcurtain of the large cleaner. With this go over everything—vacuuming the seats, side upholstery and floor mats. Finally rinse the hose on the rubber floor mat.

Regular care of these items includes frequent dusting of the interior and exterior.

Remove dead insects that stick to the windshield and headlights with a glass cleaning preparation. Then, with a soft cloth, polish the glass till it sparkles. Be sure to keep handy an upholstery brush and whiskbroom for seats and floors and use them with time the car is driven. Keep paper towels handy, too, for cleaning the steering wheel or removing grease and dirt from doors. Keep the heating out of which the gear shift rises.

'Didn't Even See the Blow That Knocked Me Out' Says Nate Mann in Losing to Louis

Brown Bomber Regains Much Prestige Lost in Previous Bouts

LIFTED OFF FLOOR

Final Right Hand Smash Like an Explosion of Dynamite

BY SAM ROBERTSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Feb. 24.—(CP)— Joe Louis today had added some lustre to his world heavyweight boxing crown—to say nothing of $40,000 to his bankroll— by butchering Nate Mann in less than eight minutes.

The dusky destroyer of old, the champion pole-axed his Connecticut challenger, built on the lines of a bullock, and put him down for the fourth and last time after one minute, 56 seconds of the third round here last night.

In scoring his convincingly quick victory before a $111,000 crowd in Madison Square Garden, Joe regained considerably the prestige he lost in his first, title-defence, when Tommy Farr lasted the full route of 15 rounds.

Mann's First K. O.

For Mann never knocked out in 46 fights—nine more than the Detroit champion has had—was on his way into the shadows mid-way through the second round.

He dropped a looping right on the Louis chin about that time and swung plenty. But the answer proved his downfall, incorrectly thinking he "had" the titleholder, he dropped his guard for a split-second. Then the roof fell on him—or rather a left-hand bomb.

Through torn lips, after the fight, he said he didn't remember anything after that blinding flash. He didn't remember a tornadic blast of right and left that put him down for a nine-count. Nor did he remember the second round bell that rallied seven rather prolonged the agony.

Arms Were Leaden

After colliding with another lethal left as the third-round bell also echoed, Mann—a way-ins Nathan tried to fight back but his arms were leaden. Twice he went down under the savagery of the champion, who was plainly like a tiger. The challenger's head was full of cobwebs and he didn't stay down for a breather.

His handsome features resembled nothing so much as uncooked hamburger when Louis applied the chloroform. The final, crushing right-hand punch lifted Mann's 195 pounds into the air and spun him in a complete circle.

The bruised and bloodied challenger pulled himself to his feet. As referee Arthur Donovan tolled the count it seemed Mann was praying for the strength to rise. But it wasn't forthcoming, and the uneven travel ended with Nate kneeling in Louis' corner.

Scored With Good Rights

Mann, entering the ring at odds as long as 5 to 7, gave his backers agoung the crowd of 19,500 a brief flurry of cheer in the first round of the scheduled 15-rounder.

Although his wide-open style gave Louis plenty of room to spear home a half-dozen lefts, that drew blood from his nose, the Connecticut clouter threw caution to the winds twice and scored with good rights.

He got a couple more home in the second before crashing through with a one-two assault that pulled the crowd, always anxious to see a titleholder upset, out of their seats. But it only started Nate on the road to his final knockout, and first defeat since Steve Dudas took a sixrounder from him in 1936.

"That Louis sure can punch and he hurt me plenty," Mann beaten and sad after they helped him from the ring. "I didn't even see the blow that knocked me out."

Junior Entrant in 'A' Series Play Final in Toronto Saturday

WIN HARD WAY

Taylor Scores Two Goals And Assisted in Others

(By The Canadian Press)

The Ontario Hockey Association's Senior "A" title race neared its climax today as Toronto Goodyears and Port Colborne waited for the starting whistle Friday night in the first game of their best three-of-five game series for the championship.

Goodyears reached the final rung by finishing the League schedule in first place, while the second-place team had to eliminate the third-place Oshawa G-men before claiming the right to play Goodyears. Skellers did that in two straight games, ending their series Tuesday night with a 5-2 victory.

The battling Oshawa team lengthened the Junior "A" championship hunt last night by getting a 4-3 decision over Young Rangers of Toronto and evening their two-of-three game series at one game each. The final game between the two teams for the right to meet Toronto Marlboros for the Dominion Michael's majors in the loop's other semi-final series, will be played Saturday.

Oshawa won their game lhe hard way last night. They grabbed a two-goal lead in the first period, but saw it slip away when Young Rangers snatched a pair of markers in the second and another in the third. Two quick goals near the end of the game, however, finished the scoring.

Taylor, who scored the last two Oshawa goals and assisted Dafoe in the others, was hero of the game. Thompson, Howard and Scott rapped in the three Young Rangers' counters.

In another decisive O.H.A. playdown game last night, Elora Rocks advanced to the intermediate "B" group playoffs by defeating Fergus Tribe 3-2. Camp Borden Flyers Acton Canucks and Barrie Flyers all won playoff games, which did not complete their series.

Sports Roundup

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 24. — (AP) — Concentrated notes: —That's Joe Louis . . . When the Brown Bombing champ wades in and starts swinging that left hand, it's curtains, it's just too bad. . . . Last night he looked like the same fellow who was bumping off Max Baer, Primo Carnera and a couple of roats back. . . . Nathan Mann is a good game kid—a little too game for his own good. . . .

Mann has been dazed and groggy and likely was a good bit of both, but not so much so that he forgot to congratulate Joe and shake his hand before leaving the ring.

Mention of Tommy Farr's name got a terrific booing. . . . Take a bow for yourself, Mr. Terrible Terry, any time you can sign up two such bull-headed gents as Messrs. Harry Denning and Hankus Paukus Leiber in one afternoon it's a good week's work in any league. . . . One of the fighters in the golden gloves the other night appeared wearing a dressing gown (borrowed we hope) labelled "Yankee Jowett" . . . Mickey Cochrane is keeping his fingers well crossed until he sees Schoolboy Rowe on the field there and chuck a few hard ones.

Earle Sande will try to do a repeat with Somethifler, a full brother of Stagehand, in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap. . . . Louis probably will defend his title in April and again in an outdoor show in May before jousting with Herr Schmeling. . . . Those Norwegian skaters in the Sonja Henie troupe found the Florida sun burn tough going. . . . Sonja Henie now is packing 'em in at the Miami dog tracks. . . . Some of the know-ills ails around town crying Tommy Lasseri until July 4th to blow that Cub contract to Ottawa. . . . Unless he's manager by that time. . . .

The illegal sport of cock-fighting is a major pastime in the state of North Carolina.

CLIFF MANAHAN IS TOP FAVORITE

Alberta Curling Rink Picked to Retain Dominion Title

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)—Cliff Manahan, who comes from a part of the Dominion's curling population learn to curl as soon as they can lift the stones, will lead the Granite Royal Rink bocked today as favorite to retain the Canadian championship in Macdonald's Brier competition.

A bunch of sharpshooters from across Canada will be on hand seeking to wrest the title from Manahan in play which starts here Monday. Nine provincial winners are eligible for the title, which Manahan also won in 1933, while Northern Ontario has separate representation.

Bill Manahan's four, unchanged from last year, showed in sweeping to the Alberta title that it had lost none of its power. Made up of Lloyd Eby, third; Ken Manahan, second, and Wes Robinson as vice-skip, the Manahan rink defeated Thompson, Sask., rink in two straight games in a best-of-three series.

5,000 Spectators at Game

To prove Western Canada takes its curling seriously, there were more than 5,000 spectators at the final for the Manitoba championship when Ab Gowanlock's Glenboro started defeating Bill Gerrard's Winnipeg team 19-7.

Gowanlock's rink of three were E. R. and W. D. McKnight, at first and second respectively, and E. C. Garfield in the third spot.

While each province has named challengers, Bert Hall, Edmonton having taken the Ontario crown last night with a 13-8 victory over a Toronto curling club four skipped by T. R. Graham, Northern Ontario has yet to name its representative. Billy Best's Sault Ste. Marie four will play J. Ross Fyfe's Fort William rink Saturday for the right to enter Canadian championship play.

Here are the rinks:

British Columbia, Billy Pyke, Vancouver; Alberta, Cliff Manahan, Edmonton; Manitoba, Ab. Gowanlock, Glenboro; Saskatchewan, Dr. M. I. Humphries; Ontario, Bert Hall, Edmonton; Quebec, Harold G. Crean, Quebec; Nova Scotia, G. W. Durant, Halifax; New Brunswick, D. F. Connolly, Batburst; Prince Edward Island, Rankine McLellan, Charlottetown; Northern Ontario, Billy Best, Sault Ste. Marie, or J. R. Walker, Timmins.

OUTSIDE SKATERS WILL APPEAR

Winter Ice Show at Arena to be Brilliant Affair

Two outstanding skaters from the Toronto Skating Club, Miss Margaret Manahan and Miss Shirley Halstead, have been engaged to appear in person and skate as feature attractions during tonight's Winter Ice Show, presented by the Quinte Skating Club at the Belleville Arena.

Miss Manahan and Miss Halstead are both graduates of Toronto's leading skating executive only after considerable effort on their part. The two Toronto skaters will perform as soloists and also as pairs, rounded in as added number for the entertainment of the lovers of fancy and figure skating.

The Quinte Skating Club is presenting its first Winter Ice Show, the second of its kind ever to be attempted in Belleville, the Toronto Skating Club presenting an all fancy and figure skating programme some years ago. The combined talents of the two stars, solos and duets will be only part of a programme that includes ballet and a feature showing of "The Kindergarten Wedding", a presentation of color and dance staged by the junior skating members of the local club.

Mrs. B. Wrose, nee Miss Olivia Davies and Clare Ridley are the soloists from the Quinte Skating Club. Some twenty-five members will be on the ice throughout the during which over fifty skaters will appear on the ice at intervals.

SPRINGFIELD OUT OF PLAYOFF SPOT

Pittsburgh Spiked Their Chances by Winning 1-0

(By The Canadian Press)

After enjoying several seasons all wherein attendance and financial returns approached boom proportions the Springfield Indians have taken on evil days. The team coached by Georges (Buck) Boucher has failed to click this season with the consistency necessary to clinch a playoff spot in the International-American Hockey League. With championship hopes fading the fans are deserting the club transferred some years ago by Lucien Garneau to Springfield.

The Indians took another beating last night. Pittsburgh edged out a 1-0 decision in the Smoky City to regain second place in the Western Division standings. After two scoreless frames Don Deacon, Hornet center, backhanded the winning shot past goalie Benny Grant at the quarter mark of the final frame.

The Indians, who dropped a 4-1 decision the night previous to Philadelphia Ramblers just about killed their hopes of catching the third place New Haven Eagles who are six points ahead and who have played a game less.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

President Frank Calder and his professional hockey moguls have officially declared "open season" on amateur hockey players, regardless as to age. Yesterday the N.H.L. announced they had entered into an agreement with the C.A.H.A. relative to the signing of junior aged players. "We are free to approach amateurs as we see fit now, no matter what the age, and without consulting the amateur heads in the future," declared Prexy Calder, which is as it should be because Frankie's word is law and can be called his own for a change.

Whether the above announcement had anything to do with yesterday's Fred Street rumor, regarding Lucie Lecompte signing with the New York Rangers, we cannot say, but we do know that two professional scouts took in the Flyer-Peterboro game on Tuesday. We explained Skipper Tommy Lawrence relative to Lecompte's possible signing with the Rangers—"It's news to me, there was no professional scout in our dressing room that I know of and if I was told there were two present I'd smile," added Tommy Lawrence. Incidentally when Lecompte was penalized on Tuesday night he drew his first O.H.A. penalty of the current season.

We doubt if the Redmen were ever seen at a better advantage than they were against Queen's. If they continue to play that particular brand of hockey in the O.H.A. series, Belleville can look forward to another intermediate mug to adorn the mantel. The redmen are deserving of far better patronage than they are receiving at the hands of the fans, who seem satisfied to sit home and receive the results over the telephone. The Kingston and Carrying squads attracted good crowds for their play-off, so the Redmen now have to swim a heavy tide before entering the intermediate "A" playdowns.

We understand the Peterboro hockey management is dissatisfied with the Air Force heads relative to moving Friday night's game to Trenton, Oshawa or Kingston, if said weather continued as the game was called off on Tuesday night. Eventually Manager Tommy Lawrence decided he was not in favor of the suggestion. Incidentally we wonder if the Fetes don't regret moving the venue of their own home stands first. Down in Peterboro the Fetes' fans are playing before empty houses, while up in Oshawa the fans have plenty of hockey of their own, plus interclub and Junior games, and could not be expected to patronize outside attractions to any great realm. There's another angle for the Flyers to take a leaf from and they didn't fare too badly against all opposition on Tuesday night, but see them Friday here. Get it?

Coach "Toots" Holway received communication from the Ontario Junior Hockey Association yesterday stating that his Belleville "Bees" had been drawn in the "B" for the O.H.A. playdowns. They meet the winner of the Cobourg-Campbellford series. Last night's juvenile game was cancelled in order to keep the ice in shape for tonight's Winter Ice Carnival and tomorrow night's O.H.A. fixture. The local juveniles will work out again tonight. Saturday morning the players are requested to be on hand early for a short lecture.

It was most gratifying to read a recent editorial in the Picton Times eulogizing the efforts of Billie Hughes, who undoubtedly did much to revive hockey interest in the Prince Edward County mail this season. When the Picton junkos fell before Napanee juniors, the latter hammered Billie Hughes was forced out of the Picton hockey picture. Commenting on the Times' editorial was at last appreciated and received due praise, it was the finest gesture on the part of the Times is what might be termed kindness.

The Peterboro Hockey Club will be accompanied to Belleville by about 200 fans aboard a special train for Friday night's Flyer-Fete game at the arena. The entire lot will end and two sections of "reserved" seats have been purchased by the Peterboro contingent, which is a far better gesture than saluted visitors who travelled when specials are run into the Quinte City, ask Joe Steele M.C., they know the answer.

The Flyers returned from Peterboro disappointed in defeat, but not discouraged. "We had the Fetes on the run and only one goal on us, but the boys became too anxious in their ganging acts with the result the Fetes broke away several times with only Cohen to beat. It was a regular disappointing affair with the locals lost, but Friday night's game should see a "comeback," stated Skipper Lawrence this morning. Incidentally there is considerable ill feeling between the Fetes and Flyers, the players selling down as much as speaking to each other. With such feelings predominating Friday nightly tilt will no doubt see a record-breaking attendance, so come early and don't disappointed at the box office.

With Billy Ions than a lot of courage and a pair of boxing gloves, Nathan Mann, Connecticut's first heavyweight challenger, was served notice at the will of Champion Joe Louis last night in the third round. Louis, who had been cool in the first, hit him with the force of a pile driver in the second and polished Mann off in the third. The challenger never saw so many gloves tearing at his face. As a matter of fact he never saw a good right to the forehead for the Brown Bomber.

HOOKE POODE: They do say "Dizzy" Dean is going to take a cut and signed with the Cardinals for a paltry $17,500 and maybe the ballyboo either. Could it be Dean is saving his talk up for Mickey Cochrane? . . . Woodstock lawn bowlers eliminate Toronto team" is the heading to read on the sporting morning paper these cold frosty mornings. Perhaps the Toronto lawn incident occurred down under the Florida sun. . . . Florida . . . just learned the Garrison and Kingston saw off on Friday night, so the Redmen should be prepared to get into the O.H.A. swim early next week. . . .

It must have been quite a shock to Walter Grier's Napanee side, we refer to the 9-0 trouncing the Tweeds handed the Grier outfit, Belleville speedsters in Napanee last night. . . . Get the large ice facilities even matters in Lindsay, we'd imagine, as the series is the best two out of three. No game for a possible third game, Wah."

SMILE?

- Why wouldn't I smile?
- I had to have a new suit in a hurry on account of a hurried business call to Toronto.
- I picked out the suit in the morning—a remarkable fit—a few simple alterations — delivered in the afternoon.

CRUCIAL MATCH OF SERIES FRIDAY

Airmen And Fetes Renew Rivalry For Group Honors

Jockeying for the advantageous position, of the two victories, both the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" and the Peterboro' seniors will be shooting for victory on Friday night in the third, and, if possible, five game series, match for their respective senior "B" O.H.A. group title.

The "Airmen" take the first decision of the series, a 1 to 0 victory in Peterboro. While the Fetes drew up even by virtue of a 7 to 3 victory over the Flyers on the home ice Tuesday. The two squads again on an even keel, take to the ice here on Friday, with the fourth game slated for Peterboro' on Monday next.

Both games to date have been torrid matches with feelings riding to a point of battle at various times, the first tilt terminating in a minor out-break of fisticuffs. Skipper Tommy Lawrence has moved Dan Cowley back into the breach left by the absence of Jeannie Longlode, who incidentally is quite desirous of getting into tomorrow night's game. Lalonde assured the Flyers' management today his injured shoulder was much improved and he believed the injury to be sufficiently healed to permit him to play Friday, although Cowley is turning in a fine effort in his absence.

The teams will probably line-up as follows:

R.C.A.F.		Peterboro'
Gibson	Goal	Harding
Partridge	Right Defence	Brennan
Cowley	Left Defence	Weir
Lecompte	Centre	Calladine
Legris	Right Wing	Vharelli
	Left Wing
Sale		Starr
Eric McKeeley		McDougall
Wingate		Tompkins
Halvard		Kingdon
Elliott		Barnes
Deming		Williamson

BESEIGE MOUNTAIN PASS

Hendaye, France, Feb. 24—(AP)—Spanish Insurgents fighting their way down the Segundo highway southeast of Irun, today laid siege to the mountain pass of Escandon where strong government barricades barred the route to the Mediterranean seacoast.

The age of great migration is ended, says a geologist, pointing out that mining booms and pioneering no longer carry large populations groups into new territory.

"TRY TO GRASP THE OTHER PERSON'S POINT OF VIEW" SAYS DALE CARNEGIE

Author of the famous book "HOW TO WIN FRIENDS AND INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

FOR INSTANCE

"Any psychologist will tell you not to condemn people who disagree with you. If you do, you will find yourself becoming like the old Quaker who said to his wife 'Everyone is queer except thee and me—and sometimes I think thee is a little queer, too!'

"Remember that there are two sides to every question."

"There is always a reason why men and women think and act the way they do. But, to discover it, you have to put yourself in the other person's place.

"The ability to do that is rather rare. That is why those who possess it acquire a reputation for exceptional skill in handling human relationships."

"There is no better way to acquire that skill than in dealing with children. Children look at everything in a way out of their own.

"Next time your boy wants to build a bonfire on the front lawn, for instance, don't just order him to 'quit that foolishness!'"

"Instead you might say something like this: 'Bonfires are a lot of fun. I like to build them myself. But they are out of place and dangerous here. Some day we'll find a safe place and I'll help you to build a real fire.' "What a difference that kind of technique makes!"

HAVE YOU SMOKED A TURRET LATELY?

IT would be a funny world if everybody agreed on everything. That's never will, of course, and that is why there will always be many brands of cigarettes from which to choose. But, because Turrets please so many other smokers who have definite ideas of what they want, Turrets may please you, too. Turrets, you know, are made from fine Virginia tobaccos in an original and unique blend. And for your convenience, there's a handy pocket calendar on the back of every package. BUILD ROADS TO ATTRACT TOURISTS

Highway Minister Says Roads Should be Built First at Border

Toronto, Feb. 24—(CP)— New highways should first be built at border points to attract tourists, in the opinion of Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario's Minister of Highways, raising money for highway expenditures. A community should pay only the percentage of roads costs that is of value to the community.

J. G. Cameron, County Engineer for Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, said cities which benefited by the tourist trade and the likelihood of road transportation contributed less than five per cent of road costs. "Those who benefit by improved roads should pay for them," he said.

The chances of surviving its first year of life have since 1929 been in favor of the city-born baby; previously the country baby held this advantage.

He told the annual convention of the Ontario Good Roads Association here yesterday that $106,000,000 a year is derived from the tourist trade, which, he said, made it "practically the most important group of industries in Ontario."

Mr. McQuesten stressed the importance of keeping the province's highway system up-to-date. Tourists from the United States, he said, must be greeted with driving facilities of the standard to which they were accustomed in their own country.

J. N. Allan, Reeve of Dunnville, told the Association the value of real estate is not a fair basis for

HOW TO MAKE ARREST

Salt Lake City, Feb. 24 (AP)—State Highway Patrol Superintendent E. Whitney Evans gives these six the following recipe for making an arrest:

"Make them gently but firmly, with just the proper balance between politeness and righteous dignity."

Changeable Weather Affects Cars, Watches and Clocks

Recurring Cold And Warm Days Form Condensation in Mechanisms

REPAIRMEN BENEFIT

Auto mechanics and watch makers have benefited by the recent changeable weather.

The mercurial cold and warm days, plus the noticeable winter dampness recently have acted not only upon the carburetors of city-owned automobiles, resulting in extremely slow or total non-starting of their engines, but also upon main springs of watches, causing them to break and snap through the action of the recurring near zero and above freezing temperatures.

"I don't know when we've had so much business resulting," said watches, clocks and car engines many residents of the city will agree through personal experience, in a further article.

DINING CAR CHIEF RETIRES LOCAL RUN

E. J. "Charlie" Phillips, who for twenty-seven years served as dining car steward with the first old Grand Trunk Railway and latterly the Canadian National Railways, and who made his last run on the Montreal-Chicago run, whose retirement this week is announced from Toronto, is well known on the Belleville-Toronto run by C.N.R.

Mr. Phillips retains many proud memories of his service on this famous railway which saw service the Prince of Wales and other notables from time to time.

Though officially retired from active employment, Mr. Phillips has announced from his Toronto home that first he will take a trip to Jamaica, then probably "go into some kind of business."

HOPE FOR SNOW PLAY SPRING SEED

Though brief and of scanty measurement on fields of the surrounding countryside, yesterday's snowfall has aroused hope by agricultural purists of the district who saw in the white blanket a protective insulation against recurring frosts which might have caused later damage by heaving of the ground. "We need a foot of good snow right now before the heavy Spring frosts and thaws set in." it was stated by local seed dealers, who report also the first sales of seed grain comparatively heavy.

Potatoes will be a good crop this year, it is indicated by early orders.

MARKET COMMENT

The improvement that developed in the stock markets in face of an apparent political crisis in England caused considerable comment. The resignation of Anthony Eden, while deplored in some sections of the country, nevertheless resulted in easing the tension that had been developing between Great Britain and the dictator nations—Germany and Italy. Premier Neville Chamberlain informed the British House of Commons that a war with Italy had been averted. The better market tone is no doubt a reflection of the easing of tension in Europe, particularly as between Great Britain and Italy.

All that is needed now is a moderate pick-up in business in the United States and a similar improvement here, and the security markets could stage a sharp reversal of form. Considerable funds are available for securities but restoration of confidence is needed before these funds will be used.

UNOFFICIAL DIPLOMAT

Rumors in diplomatic circles at Rome have it that Lady Chamberlain, ADVICE, wife of Sir Austen Chamberlain and sister in law of the British premier, did not small part in preparing the ground for an Anglo-Italian agreement. Italian Foreign Minister Ciano is reported to have told one diplomat that England and Italy would reach an understanding "when her brother-in-law (including Lady Chamberlain) gives the signal." Lady Chamberlain has spent several months in Rome and has reportedly had interviews with Premier Mussolini.

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows was standing around the lam post talking and arguing about different subjects such as how many bees it would take to whip a sparrow, and all of a sudden we noticed somebody standing there watching and listening, being the new girl that just moved in next store to me, being a long legged girl named Quincella Sniggsby with more freckles than most fellows, and Skinny Martin said, Hay fellows, let's have contest to see who can jump the furthest from a stake. So on Shorty, you go first, we'll go according to size so I'll go last, he said.

Jim being the champeen standing broad jumper and proving he wanted to show off in front of the new girl, and we started to have a contest with Shorty Judge going first and making a pretty long one a jump considering the short size of his legs, and Bill Brandy went next and jumped about 3 inches further, and Skinny Martin said, You're the next biggest, Glasses, it's your turn.

Okay, watch me make a record hay, what's going on here? Glasses Magee said.

Meaning Antonette Sniggsby stepping up fast then and she took a jump and jumped about a foot further than Sid Hunt's jump, and Glasses changed his mind about wanting to jump and started to argue with me about whose turn it was, and we measured our backs together and he was the shortest so he had to jump, and then he jumped the longest jump of anybody and then Antonette hurled herself to another jump and beat me easy, and then it was Skinny Martin's turn and he left all his breath out and took it all back again and beat everybody about a foot, and then Antonette jumped a fearse jump and beat Skinny's jump all holler and walked away looking satisfied, and us other fellows all piddled Skinny Martin, making him feel worse and us better.

4-NATION PACT

nents in Warwickshire tomorrow night.

Mr. Chamberlain was reported to be determined to strive above all for a European pact uniting Italy, Germany, France and Great Britain.

Sir Neville Henderson, British Ambassador in Berlin, was understood to have been instructed to prepare the way for talks with Ribbentrop during his stay in London.

Napoleon Influences

Emphasis on the prospects for a four-power pact was increased by reports Premier Mussolini, who first proposed such an agreement, was eager to reach an understanding tending to diminish the influence of Russia in western Europe.

The question of what specific accord could be reached with Italy alone, however, became more involved as a cabinet minister hinted the government is not over-confident regarding the prospects of agreement.

"This is not a wager as to whether in the end an agreement will be reached with Italy or not," Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said in a speech before the Buckingham Conservative Club.

Insidious Open Sore

"The question is whether it is right to open conversations. If decided they lead to ultimate agreement on honorable terms, this will be a happy conclusion. But even if they do not, this won't prove that it was not right to enter upon conversations."

Insistence by Italy on a greater voice in administration of the Suez Canal, it was feared in some quarters, would make it difficult to arrive at a full Mediterranean accord. But would not exclude a less ambitious agreement.

WARNINGS

of Fukien, from which the distance to Kyushu would be at least 700 miles.

While Kyushu still watched anxiously for enemy raiders, Kagoshima, southernmost major city of the island, suffered a disastrous fire of mysterious origin, apparently not connected with the war. Two persons were killed, many injured, 150 made homeless and 350 houses destroyed.

Defence headquarters at Fukuoka, on Kyushu, gave word of the approach of the 10,000 ton planer, Domei (Japanese news agency) reported.

Storks were sounded also in Yamaguchi Province, on the main island of Honshu. The great port of Nagasaki, population 211,000 was warned of the approach of the planes, which would have to cross 500 miles of the East China Sea to reach Japan.

19 Planes Sighted

A communique from the Japanese Formosa garrison said 19 planes were sighted over the sea northeast of Formosa, heading eastward. (This would point them in the general direction of Kyushu.)

Formosa counted eight dead and 39 injured as a result of yesterday's attacks. The island was on the alert for a possible second raid by Chinese bombers from somewhere on China's east coast, 300 miles to the west.

Japanese Bomb Attaderene

Shanghai, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Japanese planes raided Chinese airdromes on the northeast China front today in search for the bases from which Chinese yesterday bombarded the Japanese island of Formosa.

Reduces Varicose or Swollen Veins

Simple Home Treatment Proves It At Small Cost

The world progresses. Today many minor ailments that took weeks to overcome can be helped much more quickly. If you have various veins or bunched start today to bring them back to normal size and if you are what you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at Doyle's Drug Store or any druggist that has it and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. In a short time the veins should begin to grow smaller and by regular use soon approach normal.

People who want to reduce varicose veins or bunched swellings, should not hesitate to try a bottle at once. It is so penetrating and economical that a small bottle lasts a long time.

ONIONS FOR MOUNTIES

Perhaps it is not really important that fifty pounds of onions a year will be allowed as a ration to each man in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police; and not very important that "grape fruit juice, two dozen per man per year" will replace the "one box" of apples per man per year." Except perhaps that that will identify the grape fruit interests, whose habitat, if our information is correct, is California, have scored over the apple interests, native principality of British Columbia. — Calgary Albertan.

Young Adventurers Cross Floe; Scorn Advice

Apparently emulating the feats of the Russian scientists who rescued for months on a moving ice floe and scorned rescue before their scheduled time, was accomplished four adventurous youngsters made their way across the ice-jam near the upper bridge yesterday, intent more upon investigation of what lay beyond the course down river than regard for their personal safety.

Shouts or spectators nearby brought the youngsters from the perils who apparently were having the time of their lives crossing the treacherous, floes tumbling, tipping from one jagged piece to another.

The arrival of an anxious parent, who later turned out to be an irate one, and there was a different audience, brought the youthful adventurers aboard in more or less hurry.

17 Pairs of Socks Reported 'Lifted'

Shoplifters were reported active in the city on a recent date, a large quantity of socks being reported stolen from a store at different points during the week. The manager stated that seventeen pairs of socks had disappeared from the store on Wednesday. "We missed eight pairs of fine cashmere Thursday night and nine pairs yesterday," he informed P. O. Sveens upon his investigation. Two boys were considered to have been responsible.

While working in connection with the shoplifting of the socks, a teenaged boy was apprehended stealing candy from the same store, P. O. Evans escorted the lad to the police station. Accompanied by a companion who ran away as the manager approached the lads in the shop, the boy to be caught, was seen taking candy from the candy department.

Early Sunday Dancing Opposed

Local and district fishermen are overhauling nets and gear, preparatory to an early season start on lake fishing. According to reports, the ice pack in Lake Ontario, though piled high on shore stretches for but a comparatively short distance out, indicating an early break up. Fishing this year has been quieter in the Bay of Quinte as it is stated by local dealers, though recent warmer weather has caused some movement in shoal waters of the bay. As yet no signs of carp or suckers have been noted, it is stated.

Ingenuous Youth Fashions Lathe from Machine

Ingenuity and a few tools will at times work wonders. At least so think residents of Huff's Island who of late have been viewing with admiration some excellent handicraft of one of their number.

All Malcolm Wallbridge, eighteen year old youth needed to provide him outlet for his natural woodcarving talents was a small electric motor, a broken-down sewing-machine and a few tools.

A few days work on the sewing machine soon converted it into a useful lathe. A pulley wheel and a small belt to connect to the infinitive motor provided the power. His father's woodpile provided a slab of seven inch maple for the wood, and young Wallbridge provided a jackknife, some tools and the ingenuity.

Yesterday he presented a local church organization with a beautiful hand-carved electric lamp.

Police Blotter

From a parking lot at the upper end of Front St. an automobile, used by George Tulk as the Belleville-Point Anne taxi, was stolen last night. Police investigations failed to recover the vehicle. The matter was reported to the authorities at midnight and despite a thorough search of the district the vehicle was not found.

An erroneous report from Napanee hastened Mr. Tulk to that town in search of his missing car, but no signs of the vehicle were in evidence upon his arrival. The car was a 1931 model block bearing licence plates number 83423. At the same time Napanee authorities reported the theft of a 1929 model Oakland car bearing licence plates 9975.

The largest number of transients to be billeted sleeping quarters at the police station thus far this year sought shelter in Belleville last night when 33 weary knights of the road were given shelter at the police station.

What Local Theatre Managers Say About Coming Attractions

AT THE BELLE

"Second Honeymoon"

Tyrone Power, so ardent, and Loretta Young, so lovely, kiss impulsively under the Miami moon and their love is news again! The ex-sliding sweethearts of "Love is News" and "Cafe Metropole" care so much that they fall for each other twice in their latest Twentieth Century-Fox picture, "Second Honeymoon," now on the Belle screen.

In a smart and modern manner, but with a new and deeper feeling, Tyrone and Loretta make merry in the "marry-ed" romance of the month, proving that while love at first sight may be romantic, love at second sight is . . . well, they parted in Reno, kiss in Miami and pet their whole hearts into doing the damage all over again.

No one in all the world loves a lover like another lover, so Stuart Erwin, as Tyrone's gentleman's gentleman, tries his darndest to induce his master to a state of happiness similar to that he has won with pretty Marjorie Weaver. Paradoxically, the valet's romance is the very thing that keeps Tyrone and Loretta apart, for many misunderstandings spring from this spectacle of lummoxi blue. Loretta is sure that Tyrone is interested in Marjorie because she is always near him, not knowing, of course, that it is Stuart Marjorie is after. There is another complication in this encored romance: Claire Trevor and J. Edward Bromberg make a sophisticated pair who find casual amusement in pointing out to Loretta little uncertainties in the "security" of her second marriage to a steadfast, dependable and uninaginative husband played by Lyle Talbot.

The thoughtless kiss that rekindled the fire of "Reno-rated" love might have been forgiven if husband Number One had not decided to make friends with husband Number Two. Tyrone arranges a "prorging" expedition for the entire party "prorging" being a thrilling adaptation of fishing after dark that is one of the newest of American pastimes. Husband Number Two displays himself in a not-to-be-forgotten manner the first kiss that might have been forgotten is repeated, starting a series of gay events leading to a perfect modern solution. Swiftly paced excitement touched with hilarity marks the climax of the screen play, written by Kathryn Scola and Darrell Wat From a Red Book business story by Philip Wylie. "Second Honeymoon" will be loved by every member of the family, for it's fast and funny and oh, so romantic.

Bloe-Ribbon Starts

Three Big Little Blue-Ribbon Fairiettes will be presented on the same program in Buster West and Tom Patricola in a very funny multiple-reel comedy, "Hurray for Hoodlum", a novel and interesting Scotch story by Jack Jungle Arthur Murray and his pupils demonstrate "How to Dance the Shag". Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.00 and 9.05; "Second Honeymoon" starts 3.00, 7.40 and 9.45.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Good Humor"

Gene Autry's newest musical western will open Friday at the Capitol Theatre, with a story, cast and staff of production which is said to be the best to date. This is saying a great deal, for Autry pictures are always the best of their type, and offer gilt-edge entertainment from the opening title to the final fade-out. This one is unique, in that it features a bevy of beautiful cowgirls who take a prominent hand in developing the plot.

The girls, under the leadership of Sandra (played by Polly Rowles) graduate from an agricultural college thinking they can go out west and manage Sandra's ranch much better than Peerless Gene Autry. One can readily imagine the fireworks which ensue when the girls strive to their destination, but to say rearrange the ranch routine, bring a herd of sheep into the heart of the cattle country, and otherwise make themselves thoroughly obnoxious to said land-and-cow cowboys as Gene and Smiley Burnette.

The climax is reached when pretty Sandra, becomes the innocent victim of a conspiracy, and it is then that Gene discovers that she means much more to him than a mere nuisance, and instead of resuming her presence, he undertakes protecting her from the unscrupulous ranchers who would cheat her out of her holdings.

On The Stage

Here at last! On the stage in person, Friday nite only with two performances the "Good Humor Winners on Parade", direct from radio station CKLW broadcast of the Good Humor hour every Sunday. A galaxy of entertainers are presented from our stage including singers, dancers, impersonators and talented musicians. Included in this parade of contest winners are Bill Gordon and his impersonations of Popeye, Wilfred Morton with his pleasing tenor voice, Miss Wilda in a repertoire of popular songs, Leonard Hill in tap impersonations, Rose Birkett in a song and tap act and Billy Duffy with his accordion completes this splendid stage presentation. In addition the latest News Events, cartoon, musical comedy, underlife skit and an all star comedy complete this 4-star show with no increase in prices.

DOCTOR #3 PRACTICES

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)—Dr. Charles W. Clark will celebrate his 83rd birthday Friday and he is going to keep right on with his practice. Seventy-two years a physician, Dr. Clark says: "They tell me I should be retiring but what would I do with my time? And they suggest I should have a hobby. Why my practice is my hobby."

fair consideration of all measures. He spoke after the Premier stressed the necessity of all members trying to make "Ontario a better place in which to live."

Tribute Paid

Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Macaulay paid tribute to two departed government members, the late Milton McVicar, Lambton East, and W. F. Schwenger, who resigned Hamilton Centre after being appointed a County Court Judge. The Premier described Mr. McVicar as "a genial, kindly soul—a man with a great heart," and Macaulay said he was typical of that stock "which had settled in the historic old county of Lambton."

Following Mr. Macaulay's co-operative pledge, the Premier replied he would not expect the Conservative leader to "pull his punches" and "withhold criticism" at any time of omission—if any." Their exchanges started the session on a note of harmony.

Adjourn Debate Till Tuesday

After Mr. Begin's speech, the address debate will be adjourned until Tuesday when Mr. Macaulay speaks, followed by the Premier, Mr. Hepburn said yesterday there would be night sessions every Tuesday and Thursday.

Details are lacking in connection with the government's announced legislation to incorporate the Grand River Conservation Commission. The Premier said after a departmental conference yesterday the necessary bill first would have to go before caucus. Grand river municipalities have been seeking some form of flood control and water conservation.

JAPANESE DIET MEMBERS HOOT

Near-Riot Scenes Mark Wartime Measure Debate

Tokyo, Feb. 24.—(AP)—A near-riot in the Japanese Diet (parliament) marked the first five minutes of debate today on the government's long-awaited national mobilization bill.

Under the proposed law the government would have wide wartime control over business, finance and the lives of private citizens. It contains stern, detailed restrictions on foreign trade and internal and external banking. Only a majority vote give the government the right to suppress newspapers.

Premier Fumimaro Konoye was absent from the session because of illness, so Foreign Minister Koki Hirota opened debate.

"In view of the current situation," he said, "the government has felt the necessity of giving legal basis to enforcement of national mobilization. The aim of the law is to supply the army and navy with sufficient war materials."

Takao Saito, leader of the Minseito, lower chamber majority party, declared he believed the bill was in conflict with the imperial constitution. He charged the government had followed "foreign examples" in drafting the measure.

Instead of rising to reply Hirota remained seated. Diet members began to hoot and shout, defying the speaker's efforts to maintain order.

REFUSE SALUTE

17, said they were set upon by Nazi members when they refused to give the Nazi salute. They signed discorderly conduct complaints against William Wernicke, 20, who said he was a broker and who signed counter-complaints against the youths.

Emil Hertle, one of the guards who escorted Kunze to the hall, was arrested on a charge of malicious mischief, filed by Gregory Clarke, paper photographer who said Hertle struck his camera.

Scores of Bund members clad in grey shirts and trousers and black ties, belts and puttees, ringed the hall during Kunze's speech.

Asks Question on Church

Dr. Von Schroetter said Bund members tried to eject him when he asked the question:

"If the Nazi movement is divinely inspired, why are the churches in Germany against it?"

Kunze ignored it and the question was repeated. Police intervened after shouts.

The meeting was brought to a close shortly after the incident with a salute to the Nazi flag. Fisher and Pauly refused to salute.

BOBBY VIEAU SCORES KNOCKOUT IN ONE MINUTE

Extra-Round Required in Main Bout For Decision

700 FANS ATTEND

Trenton, Feb. 24. —(Special) — Jackie Vieau of Trenton, diminutive brother of Bobby Vieau, Trenton Sport Club's president, and Joe Louis the Detroit Brown Bomber, had one thing in common last night. Vieau junior knocked out Steve Goslin of Belleville, one minute after the bell sounded to start the first round of the Trenton Sport Club's 118-pound event, while Joe Louis K.O.'d Nathan Mann of Connecticut after one minute and fifty six seconds had elapsed in the first round of the world's heavyweight contest, in Madison Square Gardens, New York, last night. Coming out of his corner with both fists driving like pistons your lowly Vieau met Goslin in the centre of the ring. The Belleville youth couldn't stand in front of his opponent's attack and back-tracked for all he was worth but Vieau caught him on the lam and floored him with a stiff right before he had covered much territory. Seven hundred rabid fans, at the Odeon rink last night, beat a three-round decision out of Kid Martin of Glen Miller in the 136 pound class. Lidster rightfully deserved the decision for the more experienced man, of the two. Fighting in Gordie Cooke's place Elmer Foshay of Trenton, was outpunched by David Moore, Belleville boy, in the 135 pound contest. The fracas was Moore's first in three years and he was fortunate to win over the veteran Foshay, who was the cause of leather in Moore's direction but failed to bore in when the going was roughest. Also fighting Frenchman, garnered another victory for the Trenton Club by outpointing A. C. Almey of the R.C.A.F. Both men weighed under the 126 pound mark and although their exhibition wasn't the kind that pleases the crowd it was a clean bout with plenty of in-fighting. Joey Miller and George Baker both Trenton lads were matched for the 126-pound honours and although Baker was granted the decision by the judges, Baker turned in a noteworthy performance.

Baker was filling in for Ross McKenzie of Belleville, who was unable to be on hand for the bout. Battling Harold Cox of Trenton gave Torchy Brummel of Trenton, one of the toughest lads in his brief but brilliant career, but drop ped the decision on points. The bout was a pretty fair affair as both Brummel having clashed in the Trenton Arena on a previous and long ago during a hockey match. by winning Brummel was awarded the championship of the Trenton Arena if that means anything. Exchampion of Queen's University, P. O. Fee of the R.C.A.F., lost a four round decision to Bob White of Trenton, who got into the pay dirt just by the skin of his teeth. Fee and White, both battling at 145 pounds and were evenly matched in every department. However White's fourth round rally brought him out on top. The much talked of Sam Ellis-Goslet bout was a high class tangle with the' Bay Street boy gaining a win by points from his Air Force opponent. Goulet weathered Ellis' windmill attack in the initial round and held his own in the other four frames, but his style of fighting failed to overcome the two fisted attacks when the judges summed up the points. The main event of the evening was won by Cecil (Jiber) Ellis but not until he had faced A. C. Almey of the the R.C.A.F. an extra round. Ellis and Almey fighting at 135 pounds ran locked blow for blow for five rounds and when the judges refused to declare the winner at regular time they climbed back into the roped square and exchanged wallops for an additional two minutes. Ellis' hand was raised in victory but Almey dropped no prestige by losing. The results: Kid Lidster, Trenton-vs-Kid Martin, Glen Miller, 136 pounds; Lidster decisioned Martin; Jackie Vieau, Trenton, vs Steve Goslin of Belleville, 118 pounds; Vieau K.O.'d Goslin; Elmer Foshay of Trenton vs Dave Moore, R.C.A.F. 135 pounds; Moon outpointed Foshay; William Richardson, Trenton vs R. C. Fee, Almey, R.C.A.F., 150 pounds; Richardson won by points over Almey; Torchy Brummel, Trenton, vs Batilling Harold Zarb, Madoc, 150 pounds; Brummel awarded decision over Zarb; Joe Miller of Trenton, vs George Baker, Trenton, 126 pounds; Miller defeated Baker; Bob White, Trenton, vs P. O. Fee, R.C.A.F., 150 pounds; White decisioned Fee; Smiling Sam Ellis, Trenton vs C. Goulet, R.C.A.F., 160 pounds; Ellis, outpointed Goulet; Cecil (Jiber) Ellis, Trenton vs A. C. Almey, R.C.A.F., 135 pounds; Ellis, given victory on points. Those in charge of the show were Referee H. Degenais; Judges, George Cobbett, Ralph Tennant, Carter; James Lemoire; announcer Jack Hewitt, timekeeper, C. H. Burley.

Many thousands of years ago the climate within the Arctic Circle was so warm that palms and magnolias grew there and the shores of Greenland were similar to Palm Beach.

In future certain aerodromes will be fully staffed and equipped to deal with infectious diseases. At these "sanitary aerodromes," as they are to be called, all aeroplanes arriving from abroad, together with their crew, passengers and cargo, will if necessary be examined and detained in isolation. Such a course will be considered necessary if any one on board or plane has died during the flight except as the result of an accident. If there is a suspected case of infectious disease, if the plane is coming from an area infected by virulent epidemics or, curiously, if "during the voyage there shall not be available to destructive measures, has occurred among rats or mice in the aircraft."—Manchester Guardian.

It Pays to use the WANT-ADS

"I cannot tell a lie," said the ADVERTISEMENT

A precept every GOOD advertisement knows is: "I cannot tell a lie—and get away with it." Even if it wanted to stretch the truth, just a teeny bit, that wouldn't be smart business. For, in that way, MORE people would discover the exaggeration, more people would be off that product or that store for life.

Advertisements, then, are essentially truthful. If not from moral scruples, then on a hard-boiled basis of good business practice.

Yes, you can trust the advertisements in this paper. Make it a daily habit to read them, along with the other news. They will save your time. Save your steps. Save the pressure on the family budget that must see you through until next pay-day.

In the columns of this newspaper, the show-windows of the town's stores march before your eyes in review. You relax in your chair, enjoy a preview of all the nice things on sale down-town. You enter the stores with your mind more than half made up.

DISCUSSES LIFE OF JOHN WESLEY

Miss Reta Palliser, B.A., is Speaker at Tweed Literary Club

Tweed—An interesting meeting of the Literary Club was held on Monday evening in the United Church Parlours with the president, Mr. T. E. Moffat, B.A., in the chair. After the opening hymn and minutes of the late meeting, Miss Reta Palliser, B.A., gave a most interesting address on the life of John Wesley, the founder of Methodism.

"Around the world these days the eyes and minds of millions are turning towards a little shrine in an obscure London street, because a young Anglican clergyman very unwillingly dropped into a religious meeting there 200 years ago. Here a great change came over this young clergyman, John Wesley, which gave birth to Methodism, and marked the beginnings of an evangelical revival in England.

Samuel Wesley and Susannah Wesley were the parents of nineteen children, which included John and his brother, Charles. Their life was one long and bitter struggle against poverty. Susannah Wesley trained her children in habits of order, patience, courtesy and obedience which laid a firm foundation for their future usefulness. It is not much wonder that John Wesley born of such parents and reared in such an atmosphere should have become such an important figure in the history of the world.

At 17 years of age John Wesley entered Oxford University. Between the ages of 17 and 23 his religious life was at its lowest ebb. At 23 he was elected Fellow of Lincoln. Returning to Oxford with his brother Charles they gathered around them a number of friends who formed a society which was called Methodist, because they observed the exact regularity of their lives and studies.

In 1735 John and Charles Wesley sailed to Georgia where they spent two years as missionaries among the Indians. At the end of two years they returned to England having met with little success in their missionary undertaking.

It was following this that he entered the little chapel in London where his conversion took place. His great genius lay in his happy art of being able to teach a good lesson. When he administered reproof to a sinner it was done with a charm of manner which removed the sting. His extensive reading and vast experience and natural amiability of temper combined to make him a most interesting and welcome guest and he was often a visitor at the home of the late Dr. Johnson.

After a life of great usefulness he returned to City Road, London, where he died on March 2nd., 1791 at the age of 88. Ten thousand people came to the chapel of the Cathedral in City Road to take a last lingering look at the face of the great preacher.

Miss Bessie Gordon, B.A., told a number of interesting facts about the Wesleys.

John Wesley gave away in his lifetime a fortune of 20,000 pounds left, him as legacies. The world is indebted to John Wesley for his life-time activities and to Charles Wesley for his hymns. The latter was a great friend of Handel, the composer of The Messiah. He composed tunes for many of Charles Wesley's hymns. Some of the most famous of his 6000 hymns are "Hark the Herald Angels Sing", "Jesus Lover of My Soul," "Come Jesus, Meet and Milde" one of his best children's hymns, and "Depth of Mercy."

AUSTRIANS CELEBRATE, GERMANS ARE ANGERED

Viscount Halifax Named as Successor to Eden

Schuschnigg Statement Taken as Bid for Support Of Italy on Sovereignty

Step May Block German Dominance of Central Europe

PLEA FOR IL DUCE

New Policy of 'Realistic' Settlement Seen as Step Toward Security,

By JAMES G. OLDFIELD
Associated Press Foreign Staff

London, Feb. 25—(AP)—Italian support of Austrian independence may give Great Britain the needed aid to block further German dominance of central Europe, diplomatic sources said today.

Chancellor von Schuschnigg in his speech to the Austrian diet and nation yesterday warmly praised Premier Mussolini as one who understood Austria's problems and "always tried to avoid any impression of interference in our internal affairs."

"Most Remain Austria"

This friendly reference might mean, diplomatic quarters here said, that Mussolini previously had reassured von Schuschnigg of his continued interest in Austrian independence despite the Rome-Berlin axis and Rome of any new pledges.

Another possibility was that von Schuschnigg was praising Il Duce in an adroit move to bind Mussolini to him in his determination to fight for Austrian sovereignty.

In any event, the significant reference to Italian sympathy coupled with the assurance "Austria must remain Austria" was considered likely to give momentum to Britain's new policy of realistic dealings to keep European peace.

Anschluss Plebiscite Mooted

Vienna, Feb. 25—(AP)—Austria's patriots marched in joyous celebration into the evening hours today to celebrate their Chancellor's pledge the nation would remain independent of Germany and free of Nazidom.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Air and life on high mountains is unusual. It seems incredible that men do hard work at altitudes of 19,000 feet, where the oxygen supply is less than one-half that at sea level, when mountain climbers are often troubled with shortness of breath at 9,000 feet, where the oxygen supply is four-fifths of the sea level amount.

There is a mining town in Quilcha, Bolivia, 17,500 feet. It is probably the highest permanent community in the world, Leonard Clark reports. Perched on lofty 1,500 feet higher to the mines. It is a matter of acclimatization. Many of the best miners were born and bred at sea level, but do not work at the mines, lured by the high wage. There, sleep is not sound, the appetite is capricious, and smoking is impossible at hard work or play.

Czech Defense Ready

Czechoslovakia is ready to defend herself against any sudden attack General Ludwig Jan Krejci, ABOVE, chief of the Czechoslovakia general staff declared in a speech in Prague. He explained that the country's defense system is based on the fact that modern wars now begin without declaration and move swiftly. Although the general did not mention any possible aggressor, uneasiness has been felt in Czechoslovakia since Chancellor Hitler proclaimed protection of German minorities in Europe. There are 3,500,000 Germans among Czechoslovakia's population.

Approve Bill To Prevent Profiteering

Washington, Feb. 25—(AP)— The United States House of Representatives military committee approved today a bill to give the President broad authority to prevent profiteering in war time.

The action broke a long committee deadlock over the legislation, which President Roosevelt recommended in his national defence measure to congress.

The measure contains a provision for a universal draft of man power and industry in wartime.

The President would have power to put a "ceiling" on prices. In addition the legislation provides for a "system of taxation which shall absorb all profits above a fair normal return to be fixed by congress."

National System of Highways Advocated by G. G. McGeer

Claims System in Canada Should be as Good as in U. S.

LOSING TRADE

Toronto, Feb. 25.—(CP)—Co-operation between Canada's governments, Federal, Provincial and Municipal, in building a national system of highways as good as those in the United States is advocated by G. D. McGeer, Liberal member of the House of Commons and Vancouver-Burrard.

In an address to the annual banquet of the Toronto Good Roads Association here last night, Mr. McGeer said such a highway system would help the Dominion to recover between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 of tourist trade it is losing each year. Canada should have roads of the standard of those in the United States which share 26,000,000 automobiles are registered, he said.

Agriculture's prosperity is dependent on good roads, Hon. P. M. Dewart, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, told the closing session of the convention yesterday. That's why in "opening a broad vista of markets to farmers can hardly be estimated," he said. "Farmers, distributors and consumers all enjoy the benefits."

Flood Problem Discussed

Ontario's recurring flood problem was discussed by E. C. Drury, former Premier of Ontario. Too many of the Province's rivers are developing tendencies to go on periodic "fingers" and then spend long sojourns on the "water wagon", he said. "Our rivers get stream-wise, then dry up or go on the rampage destructively."

The former leader of the United Farmers of Ontario party said such conditions were due to the extensive areas which were "cleared for agricultural purposes" that never should have been cleared and that were incapable of yielding an adequate livelihood. Such areas are being formed that will be "perpetual wastelands" unless reforestation and immediate steps are taken to save them.

No used automobile should be sold until it first has passed a proper mechanical inspection by a competent official. M. G. Foster, General Manager of the Ontario Safety League, told delegates. "What right have used-car dealers to place tires, lamps, and by selling well-doctored worn-out machines to individuals who are given to understand the machines are in good condition?" he asked.

First Stage in Negotiations Of G. Britain, Italy Begin

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 25.—(CP Cable)—The first stage of Anglo-Italian negotiations opened today. At the foreign office the "Earl of Perth, British Ambassador to Italy, and Viscount Halifax, acting Foreign Secretary, considered Anglo-Italian relations and the nature and scope of the proposed pact.

(The Associated Press quoted diplomatic sources as predicting possible Italian support of Austrian independence may give Britain needed aid to block German dominance of central Europe. This was in reference to Austrian Chancellor von Schuschnigg's praise for Premier Mussolini in his Vienna speech yesterday.

(The Associated Press said there were reports Prime Minister Chamberlain had received diplomatic advices from central Europe that there is "still in time" to save independence of Austria.)

Lord Perth remains over the week-end and then will return to Rome, where he will open the talks with Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano.

Five-Suit Bridge Will Cause Entirely New Set of Arguments

Culbertson Calls New Game, "The Bridge Player's Nightmare"

'ROYALS' IS NEW SUIT

By W. W. ANDERSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Feb. 25—(AP)—And now to add bedlam to confusion, come five-suit bridge.

Ely Culbertson said it "the bridge Ely Culbertson said it "the bridge nightmare." Most people he said, can't handle four-suit bridge.

Howard Schenken of the four ones team said, "I like it."

Which gives you an idea of the impending furore.

The 65-card game has Europe by the ears, just as 52-card bridge has a lot of people in the United States.

Culbertson's latest guess has both bought two sets of cards and the craze grips England. Americans will have to wait a few weeks because the only commercialized set in the country just cleared customs.

Cards of the new suit, bearing a solid green crown on the faces, are called "greens" in the highest suit in the deck. You can play contract or auction with the new set—if you can play either with the regulation deck you have now.

The Play

Here's how:

Each player receives 13 cards and the one remaining is turned face up in the middle of the table. It goes to the highest bidder who then may exchange it for any card in his or her partner's hand.

Whereas a book now is six tricks a five-suit game is eight. Instead of bidding "one" as in auction or contract, you have to bid "nine." That's for simplicity.

Which led Culbertson to say: "Five-suit bridge is a false alarm. Most people can't even handle four-suit bridge and even those that are pretty bad even with two suits."

While Schenken added: "I think the new game will be very interesting to a lot of people. There are fascinating possibilities in what can be done with the new card."

The new game is a product of the imagination of a Viennese named Walter Marschalko. Scoring is different from contract. So are the values of each trick. So is the game.

In five-suit there is a little slam, a grand slam and a super slam. And those slams don't include the one Culbertson took at the whole business.

Here is the Score

Bidding nine means only that you are bidding one, the book being that much instead of six tricks. Bid a bid of nine, means you expect to make one over your bid.

The maximum, or super slam, with this deck is 18 tricks. The grand slam is 16 tricks. The little slam, about on a par with four no trump in the regular game, is 12 tricks. The game is 120 points instead of 100 as in the conventional deck. Honors are not scored at all present. The scoring follows:

Odd tricks, 20 points. 30 per trick. Hearts and spades, 25 per trick. Greens, 30 per trick.

No trump, 40 per trick.

According to officials of the commission, Dr. Hogg's health has improved and it is felt that a few weeks' rest will fit him to resume his official duties.

BILL TO APPROVE PASTEURIZATION COMES NEXT WEEK

Will be an Amendment to Public Health Act.

FINES PROVIDED

Dairymen Will be Allowed Time to Carry Out Regulations

Toronto, Feb. 25—(CP)—The Ontario government's forecast legislative to force compulsory pasteurization of milk in the province will be introduced in the legislature next week, Health Minister Kirby said today. According to copies of the amendment circulated to members, the bill aims at prohibiting sale of milk anywhere in the province that has not been pasteurized.

The bill in the form of an amendment to the Public Health Act provides a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $500 for any contravention of the prohibition. It also empowers any medical health officer or sanitary inspector or any person authorized by a municipal health officer without laying any information or obtaining any warrant, to enter and remove milk sold without having been pasteurized and submit it to analysis.

Approved in Caucus

Government members in caucus yesterday approved the compulsory pasteurization proposal and today the Health Department issued a letter to members outlining the benefits of pasteurization. A departmental spokesmen have repeatedly stressed dairymen should be allowed ample time to carry out regulations under the law.

The bill defines pasteurization as the process of heating every particle of milk to a temperature of not less than 143 degrees fahrenheit, of holding it at the temperature for not less than 30 minutes and of cooling it immediately to at least 50 degrees fahrenheit.

Judge to Determine Eligibility Stillborn Children to Qualify

Toronto, Feb. 25—(CP)—Eligibility of stillborn children to qualify for family allowances will be decided by Charles Vance Millar was in question today before Mr. Justice W. R. Mikkelborough in Ontario Supreme Court.

The judge was to determine eligibility of two children born to Mrs. Millar, before he decides on the legitimacy of five of Mrs. Pauline Mae Clarke's nine children.

Mrs. Millar and Mrs. Clarke seek to share the $500,000 baby derby prize with four others, whose claims already have been approved. Each had nine children in the specified 10-year period following Millar's death.

The judge asked if Mrs. Kenny were present to testify. She was not. Walsh, said a doctor was to present but was temporarily delayed by a case. The court adjourned until the doctor's arrival.

WAR CONTROL BILL CAUSES DEADLOCK IN JAPAN CABINET

Fate of Nation Hangs on This Occasion Says' Official

WILL CONSIDER

Approval Would Impose Wartime Regulations on Business

Tokyo, Feb. 25—(AP)—The Japanese cabinet and parliament were in a bitter deadlock today over a dictatorial war control bill.

A situation amounting to political crisis crystallized between the Diet (parliament) and the Cabinet over the measure. Lower House members objected was copied after Fascist laws of Germany and Italy.

The government was determined to obtain approval for the general mobilization bill, which would impose wartime regulation of Japanese business, industry and private lives.

Because of the situation Japan approaches the anniversary of the army uprising of Feb. 26, 1936, with grave apprehension. Added to the concern was the Chinese bombardment, yesterday of the Japanese island of Formosa, and fears that one of the main islands of this blikely-sensitive nation might be subjected to air raids.

MARIJUANA FOE TO BE COMBATTED

Make Cultivation of "Cannabis Sativa" an Offence

Ottawa, Feb. 25—(CP)—Parliament moved yesterday to arm the Dominion health authorities for a battle against the marijuana menace, the use of a drug which is reportedly becoming widespread in the United States and spreading to Canada.

An amendment of the opium and narcotic drug act was approved on second reading in the House of Commons yesterday which would make cultivation of "cannabis sativa" a variety of hemp, without authority, an offence punishable by heavy fines. The bill stands in the name pending a decision on whether it should become operative by proclamation.

This plant grows in many parts of Canada, in some cases as a weed. Its leaves, when dried, are made into cigarettes are commonly known as "reefers", and when smoked have a highly intoxicating or stimulating effect.

Labor Party Opposition Says Commons Member Should Have Portfolio

Chamberlain Will Take Responsibility of Answering Questions

LABOR'S ATTITUDE

R. A. Butler is Appointed Under-Secretary Foreign Affairs

London, Feb. 25—(CP-Havas)—Appointment of Viscount Halifax as Foreign Secretary and Richard A. Butler as Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs was announced officially today.

Lord Halifax, previously in the cabinet as Lord President of the Council, succeeds Anthony Eden, who resigned in a dispute with his colleagues last Saturday.

Mr. Butler, hitherto parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Labor, succeeds Viscount Cranborne, who resigned with his chief.

Has Been Acting Secretary

Lord Halifax had been acting Foreign Secretary since Mr. Eden's departure, and his appointment was taken to indicate that Prime Minister Chamberlain himself will take the larger share of responsibility for foreign affairs in the House of Commons, leaving Mr. Butler to answer routine questions.

The appointment of a member of the Upper Chamber to the key post is likely, however, to raise strong opposition from the Labor and Liberal opposition parties, who take the stand that a member of the Commons should hold the portfolio.

Chamberlain to Answer

An official announcement said prime Minister Chamberlain personally would take charge of important questions of foreign policy in the House of Commons.

"As the new Foreign Secretary will be a member of the House of Lords, the Prime Minister proposes himself to deal with all important aspects of foreign affairs subjects which may be matters of debate or questions in the House of Commons" the announcement said.

Debate on Sweepstakes Promised by Amendment

Sponsor Claims Everyone Knows Sweeps Held in Canada

LAST BILL DEFEATED

Ottawa, Feb. 25—(CP)—A House of Commons debate on sweepstakes was promised yesterday with introduction by Ernest Bertrand (Lib., Montreal-Laurier) of an amendment to the Criminal Code which would make it legal to operate one sweepstake a year in each province for the benefit of hospitals or universities.

The last major debate on this long-standing question took place during the 1934 session when a bill sponsored by the Senate to authorize the Alberta Legislature or any Province to set up a committee to control operations of sweepstakes for the benefit of hospitals only. It was defeated in the House of Commons when it was given "a six months hoist."

There was no debate on today's measure. Mr. Bertrand briefly explained his purpose.

"All members know," he said, "that a number of sweepstakes are now being held throughout Canada."

Sub-section six of section 236 of the Criminal Code prohibiting sweepstakes provides exceptions in favor of lotteries conducted by the Art Union of London and the Art Union of Ireland. Mr. Bertrand said these exceptions were obsolete and proposed to repeal that clause.

Last Bill Identical

The last amendment to sweepstakes bill was introduced in the Senate by Hon. G. H. Barnard of Victoria and was identical with a bill passed by the Senate the previous year and defeated in the Commons. It had a rough time in the Senate but was finally carried by a narrow vote of division.

Both leaders in the Senate voted against the third reading but the motion carried by a vote of 37 to 30. The leaders are the last days of the year except that their positions are reversed. Government leader Haydurand was then in opposition and Conservative leader Meighen "was prominent."

In the Commons the then Prime Minister Bennett arranged an open, non-party discussion. A day was set aside for its discussion. An amendment to the motion for second reading, that the bill be deferred for six months and saw the House divided with 105 members supporting the amendment and 74 against. Both Mr. Bennett and Mr. Mackenzie King voted against the bill.

MR. C.A. CAMERON GIVES STATEMENT TO NEWSPAPER

After Exoneration Over Failure to File Election Expense Declaration, Member Issues Comment.

Following is the official statement issued to The Ontario Intelligencer at noon hour today by Mr. C. A. Cameron, K.C., M.P., following the hearing this morning in the Judge's Chambers, County Court Buildings, in which he was exonerated by His Honor Judge J. E. Madden from penalties provided in the Dominion Elections Act for failure to file a 1935 election financial return within the period prescribed by the act.

"I have not as yet been served with a writ. My knowledge of the action taken by Mr. C. N. Way of Tweed, has been gained through the press, and owing to that fact I have until now refrained from making any statement. Shortly after the necessity of filing returns was abandoned in the House of Commons about February 15th., steps were taken under the provisions of the Dominion Elections Act for an order for an authorized means for failure to make returns. The provision of the Act authorizes a Judge at a hearing to condone reasons for the failure to make returns and to make an order relieving the applicant from all penalties for failure to do so.

Official Agent's Illness

"My official agent, ex-Mayor George O. Tice, three days after election became critically ill with diabetes and pneumonia, and was confined to his residence under constant care, until December 31st., 1937, approximately fourteen weeks after the election, and during that time he was unable to give attention to the necessity of making returns and declaration.

"The candidate's return has to be made within seven days after filing of the official agent's return. By the time Mr. Tice recovered, the statutory period of sixty days had elapsed. Mr. Tice himself had a long period of convalescence and having been appointed to an important position with the Department of Health, moved to Hamilton, returning to Belleville in 1937."

Purely through inadvertence and the above facts, the application to the Judge was not made until the matter was brought to my attention about Feb. 15th."

"The Judge has now considered the facts of the case and made the order exonerating both Mr. Tice and myself from all penalties provided in the Act for failure to make returns."

ADMITS THEFT OF MOTOR CAR

Jack Lemont of St. Thomas Arrested on Bay Bridge Today

Arrested as he drove across the bay bridge at noon today, a man who police say is Jack Lemont and who used the alias of Aubrey MacDonald, was taken into custody and following questioning by police charged with the theft of the motor car in which he is supposed to have come.

Following investigations, during which Albert College officials revealed that Lemont was not Aubrey MacDonald, the man in custody is said to have confessed to the Provincial Police he had stolen the automobile in which he was found at St. Thomas last night. The automobile was licensed under Aubrey MacDonald's name and listed from St. Thomas, where MacDonald, a former pupil at Albert College now resides.

After stealing the car at St. Thomas young Lemont says he travelled a valuable route from the vehicle for gasoline at Woodstock and later picked up a hitch-hiker near Tavistock and drove him to Picton, his destination. It was the hitch-hiker, who subsequently provided the authorities with the information that perhaps the vehicle in which Lemont was travelling was a stolen car.

Provincial police informed the St. Thomas authorities of the recovery of the car and Lemont was held on charges of car theft. Lemont was apprehended as he attempted to cross the bay bridge entering Belleville by Provincial Constables Mason and Slack and Game Warden Herb McCabe. Local police were also on the lookout for the reported stolen car.

Police Blotter

"Sir, I'm on my way to Ottawa where I hope to get a war pension if you'll let me go. I'll not bother you again," pleaded John O'Brien of Toronto, after pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication when arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler K. C. in today's police court.

"This court has no choice under the L. C. A. When convictions are registered the Court must impose fines. In your case it will be $10.00 and costs and in default of payment 15 days in the common jail," replied His Worship. O'Brien was down indicating he was unable to meet the assessed fine and was later given into custody of Chief French at the County Jail.

Two local youths appeared charged with exceeding the speed limit on Front St. recently. They were being," pointed out Chief Kidd after the youths had entered pleas of guilty.

This hort of thing will not be tolerated on our streets. Any repetition will find you boys having your drivers licences suspended for at least six months," warned His Worship, as he imposed a fine of $5.00 and costs.

A domestic case, held in camera concluded the proceedings. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K. C. was absent from court today owing to illness it was learned during the proceedings.

FILMS TELL STORY OF TELEPHONIC DEVELOPMENT

Tweed Community Club Addressed by G. W. Proctor, Belleville

Tweed — The regular monthly meeting of the Community Club was held at the Hurck House at 8.30 Tuesday evening. There was an attendance of forty at the dinner. Mr. I. D. Corcoran, president of the club, was master of ceremonies. During the evening, Mr. S. H. Connor led in a sing-song.

The president welcomed Mr. Marriott, accountant of the Royal Bank and Mr. Reg. Wilson, bandmaster of Tweed-Eldridge band, who are comparative newcomers to Tweed and attending the club dinner for the first time. Mr. Wilson played two selections on the euphonium, both of which were enjoyed by the men.

In the absence of Reeve W. H. Sayers, Chairman of Old Home Week Committee, Mr. S. R. Curry reported what progress had been made. Several meetings have been held and a number of attractions have been secured. The Canadian Pacific Recreation Club of Smith's Falls, which holds an annual picnic at some point, has promised to come to Tweed on Saturday, June 2nd. There is usually a crowd of several hundred and they will spend the day at Memorial Park on the shores of Sloco Lake. Mr. Lloyd last year's president of the Pickle Power Boat Club, has promised that their power boat will be here on Monday, July 4th and hold three speed boat races. They will take full charge and the racing prizes are assured. Belleville Motorcycle Club has also signified its willingness to participate in races at the race track.

All the citizens were urged to help get out a complete mailing list so that no one will be overlooked. To date some 1500 names have been handed in. The invitations are to be mailed about the middle of March. Already several letters have been received from former residents from a lady in Vancouver, signifying their intention to return home for Old Home Week. The Salvation Army Band of Peterborough will come to Tweed for Sunday, July 3rd and give a band concert at Memorial Park.

Mr. J. G. Frost expressed his appreciation of Mr. Curry's efforts through the Tweed News and other wise to ensure the success of Old Home Week. He also voiced a word of commendation for the excellent editorials which have featured the News.

The highlight of the meeting was the showing of a number of educational films by G. W. Procter, Manager of the Belleville section of the Bell Telephone Company assisted by Mr. Fred Motton of Montreal, who operated the machine.

Mr. Procter introduced the showing of the films, which traced the development of the telephone from earliest beginnings in the ancient modern radiophone, by which the human voice can span the world in ¼ of a second. It follows a route 23,000 miles long from New Jersey to California; to Java by radiophone, to Holland, thence to mainland spanning the Atlantic to New Jersey, 1,900 miles by radio and 4,000 miles by wire, all in the space of ¼ of one second. The broadcasting event took place on April 25th, 1926.

Other films show how telephonic communications with ships at sea is made possible; the assembly of a modern telephone receiver. The final film entitled "Grey Owl — Little Brother, the Beaver".

President Corcoran's words of appreciation to Mr. Procter and Mr. Motton for a most instructive entertainment met with the hearty approval of all.

Mr. W. S. Gordon has decided to dispose of Tweed Foundries in order that he can devote all his energies to the steel business in which there are practically unlimited possibilities. The Tweed Foundries was established many years ago by Mr. Garrett and is an old established business.

Gordon Steel Works received an order this week for shipment to Baffin Island, near Greenland, from the Nudsen Bay Company.

Miss Reta Pallister has returned home safely after spending the past week at her home in Campbellford.

Mr. E. A. Wood, of Selby, purchased three large steel cheese vats from Gordon's Steel Works, Ltd.

Joe Rashotte's new mill has begun its spring cut of lumber. A considerable number of logs have been brought in by truck and sleigh during the past few weeks, coming chiefly from the district north and east of Tweed.

For the first time in a number of years steam is once again issuing from the dry kiln at Joe Rashotte's mill. A large order has been received for kiln-dried aeroplane material.

Tweed Foundries began operations a few days ago being shut down for several weeks. Large orders for plow points have been received.

Mr. T. N. Beatty has gone to Toronto where he will take treatment at Toronto General Hospital for two weeks.

Cozy hours at home, reading or playing cards. Zestful hours out of doors at golf, tennis or other sports. Are you enjoying these leisure hours to the full—or does eye-strain dull your pleasure and proficiency? Have your eyesight examined this week. Be sure you are getting the greater enjoyment that clear vision brings to leisure hours.

Quinte Figure Skating Club Augmented by Guest Artists Delight Crowd with Artistry

1,500 Attended Local Winter Ice Show at Arena

SCENES QUITE NOVEL

Misses Manahan and Halsted, Toronto, Mrs. Weese, Sudbury Assist

While the brilliant stabbing gleams of a battery of colored spotlights cut sharply into the suffused glow of the softer shades of overhead lights, converting the ice-surface into an everchanging colorful spectacle, fifteen hundred applauding Bellevillians went stale-minded last night in the Hastings Arena as 50 members of the Quinte Figure Club, augmented by three guest artists, inaugurated their winter show in a variety performance of grace, color and beauty, that not only marked the tremendous progress made by the club individually and collectively but placed the performance in an entertainment basis, that has rarely been reached in the city.

No Dull Moments

An excellent ice-surface that gleamed with color in the thrilling spectacle unfolded itself, lent a perfect background to the artistry and grace of the solo, duet and ensemble numbers. There was not a dull ensemble paraded in the initial number until the strains of the National Anthem rang out, there was not a dull moment. For sheer artistry, grace and rhythm of motion, the performance left nothing to be desired. It was a thrilling spectacle, that found a ready response in the audience. There was no dragginess, no waiting. Color, color and more color enthralled the various ensemble, duet and pageant numbers and lent an atmosphere that, coupled with artistry, and beauty of performance into a whole of exceptional entertainment.

Ridley a Coming Star

While as it was to be expected, the guest artists, young ladies of exceptional ability and grace, headlined the performance, it remained for "Mike" Ridley, a youthful member of the local club to nearly steal the show" with an outstanding "single" performance. Following the exhibitions of the more talented visitors, Ridley gave an inspired performance that not only brought him down to the front of house but revealed an ability that marks him as a coming star in this phase of athletics.

However, Ridley's fine effort did not detract from the outstanding exhibitions given by sixteen-year-old Miss Shirley Halsted and Miss Margaret Manahan of Toronto. The former a dainty miss, attractively costumed in a checkered skating ensemble, drew the attention of the audience with a dazzling exhibition of fancy and intricate work on the blades. Whirling, pirouetting, gliding and spinning dizzily from various positions, Miss Halsted won the hearts and hands of her spectators with a splendid performance. She graciously consented to three encores and in response to the tremendous applause that greeted her efforts made a third and fourth appearance.

Miss Manahan, another finished artist, also demonstrated that she is a "Queen of the Blades," with a sterling performance. Mrs. R. Weese (nee Olivia Davies) formerly of Belleville in spite of the handicap of an injured knee, also added her bit to the program, as brother and sister demonstrated their skill, grace and ability, that was heightened by colorful costuming.

Juvenile Fantasy

Perhaps the outstanding feature of show from a purely artistic view was the "Kindergarten Wedding" a juvenile fantasy, presenting a colorful spectacle in which a tiny fairy princess Lois Wilkins made a magic wand to bring happiness to a tiny bride and groom. (Carol Licence and Sammy Leslie) who appeared suddenly from the leaves of a huge yellow daisy centered upon golden mushrooms, to take part in the accompaniment of joyful singing by the fairy attendants. Tremendously appealing was the beautiful act as the diminutive groom defied all the rules by the cheers of the crowd. The pageant was exceptionally well staged and reflects great credit on the juvenile members of the club and their directors.

Gypsy Dance Colorful

Another colorful offering, one that was outstanding in its very beauty was the "Gypsy Dance" staged by sixteen young ladies of the club. Garbed in typical gypsy costumes with handkerchief beating, the young gypsies held skating honors to the tune of "Listen Smith" seated upon a gypsy throne. Individually and collectively the gypsy band, in a rhythmic tempo of moving gliding grace skated to colorful array. Then crouching in a circle, their tambourines thumping a tinkling tempo, they again saluted their queen as suddenly she swept from her throne into the gliding formation beside her. A crouching circle with hands upraised in salute to their glittering queen furnished a fitting climax to a spectacle of beauty.

Plenty of Comedy

There was comedy too. Uproariously funny was the "Bull Fight" number, in which a skating "bull", toreador and matador took the leading roles. Hilarious antics of the bull as he endeavored to gore his artistic moving opponents thrilled the crowd. Funniest of all was the sudden appearance of two chairs, two seconds, a grip and all the appliances of a prize fight. Seated in chairs the "bull" and the toreador leapt at each other at the sound of the gong. The excruciating humor that came when the "bull" suddenly came to life, "gored" the bowing toreador and chased him from the ring.

Other humor was injected into the program by tumbling clowns who vied for the hand of a lady. Their comical antics and situations brought forth roars of merriment in this number.

Many Clever Acts

During intermission further clown acts, cleverly performed were led by members of the club. Gordon Bancroft, announcer, described the antics of a beginner, garbed in a funny outfit, as the latest references to a book of directions furnished plenty of comedy. He finished his act with a daring display of solo skating that marks him as a coming performer.

A number of duets, solos, foursomes, fancy skating and ensembles completed the program. These were marked by fine performances on the part of the members participating, especially the club numbers which showed fine ensemble and ability resulting from long practices. Perhaps an interesting picture of the show can best give an idea of the unusual interest taken in the performance as a whole by the crowd is the fact, that not a person left the arena until the final act had finished.

Fine Orchestra

Not the least part of the entertainment was the fine program of varying rhythm offered by Jack Fairman and his Top Hatters orchestra, which not only commanded by the various numbers were readily forthcoming from the band but added to the color of the show in the Arena and their fine performance has added greatly to the success of the affair.

The Winter Show was officially opened by His Worship Mayor Jamieson Bone, who addressed the skaters and spectators from the band an official welcome. Mr. Ivan Scott, acted as Master of Ceremonies.

SAYS VICTORIANISM RETARDS CHURCHES

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 26 (CP)—Address of the church in "Victorian sentiments" is retarding progress and spreading antiquated influences, Dr. Harry Mich, pastor of Central United Church, Windsor, told the Essex Presbytery Lay Association here.

The church must have a new outlook in order that a new day may dawn, Dr. Mich suggested. He said: "It can only be that our church, through adopting a new outlook, can march forward as fair as an army with banners."

to six months in jail for not supporting his family. A member of the R. C. A. F. appeared for sentence in connection with a car theft charge. The Magistrate showed lenience, ordering the youth to pay the costs, but warned him to watch his step in the future. The Belleville woman who admitted stealing a diamond ring and a wedding ring from a local jewellery shop was granted a six months' remand. Yesterday the Magistrate dealt out seven penalties to as many autoists who failed to produce their driver's permits when stopped by police.

Queen Elizabeth And Queen Mary Visit Industries Fair

London, Feb. 25 (C.P. Cable) — Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary paid their first visit to the Fair today and visited the British Industries Fair at Olympia.

Queen Elizabeth, in the leather section, was shown a man's wallet selected, priced at 36 shillings (9.50). She asked to see something "more suitable and less expensive" at seven shillings ($1.75). Another wallet was shown her, however, her Majesty said she wanted "something that would be suitable for Alex, when he carries on the street." She selected one in camel hide, priced at 10 shillings.

Queen Mary, visiting the Fair separately, sought materials "at a price for the man in the street." She bought a dozen yellow shillings threepences ($3 cents).

YACHT CLUB MEETS

Trenton, Feb. 22—(Special)—The Trenton Yacht Club, which was organized last year are out to do big things this season. At a meeting of the club's officials last night date for the organization's second regatta was set for July 2. Present at the meeting were: Egon Jansen, Walter Ostrom, Ernest Vesey, Ernest Alney, William Lick, S. Donald-son, Arthur Holden. The election of a new club house was discussed, and the executive agreed, that the club house on Front Street would do for another year if necessary repairs were made. Before the club can operate successfully a dock will have to be built at the rear of the present club house in order that boats can be accommodated during the regatta. Although nothing definite was decided upon it is more than likely that a new dock will be constructed behind the club house.

BELLEVILLE, ONT., February 17th, 1938.

MR. J. E. MARSH,
219 Front Street,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir:—

We are writing to thank you for the excellent insurance we have received from your company, the Northwestern Mutual Fire Association. First, we were sent a policy that properly covered our stock and machinery; second, shortly after the fire of February third, both insured and the Company's representative, Mr. R. L. MONTROSE, were at hand to assure us that everything was in order.

Our stock was damaged badly by the fire and on the following day the adjusters and ourselves arrived at a fair estimate of the loss. A few days later we received the Company's cheque for the total amount. The quick adjustment of the loss together with the unsolicited standing of the Company enabled us to resume operations in our new premises with no delay after the fire. This was of great importance to us as it will enable us to manufacture and ship most of our orders on hand.

Yours truly,
THE BELL SHIRT COMPANY,

Maple, Ont., Feb. 26 (CP)—Mrs. Murphy's famous Chicago cow has a rival in a horse which kicked over a lantern just south of here Wednesday night and caused a $6,500 fire which destroyed three barns. Five cows were burned to death.

Two young men driving from Richvale to see the fire escaped death when their car ploughed through a bridge railing and landed upside down on a creek bed 10 feet below. The car, driven by Cyril Baker, was badly damaged but the young men were uninjured.

The fire occurred two miles south of here on a farm owned by Rev. Sidney Martin, retired United Church minister of Meaford and tenated by R. B. Banks.

70 Year Limit At Oshawa On City Employees

Oshawa, Ont., Feb. 25 (CP) — After May 1, the city of Oshawa will restrict the age limit and re-gulations of its employees.

The city will not hire three members of one family more closely related than second cousins, either, under the new plan.

Singer, Going Blind, Heads for Opera

Philadelphia, Feb. 24 (AP)— A 22-year-old singer, reconciled to the fact that he soon will be blind, has embarked on a determined race for an operatic career before his sight fades completely.

"I can do it! I will do it." vowed husky, bass-voiced David Hartley. "All I've got to do is study hard while I can still see a little."

Hartley is afflicted with choroid sramela, which already has partly obscured his vision. Physicians say the condition is incurable.

"Within two years," he told Hartley, "you'll be self-supporting."

SPORTSMEN AND INTERNATIONAL AMITY

At a banquet of sportsmen in New York City, D. Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Travel Bureau, brought some interesting facts to the gathering as he pleaded with sportsmen to dedicate themselves to the ministry of reconciliation, keeping alive between Canada and the United States a spirit of tolerance and peace as an example to the troubled world. He pointed out that yearly 70,000 American sportsmen enter Canada, leaving millions and spending $600,000 in licence fees. Incidentally he mentioned that last year 18,280,000 persons in all visited Canada from other lands, a record which placed the Dominion foremost in the world for tourist travel. Such visitors come "bringing friendliness, not desolation, wealth, not destruction and greater than the dollars and cents significance are the results of co-mingling of people of two nations and the relationship of two peoples as one of the few symbols of sanity left in the world."

These remarks indicate clearly enough how blessed is the North American continent where there are no ancient or modern racial and national enmities, no conflicting "isms" which would rend the western world asunder for the mere conquest of power. The United States and Canada have no inherited and innate fear or sense of insecurity. So safe do they feel that not a gun marks the border of thousands of miles. What is the possibility of such a thing in Europe for many years or perhaps generations to come? North American nations cannot understand border animosities, many European nations have known nothing else.

The place Canada has occupied in the world as the leading attraction for tourists is due in large part to the fine relationship and security existing on this continent. Americans and Canadians can move about freely, Europeans and others pay visits to both sides of the boundary line. Canada also appeals with its natural scenery. It has many places in a state of nature which tourists and especially sportsmen love. She has looked after reforestation, has her conservation commissions and legislation which maintain game and fisheries. The tourists help to maintain these with the fees they pay for licences and the money they leave in Canada.

It is fitting that such an appeal as that of Mr. Dolan should be made to sportsmen, who can well understand the spirit of their friendship. A like spirit binds the two countries.

HUNGARY IN THE NEWS

From one of the small nations, Hungary, one of the heavy sufferers from the Great War when her union with Austria was severed by Versailles Treaty, came a piece of news yesterday which may affect the nation both as a way to pay old war debts — something the world has almost forgotten to talk of during the past year or two. True, she does not want to pay interest and the amount is small for each annual levy but this nation indicates a willingness and a readiness to pay up.

One other nation has never defaulted in a debt payment to the United States.

INSTINCT FOR SYMPATHY

A late news story yesterday told of thousands of people lining the shores of Meaford Bay, helpless to aid a 350-pound buck, riding on its haunches a 14-foot-square ice floe, 300 yards off shore. Boats did not dare to venture out to aid the animal lest it should become frightened and spring into the water from the floe and perish of cold.

Man has a remarkable quality of sportsmanship and would dare a great deal to save an animal in distress.

He has been accused of many shortcomings and sad to state often he has been found to have fallen far short of his best ideal. But there are events and situations which draw out his keen sense of sympathy with the entire breathing creation and even he will avoid destroying beauty of a wild flower in the woods in spring.

Men, women and children have risked and lost their lives for pet animals and will continue to do so as long as there are humans and animal pets and wild animals. They have without a thought of self, died or suffered permanent injury in the hope of saving a child or adult in trouble.

IN A STATE OF ARMS

How will the new world feel when all the nations have armed? Some have seen in it the possibility of inumerable quarrels and the possible cause of wars. Most believe under the exigencies of the present arming is the only possible way as a guarantee of what security is possible.

Being armed today means something greatly different from being armed in another age, air fleets roaring through the air, long range guns like those at Singapore which are reported to have a range of fifty miles for shells weighing a ton and a half, possibly new weapons of offensive held in secret for the sake of security.

Meanwhile one has the word of a British statesman that in time Britain will be so strong that nations will hesitate before attacking.

MILLIONS OF PEOPLE ARE CONSIDERING WHERE THEY WILL SPEND THEIR VACATIONS. There are over thirty million family automobiles in the United States alone. Most of the folks who will take holidays this summer will have a better holiday if they visit Belleville. This city offers many attractions to the summer visitor. Splendid scenery, fine weather for fishing or sleeping or roaming about—the best of fishing, the finest waterways, and many historical associations of intense interest .This is where Sir Gilbert Parker began his writing career, dreaming great dreams of "The Seats of the Mighty", and "The Lane that Had No Turning". In the long summer days before vacation in the Little Red School House where he taught—now he rests beside his wife in the mausoleum he had constructed for the purpose in Belleville's beautiful cemetery where the waters of the Bay of Quinte break quietly on the shore and stately trees gently bend to whisper to the waves of the long ago and the great and near great who have passed that way. In the same cemetery sleeps a former Premier of Canada, a noted figure in Canada's most troubled times, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, a sturdy son of sturdy, old fashioned Canadian breed, fast passing away, who crossed the continent to Vancouver after he was ninety at the close of the session of the Senate where he led the Conservative majority. Another rests there who built up a vast industrial enterprise, served his country at Ottawa, and made more personal friends possibly than any other public man in the history of Canada, a man of wide vision and sympathetic heart whose thoughts seemed always to centre upon one theme, How much good can I do? Senator Harry Corby. A few miles away can be found reminders of one of the greatest builders of Canada, Sir John A. Macdonald, at the place where he spent most of his boyhood, Adolphustown. Immersed in a flood of pleasant memories the visitor wonders at all over Prince Edward County where he finds much to attract, thrill and please—ancient burying grounds with tombstones recalling the landing of United Empire Loyalists or the last watch of many lake mariners who lived their lives out or perished in the many storms when sail was the motive power. The Lake on the Mountain with its mystery and unexplored depths, the phenomenon that water will not run up hill. Then back to Hastings County to follow the Sagonaska along its winding course for many miles through the haunts of pike, pikerel, bass and muskinonge, to the mysterious Crystle Hole, the Shimmying Falls, Myers Cave and the lost silver mine, the working talc mines supplying the soothing and aromatic powder for the faces of many million ladies the world over —the great Trent Canal with its many locks and picturesque lockmasters and their houses on the bank—lakes, rivers, forests, game fish and game animals—where can the summer seeker after health and recreation get more than right here with headquarters in Belleville—with many and varied attractions inviting from every point of the compass, and the big cities only a few hours away. Let's tell 'em and sell 'em.

"TRANSIENT GOSPEL MONGERERS" ARE DISTURBING THE EDITOR of the Trenton Courier Advocate. "We believe in religion", says he, "believe in churches and all that, but why should we or anybody else in this town be pestered to death by strangers who insist on saving our souls and making us over again." Trenton editor intimates editorially that these strangers with a yen to save souls have a commercial side as well and generally want something, cash or kind. Looking at the case by and large the said "gospel-mongerers" must have been quite contours to try their persuasive eloquence upon a salty and seasoned newspaper editor. They would be better advised persuading the editor to turn over his delinquent subscriber list to them — they could try their luck converting said delinquent subscribers and turning them into prized and profitable paid in advance subscribers, the kind for whom there is prepared the finest mansions in the next life as a reward for their good citizenship in this life.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

FEB. 25TH, 1918

The beautiful spring weather today was very encouraging to all winter-weary people, breathing as it does the promise of an early spring, the disappearance of the fuel famine and a general let up in the heavy expense of trying to keep warm on quarter-ton coal rations. Old Sol is a bully old soul, more power to him.

Mr. D. V. Sinclair left today to attend a meeting of the executive committee in connection with the Provincial Temperance Union.

Mr. John Elliott, manager of the Standard Bank here, is spending a few days in Hamilton.

The congregation of St. Thomas' Church presented a purse containing $25.00 to gold to Mr. and Mrs. George Edwards, South John Street, on the occasion of the golden celebration of their wedding on Feb. 23rd. The address which accompanied the purse was signed by the rector, the Ven. Archdeacon G. R. Beamish, Mr. H. F. Ketchenon, the People's Warden and Mr. J. W. Davison, the Rector's Warden. Many friends called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward to extend congratulations and to express good wishes.

30 YEARS AGO

One builder in this city has already declined to accept work which was offered to him for the coming season. He has all he can do from early spring to late in the fall. Looks like a busy season for the masons.

Men driving teams engaged in drawing ice should stop and pick up the odd cakes of ice which fall from the sleigh. When left upon the roadway, as they usually are, they are a source of danger, especially at night. Something should be done to stop the practice.

At a meeting of the city council Ald. Panter informed the members that when the government engineer was here last week looking over the harbor and the flood conditions, he stated to him that under existing conditions the only relief possible would be obtained by getting an ice breaker from New York and breaking up all the ice in the harbor, thus allowing the water to flow away.

The Royal Templars of Temperance will hold a parlor social this evening at the residence of Mr. D. J. Fairfield, North William Street, a good programme will be given and refreshments served.

Mr. Charles Henry of Thomasburg, a nephew of ex-Alderman Adam Henry of this city, has gone to Manitoba where he will spend several months visiting relatives.

The Legal Society met last evening with the President, Mr. W. N. Ponton, in the chair. The programme consisted of a reading by Mr. S. D. Lazier and a question drawer in which all the members took part. Then followed the debate, "Resolved, that a Divorce Court would be beneficial to Canada." Messrs. S. D. Wallbridge, Walker Lazier, Ponton and Thannahill took the affirmative side and Messrs. Gallagher, Macaulay, Hulme and Kingston upheld the negative side. The decision was given in favor of the negative. At the next meeting a mock court will be held.

The regular meeting of the High School Literary Society was held last evening and was ably presided over by Mr. F. Brintzel. A pleasing programme of well selected readings, recitations and vocal solos was given. Next came a debate on the subject, "Resolved, that a bridge across the bay would be beneficial to the surrounding country." The affirmative was ably supported by Messrs. Lingham, Robinson, and F. Oliver and the negative side was taken by Messrs. Metcalf and Dorland and Mr. Frost. The decision was given in favor of the affirmative.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Cancer is Curable in its Early Stages

When the word tumor is mentioned there are many who think there is only one kind of tumor and that is cancer or carcinoma.

As a matter of fact any lump or growth on the body is called a tumor, and so the first definition a medical student is given is "A tumor is a lump".

As I remember these different lumps, there was the lump filled with fat,—a lipoma—which was what is called a 'benign' or 'innocent' tumor. Another kind of fibrous tissue was called a fibroid tumor. A tumor or lump that occurred on a "surface" of any kind —skin, lining of the mouth, lining of a gland—that is where it could be irritated by substances passing over it such as tobacco, a breast gland or food in stomach or intestine was a "malignant" lump, or tumor—cancer or carcinoma. There were several other kinds of lumps or tumors according to the tissues in which they grew.

Naturally it is cancer that interests us most for it now stands in second place as a cause of death, whereas thirty years ago it stood in sixth place. This, in part, is due to the fact that fewer youngsters die at birth or during the first year of life and knowledge of how to take care of one's self means that more live to middle age—the cancer age.

The unfortunate point about cancer is that in its early stages it is painless and by the time it reaches the painful stage it is too late to affect a cure by the three known methods—surgery, X-rays, and radium.

Prof. Henry K. Pancoast, professor of radiology, University of Pennsylvania, in Hygeia, says:

"What, then, should the patient look for as an early symptom? Any sore or lump on the surface of the skin which persists longer than it should, moles that change over their surface, or even old skin conditions should arouse suspicion of cancer."

It is while it is in its early stage, situated in one spot, and free of it from other parts of the body, that treatment by surgery, X-ray, radium will cure. If it has spread to distant parts of the body which cannot be reached by surgery, the use of the X-ray treatment is the only known method for reaching these "colonies" that have come from the main or original cancerous growth.

It should always be remembered that while the cause of cancer is unknown, 'cancer is curable' in its early stages.

Austrian Citizens Searched in Effort to Quell Mounting Disorders

Austrian steel-helmeted troops are shown ABOVE, searching citizens in Vienna, in an effort to stop the spread of Nazi rioting which is terrorizing Austria's 250,000 Jews. Fear that Britain's recent apparent siding with the dictators might clear the way for German expansion in Europe and rob Austria of her independence has precipitated a strong drive by Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg against the activities of many of his former opponents as disorders spread through most of the province.

Thos. Solmes Again President Stirling Laymen's Assoc.

Rev. E. W. Rowland Speaker at Wesley Bi-Centenary Program

Stirling—The Layman's Association of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, held its annual meeting and re-organization in the church parlors on Tuesday night last. The work of the year was reviewed and all the officers for the coming year were elected. Mr. Thomas Solmes, who has given fine leadership as chief executive was re-elected president for another term.

In the programmes presented at the various meetings of the year the purpose of bringing the life and work of the church to the fore before the men of the congregation has been the outstanding one. In every meeting something of this was achieved, and the programme which last night followed the election of officers this was outstanding. It was the first of a series of meetings planned by the minister, Rev. W. J. Scott, for this spring to give due recognition to the Bi-centenary of the conversion of John Wesley. Thus every part of the programme had its bearing upon this theme.

Bob Patterson led the gathering in singing of Hymns of Grace and Charles Wesley. Mr. Gerald Clute presided at the piano. Mr. Scott's address gave a fine address touching on the early life of John Wesley, and the influence of his particular that in their life and character from that sprang their poetry and Hymody. In the Hymnary of the United Church, 153 hymns of the Hymns of the Wesleys are included, the largest number under any one name in the Hymnary.

The guest speaker of the evening was Rev. E. W. Rowland of St. Mark's United Church, Peterboro, who is well known to many here by introduction, and was tendered a most cordial welcome upon his return to his old congregation. Mr. Rowland expressed his appreciation of the invitation to return and address the laymen's association, and his pleasure at meeting with many friends of other days.

He took as his theme, "The Continuance of a Fact of Experience two hundred years later." Tracing briefly the terrible conditions of decline and decadence found in every age of life in England at the beginning of the 18th century, the appalling extent of poverty, ignorance and vice, the callousness of class for class, and this even in the church. The speaker showed how a group of four young men students at Oxford University at first no personal purity, and then to serve their fellows. These four were: Whitefield, Morgan, and the two Wesleys, John and Charles.

From this small beginning the later "United Societies" developed and a flame of revival of true religion which conquered all impurity, injustice, and unreality swept the whole of Ruglish, most of Ireland and Scotland, and was to have repercussions world-wide and which lives in their effect. When Wesley died in 1791 these Societies had increased numbers of approximately one hundred thousand persons.

But the real secret of the life of John Wesley dates back to Epworth. Mrs. Susanna Wesley, he had found his way into light and freedom just three days before. — Whit Sunday, May 21st. Few words of autobiography, but these are frequently quoted than those with which Wesley describes his own conversion: "In the evening I went very unwillingly to a society in Aldersgate Street where one was reading Luther's preface to the Epistle of the Romans. About a quarter before nine while he was describing the change which God works in the heart through faith in Christ, I felt my heart strangely warmed. I felt I did trust in Christ, Christ alone, for salvation; and an assurance was given me that He had taken away my sins, even mine, and saved me from the law of sin and death."

The transformation which took place may be difficult to explain, but the fact remains that he found revitalize religion in England, and possibly more than any other one man spurred the people on to greater Christian activity.

Mr. Rowland's address was written on the social and political consequences of Wesley's work. Today the world with all its scientific and mechanized achievements has come to a very low ebb of spiritual power and sense of our need of the things for which Wesley stood. God always works his great purposes out through individuals who should surrender themselves to Him. And what happened two hundred years ago is happening today. There is only he as people like ourselves who need to be willing to give themselves to Him as Wesley did. This is the hope of tomorrow.

The thanks of the Association were expressed by Mr. Albert Wills, and by the minister, Rev. W. J. Scott. The meeting closed with the benediction by Rev. James E. Bekel.

Rev. A. S. McConnell Addresses Stirling Ministerial

The regular weekly meeting of St. Andrew's Young People's Guild was held in the church parlors on Monday evening under the direction of Miss Phyllis Ward, convener of the Program Committee. Arthur Duncan acting as chairman for the evening opened the service with a brief song service after which Scripture was read by members. The scriptural passages selected for the evening were read by Miss Dorothy Montgomery and Rev. J. A. Kofrend led in prayer. During the business session of the meeting which followed, Miss Ward, secretary, read the correspondence and presented a report of the previous meeting. Plans were discussed for the take place at the next meeting was announced by the Chairman. A vote of thanks was tendered Miss Ward, Miss Dorothy Ormiston and Marybelle Rodgers for their musical contribution to the programme with Mrs. Williams, also acted as pianist for the evening providing the accompaniment.

Speaker is Rev. A. S. McConnell

The guest speaker of the evening was Rev. A. S. McConnell, Rector of St. John's Parish, who introduced his subject by saying: "I A. Kofrend speaking on the subject: "Totalitarianism and Christianity" Rev. McConnell dealt with the complicated condition of many countries ing powers of the world. New Worlds for Old" was introduced to classify such movements as Communism, Nazism, and Communism and because we in Canada have been a far part from the countries where the power of the totalitarian structures are being felt we lack in knowledge of their origin, purpose and background. They all have their weaknesses and all can be classed as totalitarianism regime's. It is interesting to note that Communism is based upon the doctrine of Carl Marx, who was of German birth. Progress in all these movements has been based upon the youth of the land consequently adventure is the keynote to their popularity.

The fast developing mind of youth in these lands are fed with thoughts of heroic patriotism and the cause of state being a gigantic adventure in which even the children are included. Christian teaching does not adopt the same principles in many respects to combat the increasing inroads of these movements into our own land," he declared. This was one of the most interesting and educational address given before the association for some time and dealing with a topic that is so much in the public eye at the present day added to the interest. Thanks of the organization were extended Rev. McConnell by the Chairman and the meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

HOUSE HAS BEEN DESIGNED FOR NARROW LOT

Design 219-A, Courtesy National Plan Service, Inc., Chicago

English or colonial style bungalow with identical floor plan.

By Central Press

THIS ENGLISH type of bungalow has been designed for a narrow lot, such as is often seen in a city —lots perhaps not more than 30 feet wide.

This type of architecture is also readily adaptable to corner lots. An alternate plan, in colonial style is also shown, with which the same floor plans are used.

In the first plan, shown top, the entrance is on the side, with a porch across the front; in the latter design the bay window in front substitutes for the porch, and the entrance is on the front.

The long living room with fireplace, and opening on to the porch with French doors, is very attractive. Back of it is an unusually commodious dinette, and the kitchen is at the extreme back. The other side of the house consists of vestibule containing a clothes closet; two bedrooms, with the bathroom between.

BEAUTY EXPERT LISTS THE CORSET AS A "MUST" FOR MODERN DRESSES

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

ONE THING that the fashions of the last few seasons has taught us is that the most perfect form is leveller with some kind of corseting. And thus braced it stays lovely longer. Simply an exquisite figure in the nude. You'll see, despite its seeming smoothness, all sorts of little muscles, curves and hollows that are natural and lovely in the nude, but that break the smoothness of line the eye unconsciously demands in a figure in modern dress. Too, a figure that is controlled, however slightly, is less apt to develop the bumps and bulges that seem to creep up on us, be we ever so careful.

When your figure isn't absolutely perfect a bit of corseting is a must! Of course, by corseting we don't mean the old ironsides that turned grandmother's waking hours into nightmares of rigidity. With the new fabrics, and new ways of handling them, there's no reason why you shouldn't combine perfect control with perfect comfort.

Good for Year Round

For instance, in this day of miracles, there are girdles that are known for their flexibility. They have side panels of lastique, fitted in bias lines that actually make your diaphragm, buttocks, hips and abdomen, pull against each other, thus assist in their own control. These designs mold you to the loveliest lines imaginable, yet they are really so flexible that you could practically do your daily doing while wearing them.

There's also a triple control fashion which you'll adore for summer. In fact, some of the loveliest girls we know tell us they're going to wear them all year round, because, despite the fact that they are boneless, they do marvelous things in raising the bosom. They also control your waist, hips, thighs and tummy, is most effective for evening wear.

Anna Neagle
Corseted as in grandmother's day.

And the beauty of the new foundations is that they can be gotten so smooth that one can wear them beneath the slickest frock without a line showing.

Of course the problem of a brassiere is as important as it always was. But even the most difficult bosom can be raised and divided in lines to delight a sculptor, if you'll choose the correct type and have it properly fitted.

That brings us to what we consider the most important trick in corsetry. That is, perfection in fit. Pick a moderately priced garment, any line, rather than an expensive garment that has been designed for a figure other than your own.

There are three basic types of figure. The tall, the short, and the medium. And each of these has three divisions. The figure of symmetrical proportions, the figure with a long bosom and small hips, and the figure with large hips and small bosom. Unless your foundation is designed for whichever of the nine you happen to be, it can't hope to do you justice. So, the next time you select a combination or a girdle, go to a corset department that boasts of expert fitters. Take your time, and don't decide on a garment until you've seen it from all angles, in a triplicate mirror. Stretch in it, sit down, move around. Then if you're sure it makes you artistically and comfortable, as well, make it your very own. You'll find your time and money well spent.

W. C. T. U.

At the Tabernacle Church on Wednesday, February 23rd, a well attended parlour meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held under the leadership of Mrs. O. Lent and Mrs. M. Duff and their groups.

Mrs. R. Farnsworth, the superintendent of parlour meetings, was in charge and gave a few items about Frances Willard, the founder of W.C.T.U. After the devotional given by Mrs. E. Baker, a quiz on the life and work of Frances Willard, whose birthday is celebrated this month was led by Mrs. P. Adams, several ladies taking part. Mrs. D. Cleland and Mrs. M. Duff delighted with solos and Mrs. A. Charlton gave a splendid reading.

The special speaker was the Rev. G. Stoner, who brought a message of conditions, not miles away, but in our own city which stirred every one. He told the Arab legend of the first drink making one strut like a peacock, the second drink making one act like a monkey and the third drink, act like a pig and told of a teen-aged boy who had produced a bottle of wine and offered it at a party. He felt he was the big fellow strutting like a peacock). The second illustration was a party this past week at which young people, even young mothers were drinking and the language used and actions were such as to disturb nearby residents and the police had to be called. Then the last was of visiting a man, who had spent his life in Hotton Row and was now living in poverty and degradation; living like a pig. He urged that women rouse up and fight as the Gaddiles of old were willing to Sacrifice every thing to fight for what they believed to be right.

Three ways to combat this evil are, first, prayer in the home; second, education in the public school and Sunday Schools and thirdly, public protest.

Previous to the parlour meeting a business meeting was held at which the President Mrs. Moore, presided.

Twenty dollars was voted to the County Treasurer for the Budget Fund and also a donation of $10 to the local Y.M.C.A.

Miss Tetzell made herself a Provincial Life member and a suggestion was received from the County effecting that the Union send girls to the "Y" girls' camp to be held at Consecon Lake in July.

Mrs. Farnsworth reported on the last Sunday School Contest and $10 was voted for prize money and expenses.

HUSBAND TO BLAME?

Margaret's friends pity her—think marriage has made her an awful drudge—a regular "dishpan slave." Sometimes they blame her husband.

Actually, Margaret does no more housework or dishwashing than many of her friends. She could easily have hands as soft and white as theirs, if she used their beauty care . . . gentle Lux. It costs less than 1¢ a day.

Lux* is very different from many soaps. It contains no harmful alkali to irritate and dry the skin. That's why it leaves hands so soft and lovely.

Let these pure, rich Lux flakes do your dishpan work. They're faster—and so much kinder to the hands!

Hat Veils Grow Longer With Styles More Varied

Worn With Large and Small Chapeaux Often Dropping to the Waistline

Helen Jepson wears black straw cocktail hat with long veil.

By LISBETH

THE HAT is the burning question of the day. One needs to wear a warm suit or coat until the weather settles in fair and warmer, but the spring hat need not be saved even until Easter. It may be worn right now to make one's spirits and morale.

There is one thing very certain in this 1938 season, Madame or mademoiselle can choose almost any kind of hat she wishes or thinks is becoming, and then tie or drape a veil over it, and she will be in style. The longer the veil the better.

Take the large bonnet-shaped chapeau worn here by Helen Jepson, opera singer, who is making her debut in moving pictures. It's one of those simple things in black straw which always gives a smart air to one's whole ensemble. The veil in this case, which is very long in front, does not cover the face, but is drawn from under the brim to fall almost to the waist.

No Veil Permissible

Of course, if you prefer no veil, you can be obliged, too. There are small hats with large ones, also middle sized hats that are not veiled in front. The crowns of the large and medium sized brimmed hats are somewhat of a surprise. We have been trained to expect high soaring effects in both brims and crowns.

Then there are hats that tie demurely under the chin once worn rarely by the girls who dressed in ultra style wore them. But "everyone's doing it now", and why not? It is very becoming, somehow.

The vogue for flowers continues. One brimmed hat is trimmed with large white orchids, lily; another —a tiny kid seamed touque—has fuschias, violets and poppies clustered in front. Veils are always worn on the flowered hats, but they often are and they certainly help to keep the posies fresh, so will appeal to the thrifty girl.

Hats of novel fabrics are being worn, one of blue lizard suede, another, whetting milady's natural interest, hats as this season of the year. Trimmings, too, are intriguing, and so are colors. As we have mentioned before, small flowers in clusters and perfectly huge ones, usually posed singly, are both important.

One of the important designers uses much contrast in crown and brim colors; another specializes in the Empress Eugenie and Eighteenth century paintings; still another, in so-called "romantic" colors combined.

Sheer Black Very Stunning If Worn by Pretty Blond

By Central Press

A YOUNG and pretty blond always looks stunning in a sheer black frock.

So young and blond Betty Grable, recent bride, and in the movies, chooses for her personal wardrobe a black chiffon dinner dress worn over black taffeta, and shown here.

The short, puffed sleeves are lined with invisible stiffening, and turquoise blue velvet ribbon encircles the bodice, rising to a V in front to form an empire line, then circles the waist and ties in a neat bow and long ends in front. A corsage of blue velvet violets marks the point of the V neckline and matches the ribbon.

Many of the newer dinner dresses recently shown in Paris collections have soft blousing in sleeves and bodices. This styling often is combined with slim skirts.

Girl Can't Trust Her Boy Friend

By VIRGINIA LEE

IF A GIRL cannot trust the man she is planning to marry, and if he may later endanger her health, and maybe life, by going to places where he may catch a social disease, he certainly isn't to be considered a prize, is he?

That is your answer, Anu D. I can understand how you "hate him in one way and love him in another". One cannot stop loving a person just as one would turn off a water spigot to stop the flow, but you must be very disappointed in this young man, and I don't wonder you "don't feel the same toward him". I don't see how you can "trust and believe in him any more".

I am afraid your heart will ache and your faith in men be shaken by this boy's actions, but I feel you will be much happier in the long run if you break off your love affair with him and find a man who is more trustworthy.

P. R. C.: I answered your previous letter, P. R. C. You say that hardly having your wife for wanting to be with her parents if they are old and need her, and especially if she herself is ill. And yet, I realize how very hard it is on you to have her and your sweet daughter so far away.

Your wife might feel very strange and lonely in a hospital, even if she were near you.

It is a problem that no outsider can answer, really. It always seems to me that a wife's place is by her husband's side and making a home for him, and yet, it might be that your wife is right in staying with her parents right now.

In the answer I previously gave you, and which you doubtless have seen before this, I advised you to be patient for a while, let things go and do your part in writing and sending money. If, however, you are convinced in time that your wife means never to come back to you, you have a right to tell her you want a divorce, and to do just what this, I take it, as you seem to fond of your wife's daughter. I very sincerely hope you will not lose them. It is certainly and that your wife is aware of you. You never give her any cause to be, I suppose, even unintentionally?

A CONSTANT READER: Is the young man with whom you are so desperately in love a "nice" boy to take advantage of your trusting feeling for him to "try you out"? I am not so sure of it, I'm afraid. I think it was a mean trick. If he has any brains at all and any real feeling for you, you can bet he's kicking himself, he must know that you would be likely to let him go further than you would anyone else because you care so much.

But he says anything more about the "nice" question, you might tell him that and see what he says. You know you are a good girl, and you rest on that fact, no matter what he seems to think. Too bad love makes you so blind.

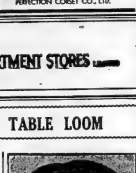
USES SMALL TABLE LOOM

By GEORGIANA WORTHLEY

Central Press Correspondent

MRS. HARVEY K. MEYER, Ocala, Fla., is adept in reproducing historical weaving patterns on a miniature loom designed by her husband, who is instructor of woodworking at the University School of Adult Education at Camp Roosevelt, near Ocala.



The development of a small table loom is a bit of research, but I believe some day it will prove popular since many women are reviving the arts of their grandmothers — crocheting, knitting patchwork quilting and rug making," says Mrs. Meyer. "On these small looms they can make linen towels, bureau scarfs, luncheon mats, purses, etc.

"My husband had lots of fun planning this model for me, making every minute part one-third of its regular size. It is of black walnut."

Mrs. Meyer claims that mineral wool proves the most skilful in weaving. "They seem to grasp the rhythm of the looms quicker, which is a kind of a waltz tempo—one, two, three. You beat once, change the treadle and beat twice. The directions for weaving are written on a five line staff like a musical score, using small lines in the white spaces instead of notes."

Native of Kentucky

Mrs. Meyer is a native of Kentucky and lived most of her life in that state and Cincinnati, O. Her husband was born at Carlisle, Pa., where his parents were employed in the Indian school. With his parents he traveled in Indian field service to Wisconsin, Minnesota, South Dakota and Washington state.

Girl Is In Love With Young Man Who Is Another Woman's Fiance

Should She Go With Him or Stop? Is Query Put to Miss Lee

By VIRGINIA LEE

"MY DEAR MISS LEE: I would appreciate very much your advice on this question:

"I am in love with a young man and he says he loves me, but he was engaged to another girl before I met him and met me. He says he is trying to break the engagement, but she hangs after him.

"Should I continue going with him while he's engaged, or should I tell him that he break the engagement if he wishes me to go with him? Also what advice would you give toward breaking such an engagement, if that is what you advise?

"The other day he asked me if I would like to meet his fiancee. Would it be better to meet her or not meet her?

"TROUBLESOME"

I think you should not go with a man who is engaged to another woman any more than you should go with a man who is married. He belongs to her and you have no right to go with him. It is embarrassing and humiliating to her to have people tell her that they saw her fiance out with another girl. He should absolutely break the engagement before he shows his attentions on another girl. I know that this sometimes is difficult when the girl in question still loves him and wants to hold him, but it is his duty to do it, nevertheless.

I also think it would be a good idea to tell the young man that you would like to meet the other girl in his life. Possibly she seems unreal to you now, and if you met you would see what type of person she is, and could act accordingly. If she is a decent sort whom you like, you might feel you had better step out of the picture. On the other hand, if you thought them definitely unsuited, you could encourage him to make the break right away. There is only one way to do it. Tell her he no longer loves her and that he cannot marry her.

Of course, you would be a difficult position, as you love him, but I know you could be a good sport, even if you had to decide against yourself.

MARY L.: Honestly, you have me puzzled. You evidently appeal to a part of this man's nature that his wife doesn't touch. Yet, the wife, too, must satisfy another side of him. My dear, every girl who ever loved a married man says the same thing: "Why won't the wife leave when she knows I love him and he loves me?" Well, very often the man loves his wife, too, and would not be willing for her to give him a divorce. And it is difficult for a wife, who has probably held her husband's love and made a home for him over many years, to think that it really is true that he prefers someone else to her.

I am very sorry for you, and yet I wonder if more heartache won't come to you if you persist upon carrying on this affair than if you break it off. You may be lonely, of course, and feel you do not attract other men, or you may cling to him if you had led a normal girl's life, with boy friends and such, he probably would have appealed to you.

You are sure of your physical condition, are you? And could you be helped by either surgery or psychiatry? Wonder if talking to this man's wife would help. It depends upon what type of woman she is, I suppose, whether a broad-minded person or not. Would he consider marrying you if his wife would divorce him?

WORRIED: If the boy you went with when you were 16 has not shown any interest in you since that time, and you are now 19, I do not see much sense in setting your heart on him and thinking he is "your own true love." It seems to me it would be much more sensible to go out with these other boys and make up your mind to forget him, especially as you say they are nicer than he is. Don't worry about being an old maid.

CONSTANT READER: I am sorry, but I do not give names and addresses through the column in the way you have suggested. Also I haven't the real name or address of the person you mention. I am sorry for the loss of your wife, and hope you will find a nice girl to be your companion.

Mental Ill Is Treated By Shock

By LOGAN CLENDENNING, M. D.

WE RECENTLY have been hearing a great deal about a form of mental disease by which the mind is so disturbed that it may possibly be shocked into getting back on the tracks.

The mental disturbances in which this method has been most successful are those called the "split personalities" or "schizophrenia". They are sometimes called also "dementia praecox" because they are likely to affect young people. The condition has been rightly called "living death" because the patients draw into themselves, take no interest in the outside world, and appear to hibernate. They sit in one position and do not answer questions, show no initiative or no desire to take part in the activities of others.

The substance which was first used in these cases was insulin, that remedy for diabetes which reduces sugar in the blood. When the blood sugar gets sufficiently low, the body goes into shock of a severe character. After this shock period has lasted a certain length of time it is possible to restore the blood sugar to normal; to give sugar injections in the veins and the patient awakens. It is quite a good many instances the shock wakes the mind up and disturbs it so that it begins to operate in more or less normal fashion.

More Remarkable Than Insulin

Probably even more remarkable than insulin, has been the use of a drug called "metrazol". This makes very profound changes in the body and usually results in a shock convulsion if given in sufficient dosage. It is used in dementia praecox because, according to allen, epilepsy and dementia praecox are absolutely antagonistic.

Metrazol upsets all the chemistry of the body and produces a convulsion. The hope is that when the mind begins to recover from the convulsion, it will somehow "jump" itself back into gear.

Both of these treatments are very dangerous, but the condition of the patient is usually so desperate that one would be willing to come than a continuation of the deranged state, and most people will take the risk in order to take the chance of a good result.

I have seen one or two instances of the operation of these methods which are quite encouraging. The reports from many sources indicate that as much as 50 per cent of good results can possibly be expected.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

E. C. P.: "I would like to know what to do to stop my little daughter's feet from sweating."

Answer: Sponging morning and night in a cool solution of formaldehyde—one teaspoon to a quart of water.

S. M.: "Will you please let me know a remedy for bleeding piles?"

Answer: Suppositories containing astringents often help. Otherwise, injection or operation.

E. R.: "In your article of Dec. 23 you stated that soaps and condensos extractors are very essential to open the mouths of the sebacious glands. I would appreciate very much if you would suggest a soap or a condense extractor."

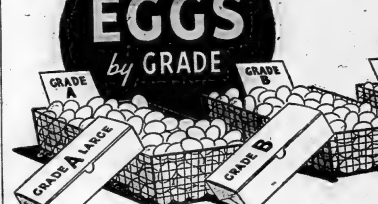
Answer: Nearly any soap will do, but the stronger soaps, such as liquid green soap or other soap are a little better. There is only one kind of condenos extractor that I know about.

Poems That Live

SONG

My silks and fine array,
My smiles and languished air,
By love are driven away;
And mournful lean Despair
Brings me yew to deck my grave:
Such end true lovers have.

His face is fair as Heaven
When springing buds unfold;
O, why to him was given,
Whose heart is wintry cold?
His breast is love's all-worshipped tomb,
Where all love's pilgrims come.



Bring me an axe and spade,
Bring me a winding-sheet:
When I my grave have made,
Let winds and tempests beat:
Then down I'll lie, as cold as clay.
True love doth pass away!

—William Blake.

A DEVOUT LOVER

I have a mistress, for perfections rare
In every eye, but in my thoughts most fair.
Like tapers on the altar shine her eyne;
Her breath is the perfume of sacrifice;
And whereso'er my fancy would begin,
Still her perfection leis religion in.
We sit and talk, and kiss away the hours
Devoutly:
And come into my courtship as my prayer.

—Thomas Randolph.

How Good Meal Is Ruined By Lack of Seasoning

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Cube Steaks — Mashed Potatoes
Gravy — Beets
Cherry Pie — Coffee

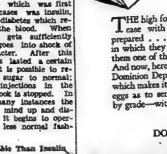
This was a menu that was served to a group of us the other day. Nobody seem to eat my share, although the steak was tender. Somehow the meal lacked something and all agreed that it badly needed a salad or something else that was crisp.

It always surprises me to realize how delicious a meal can be with the right combination of foods and the right seasonings, and how insipid it can be with those left out. A palm reader told me a while ago that I was finicky about food. I didn't believe her at the time as I like practically any kind of food, all the things that other people dislike, with the exception of bread soaked in any way—and that is my one pet aversion. A very simple and inexpensive little salad of crisp cabbage and green pepper is something of the sort, would have improved the menu very much, and better seasoning would have made it a delicious repast. A salad that I have been using lately is kumquat, because someone sent me a delicious box of fruit from Florida, which contained a number of these pretty little fruits. I will give you my recipe. You can use them with any combination you prefer.

Today's Recipes

KUMQUAT SALAD.—Combine shredded or finely cut celery cabbage with watercress, slice kumquats very thin over the top, and serve with your favorite salad dressing.

FACTS AND FANCIES



New Butter

A new product called orange butter is being manufactured and is already winning popularity. Orange butter is classified by the grocer as a preserve. The juice and pulp of the orange are cooked with sugar to give a finished product that is of a lustrous orange color about the same texture and consistency of apple butter. The pulp and meat of the natural pectin of the orange in order to secure the desired consistency. The peel is ground and lemon juice is added to give firmness. The result is one of the most delicious orange products yet to make its appearance on the market.

The orange butter which comes packaged in glass jars is sealed under the process used by many leading food manufacturers technically known as vapor-vacuum sealing. This sealing process insures freshness as it seals products hermetically selling out air—worst enemy of freshness and flavor. In fact, Glass packed foods that are vapor-vacuum sealed are usually approved by the housewife, for the cap is easily removed by lifting with the edge of a dull knife.

Ice Box Gingerbread

One-half cup butter or substitute, one cup sugar, two eggs, one-half cup molasses, one-half cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda, two cups flour, one and one-fourth teaspoons ginger, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon allspice. Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs one at a time, beating after each addition. Add molasses and beat well. Stir soda into sour milk and when it begins to foam add it to mixture. Add flour, sifted with salt and spices. Put in covered bowl in ice box. Mixture may be kept and baked as needed a time. Bake in moderate oven (300 degrees) for 35 minutes.

Questions Concerning Children

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

QUESTION: My baby 18 months of age likes to have one pile up things and knock or pats for her to knock down. Is this good practice? Answer: No, while it is very amusing to the little tyke, it is poor practice because from an instruction rather than construction. Besides, you do the building for her when you do this. You really want to help her get pleasure from putting things together, however simple. If you do build anything at all for her, calmly restrain her from knocking it down. Show her how to be very careful so things she builds won't tumble. She is facing values when her pleasure grows from seeing how far she can build the blocks before they fall.

Q. When I go walking with my boy not quite three he will often refuse to let me hold him by the hand. Naturally I'm worried about his safety, though I do want him to learn self-reliance.

A. If this child has learned to walk well, it is probably well that you are sure he would stop immediately on command. You need have no concern. But inasmuch as he apparently has no sense of danger, your concern about his safety is warranted. I know some clever mothers who use a clothesline rope and "drive" the child with them.

There will be many times when you'll want to restrain him. It is necessary to hold the child by the hand. At such times she should be reckless and the child should know there is no doubt.

Q. Why Not Isolate Child?

Q. Why not isolate the naughty child in public life?

A. Isolation may be very effective in the nursery school and in many grades. But in the average home there may be no one else to isolate him from except his parents, and he probably would welcome that at times.

And if you send a naughty child to another room he might in anger destroy property or engage in other activity which would be amusing to him and would occasion further punishment. When the child is right before your eyes you can guarantee that the "sentence" is being served to the letter.

Q. What about the closet as a place for punishment?

A. The objection to it is that usually it is dark and fear-inspiring. If you must have a closet for such a purpose, put a large glass window in it. It merely affords a means of isolation. But I would not advise such a plan for punishing children. Effectual assignment to sit in a chair doing nothing, right in the mother's sight, for exactly 15 or 20 minutes, is, in my judgment, a far better way.

JUNIOR CAGERS BEAT KINGSTON IN FIRST GAME

Enjoy Six-Point Lead in First Round Play-offs

FINE BASKETBALL

Had 13-12 Advantage at The Half-way Mark

Improving in their play as the pastime advanced the Belleville Y.M.C.A. Junior hoopsters drew first blood in the Eastern Ontario Junior O.A.B.A. semi-finals, defeating the Kingston "Y" by a 34 to 8 score on the latter's home floor last evening. The Belleville kids enjoy a six-point lead to take into the second game of the series on their home floor next Tuesday night.

The scoring honors of the night went to Bill Wright, who was high-point man in the game in the second half and scored four rapid baskets, from behind centre, for the same Belleville victory. Coach Owen Aiking' cagers trailed in the early minutes before half until a few minutes before half time, when three belated baskets gave them a 13 to 12 advantage to haul into the second half, during which the Belleville athletes played sterling basketball and outplayed the homesters in Kingston and took themselves a well-earned victory.

The Kingston squad presented a baffling defense that kept the Belleville kids at bay during the early stages, but once the fast penetrated the homesters' defensive protection the Belleville boys began to find the hoop with regularity. Bill Wright, Jack Dickens and Murray Clare led the locals in scoring, with Finlay, Lummon, and Watson being the chief point gainers for Kingston.

This game was fast and closely contested, Belleville being charged with only five misdemeanors while Kingston was penalized nine times for fouling.

FAVOR WEIGHT LIMITS TO LOADS ON TRUCKS

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP)—Reeve Howard A. McCauley of Pinkerton suggested to the annual convention of Ontario Good Roads Association regulations should be established setting a weight limit on loads for trucks operating on the various types of roads.

"There is no reason for local taxpayers being taxed heavily to maintain bridges and culverts for the benefit of a few truckers who carry overloads," McCauley said.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

By Ken J. Colling

Perhaps it would be a good idea to come early and avoid being disappointed for tonight's Peterboro-Flyer fill on the ice lanes of the arena. Backed by at least 400 rabid fans, Dick Jilins' charges are scheduled to steam along side the local ice igloo about 8.15 p.m. tonight aboard a special train. When those wild Lirliner fans commenced their rail upon the seats at the arena, there won't be many left for the local patrons, so be warned. Both squads will be at full strength tonight, as it is expected Johnnie Lalonde may give his shoulder another try. The "big boy" has been under the observation of a bone specialist for a week and reports the old flipper in much better shape.

After admitting Tuesday night's game was no lea party and further suggesting the Peies were far from out of the play-off woods, the Peterboro sports scribe has the following to say relative to Tuesday's game. "The Trentons sure mined Lalonde on defence, their rear-guard could never stop long than guarding, if ya follow me. And Gibson was only so-so. Whereas Harding starred throughout as the local keeper-of-the-cage. And he had much help from a strong defence most of the distance, the outstanding stars up front, that is over the entire route, but they all went fine in flashes. Especially in the last half of the third. Tompkins filled in okay and played a nice game of hockey, his first in senior company. He replaces Al Gratien, who works hard but has no luck in scoring. Reid looks very good, as they'd tired at the finish, and the Flyers' sights helped to weigh 'em down."

After expressing surprise at the final absence of Lalonde, Reimer aids in sending Queen's to the cleaners, the Lifflock City scribe suggests Eddie Thomas could use "Honey" Tompkins on his Redmen lineup. Just where the Peterboro scribe figures Tompkins would fit in is a matter of opinion, surely he does not suggest Tompkins could replace "Wing" Wilson. If he does he has his faults in his belfry, because Wilson is just about tops as a right winger in this part of the country, and that takes in Peterboro and its environs. As a matter of fact, the Wilson-Jackson-Jackson line does not have to take a back seat from any forward line in the district, the year's scoring averages have proven that. Wilson has scored more goals and given more passes than any other individual forward line in this part of the O.H.A. picture. Jackson, while a pale, although it has been said, flays fans figure.

To ten games the Wilson-Jackson brothers' line have scored 26 goals and had 23 assists, let's see a Peterboro team or line do that top that record, regardless as to how many Tompkins are handed yes and less in their see Bill Calladine as well. Fifty one scoring points for one individual forward line is far from gauge is no mean effort in any man's O.H.A. group.

The Quinte Skating Club really did themselves proud in their initial "Winter Ice Show" at the arena last night. Belleville can proudly point to its figure and fancy skating artists with pride as we know of no city that boasts of talent and individual effort in a population such as ours. The local skating club presented a varied programme, that was most appreciated, including pageants, comedy and individual efforts

Hats were doffed to Clare "Mike" Ridley, who was forced by the programme behind a finished Toronto skater and really came through with flying colors, in a splendid exhibition of free style skating. "Mike" was put on the well known spot, following Miss Shirley Halstead, the 15-year-old Toronto skater, who thrilled the fans, but the local lad really came through with flying colors, his skating being of the thrilling nature. It should be remembered that the efforts of the Belleville skaters and their ability is purely non-professional, they do not have the advantage of a professional tutor.

There was one real trouper appearing last night, we refer to Mrs. Blake Weese (nee Miss Gloria Jordan). Mrs. Weese sustained a very serious injury to her knee while practicing for last night's show, but she carried on in true show style and gave the patrons her best in a duo with her brother Gordon Davies.

We understand that Miss Shirley Halstead, the Toronto skater, who thrilled the patrons last night, is only 16 years of age. Both Miss Halstead and Miss Margaret Manahan gave outstanding exhibitions of fancy skating and free style at the show. Their grace and poise in the manner in which modelled by the feature of the fine performances presented. As a matter of fact a fine foundation for an annual ice carnival was established through last night's all around presentation.

Here's one we really appreciated. He rushed into the newspaper office and demanded to see the editor.

"Sir," he said, as he stamped up and down the floor, "I was libelled me. You called me the lightweight champion."

"But that is true. You are Mr. Smaltz, aren't you?"

"Yes, yes," cried the irate one, "but it's my brother who is the boxer. It's a local scandal."

Apparently Belleville has a real threat in the basketball world this season. We base our opinion on the showing displayed by Coach Atkins' Belleville "Y" juniors at Kingston, when they trimmed local quintette stepped into the Limestone City and downed the homesiers 34 to 18 in the initial round play-off in the Junior O.A. B.A. playdowns. The local kids battled the homesters even for the initial half and then turned it on in the last stanza to wilts home quite easily and enjoy a six point advantage for the return tussle at the "Y" next Tuesday. The winner will advance into the Junior O.A.B.A. semi-finals, we presume. To Bill Wright goes the scoring honors of last night's stellar play, as Bill really came through in the pinches to score four well-timed baskets from behind centre. He was followed in line by Captain Jack Dickens and Murray Clare, in the scoring column. Finlay was the best on the floor for the Kingston kids, but the game was very keenly contested and the locals will need their seven point advantage to take into the second and final game.

ELIMINATE MADOC FROM PLAYOFFS

Stirling Defeats Town by Score	Northern by 8-3

Stirling, Feb. 25 (Special)—The elimination of the hard working Madoc team from the play-offs in the Trent Valley Hockey League emphatized last night as they were handed an 8-3 defeat by Stirling. A good contingent of fans were on hand to witness the game, which was fast and clean. Trying to cut down an early lead by the visitors soon resulted in the score climbing upward in the last two periods. But the style of hockey pleased the spectators and only two penalties were handed out in the entire game.

Next week will climax a most successful schedule and four closely matched teams separated by only 3 points or less are expected to battle in the semi-final play-offs, playing home and home games with goals to count and the two winning teams to meet in the championship series. Trenton, Stirling, Tweed and Campbellford are deservedly established in play-off berths. To pick the winners of the semi-finals who will meet in the finals, is difficult even for those, who have followed the play all season. At the present time Stirling and Tweed are tied for first position with Trenton third and Campbellford last. Stirling have one more schedule game to play and each of the others have two and the standing is so close that these games will ascertain the final position of the teams when the climax is reached next week. The Trent Valley League has had a successful year and which ever team carries off the new Cooley cup will be worthy champiohs.

Stirling vs. Madoc

The scoring opened after four minutes of play, when Robinson nipped the top corner on a sizzling shot from centre, which Hulin never saw. Eight minutes later "Friday" Fraser took a pass from close in off the side of Rodgers to put Stirling two up. From this point to the end of the period Madoc had the edge on the play with Hayworth beating Eve on a long effort with only four minutes left to play. After twelve minutes of the second period Alexander tied the score taking a pass from Hathorne. Stirling took the lead one minute later when Robinson got his second counter on a pass from Fraser. Butler got the next Stirling goal taking a pass from Morton right in front of the Madoc net. Madoc started the last period with vim and vigor and every break the Stirling team made was dangerous. Reid and Butler combined to make it five to two with the former scoring. Midway through the period Reid scored again this time taking the pass from Butler his third counter of the night came as a climax to a rush by Morton who gave him the pass with no one left to beat but the goal tender. Robinson scored the final goal for Stirling on a lone rush. Smith scored the only counter for the visitors to end the game 8-3.

Stirle Spotlight

The kid line of Dalrand, Butler Reid and Morton on the Stirling team stole the spotlight in the first two periods. Dalrand, Rodgers and Fraser hit their stride in the last. Alexander, Keller and Hill were the pick of the visitors with Hayworth and Munro in the nets. The score does not rightfully indicate the play. Madoc were forced to play wide open and Stirling took advantage of the breaks. The visitors were given a great hand for their clean exhibition of good clean hockey.

The remaining games were only jockeying for position with Madoc completely out of the running and the remaining four teams to met in the semi-finals.

Lineups:

Madoc: Gon Hulin; defence Smith and Embury; centre Alexander; wings Keller and Hill, Alta. Munroe Hawethorne, Muldrone and Naylor.

Stirling: Goal Fox; defence Dalrand and J. Ackers; centre Robinson; wings Fraser and Rodgers. Alta. Morton, Reid and Butler.

Referee: E. Wallace and Don Whytock.

Walter Gerow Jr. of Napanee Signs Contract with Hawks

Does Not Affect Amateur Standing if He Doesn't Make Go

GOES TO CHICAGO

It was learned today, that Walter Gerow Jr. had signed a contract with the Chicago Black Hawk Hockey Club of the National Hockey League yesterday. Young Gerow will leave for Chicago in the near future, where he will receive a thorough trial with Coach Bill Stewart's Hawks.

The information relative to young Gerow's signing with the Chicago team was announced by Billie Hughes, of this city, well known sports promotor and former hockey coach, who represents the Black Hawks as scout in Eastern Ontario.

"Gerow signed with me a contract that calls for him to proceed to Chicago in the near future and have a trial with the Black Hawks. If he does not feel inclined to remain with the Hawks or is considered too young to make the jump by Coach Bill Stewart, his amateur standing will be in no way affected as the contract only binds him from signing with other N.H.L. clubs and was signed as a guarantee for the player, assuring him of protection in case he is considered of N. H. L. timber. I watched Gerow all winter and recommended him to Coach Bill Stewart some weeks ago." Mr. Hughes informed the Ontario Intelligencer this morning.

Born in Belleville

Walter Gerow, Jr., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gerow of Napanee. Young Gerow was born in Belleville and resided here until his father accepted a position as manager and coach of the Napanee Athletic base::ll club in the O.A.B.A. Walter, Jr. following in his father's footsteps broke into the baseball picture at first base with the Napanee C.O.B.I. club last summer and did himself proud as a first-year player. He is 19 years of age and will have the good wishes of all those who know the young unassuming lad.

It is understood the Chicago Black Hawks are conducting a spring hockey school in which Gerow will be sent providing he meets with the N.H.L. requirements during his forthcoming trip with the Windy City club. He will finish out the O.H.A. schedu—counted out and must stay out."

Mr. Begin said the Department of Education had made more extensive provision during the last year for instruction in shop work and economics in the province's schools. "There is no question" he declared "that in the past, large numbers of children have left school without any conception of the importance of proper diet, with the result that in later years, when they become parents of a new generation, the consequences of malnutrition had to be faced."

ARTHUR DONOVAN REFEREE PRAISES NEW JOE LOUIS

Says Bomber Has The Best Left Jab He Has Ever Seen

GOT EVERYTHING

Donovan Says He is No Longer Sucker For Right

(By Gayle Talbot)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—One of the most enthusiastic men in town about the new and matured Joe Louis is Referee Arthur Donovan, a man whose opinion rates more than usual respect.

Donovan has handled every heavy weight fight of importance here in recent years; including Max Schmeling's knockout of Louis, Tommy Farr's 15-round rough-house with the champion, and Louis's three-round kay of the impetuous Hasley Mann night before last.

He says Joe now is close to the super-fighter that excited fight writers and bedamned ingredient thought he was too years ago.

Got Everything

"He's got about everything now," Donovan said, when asked for his opinion. "Principally, Louis has the greatest left jab I've ever seen. The first time he reached out and stabbed Mann with it I heard Mann's nose crack. He could knock some wood man out with it in time, and it would cut anyone to ribbons in fifteen rounds."

Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's voluble manager, was at the same time assuring a neighboring group that "Louis still is a sucker for a right. Look how Mann batted him around with a right."

He'll Watch Schmeling

"I'm not so sure about that," said Donovan. "Joe has learned a lot about keeping away from a right, and I can see it. Mann caught him by surprise with a couple, but he'll be watching out for Schmeling.

"When they fought the first time, Louis had been popping over a lot of fellows with that left hook, thrown from any distance and any angle. He had been missing a lot of them and leaving himself wide open, but nobody was smart enough to take advantage of it until Schmeling came along.

"Now he's much more cautious with it".

Refers to Election

His election victory last October over A. R. Nesbitt, Conservative, was referred to by the Brascondale member in a reference to recount proceedings, which had been launched against him. "When the final going sounded," said Mr. Conacher, "I thought my opponent was down for the count, but when I turned around he was up for the recount. It took the referees a long time to convince him that he had been

Common Sense About Constipation

If you knew that your constipation was caused by something left out of your food, wouldn't it be just common sense to put that something back?

Your trouble may be caused by nothing more than this. For the most common kind of constipation is due to lack of "bulk" in the bowels—you need some food that passes on through the stomach without being digested. Kellogg's All-Bran supplies this. It gives the bowels the bulky mass they need to work properly. And All-Bran also gives them the intestinal-tonic vitamin B1 which helps restore their tone.

Eat All-Bran as a cereal or baked in muffins. But however you eat it, be sure you get some every day. And drink plenty of water. All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ont. Sold by every grocer.

WAR CONTROL BILL

After heated debate, the measure was sent for consideration to a 45-member committee. Representatives continued onslaughts against it. One Hideo Ueda, declared: "What now lies before us is an extremely mysterious bill—like dog's meat imposed upon us as unition."

Situation Grave

"The situation is very grave," said the War Minister, General Hajime Sugiyama, speaking on the general mobilization bill. "The fate of the nation hangs on this occasion."

Admiral Nobumasa Suzuyagu, Home Minister, summoned high officers to his official residence and is reported to have declared:

"If the two parties (Minseito and Seyukai, major political parties) fail to understand the seriousness of this bill, the government must be prepared to face them with exreme determination in order to obtain its passage."

One of the most outspoken opponents of the bill was Ryoso Makino, a member of the Seiyukai.

"Parliament has taken its example from the general mobilization laws of Italy and Germany," he said.

The general mobilization bill would, among other things, prohibit the right of assembly and freedom of speech in time of war on national emergency.

MARIJUANA FOE

although it was widely known in the ancient world. Health Minister Power told the House. It was known in the Orient as "hashish" and under other names and the word assassin is supposed to derive from hashish because of the violence to which addicts of the drug sometimes resort.

The drug came into Canada through the United States from Mexico and here is called by its Mexican name "marijuana".

"I may say that in Canada we are well ahead of the problem," said Mr. Power "but in the United States the problem overtook them before they were aware of it."

Dangerous to Youth

Use of marijuana has become widespread in Canada and the United States only the last few years, Mr. Power said it was particularly dangerous to the youth and it was among the younger people that the dangerous cigarettes were peddled.

While the Minister's bill was aimed at cultivation of the plant and production of the drug in Canada, he said the department was unaware of any commercial production in Canada. Most of the cigarettes used here were imported from the United States through Windsor, Ont.

Cecil Dillon of Rangers advanced to within a point of the National Hockey League's second highest point-maker, Syl Apps of Toronto, when he contributed an assist as the Blueshirts defeated Chicago 6-3 last night. Paul Thompson of Chicago, with two goals, and George Manitia of Canadiens, who got an assist in the 1-1 tie with Boston, entered a fourth-place tie with Bill Cowley of Boston. Gordon Drillon of Toronto tops the league with 42 points five more than Apps and ten more than the last man in the big seven Paul Haynes, of Canadiens.

Bill to Conform Statutes

Second reading of a bill conforming the revised statutes of Ontario to on the House schedule for today. A committee has completed revision of the statutes after months of work.

Work of various government departments was revised by yesterday's speakers. Mr. Begin had particular praise for the Department of Municipal Affairs in connection with its handling of supervised municipalities. Adjustment of the debts of several of those municipalities that encountered financial difficulties during the depression had been completed, he said. In other supervised municipalities, the work was in process of completion.

Mr. Conacher declared it was necessary to eliminate cut-throat competition among Ontario employers. In this connection, he said in dealing with the labor department, "the co-operation which has been received from our sister province of Quebec is proving of tremendous value."

Refers to Election

His election victory last October was referred to by the Brascondale member in a reference to recount proceedings, which had been launched against him. SCHUSCHNIGG

But Austrian Nazis were angered an dthere were scattered demonstrations. There was daily talk of a hitch in the new Austro-German friendship pact drafted by Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg and Germany's Fuehrer Hitler at Berchtesgaden Feb. 12.

The essence of that agreement, ratified by the old parliament last night, was an unmistakable guarantee by Germany of a respect Austria's sovereignty. It was said the Austrian Chancellor, a "milestone toward peace," is now to assume "permanet friendship."

Hitler Speaks Again Bitter

Berlin, Feb. 25—(AP)—Chancellor von Schuschnigg had the opportunity to rally to Hitler, he chided in setes it and therefore must go into the discard—this is the reaction of a number of leading Nazis in Berlin.

Their concern is because von Schuschnigg did not praise Chancellor Hitler in his speech to the Austrian "parliament broadcast in Germany.

CHAMPION EGG LAYER? AND HOW!

A photographer was sent out to take a picture of "Lady Temple," egg-laying champion owned by J. T. Ramage of Temple, Tex., for publicity purposes. And darned if the hen didn't lay another egg while the lens was being adjusted. The hen broke all egg-laying records last year in an international competition, producing 346 eggs in 358 days. The owner said that it was necessary to put the hen on a special diet to stop her from laying eggs after the contest had ended.

LATEST IN CHEMICAL WARFARE

Student officers in the chemical warfare school at Edgewood, Md., are shown heading up a Livens projector, which hurls a 60-pound gas-filled shell more than 1,500 yards. Nearly two-score officers of the army, navy and marine corps participated in the demonstrations. They will return to their units as instructors in chemical warfare.

What Local Theatre Managers Say About Coming Attractions

AT THE BELLE

"The Buccaneer"

Combining all that women desire in romance and all that men want in Glory, Cecil B. DeMille's thrilling and soul-stirring picture of America's struggle against England during the war of 1812, is presented in his latest historical epic, "The Buccaneer" which comes to the Belle Tomorrow (Saturday), for Four days, manfully, with Fredric March in the title role, and the new sensational screen star, Franciska Gaal in the leading feminine role.

It is a mighty story of history, showing the burning of Washington, by the British, the battle of New Orleans, picturesque Creole days, and the defense of New Orleans by General Jackson.

Pretty Lie Becomes Here

March is seen as a pirate who turns out to be a hero when he realizes that his country needs him. Miss Gaal is the beautiful Creole lass, who becomes the bride of Jean Lafitte, the dashing pirate chief, played by March. Others in the cast are Margot Grahame, a New Orleans belle who stimulates his patriotism, making that lie become respectable before their marriage.

Akim Tamiroff, he helps Jackson win the Battle of New Orleans, he makes both his marriage possible and his sweetheart when the secret is ferreted out that his men destroyed the American merchant ship "Corinthian", on which, Margot's sister and many other prominent citizens were passengers.

Walter Connolly's aid, March escapes and goes into exile on his flagship "Revenge." Francisca, as the only survivor of the "Corinthian", whom he has made his maid-of-all-work, arrives with Him, and on the deck of the ship he realizes for the first time that she is a girl he really loves.

In the supporting cast are Akim Tamaroff, Ian Keith, and Walter Brennan.

DeMille spared no effort to make this production an ever-whelming spectacle in keeping with the heart-stirring theme of the infant Republic fighting for its life during the crucial days of the War of 1812. History on a glorious broad canvas, heroes and heroines of gigantic stature, and mass scenes of unparalleled splendor and brilliance unite to make "The Buccaneer" the greatest production of DeMille's incomparable career.

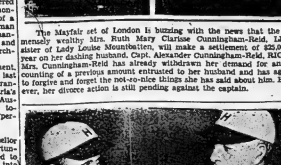
The Belle Latest World of News Reel will be exhibited on the same program.

Performances start daily at 2.30 7.00 and 9.00. "The Buccaneer" starts daily at 2.30, 7.10 and 9.25. For your perfect enjoyment it is suggested that you see it from the beginning.

"Second Honeymoon," Funny

Two nice cars so much they fall for each other twice, Tyrone Power and Loretta Young find love at first sight is romantic enough, but love at second sight..... MMM! Those are the sentiments Fox Film Corp. has in store for you at the Capitol Theatre starting Saturday, when "Second Honeymoon," Simon Erwin, Claire Trevor, Marjorie Weaver, Lyle Talbot and J. Edward Bromberg are included in the cast.

"Hooray For —Hooligan" is the story of a Funny Buster West-Ton Patricola comedy to be presented on the same program with "How to Dance The Stag", and a cute and clever Vitaphone short. Two complete shows will be presented at 7.00 and 9.00 p.m.



Frivolous and flattering is a multi-shaped hat of tucked and shirred blue bolting ribbon with a bandeau of shirred ribbon and elastic threads woven through to make it snug. A gossamer veil in pale blue ties on top in a huge bow.

TO RECEIVE $25,000 PER YEAR FROM WIFE

The Mayfair set of London is buzzing with the news that the immensely wealthy Mrs. Ruth Mary Clarisse Cunningham-Reid, LEFT, minister of Lady Louise Mountbatten, will make a settlement of $25,000 a year on her dashing husband, Capt. Alexander Cunningham-Reid, RIGHT. Mrs. Cunningham-Reid has already withdrawn her demand for an accounting of a previous amount entrusted to her husband and has agreed to forgive and forget the not-so-nice things she has said about him. However, her divorce action is still pending against the captain.

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows was talking and arguing in front of my house, and Harold, Hay, how about getting up a relay race, there's lots of us so that will make 3 on a side even numbers. First choose, I said.

2nd choose, Fuds Simkins said.

And we choosed sides and me and Glasses Magee and Skinny Martin was on one team and Fuds and Leevy Shoesies and Dan Oreo was the other team, the idea being to run up the corner by the store to the last post all your mite and tag the next man on your team, and so on like that till somebody came in last and his side lost, and me and Fuds Simkins was first for our sides, and I was away ahead of him and all of a sudden I heard somebody running in back of me and then long side of me and then ahead of me, and who was it but Antonetta Bulgosky the new long legged girl that just moved in next store to our house, and I said, Hay you aint in this relay race, and she said, No, I'm ahead of it.

Wich she kept on being, running in front of Leevy Shoesies the next time and running in front of Skinny Martin the last time and getting back to the last post about 5 yards ahead of him and licked the only one not looking out of breath, saying, Why dont you boys learn how to run?

You don't think I'd lower myself by beating a girl, do you? Skinny said, and us other fellows said, Sure, who wants to beat a girl?

I'll race any one of you around the block and give you a handy-cap of 10 houses, Antonetta Bulgosky said, and Skinny Martin said, Nothing doing; go ahead and race girls, why dont you. Instead of blowing up fellows races, aint that trix, fellows?

Sure, we all said, and we started to walk around to the firehouse trying to feel as independent as what we looked

Will Interpret 'Macbeth'

On Sunday night at Bridge St. Church, Mr. Hamilton, well known Shakespearean actor, will give a dramatic interpretation of Shakespeare's tragic masterpiece, "Macbeth". This play has been called the "father of all the Se thrillers". Its central theme is not remote from life, but presents a battle within which mankind is familiar. It is around this theme that Shakespeare has built up a drama that is one of the wonders of the world.

Mr. Kingston will be assisted by Miss Sandra Dale, gifted young actress, who has won the highest commendation for her vivid portrayal of Lady Macbeth.

Enlarged Development Is Recommended At Ackerman Mines

Col. C. H. Ackerman, President of the Ackerman Gold Mines Limited, has issued the following statement:—

"Following the recent visit of John W. Shaw, consulting engineer, to the property of the Ackerman Gold Mine, located in Marmora Township, Eastern Ontario, an enlarged development program has now been recommended by him.

"As soon as approximately 200 feet of additional drifting have been completed on the 170 foot level, Mr. Shaw advises that the shaft should be sunk a further 100 feet on the incline to open a new level at depth, of 320 feet. While sinking operations are in progress, from 1,000 to 1,500 feet of diamond drilling should be done from the 170 foot level, with the drill holes placed to cut veins in four to six with a reasonable depth below the level.

"Report from the management received yesterday states that drifting south of the shaft station has been temporarily suspended, and the crew are now preparing diamond drill stations, preparatories for the deepening of the shaft have also been started. Timbers sets are being made up, and sinking to the 330 foot horizon is expected to be underway by the end of the month.

"Drift north of the station is still being pushed at the rate of 10 feet per day. Manuscript reports that the last rounds show the ore to be widening, and shales taken in the last round indicate the vein to width of 8 feet. Samples obtained from the 40 foot of drifting have been sent to Hailey bury for assay, and results have not been received at time of making report."

JUDGE RELIEVES M. P. AND AGENT FROM PENALTIES

Court, Hearing Applications of C. A. Cameron and G. O. Tice Over Failure to Make Election Expenses Declaration, is Satisfied With Explanations and Completely Exonerates Applicants.

Complete exoneration from penalties provided in the Dominion Elections Act for failure to make a return within the time prescribed by the Act, of C. A. Cameron, K.C., M.P. and George O. Tice, his financial agent, was handed down by Judge J. E. Madden this morning in Judges Chambers County Court Buildings in an application for an order under the provision of the Elections Act for an authorized excuse or reason.

Called for 10 o'clock a.m. the hearing was held over until 10.45 in order for all persons desiring to attend to make an appearance.

Judge Madden handed down his decision after hearing of affidavits, filed by applicants and presented to the hearing by Mr. A. Payne, K.C., of Porter, Payne and Arnott, counsel for the applicants.

Judge's Finding

In his address Judge Madden stated that "Upon hearing the affidavits of Charles A. Cameron, M.P., and George O. Tice, his financial agent I find the time which they in each case took them to satisfy me that said failure on their part was not due to any lack of good faith, has been satisfied and was due to the serious illness and period of convalescence of the financial agent, who was employed to transact business for a period of time after the election, and removal of the said agent from Belleville. It was purely through inadvertence and other circumstances and through no desire on the part of the candidate to avoid the requirements of the Elections Act."

"Such being the case they should be relieved from penalties as might be imposed and an order will issue upon these facts accordingly said applicants as aforesaid."

Counsel Explains.

In his address to Judge Madden, applying for exemption of the applicants, Mr. Payne stated that failure on the part of the applicants to file the return required by Sub-sections 1-2-3, Section 63 of the Dominion Elections Act was occasioned, first, by the illness of the financial agent, George O. Tice which continued a period from Oct. 18 to Dec. 31, 1935 and a period of convalescence and subsequent appointment to a position with the Canadian Pacific Railway removed to Hamilton, which engendered his entire time and attention.

Neglect on the part of Mr. Cameron, counsel said, was occasioned by his close association with his financial agent due to the latter's illness, and neglecting duties and work for his constituents, which were engrossing at the time also prevented from full control to Hamilton, which engendered his entire time and attention.

Mr. Payne then moved that an order be made relieving applicants from consequences for failure to act.

Judge Madden also informed if the required returns had been filed by the applicants by Mar. 1, 1938. Receiving a reply in the negative to his question, "Has anyone anything to say regarding this case", His Honor then handed down his decision.

ARCHBISHOP'S BODY IN STATE

Guard of Knights of Columbus in Constant Attendance

Kingston, Feb. 25.—The Catholic Archdiocese of Kingston is in mourning for the late Archbishop M. J. Spratt, whose death occurred at the Hotel Dieu Hospital on Wednesday morning at the o'clock. His Grace will lie in state in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, where he had been a patient for several years, until 3 o'clock afternoon at three o'clock when the remains will be removed to St. Mary's Cathedral, which for so many years was the centre of his spiritual labors. The body will lie in state in the cathedral until 10 o'clock Monday morning, the hour for the funeral, when solemn pontifical requiem mass will be celebrated by His Grace Archbishop M. J. O'Brien. The funeral oration will be delivered by His Lordship Most Rev. Felix Courtier, bishop of Alexandria.

A guard of honor from the Knights of Columbus Council will be kept continuously until the funeral on Monday morning, both at the Hotel Dieu and at the Cathedral. From three o'clock Sunday afternoon until the hour of the funeral Monday morning, it is expected that thousands will pass by the bier to pay a last mark of respect to the late Archbishop, who was friend and counsellor to scores of them. On Sunday night at 7.30 o'clock the Office of the Dead will be chanted by the clergy of the archdiocese and the faithful will then watch by the bier in the cathedral.

Following the funeral mass on Monday morning, the mortal remains of the beloved archbishop will be borne to St. Mary's Cathedral. Up to the present time, who have died here, Archbishop Spratt will not be buried in the cathedral but will lie in the "crypt" as he requested several years ago.

Anniversary of Death.

Yesterday, February 24, marked the twelfth anniversary of the death of Most Rev. James Vincent Cleary, S.T.D., sixth bishop and first archbishop of Kingston. Archbishop Cleary was consecrated in Rome November 30, 1890. When Kingston was raised to an archbishopric in 1896, he was named first archbishop and metropolitan of the newly-formed province, consisting of the Archdiocese of Kingston and the Diocese of Peterborough; later the dioceses of Pembroke (1908) and Sault Ste. Marie (1904) were erected to form the province as it exists today. Archbishop Cleary died at the age of 80 and conversationalist.

All bishops and archbishops were notified by telegram of the death of Archbishop Spratt and Rome was notified by cable. St. Mary's Cathedral will be draped in mourning for the late Archbishop Spratt, and during the time he will be lying in state there.

Owing to the death of Archbishop Spratt, the Knights of Columbus Carnival Ball, on Monday, has been cancelled. Several social events in connection with Kingston's 150th parish have also been cancelled owing to the death of the Archbishop.

The late Archbishop Spratt was beloved by the people throughout the archdiocese. He was a man of completely devotion and kindness. He was always ready to help the humble and uppermost in his priestly career was his devotion to the Catholic Church and his desire to minister to those under his charge.

Mrs. Thomas Bradley of Lindsay is a niece of the late Archbishop Spratt and surviving relatives are Rev. John Spratt, C.S.B., Robert Spratt, Peter Spratt, Thomas Spratt and Rev. Sister Mary Agnes of Ottawa.

During his active archbishopric Dr. Spratt was the founder of the cathedral of an immense debt and placed Kingston parish and diocese on a sound business basis. He encouraged religious education by establishing a separate school system of the city and organized Catholic churches under one head.

After his ordination he assisted his brother, Rev. Peter Thomas Spratt at Wolfe Island, for a time and was appointed parish priest at Lansdowne and later parish priest at Kinsley. He built the presbytery at Toledo and as a result of priests' work at Elgin, and succeeded the late Father Lawrence Lynch at Gananoque. Two years later he was appointed pastor of St. Michael's Church, Belleville.

Kingston Bishop.

Succeeding the late lamented Archbishop Spratt as Archbishop of Kingston, Most Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D.D., LL.D., becomes the ninth bishop and fourth archbishop of the diocese.

The list of former bishops in Kingston is as follows: Rt. Rev. Alexander McDonell, D.D., consecrated on Dec. 31, 1826, bishop of Kingston Jan. 27, 1826, died Jan. 14, 1840; Rt. Rev. R. Rules for Good Health Indicated by Mayor Bone Refers Happy Carnival Crowd to Work of League For Health And Beauty in England.

Health and beauty through exercise are ideals, Mayor Bone told the Quinte Skating Club carnival crowd at the Arena on Thursday evening.

"You have all no doubt read of the League for Health and Beauty in England and in other countries," he said. "People are only beginning to realize that good health and fitness are available for all if they will only obey a few simple rules.

"The first and most important is controlled diet, the second is controlled diet, and the third is reasonable fresh air, exercise and recreation.

"I most heartily congratulate Mr. Ivan Scott and his associates for their great effort and excellent results in the matter of figure skating. Here is recreation that makes for grace, health and poise and nothing is more valuable in life for all our young people. The membership has grown from 47 last year to 127 this year, and you will see 60 of these young people disport themselves tonight for your enjoyment.

"It gives me a great deal of pleasure, tonight, to open the first carnival of the Quinte Skating Club.

This club is interested in promoting figure skating for the young people of the city in winter and tennis in summer, and their fees are small enough to be within the range of all.

"Figure skating really means cutting the figure 8 and other patterns on ice, and is not intended to refer to one's bodily figure. I can assure you however that it does improve one's figure as you will shortly be able to judge for yourselves.

"I can only conclude these few remarks by hoping this carnival will be a most successful event, and that more and more of our young people will take up this most graceful of our national sports and make the Quinte Club the envy of all our neighbours."

Recognition of Italian Conquest of Ethiopia If Troubles Ironed Out

Will Faithfully Fulfil All Obligations to Czechoslovakia

CONFIDENCE IN LEAGUE

Delbos Paid Tribute to Friendliness And Ability of Eden

Paris, Feb. 26—(CP)— Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos told the Chamber of Deputies today the French government is willing "to negotiate with Italy for recognition of the Italian conquest of Ethiopia if "present difficulties" can be ironed out.

He said France will faithfully fulfill all her obligations to Czechoslovakia in case of need and will maintain the France-Soviet mutual assistance pact.

"This government will not seek to avoid obligations toward friendly nations, for if we renounced our duties and our rights as a great power we could never recover them," Delbos said in participating in the chamber's foreign affairs debate.

"I still have confidence in the League—in fact, the government intends to put it above and outside of political quarrels."

His pledge to France will stand by Czechoslovakia—target of a thinly-veiled attack by Chancellor Hitler in his Reichstag speech last Sunday—brought deafening applause.

"France loves peace, but not peace at any price" Delbos said.

He said Paul van Zeeland, the forthcoming London-Rome conversations with strict attention and with a certain confidence associated with Great Britain.

Wind tides on the Thames!

Recently a news item was received that the Thames River, Ontario, was flooding parts of London due to wind tides. Such tides are mentioned several times by the old chroniclers. One of them 650 years ago related that "the quars of the River Thames, which usually withstand the force of the sea, were overflowed, and the houses of the citizens were covered to a much greater distance than any mortal at any time has seen; villages also fields, the several neighbouring parts were swallowed up and countless men and innumerable cattle in like manner were drowned."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 26.—(CP)—Synopsis —A disturbance of moderate intensity is centred over southern Ontario this morning, southwestward. Pressure is also low over Hudson Bay and high over the western half of the United States and British Columbia. Unsettled weather has been prevalent over the western provinces with light snowfalls or flurries in some sections of Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes.

Lake Superior: Cloudy and comparatively mild today and Sunday.

Two years ago, he married and another planning to be soon, were brought before him after their names had been entered. Each driver was certain the traffic light was green.

"Discharged," said McBride. "It's all the same to me. I'm sure you don't know what color the light was."

'It's Noo the Thing for Women To Blaw Pipes,' Say Officials

Women Pipers Call For Showdown on Edict

MALES ELIGIBLE

London, Feb. 26 (CP) — Women pipers are calling for a showdown in the matter of edicts of officials of the Scottish Piping Society of London, who favor exclusion of women in the national piping contest to be held here.

It is a rule of the society that only males are eligible for membership but with the increased interest in piping by women a concerted effort is being made to break down the ban.

"Its noo the thing for a woman to blaw the pipes and its unheard of for her to belong to a piping society," an official said.

Another recalled that blowing of pipes had been prohibited by death at one time even in Scotland.

"Women are making enough noise in the world today without also taking up the bagpipes," he remarked.

Rev. J. W. Graves, manager of the Dagenham girl pipers, described as "ridiculous" any attempt to deny equal rights to woman pipers.

"The impression that skirling of pipes calls for the lungs of a six-foot Highlander is wholly erroneous," he said. "By far the greatest proportion of the physical exercise consists of breathing, not the lungs. Many women become just as efficient as men."

DOMINIONS KEPT INFORMED UPON NEGOTIATIONS

Halifax May Retain Post Only Till Negotiations Over

QUESTION OF POLICY

Attlee Sees Attitude Just Propping up Tottering Dictatorships

By George Hambleton
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 26—(CP Cable)— Dominions, it is clear, will be kept informed in the normal way of Foreign Secretary Eden's negotiations but not "consulted" in the sense that their opinion was sought before action was taken.

Such a course, it is held, is not required under imperial conference decisions. It might also have involved Dominion participation in the talks between Prime Minister Chamberlain and Mr. Eden.

Inform Dominions

The Dominions are to be kept informed of the progress of the Anglo-Italian negotiations. It is incumbent on them to indicate their attitude with reasonable promptitude. If they make no adverse comment, Mr. Chamberlain may then proceed on the assumption its policy is generally acceptable to the nations involve the Dominion governments in any active obligations without their definite assent.

Halifax's Post

But there were indications that Lord Halifax might not remain at the foreign office longer than the period required for the Anglo-Italian negotiations. The retention of his previous cabinet portfolio, the Lord Presidency of the Council, was taken as an indication that they step aside once the present critical period has passed.

Attlee's Charge

At Oxford last night Mr. Attlee, leader of the opposition, said the new attitude toward Italy was "simply calculated to prop up the tottering dictatorships." At Birmingham, Leopold Amery, ex-Conservative Imperialist, attacked the sanctions policy against Italy during the Ethiopian conflict and said Mr. Eden ought to have resigned two years ago.

Dr. Jackson was one of the original boost workers for the establishment of this system of prepaying hospital services in Ontario.

Differences Adjusted

Hollywood, Feb. 26—(AP)— The financial difficulties between Allen Whitney and his movie dancing partner, Mary Ellen Popkin, have been amicably adjusted, she said today, and he will dismiss the suit against her for $25 a week alimony.

The actress said she was out of town when the suit was filed and "it was all a misunderstanding." She did not disclose terms of their agreement.

Japan Opposed to Race In Navy Building—Hirota

Tokyo, Feb. 26 (AP)—Japan will not engage in a naval building race, Foreign Minister Koki Hirota told the Japanese parliament today and in fact hopes to forestall such a race among world powers.

"Japan's foreign relations now are very delicate," Hirota said, "and in America there is some misunderstanding among the people, but the United States government is well informed and trying to maintain a neutral spirit among the people."

(Great Britain, the United States and France asked Japan whether she was building battleships of more than 35,000 tons, the limit of the London Naval Treaty which Japan did not sign. Japan held her naval building a national secret and did not engage in a naval building race.

Japan Not to Join in Race.

Answering questioners, Hirota's declaration contrasted sharply with statements of Naval Minister Admiral Osumi and other naval authorities that Japan would "take adequate measures".

Hirota said: "Japan's naval policy is unchanging since adoption of the Washington Naval Treaty. This policy was based on principles of non-aggression and non-menace. Japan has no intention of joining in any building race. We are hoping to stop such a race by appealing to the powers' sense of fairness and justice."

AMENDMENT TO LORD'S DAY ACT

Executives Who Work Employees on Sunday May Be Fined

Ottawa, Feb. 26 (CP)—Executives of companies who require employees to work on Sunday may be sent to jail under a bill which passed the senate of Commons last night. It was an amendment to the Lord's Day Act sponsored by H. E. Brunelle (Lib., Champlain) and supported by the government.

While the measure was inspired by conditions in Quebec it will apply throughout Canada, Minister of Justice Lapointe, supporting the bill, said the Lord's Day Act was not being observed by certain corporations in that province. They preferred to pay fines provided for offences by corporations rather than obey the law.

The bill hits at directors, officers, superintendents or other persons directing orders rather than at the corporations themselves by providing for prison terms as an alternative to fines. For a first offence the term may be from one to three months and for a second or subsequent offence from two to six months.

J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, had less success with his bill to make it a criminal offence for an employer to discharge an employee for union activities.

Mr. Lapointe was fully in sympathy with the motive of the bill but preferred workers who tried to prevent workers joining unions were guilty but he did not think it could be made a crime.

ONCE PROUD SHIP NOW FRAGMENTS

Huge Masses of Hull, Rock And Ice Shoot Into Air in Huge Blast

Today only scattered fragments of a once proud ship of Italy's merchship remain, wedged in floating ice, smouldering proof that a terrific geyser of shivered ice, broken stone and flying timbers transformed into the explosive force of over 400 sticks of dynamite carefully tamped along side its length, the sunken hull of the old Grace M. Pfer lying off the shore of pretty Sachuest Point location just east of the city, was blasted in shattered hulk late yesterday afternoon.

Members of city council, officials of the Quinset Beaches Association and scores of citizens watched the exploding of one of the heaviest blasts set off in the district within recent years. Instead of the original 300 sticks of dynamite as originally planned, the charge had to be increased owing to the heaviness of the hull and the fact that it was not breaking it.

Sections of the old hull, heavy timbers, masses of stone and rocks scooped from the bottom of the bay and huge chunks of ice shot into the air an estimated distance of over two hundred feet and fell in a wide yard radius. Endangered citizens, debris, spectators covered and ducked as a barrage of assorted ship missiles sprayed downward. No accidents, however, were reported, even huge timber escapes were experienced.

The hull for many years had been a menace to small boat navigation at that point, and definitely had held up the completion of the civic beach. Its removal was ordered by the Dominion Government.

GEN. PERSHING SINKS RAPIDLY

Oxygen Tent Used And Heart Stimulants Given

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 26—(AP)— Heart stimulants administered while he was under an oxygen tent brought comfort tonight to Gen. John J. Pershing's ailing heart early today but the rally was short-lived and sinking spells regained and he again was losing ground.

The brief rally followed four hours of unconsciousness during which the doctors announced he "probably was sinking."

His faint heart grew stronger for a time after the 77-year-old World war chief showed resistance that surprised even his physicians, then began sinking again.

Although the second crisis was less severe than that of Feb. 13 Marietta held little hope for the recovery of their patient and made preparations for a possible blood transfusion.

BATTLE DEVELOPS NEAR LINGSHIH

100,000 Chinese Troops Struggle to Halt Japanese Offensive

Shanghai, Feb. 26 (AP)—A battle developed today at Lingshih in Shansi Province, where 100,000 Chinese troops struggled to halt a Japanese offensive along the extreme northern front in the central China front.

The Japanese, stalled in their central China campaign by stubborn Chinese resistance along the Yellow River, massed their armies to thrust the west in a flanking manoeuvre designed to cut communications where near the great bend of the Yellow River.

Japanese military dispatches said defeat of the Chinese in the Lingshih area would open the way for a mean loss of southern Shansi province.

Aerial warfare became more severe as the Japanese, stung by an unexpected counter-attack said on Formosa, retaliated by attacking Chinese airfields at Nanchang and other inland points. The Japanese navy claimed 50 planes which raided Nanchang shot down 42 of the 56 Chinese ships which took the air against them. Japanese losses admitted losing two planet. Chinese dispatches said eight Japanese planes were destroyed.

DIES SUDDENLY IN LODGE ROOM

W. J. McCoy, 78, Recipient of Veteran's Jewel Before Demise

Ottawa, Feb. 26 (CP)— William James McCoy, 78, dropped dead last night in the lodge room of Masonic Hall at the rear of Parliament Hill, after receiving a 50-year veteran's jewel from Dr. W. H. Hudson, Conservative House of Commons member for Carleton and District Deputy Grand Master of the order.

McCoy, 78, was one of the oldest Past Masters of Prince of Wales lodge, having joined the order a half-century ago at Belleville, Ont.

Dr. Hyndman saw the veteran fall, but was unable to revive the dead. There will be no inquest.

Sidney St. McCoy of Toronto, Ontario, is one of four sons.

TIMBER POLICIES OF GOVERNMENT TO BE DEBATED

Special Reference Will be Made to Lake Sulphite Company

MACAULAY ACTIVE

Heenan Predicts Company After Refinancing Will Be One of Best

Toronto, Feb. 26—(CP)—Battle lines are drawn in the Ontario legislature for a full-dress debate on government timber policies, with special reference to the Lake Sulphite Company, now in financial difficulties, Leopold Macaulay Conservative House Leader, forecast the debate yesterday when he charged the government with "complete apathy" regarding collapse of the cyperon.

The debate, just before adjournment of a two-week session, brought from Mr. Macaulay the demand that the Premier explain why the securities commission had not made R. O. Sweezey, chairman of Montreal, underwriters of Lake Sulphite bonds, "live up to its obligation." He spoke after Premier Hepburn intendoned the subject by protesting against Lake Sulphite articles in the Toronto Star.

"You can't after reading that prospectus, tell me why Mr. Sweezey had not been forced to make up their commitments," the Conservative leader said. "Has the fact that R. O. Sweezey is the underwriter and Bruce Smith, a director and treasurer of the Liberal party, anything to do with the apathy of the government and the securities commission?"

Premier Hepburn had called the Star articles "propaganda". In an agreement signed with the government Feb. 27, 1937, the newly-formed Lake Sulphite Company was granted extensive timber areas in the Thunder-Bay district.

Mr. Co-Labor representative of Grey-Bruce and first woman member of parliament confirmed her decision last night by saying she felt the duty of an opposition member to determine their policy or have anything to do with it.

Proposes Navy Shipyard Particularly Along Pacific

Private as Well as Navy Yards Needed, Says Vinson, Democrat

NO CONGESTION

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Chairman Vinson (Dem.-Georgia) of the House of Representatives Naval Committee proposed today that the United States navy expansion program provide for more permanent shipyard facilities, particularly on the Pacific coast.

He said the United States would be "in a horrible fix" if war should find the yards congested.

"What would we do for repair facilities if some of our vessels became disabled in battle?" he asked.

"They're all in operation in private as well as navy yards now," he added, "so the navy needs construction and repair work."

Vinson, entrusted by the administration with pushing a $1,158,000,000 navy bill through the House, said he would offer an amendment to give west coast shipbuilders a six per cent. differential on naval contracts.

Under this proposal Pacific coast bids would be accepted six per cent. higher than the lowest in the east and still be awarded contracts.

Similar provisions are in the merchant marine acts and in the naval auxiliary building program authorized last year.

Vinson said he also would offer an amendment to permit the navy department to improve all navy yards.

Naval officials said they contemplate expenditures from $2,000,000 to $10,000000 at each yard, in order to complete the privileged building program in "reasonable" time".

Believes New Approach In Italian Conciliation Will Not Be Successful

However Eden Wishes Conciliation Policy Success

APPEAL FOR UNITY

Reiterates His Policy of Standing Firm Against Dictators

Ramsgion, England Feb. 26 (CP) —Anthony Eden last night told his constituents he believed Prime Minister Chamberlain's new foreign policy will fail "to contribute to European appeasement," and declared "it is with the great democracies of peace and liberty that our natural affinities lie."

He had no other course but to resign as Foreign Minister when he disagreed with his colleagues over immediate gestures of conciliation toward Italy, he said.

Mr. Eden reiterated his belief "the meaning of certain communications received from a foreign government was 'now or never.'" And I have never varied that opinion since.

Mr. Chamberlain has denied that Italy's communications in regard to the opening of negotiations had been threatening, as Mr. Eden indicated.

Does Not Join Opposition

But if any hopes were held he would join in the opposition attack on the government he quickly ended them when he spoke of the personal unity and declared:

"The government have embarked on their course.

"They have decided to employ a certain approach to Anglo-Italian friendship. The decision has been made, Parliament has endorsed it.

"Very well. The government must then go ahead on the course which they have chosen and neither by word nor deed do I desire now to say anything to make their task more difficult.

"On the contrary I most sincerely wish them success in their endeavors."

Risks in Present Attitude

He again voiced the belief he expressed in the House of Commons on Monday—that his policy of standing firm against dictators' methods entails results "if they are there to be obtained, without the abandonment on the present course."

The crux of his break with the Prime Minister on seeking Italian friendship he gave as:

"Is it to be an agreement, when you can get it, negotiated on a solid basis, or is it to be a gentlemen, if you can get it, regardless of the basis."

Declaring he was willing to accept the verdict of history on whether he or Mr. Chamberlain was right, Mr. Eden said it was "the nation which matters."

U.S. WILL MAKE CLAIM ON JAPAN

Will Assert Rights of Americans in China

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP) — The United States' sharp note to Japan reasserting the rights of Americans in China will figure, officials said today, in a final bill to the Tokyo government for damages to American life and their property in the war areas.

It was intended, they said, not only as an immediate warning to Japan but also to "keep the record straight" so that when the day of settlement comes Japan will have no excuse for not paying.

An official gave this interpretation of the note implied. It was declared yesterday, Ambassador James Grew handed to Japan's Foreign Office this week:

"Japan will not be able to say, 'we were not responsible for the damage areas and they would not do so. We are not responsible for what has happened to them."

Right to Say America

If Japan should take that stand, the United States will reply: "Our nationals had a right to remain there. We have repeatedly asserted this right.

"We too advised them to leave, but they were nevertheless free to remain if they chose to do so.

"You are responsible for any damage done there and we hold you accountable."

Thus far the Japanese have been ready to assume responsibility for the sinking of the gunboat Panay, Dec. 13.

The United States has not yet compiled that list of damages, owing to the impossibility of saying at this time how permanent will be the disability of some of the injured.

5 FACE CHARGES OF INTOXICATION

Aftermath of Last Night's General Bedlam at The Arena

As an aftermath of last night's general bedlam and fistic outbreak during the Royal Canadian Air Force-Peterborough O.H.A. hockey game at the Belleville Arena, five persons appeared in local police court this morning before Magistrate J. J. Butler K.C., today. Four residents of Peterborough faced charges of intoxication, while a local youth was charged with disorderly conduct. Pleas of guilty were entered in each incident and fines levied for breaches of the L.C.A.

Provincial Police and R.C.M.P., were all pressed into service attempting to quell the multiple outbreaks and general rioting that occurred during the game the police station being a seething mass of humanity as dozens of pugnacious spectators were taken into custody and lodged in the cell block to cool off their heated feelings. At the conclusion of the game the majority of those apprehended for allegedly disturbing the peace were permitted their liberty with the exception of the five that were charged this morning.

It was quite a night, sir. We scrap for our hands full quieting that hilarious mob last night," commented Chief Ridd as he smiled and reminisced over the previous night's activities to the court.

R. Rupert Broadfoot solicitor for C. K. Way of Tweed Ont. who entered Mr. Cannon's suit and voted illegally in the House of Commons for 50 days, asked for the withdrawal.

Yesterday Mr. Cameron was seconded by Mr. Justice Roach from penalties provided in the Dominion Franchise Act for failing to file a return showing his election expenses.

PERFECT WEATHER GREETS SHOPPERS ON CITY MARKET

Good Display Farm And Garden Produce Available

EGGS AT 25 CENTS

Taking advantage of the almost Springlike weather, with a warm sun dispelling the frosty fang of winter's morning, a fairly large and varied display of farm and garden produce—much more than average Saturday morning clientele.

Little or no change was noted in the general price levels with the exception of one or two commodities. There appeared to be a general feeling of optimism among vendors regarding futures although they are prepared for holding fairly first. Farmers sent a heavy stock of eggs in quantities that would indicate that early spring Hens are increasing production, according to reports, but so far this fact had no appreciable effect on the price situation.

"A" selects were offered generally at twenty-five cents this morning with vendors vieing briskly for trade. Mediums broke at twenty-two cents, but in many quarters dropped a cent during the morning. Pullets were quoted at nineteen and twenty cents with a heavy demand for same. Cooking eggs fell from twenty-three to twenty-five cents.

Butter maintained its former high levels with pound lots selling generally at forty cents a pound and this commodity was available in quantities at twenty-five cents for two-pound rolls.

Chickens Abundant

Chickens were not as abundant as usual today but prices remained in the same levels. Good quality birds were offered at from $1.10 to as high as $1.50 while inferior quality were sold at correspondingly lower. There appeared to be little demand for the fowl during hours but an increase of stock towards noon-time caused buying activities to some extent. Sauer-kraut was offered at ten cents per quart in the inside market while home-cooking stands catered to a large number of fair partakers who availed themselves of the many beverages offered.

A fairly good display of farm and garden truck greeted shoppers on the outside market with staple fruits and vegetables being the main attraction. Ontario Spies and Northern Spies headlined the fruit display selling at two dollars per hamper lot with a moderate demand for them. Potatoes demanding the same price. Apples sold well today in Belleville with vendors depleting stocks toward noon.

Feeding Still Off—

Potatoes dropped in one quarter to seventy-five cents per bushel from a bag off truck. This was imported stock and generally speaking good quality was quoted at eighty-five and ninety cents for the same quantity. Few retailers were there short supplies at seventy-five cents; turnips at sixty cents and onions at the top price of three dollars per basket rounded out the display.

Lovers of fish found a good variety at their disposal with muddats selling at fifteen cents the pound; red salmon steaks at the same price; whitefish at eighteen cents; smoked panfish at fifteen cents; lake herring at five for ten cents per dozen, and pike at ten cents per pound.

Obituary

CHARLES R. ROSE

Rawdon, Feb. 26 (Special)—After an illness of one week's duration, Charles R. Rose, late of Foxboro, passed away at his home Saturday morning, Feb. 26, at the residence of his son, Mr. Melvin Rose, Mount Pleasant Community in Rawdon Township.

The late Mr. Rose, who was in his 91 seventieth year, was born in Sidney Township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. George Rose. For many years he resided at Foxboro and was employed with the Canadian National Railways as a section man at Foxboro, Halloway and Belleville. For the past year and a half he made his home with his son, Mr. Morris Rose in the Mount Pleasant community in Rawdon Township, where he was well known in the district and highly esteemed by all who knew him. Many friends will learn of his death with much regret.

In religion Mr. Rose was a member of the United Church at Foxboro and fraternally he was a member of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 251 Foxboro.

Surviving him are one daughter, Mrs. Helen Palmer, Trenton, Ont.; one son, Mr. Morris Rose, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon Township; one sister, Mrs. Sidney Whaley, Rose Corners; two brothers, Mr. Seymour Rose and Mr. George Rose, both of Halloway; three grandchildren, Marion Rose, Ruth Rose and Jack Rose.

MRS. MARMADUKE HAGGERTY

MRS. MARMADUKE HAGGERTY (Cinderella) Haggerty, which occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James F. Wellman, near Bellville, on Feb. 7, 1936, has brought deep sorrow to her immediate family, and sincere feelings of regret to many friends and relatives. In her passing a woman of fine Christian character and friendly disposition has gone from this life. She held the love and respect of the entire community in which she lived and revered memory of her will long be retained by those who knew her and enjoyed her friendship. Her husband passed away at their late home, July 19, 1922.

Cinderella Holden of Ivanhoe was married by Rev. Marmaduke Haggerty at West Huntington in Belleville, Feb. 5, 1873. Their first home was at Chisholm's Rapids where they lived a short time, then to Murray Township, from there to Stirling village, then to West Huntington and from there they moved in the year 1879 and settled on new and uncleared land in the township of Grimsthorpe, North Hastings.

There they learned the hardships of living in a new country, having to hew out the logs for their home, clearing the land, and by industry and perseverance they made a comfortable home.

They lived in a house on the shore of Wadsworth Lake until their own house was built.

Neighbors were fairly close in this little settlement which they themselves called "Peasant Valley" and included the families of Malcolm Mayhew, Richard Hennessy, Smith Hazard, John Haggerty, Marcus Haggerty, and Harvey Weese. Other families moved in and in the course of time there was a thriving community.

Mr. Haggerty became a successful lumber farmer. The late Mr. and Mrs. Haggerty contributed to the betterment of the community, and were married by Rev. Mr. Haggerty in the house and a church for Sunday worship and also by bringing ministers to preach the Gospel.

This union was blessed with one daughter, Alice, who married James Wellman, and in the year 1915 Mr. and Mrs. Wellman and family bought a farm near Belleville and Mr. and Mrs. Haggerty came and made their home with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Haggerty are buried in Belleville Cemetery.—Contrib.

BELLE

STARTING THURSDAY— The Best of the West's MAY WEST in "EVERY DAY'S A HOLIDAY", also "THRILL OF A LIFETIME"

Hello, Neighbor!

From Your Hollywood Correspondent

FARLEY FAULKNER

Stinking his teeth into a breaded veal cutlet, Robert Shelton, New York dance director, who was recently brought here to create and direct dance routine for three new pictures, proceeded to chew thinly cause a grunt. "What was that you said about Dorothy Parker, passe and glasses," he demanded.

We repeated Miss Parker's quotation: "Men seldom make passes at women who wear glasses."

Came another grunt. "I've got 'em."

"Got what?" we interjected.

"A brand new idea for a novelty number."

Producing a pencil, Mr. Shelton proceeded to make a series of circles on the menu. Each circle was numbered. Then numbers were put on the glasses and put on display.

"See!" he exclaimed, "The girls put the glasses come out here, go into a number with them and what do I disapprove the statement."

"Why!" we queried.

"That's where technology enters show business. In the average audience there might be two beautiful women. They can afford to laugh at the number. All the others will simply sit it up. An idea like this every week and I wouldn't have a care in the world. Understand?"

"Thanks Miss Parker," we replied. And smash went a bucket of our fond illusions. We had imagined such creative genius emerged from hours of walking in the rain but never from a combination of Dorothy Parker and veal cutlets.

Speaking of walking in the rain brings us. The world, I start, a about California weather. One doesn't have to be a genius to walk in the rain here. A marathon swimmer would make better time.

Moral: If a California says, "It's misty," wear a light coat, rubbers and take along an umbrella. If he says: "It's foggy," you may require hip rubber boots and a fishing suit. "Misty" and "foggy" are words that the natives pathetically use in distinguishing between normal rainfall and a cloudburst.

Visited the "Marie Antoinette" set today at M. G. M. and watched Canada's first lady of the screen, Norma Shearer, busy at work with Tyrone Power, Robert Barrymore, Anita Louise and Robert Morley.

Countless retakes of one scene failed to bring forth even the slightest sign of temperament from the tried trooper, who as a final tribute to Irving Thalberg, her deceased husband, agreed to make "Marie Antoinette" because as she says: "The story is close to my heart. Mr. Thalberg and I had often discussed the possibilities of making this picture before his death."

The picture, which is under the direction of W. S. Van Dyke, will not be completed for at least another six weeks.

Recently met a once internationally known comedian who has dropped from top billing and three thousand dollars a week, to playing small theatres at five dollars for from three to five shows daily.

"I spent my money when I had it. Now my fair weather friends have deserted me and I have to work for peanuts. That's show business," he informed me.

Even extra players in pictures find it tough sledding. Their only hope of securing employment is through the office of Central Casting Corporation. Outside that office we read this notice in bold, black print: "To all Extra Players—Hereafter all interviews in person or by telephone with employees of Central Casting Corporation will be discontinued and the reception room closed until further notice." Yes, picture work is nice work if you can get it.

Joan Crawford, in our opinion, is one of the most industrious stars in the film capital. Singing arias from several grand operas in French, Italian and German, Miss Crawford opened and brought praise from the internationally famous star of concert and grand opera, Tito Schipa.

When we asked if this could be described as the realization of several years' study in vocal art and operatic interpretation, Joan chortled, replied: "Of course I am thrilled, but do not say this is the climax. I feel it is early in the beginning."

Lionel Barrymore, veteran star of stage and screen and eldest of the "Royal Family", received cheering news when he read the announcement in a Hollywood hospital this week.

Columbia Studios have announced that he shall star in the choicest comedy role of the year as Grandpa Martin Vanderhof in "You Can't Take It With You", Frank Capra's next production.

This will be the first time that the Barrymore "Ham" has been "tamed" by the genius of director Capra. Such an ideal combination should do justice to the Pulitzer Prize comedy.

Last week we promised you that Hedy Kiesler, henceforth to be known as Hedy La Marr, would enlighten us regarding that much discussed subject, "Love."

Granted by M. G. M. as carefully as France guards her gold, the "Enslaved Girl" is not even permitted to speak for publication at the moment.

We met this beautiful, dark-eyed charmer recently and were assured that she has definite ideas on love. When we can pass them along to you without evoking a roar from the M. G. M. lion is another question, however.

Meanwhile we are of the opinion that Miss West and all the alarmist the silver screen had better look their laurels. Who cares about clever gags and rounded curves when acting is in the offing.

Anything can happen in Hollywood—and does. Last week a Mr. Jaffe new's writer, Doris Meier, was assigned to do a series of four articles on "The Taxi Dancer."

Miss Meier applied for a job as taxi dancer and worked as such all week, collecting first hand impressions for her articles. Now she tells us: "I wish I could stay on as a taxi dancer. They make more money than most writers do."

Miss Meier will receive forty dollars for the articles and her earnings from the taxi dancing amounted to forty-seven dollars. Footwork apparently rates higher than penwork (with sailors.)

CLUB DISCUSSES FUTURE OF YOUTH

Interesting Meeting of Marmora Organization is Held

Madoc—(Special)—The Discussion Club at the Madoc School, Madoc, met Tuesday evening, Feb. 21. The subject "Future of Present Day Youth" was taken by Rev. M. Hollingsworth of Marmora. He dealt with the subject under three headings, The Home, The School and the Church. From the earliest days in the history of mankind up to the present youth has had its difficulties to face and its problems to solve. On the other hand the home, the school, the church face difficulties because of youth's disinterest and apathy. Whose is the fault and what is the solution? Discussion followed on such points as "Are more rigid disciplinary methods advisable? Does the ideal of service enter into the training given the young people? Are young people taught the desirability of knowledge? Are loyalties exerting enough influence in the training of youth? A vote of thanks was given the speaker. The subject for the next meeting is "Japanese in British Columbia.

The Madoc Badminton Club were guests of the Club of Belleville School for the Deaf last evening. Twenty-two events were played with Madoc winning nine.

AGE OF SPEED CALLING FOR BETTER VISION

Motor Traffic Congestion Calls For Amplification of Right-Angle Vision Says Authority

An interesting modern trend centres in the habit of recent origin of setting aside certain weeks in which to concentrate upon some particular subject. Thrift Week, Clean Up Week, Clean Up Week, Eat More Fish Week, and many other weeks are celebrated each given more or less publicity which helps to create a greater interest in the subject so headlined.

This is used to a greater extent in the United States than in Canada, our cousins to the South being a bit more enthusiastic and publicity minded than ourselves, but this week being "Save Your Vision Week" all over the continent concentration upon that subject should be helpful to all. Dr. Harry Pine, President of the American Optometric Association, asserted as to recent developments in the optometric field, said that special attention and careful study must be being given to automobile hazards and their relation to vision. Said he:

"A new field is being explored—the ability of a person to capture or observe moving objects at right angles to the body. That the new knowledge is of great value to safety councils is demonstrated by the fact that these fields are vitally affected by the use of alcohol and tobacco.

"The division are heretofore has been ignored in tests for motor vehicle operation. The quickness and clearness of this right angle vision is what makes the "cut of the tail of the eye" judgment good or bad. It is especially vital in driving where street intersections are grouped —with sometimes as many as six outlets emptying into a main artery of travel.

"If your visual efficiency tests show you are slow or deficient in this right angle vision you may have muscular correction to your vision so that you are able to register clearly and swiftly objects coming at you from the sides. The understanding of this visual problem, Dr. Pine says will make a huge difference in the percentage of the death rate."

"The centre of gravity of the family has shifted from the father to the mother in modern social work within the last generation." Dr. Cecar B. Marley, Western Reserve University.

"Marriages should be arranged only on a thorough study of each other's character and disposition. . . . Make home heaven, a place where the heart goes to dwell."—Mgr. M. J. Lavelle, New York city, giving advice to young people.

WHY CHEVROLET HAS THE BEST ENGINE for a LOW-PRICED CAR

MODERN MODE STYLING
PERFECTED HYDRAULIC BRAKES
GENUINE KNEE-ACTION
ROOMIER ALL-SILENT ALL-STEEL BODIES
VALVE-IN-HEAD ENGINE
FISHER NO-DRAFT VENTILATION
NEW TIPTOE-MATIC CLUTCH

RECORD-BREAKING racing cars, speed boats and airplanes have Valve-in-Head Engines. Engineers know this type of motor is the most efficient in the world. What's the best to do with Chevrolet? Everything—for Chevrolet is powered this same Valve-in-Head way.

Valve-in-Head efficiency means that more power is developed from gasoline. Or you can put it this way . . . Chevrolet gives you more miles per gallon of gas, without sacrificing the full 85 H.P. performance you need.

For instance, Chevrolet owners find they can take the hills without shifting gears, get traffic lights, hold cruising speeds more comfortably. Yet these same owners report 22 to 27 miles and more to the gallon of gas!

Add to this the fact that the Valve-in-Head design cuts down oil consumption to a mere "low"—reduces carbon formation—and is famous for dependability. There you have the reasons why a Valve-in-Head Engine is the very best kind for a car that emphasizes low running and upkeep costs.

Take a minute to check through all the other fine advantages of the new Chevrolet, as listed to the right. Then come to our showrooms, see and drive it, yourself!

THE DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER is published every afternoon (Sunday and holidays excepted) at The Ontario Intelligencer Building.

MR. CAMERON EXONERATED

Regardless of party affiliations, we believe that the reaction of the people of the riding of South Hastings will be that of general satisfaction at the court decision that Mr. Charles A. Cameron, M. P., has been exonerated by the court of any intentional evasion of compliance with the Dominion Elections Act, wherein a newly elected member and his agent are required to file a declaration of his election expenses within a prescribed time limit. The court was convinced that the failure to file the declaration was merely an inadvertence on the part of Mr. Cameron owing to heavy professional responsibilities and the duty of caring for the interest of his constituents after the election and also through the unfortunate prolonged serious illness of his agent, Mr. Tice.

We are confident that the decision of the court will be welcomed by the constituents of the riding of South Hastings, that he has been honorably and completely excused and relieved from any consequences for what after all appears to have been merely an oversight and not an intentional breach of the Act.

The electors in the district of South Hastings realize how active Mr. Cameron has been in matters affecting his riding since his election and particularly in his efforts to secure as much work as possible for the unemployed. He has taken a special interest in veterans' work and through the Department of National Defence was able in 1937 to arrange for the construction of a large building at Trenton Airport solely by veteran labor. It is understood that the work at that time this has been done in Canada. A substantial number of unemployed veterans were given work and made an excellent job of the building, completing it at a cost of only one-half of one per cent. in excess of the original estimate. The results were so satisfactory that the Department authorized the construction of a hospital at the airport with veteran labor. This is now in course of construction.

Since coming to Belleville after the war, Mr. Cameron has been extremely active in a great many of the municipal and district organizations. His many friends will be delighted to hear of the successful outcome of his application.

IN LIGHTER VEIN

The goosestep, the name given the German Infantryman's step by English and Americans, has been in the news and cartoons since Italy had adopted it in the name of the "passo Romano" or Roman step. Sir Austen M. P. lightened the solemnity of affairs in the British Commons the other day asking Mr. Chamberlain if he could understand the "passo Romano (Italian version of the German "goosestep") will not be compulsory in England. Coming at a time of great interest following the retirement of Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, the question stirred the lighter things of the House and gave an air of light-heartedness.

Naturally the Prime Minister did not answer the question.

To non-Germans and non-Italians the Italian adoption at this time when there is so much talk of arms, seems even in a lighter vein as really to lessen the strain, because it does not seem any contribution to solution of any of the great pressing problems disturbing Europe. It is just a courtesy of Italy to a friendly power.

ON THE B. C. COAST

Views expressed on the reported peaceful aggression of Japanese on the B. C. coast fishing industry take it outside of the color line entirely, the opinion being that Canada would take what right and the same with consideration of the fact whether the fishermen are Japanese or not.

There is however a feeling among British Columbians that the small flow of Japanese immigration should be stemmed eventually owing to the inroads upon the wealth of fishing in that Province. It has been claimed that Canadians have been victimized by some of the fishermen from the other side of the Pacific Ocean.

A winter of varied moods is passing to its close. So fickle has it been that most people, wearied of the variety will long to see the water flowing down the river, and even the dust blowing whither it will, to show that spring has come.

LOVE AND LAW

When man, impenitent, must needs atone,
Creative Love devised a Cross of shame;
Though laws were given on tablets hewn of stone
Which came from out a thorn-bush wrapped in flame.)

The world, still struggling, scorns the humble Cross,
And turns with phantom fingers, clutching gold
To gain dominion over land and sea,
Striving by finite mind, as those of old,
Not knowing that there still could only be
The two Commandments, — Love and Sympathy.

AUSTRIA HAS BEEN VERY MUCH IN THE HEADLINES of late. That nation which has had a hard time ever since the Great War has been busy picking up the pieces and arranging it's economic affairs so as to regain a prominent place among the nations of Europe. Recent Front Page prominence would indicate that Austria is "going places," to use the slang of the moment. It is not surprising therefore that in its forward march Austria should turn to Belleville for education helps, and a recent order received by The James Texts from Austria for a selection of the famous educational publications of this well known Belleville institution confirms this. World-wide in its scope The James Texts knows no boundary restrictions, and orders have been received recently from France, Switzerland, Peru, British Honduras, Bermuda, Australia, United States, and in fact all parts of the world. The Austrian order is being prepared to ship by the S. S. Normandie from New York, and the destination of the shipment is Wein, Austria. It would seem that the world is becoming more education conscious every day, and it is only natural that the eyes of the world should turn to such an important educational centre as Belleville, Ontario, Canada.

CANADA'S WEALTH IS NOT ALL IN THE GROUND, and rich as the forest, mineral and agricultural wealth is the seas and the lakes and rivers also contain much wealth. Little is heard about Canada's wealth in fisheries, but recently the Department of Fisheries at Ottawa has been calling attention in newspaper advertisements to the advisability of eating more fish for the sake of health and economy and also for the purpose of creating more business for Canadian fisheries by increasing the demand. The Government also provides attractive booklets telling how to cook and serve fish in the most attractive and appetizing way. There are over sixty kinds of Canadian Food Fish and Shellfish and the Government experts say that "Each can be served in a variety of recipes that will make the mouth arouse family enthusiasm, and leave them as satisfied as a cat that has had a kipper." A coupon appeared in this newspaper Tuesday which when sent to Ottawa with address will bring a 52-page booklet entitled "Any Day is Fish Day", containing 100 delightful and economical Fish Recipes. Cut the coupon out of the paper or ask for one at this office. No charge.

THAT HANDSOME MAN FROM HAMILTON, has had a birthday, Russell T. Kelley, the man with the smile when everything goes right and the man with the smile when everything goes dead wrong, which it seldom does with him. Russell T. Kelley started the Hamilton Advertising Agency twenty-five years ago, and built it into one of the leading business headquarters in Hamilton lasted three days in honor of Hamilton's first advertising agency. Toronto and Montreal had previously monopolized all advertising agencies of importance of character and Russell T. Kelley set a precedent and disappointed wiseones who said he didn't have a chance. From humble beginnings the Hamilton Advertising Agency has grown into a large organization, with a staff of twenty-two, with all the world for a field. Russell T. Kelley, head of the Hamilton Advertising Agency, finds time for much community work outside his business activities, is very prominent in Rotary work, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and other organizations for the advancement of Canadian ideals and prosperity.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Feb. 26th., 1918.

The mild weather of yesterday followed by a downpour of rain during the greater part of last night was responsible for many Belleville citizens suffering inconvenience and damage from flooded premises. This was especially the case on the west side of Coleman Street, the north end of Everett Street and a portion of Moira Street, which is built upon what is known as the Coleman flats. At an early hour water from the flats developed into a torrent which raged down Bowsell Street, crossed Moira Street and then flooded residences on Coleman and Everett Streets. The water came rushing into the houses, without warning. In several houses the ground floor was covered with water to a depth of a foot or more. Fires could not be kept going and much personal inconvenience and hardship was experienced. By noon the water had subsided to a large extent owing to the weather turning colder. On Jane Street, the corner of Caledine Street, the road and yards were flooded to such extents were compelled to use fences as a means of egress. As soon as possible civic employees were sent to assist marooned citizens. By means of planks placed from doorways to the street, many persons were able to get exercise from their houses. The situation will not become more serious if the cold weather continues for a few days, but should mild weather follow there is every likelihood of double be a renewal of flood conditions.

The Belleville water works department as per the statement of its auditors, has a net balance for the year 1907 of $3,874.-41. After paying all expenses, providing for interest and sinking fund. This showing is creditable to the department and its chairman, Ald. Vermilyea, who has spared no pains to bring about the advance in interest.

The snow fall last night, which was accompanied by a strong southeast wind had the effect of accumulating traffic to a large extent in this section.

A branch of Traders' Bank was opened yesterday at Tweed in the premises formerly occupied by the Sovereign Bank.

Two rinks of Belleville curlers at mail time, played at Cobourg last night and won by 8 shots. Mr. P. Dolan and Judge Porter were the Belleville skips.

Mr. James Wacham, Grand Master of the Trention Boys, and Mr. O. C. Brickman, Grand Secretary, went to Kingston today to attend a grand social function to be given by the Trention Boys of that city, this evening.

The manner in which the walls inside the post office are disfigured with scribbling is disgraceful. The caretaker has used every exertion to prevent this and other mischief, but it is beyond the power of any one man to do so as much of the mischief is done when the office is crowded with people waiting for the mail to be distributed. A notice should be stationed in the lobby to that effect.

Freedom of the Press

The Examiner received a letter for publication a few days ago, and the writer did not wish to sign his name. He thought of several names which would answer his purpose. In the letter he mentioned things he had had with another individual in his employment, and he wished to have it printed that this individual was a "robber" and a "mean shark". He said plenty about this individual, but those two phrases are sufficient for the moment.

When the Examiner informed him the letter could not be published unless it were signed, and he explained he had been a subscriber to the paper for a good many years and had never made a request before. He was also indignant that the letter did not appear and may yet be in that frame of mind.

The letter writer in this case has entirely overlooked or misjudged the purpose of a newspaper. The responsibility which a newspaper must bear for anything and everything printed in its columns. The letter writer wanted to make an open charge against a man but he wanted the paper to do it for him. He was certain if a name were signed to the letter the newspaper would have no responsibility in the matter. But it does not work that way at all. Had the gentleman left the impression that "robber" and "a mean shark" taken action for libel or defamation of character the paper would have been left holding the bag. But the man who wrote the letter, left with the impression that the paper would be responsible for his statements, was not willing to sign his name.

A newspaper cannot call people names and get away with it. Privileges those extended to individuals. Truth is a great deal of care must be exercised in a good many cases. To illustrate: We recall where two men in the employ of Bell in an Ontario city, and police had reason to believe they were attempting to rob a bank. So the police were waiting for them. When the arrests were effected it was noticed that the arrested men were referred to as "Bell employees." The following day yet and the lawyer who was going to defend them asked the paper for an immediate retraction and apology, claiming that the paper had grievously injured the character of his clients. The lawyer was right, of course, and the retraction and apology were both made. A paper has to sit up for a good many days in the nature of the material appearing in its columns. And it is right that it should.—Peterborough Examiner.

LETTERS TELL OF WIDE APPEAL OF 'OLD RED SCHOOL HOUSE' HISTORY

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer:

It has been to me a source of amusement as well as of gratification to ascertain that the article I lately contributed to your paper, giving a history of "The Old Red Schoolhouse", has awakened such wide-spread interest.

The story was merely an effort to present a permanent record of this old rural school for the benefit of our own and coming generations. But I had no thought that the chronicle would have more than local or parochial interest.

To my literary surprise, I have been receiving letters and messages from many parts of Canada and the United States commenting upon the narrative and pleasantly recalling the good old days. Some of the messages have come from entire strangers who were not always familiar with the locality but who could picture in imagination the butternut trees, the spring at the gate, the neighborhood bees and house parties as well as the old school itself.

Mr. C. F. Publow, who holds an important position on the engineering staff of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario at Toronto, sends a letter from which I quote the following extract:

"It has been my privilege in following my profession to have motored over considerable of the territory mentioned and I have often paused to admire the beauties of the charming scenes, so varied and so beautiful, that different parts of the province of my boyhood—the prairies. They too have their peculiar charm, but for me and I believe for many, change is a very real one.

"I have just been congratulated for having undertaken this very commendable work. It will be a source of satisfaction to the future generations will not experience the regret you have had in failing to provide so locate the original records of pioneer days."

Referring again to my home, a corresponding review of the pioneers of Thurlow will be written by Mrs. Louis Benmore, formerly of Belleville, now of Glendale, California, returned here last evening.

Messrs. L. Yeomans and Eugene Richardson will leave here shortly for the Pacific Coast.

Miss Morris and Miss Madden of Elizabeth Ward, Belleville, present are attending the spring millinery in Toronto.

Mr. J. W. Parks, formerly of Belleville, manager of Scantlebury's Kingston branch will paper store, will leave shortly to open a branch store for Mr. Scantlebury in Winnipeg.

Searching Old News Fyles

Among hazardous occupations should be included that of the rural newspaper editor who publishes each week brief resumes of the births, deaths and marriages in those little communities which usually collectively are known as "Twenty-Five Years Ago, and Fifty Years Ago."

A most careful editor culled his items each week, omitting all that he felt might offend any subscriber. One bit in particular he would leave out. It was to the run under the head Fifty Years Ago, and it told that a man had fifty years ago. Miss Irma Clemens began her studies at the public school. The editor would, of course, not have dared to run such a dangerous piece, but he knew for a fact that Irma had been dead for many years. Further, she was Miss Clemens, and Clemens still living. In his innocence, the man decided that here was no one to be hurt. He could not

"And what's more, I want to cancel my subscription. And what's more, I'm going to have my name struck from Clemens starting publication of school days, and fifty years ago, sir."

"But poor Miss Irma Clemens is dead and gone," returned the editor, wringing his hands. "It can't injure the deceased to give out that she was born more than fifty years ago."

"Maybe it can't hurt Irma," said Miss Matilda Crane, "but you know about the fact that everybody in this town knows I was always Irma's age. And when that Irma's-

PASTEURIZING MILK

To the Editor of The Ontario Intelligencer:

A recent issue of The Globe & Mail there appeared an article by an outstanding doctor on the subject of the pasteurization of milk. This doctor's statement reads as follows. For a number of years I have been making many clinical comparisons of pasteurized milk with raw milk from accredited herds. From these studies I am convinced that raw milk properly handled is from the standpoint of health the ideal product. We all agree that pasteurization kills the tubercle bacillus, but what many is that it also kills the life in the milk. This is detrimental to health" and he also goes on to say I suggest that the government of Ontario should consider the whole question more extensively from all angles before insisting in every city in this province to accept compulsory pasteurization. I am personally interested in this doctor's discussion as I am one with him wholeheartedly that rather than enforce the pasteurization of milk I would compulsion other than produced fr" accredited herds and would be glad to hear opinions of milk producers and pedlars.

I have read your paper and being interested in the above discussions I hope that you will publish this article room in your paper.

300 Sticks of Dynamite Used To Break-up Grace M. Filer

Old Sailing Vessel Laid Up Nearly 20 Years Ago

MENACE TO BOATS

Last vestiges of the gaunt skeleton of the "Grace M. Filer" one of the last of the freight-carrying windjammers on Prince Edward Lake, which for nearly two decades has lain partly buried in the waters near the bay of Quinte three hundred feet offshore from the civic bathing beach location just east of the city, disappeared in a reverberating explosion late Friday afternoon.

Approximately 300 sticks of dynamite were used to blast the wooden hulk, a menace to boats in the summer and a bar to further lake construction, from its position of about two o'clock yesterday.

For days past workmen under the direction of W. J. Dennis, of the city, granted the contract for the removal of the hulk by the Dominion Department of Marine, have been preparing the site for the blast. Holes have been carefully drilled through the ice alongside the boat through which the dynamite had been packed and tamped with rock and earth.

Built in 1876 as 26 Years

Laid up nearly twenty years ago when her owners felt she had outlived her usefulness, the Filer as she was familiarly known in this district, has been a prey to ice and storm for more than a generation. At about ten feet of water at her prow, and resting on the years level of mud, oak ribs and planking have provided skaters with fun for a generation, while boat builders with choice bits of timber in summer. Only in the spring has she been a menace to small boat navigation, when with the ice breakup she was only the submerged hull now rests on the shoal.

An all-weather during the past week or more have chopped and sawed her into parts and the Filer's boatmen of the city have paid the supreme price of the high frequent visits, recalling the days of spread canvas when she was a thing of beauty in lake crossings from port to port. Her degeneration from fast freighter to hulk was a gradual one. Similar drogher as years succeeded has been the fate of many others. The Filer's final yesterday afternoon was attended with great interest, a meeting of one more sailing link of time.

Various Ways to Do Hair

DOROTHY HOWE

Who likes the new ringlet coiffure style

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

COIFFURES ARE piquant and provocative; they provoke a wonder as to the sale of curlers. It's all very well to have the hair dresser do some beautifully fluid undulations, cover the crown of your saintly head with puffs, rolls and ringlets, but what are you going to do with it all the next day?

Coiffure designers tell us to wear a low hairdress during the day because it looks better with a hat, and to hoist up the silky strands for the marry evening festivity. Looks like a headache to me. Try it. If you don't get all tangled up with yourself, you are one of the world's seven wonders, whatever they are.

Moreover that, despite all this hoisting and shouting for the elaborate, low-line hairdress, the movie stars are keeping to the fluff stuff. Why? You've guessed it. Flying fringe, wavy or curly.

Don't select toilet soap for its scents, but for its qualities of cleanliness. The kind of soap one uses is responsible to a certain extent for the condition of the cuticle, the nails and the skin.

No matter how pure it is, it should be rinsed away to the last particle. Don't overlook the benefits of the hand brush. A cactual cleaning of the nails will cause the skin surface to chap. Use lotions freely, apply an oily cosmetic once or twice a week.

No matter whether the eye shadows you use are in cream or compact form, cover them with a film before applying them. Vaseline will serve better than cream because of its lighter consistency. It can be more thoroughly removed from the eyes with ordinary cosmetic emollient. Shining lids put sparkles in the eyes. Haven't you noticed? Experiment and see for yourself.

Plainfield W. M. S.

The February meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Hyrle Denyes with a attendance of twenty-one. Hymn and prayer were offered by Mrs. Thompson. Roll call was answered by paying of membership fees. The Devotional was taken by Mrs. Ward. Mrs. Harrison led in prayer. A hymn was sung. Mrs. Palmer, group leader, had charge. Reading by Mrs. Colden and dance solo by Miss Olive Hall followed. The report from the presbyterial was given by Mrs. Iverson and Mrs. Denyes which were interesting. Meeting closed with Mizpah benediction.

Fire has been made to run under water. It took six years of research, but the apparatus has been perfected.

GOOD MANNERS

by MRS. CORNELIUS BECKMAN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Friend in Samaritan

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I met a young man last summer and we became very good friends. About two months ago he was taken ill and is now in a sanatorium. We write to each other very often. He wishes me to visit him, and I have promised to do so. He is twenty years of age and I am seventeen. Would it be proper for me to take him a gift? If so, what would you suggest?

It is not only proper for you to take this friend a gift, but you will be a Good Samaritan if you do so. He is undoubtedly hungry for books and magazines. Magazines are a delight for one in a hospital, for they can be read a little at a time. Especially appropriate is the type of small magazine that makes a specialty of publishing collections of stories and articles. Also, you will probably be able to get ones that specialize on some special interest or enthusiasm of his. Well-chosen books too will be heartily welcomed. Perhaps for sometime you would like to send him a small glass bowl with a few flowers in it, the type that can be kept colorful with two flowers a week. . . . they last for days in the winter. And I'm glad that you write him often . . . three letters are a week, and I am sure that they are bright spots in his long day.

Wedding Toast

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I have been asked to say a few words at my friend's wedding reception. Do you think it proper if it would be proper for a girl to give a toast to the bride and groom, or should the boy who is also saying a few words give the toast?

2—In giving a toast, is there any thing one can say other than wishing the bride happiness?

3—Is it proper for me to use the bride and groom's first name, as should I say "Mr. and Mrs. Brown" or just say "Gridie and Croom"? This is a formal afternoon wedding and the reception is to be at the church.

4—Is it permissible for me to wear a simple black afternoon dress with white trimming and black hat and gloves?

5—Should I wear my hat and gloves all through the reception?

Reader.

1—It is best if possible, for the best man to propose the toast to the bride and groom. To this toast the groom responds for his bride and himself.

2—There's really no more appropriate toast than that . . . to wish the bride and groom happiness, although it can be said in many ways. One of the nicest ways I've ever heard it said was "To Mary and John . . . may they always walk with Happiness".

3—By all means use the first names of the bride and groom.

4—It used to be thought inappropriate for a guest to wear a black dress at a wedding, but now, when black is so popular and fashionable, and when many women never wear anything but black day dresses, this does not get much attention. But you might lighten your ensemble with a few flowers in the type that can be kept colorful with two flowers a week. . . . they last for days in the winter. And I'm glad that you write him often . . . three letters are a week, and I am sure that they are bright spots in his long day.

Graduation Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am engaged to a young man who is graduating from High School this month. Please tell me if I should give him a graduation present, and what you would suggest? Would a picture of myself be appropriate?

G.

I think . . . and I am sure that your fiance would too . . . that it would be a fine idea for you to give your fiance a photograph of yourself, but I wouldn't give it as a graduation present, which is for him a good-looking wallet, or a box of cuff-links, or a cigarette case, or a pen and pencil set, stamped with the facsimile of his signature?

Advice to the Lovelorn

by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Shall He Ask Her Dad?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've known a certain girl for a year, and we both grown very dear to each other. My parents know we go together, but not hers, as they are strict and I haven't even met them yet. We want to marry and my girl wants me to ask her father's consent and meet her parents, but as I have no job right now I don't like to meet them especially for their daughter's hand in marriage. We don't want to elope but at least two years, because I figure in that time I'll be established and can support her and take care of a wife. For this reason I hate to speak to her folks. Am I right in this?

V. R.

It's a good idea not to "rush" your girl's parents that you want to marry their daughter until you have a good position. As a rule parents do not welcome a suitor without a good position. But there's no reason why you shouldn't call on the girl and meet them especially as you and your sweetheart do not expect to marry for two years. Leave no stone unturned to find permanent and well-paying job. Then ask her father.

She Always Gives In to His Whims

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I just became engaged to a young man who I think looking up to and all the girls like him. I really love him and sacrifice all my good times, but I always give in to his whims. He doesn't believe in such things. Once the moon and stars are right he gets sweet and considerate, but of late he gets romantic only when under the moon and stars the sky must be shining.

My sister tells me I sacrifice too much for him, and that makes him dislike her. I do give in to all his whims, because it doesn't really hurt me, but what hurts is that he never will do as I wish sometimes. I'm trying to appear happy when with him, but deep down I'm

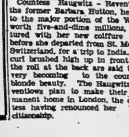
When you have to give in so much before marriage, it's probable you will have to give in even more afterwards. A young man who doesn't like shows, dancing, or other innocent entertainments, and wants everyone as a good life-partner for any girl who likes all these pleasures.

Stop to think, my dear, that there are many long periods of time in married life when the moon is not shining, and when dark clouds appear. What happens when partners are comradeship, good sportsmanship, mutual love and respect. You really don't seem to be going very happy, but deep down you're unhappy, and especially girl should radiantly happy, not have to pretend that she is when she is not. Weigh all these things before you say "I do."

Make Haste Slowly



Dear Miss Fairfax:

About a month or two ago I met a young man I thought was about twenty-five. He is a bachelor and not a bit conceited, as so many are, and he is a gentleman. About a week later a date was arranged and ever since then I've not been able to reach him over the phone continually. He seemed to like me and would usually proceed to take me out again later. Of course, that time hasn't come yet, but I just can't seem to get him off my mind. If the world want him to know I like him I would do it again, and couldn't have the same friend, who arranged the first, attempt to try again.

I suppose the best thing is to wait until he calls, but in the meantime I'm getting

Frantic

Your affair seems to be making good progress, and you're a sensible girl not to let this young man know how keen you are to see him again. "Make haste slowly" is not a bad saying to remember in affairs of the heart, as well as other experiences. When you get that all-important date, you will probably find out the things in which this boy friend is interested; and it's always a good plan to know enough about them to be able at least to listen intelligently.

Need Mother Set Self Up As Saint?

No, Writer Says, But Young-ster Wants to Idealize His Parents

(By LISA GRENELLE)

Clara was a modern mother, so modern that she thought some of the old-fashioned mothers who set themselves on a pedestal for their children's worship were a bunch of old hypocrites.

"Imagine the nerve, setting yourself up as saint!" she said one day. "And then what a tumble you'll get when the children grow old enough to see you as you really are!"

Clara was no pretender herself. Oh no! To friends and children alike, Clara was just Clara. She wasn't afraid to get down on her hands and knees in the dirt to play with the children. She wasn't afraid to point out a joke on herself. She admit her mistakes, let the children tease her about her absent-mindedness, her tendency to drop things or to forget to snap the last two snaps on their coats.

Clara told the children that she didn't want them to idealize her. She thought that was a mistake bound to find out I'm just like everybody else, might as well get it into your heads now, children, and save yourself a tumble. I don't expect you to love me just because I'm your mother, but I hope you'll love me for what I am after a while.

"Then" Not Present

Clara told the children she was "boss" for the present because she had to be. Children could not run around more, but not through any dictatorial superiority. And her Bobby said:

"You know everyone was that way when they were little, Mother, everyone."

"Everyone?" Mother said. "Lots of people don't like me, and I don't blame them."

"Mother everybody must like you, Mother," Bobby persisted, "because you're just a darb. Bobby You know Mother doesn't pretend-never does."

"No one's been talking to me, Mother," Flora put it out for myself, I and Tom."

"What's your idea of 'goodness,' Bobby?"

"Somebody who's always nice to everybody and doesn't say or do anything mean about anybody".

"But sometimes I—"

"Goodness and Goodness sake!" Mother, "You don't understand. Bobby. Nobody can be despise people who set themselves up as superior, as something they aren't, especially children. Your parents who must be worshipped.

But children, I think, do idealize their parents. They want something they can look up to, something they can take pride in.

you give them nothing at all to admire, to respect, they feel disappointed, bitterly resentful, sadly disillusioned. And while in his parents seems to be necessary to a child's sense of security, his self-respect.

Don't set yourself on a pedestal. Don't pretend to have qualities you don't possess. But don't be afraid to have your children learn to respect—if it's only a nature so constant that they can create the illusion of goodness from it.

Eldorado

Eldorado—The Eldorado Hockey team defeated the Queensboro by a score of on the latter's ice on Saturday night strengthened their position in the league standing. They have won victories to six against one defeat. The game Saturday night was a thriller with Eldorado having a decided edge on the play throughout. Time and time again in the third period Queensboro sent their men up after Eldorado was leading 5 to 0 and their efforts were rewarded when Bennett, Eldorado centre, and Rollins scored in the dying moments of the game. Thompson's goal was disputed by the Eldorado team claiming he had knocked in with his hand. The spectators swarmed on the ice and only the coolness of the players prevented a free-for-all at that it required about twenty minutes to restore Harry Parnell to clear the ice.

There were no stars on the Eldorado team unless it was Ken Martin, the goalie who was sensational in the last period. The rest of the players gave all they had and played their best game of the season. F. Stewart with two led the scoring for the visitors, A. Thompson, J. Thompson and K. Holmes with one each brought the Eldorado total up to 5.

Y. F. U.

The Eldorado and Union Young People's Union met at the Eldorado church on Monday evening. The meeting was called to order by the president, Miss Florence Walker, who presided over the Worship service. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Miss Phyllis Strobe. The roll was called by the ladies of the two sides, showing a good attendance present.

Miss June Sirois, convener for Christian Mission then outlined her programs. The items being appreciate the cultural contributions of Mission lands to the Christian Church.

The Call to Worship was given by Miss Grace Robinson reading a poem, and Miss June Strobe gave the Worship Story. A poem "From this day out" was read by Mr. Walter Moran.

The scripture was given by Miss Annie Holmes. The Bible lesson was read by Miss Lillian Arkell, and after singing "Jesus calls us o'er the tumult, wherever the Sun", Miss Florence Walker gentlined the topic, and Mrs. L. Broad rendered a solo. A reading by Mr. Ivan Clark, Jr., and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction, after which a social evening dinner was served. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Stirling Bedford and Betty of Stirling, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCoy and Don and Miss Hal Mc-Coy. The groom's mother who is very ill was unable to be present.

The happy young couple will reside in Bannockburn.

SPRINGBROOK LADIES' AID

The Ladies' Aid of Springbrook held their monthly meeting on Thursday last at the home of Mrs. Geo. R. Thompson and despite the slippery road there was a good attendance.

The meeting opened in the usual manner, singing a hymn and Mrs. F. Bateman presiding. Mrs. F. Harding called the roll which was well responded to. A hymn was sung, followed by prayer.

Splendid reports were given by the Sick Committee.

The programme was as follows: A reading by Mrs. Walter Heath entitled "The New Scroll Worker at His Garden" was read by Mrs. Jas. Ansley, another reading by Mrs. C. Silke "Modern Parables". Mrs. A. R. Williams talked on Uncle McClung's adventures. These papers and talks were enjoyed by all.

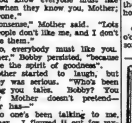
The meeting closed with Mizpah Benediction after which the hostess served lunch assisted by Mrs. Ken Thompson, Grace Gibson, Mrs. Walter Silke. A social half hour was spent before the ladies departed.

AT THE BELLE

"Buccaneer"

The motion picture producer and director who never misses a trick when it comes to finding star material, presents a girl who is almost unknown in America in the biggest picture of her career.

The director is Cecil B. DeMille, "starmaker"; the girl is lovely Francisca Casal, and the picture is one that has all that women desire in romance, and all that men want in glory and is titled "The Buccaneer", a powerful drama of the most crucial days in American history built around the amazing career of Jean Lafitte, pirate leader ...tenderest loves women ever knew. Now on the Belle screen until Wednesday, matinee daily.



While Miss Casal will be unknown to America, she has an enviable reputation in Europe where she has appeared in some of the biggest stage and screen successes. Critics say not Miss Casal's experience as an actress which attracted the "starmaker's" attention, although she has plenty of it. It was the girl's naive charm which convinced him she was star material in the making and that's why he signed her for the role.

In Good Company

And in what august company Miss Casal finds herself in "The Buccaneer" first, she appears opposite the great Fredric March, Academy Award winner and one of Hollywood's most versatile men of historic roles. March plays the role of Lafitte to the hilt, giving what reviewers say is the best performance under the direction of Cecil B. DeMille.

An excursion into autobiography is the theme of J. B. Priestley's latest volume "Midnight on the Desert". Two years ago the author spent several months in the Arizona ranch employing his time in writing a novel. While there he collected but he gathered together his reflections on American life, his own experiences in travelling over the country, the scenery and American characteristics. "Midnight on the Desert" reveals J. B. Priestley at his best observant critic and writer. It includes a compelling, sensible human quality never easily found in travel books. Mr. Priestley Brown of the Manchester Guardian has interpreted volume in the following words: "The great open spaces of Arizona produced not only a novel but a book of reflections that gave time and space for a keen observer to get away from the daily social drifts and stresses of our time."

This is a vivid and informative whether she is writing of a Buddhist monk, Russian dancing girls, Soviet Tartar dancers.

That Body of Yours

By Jessie W. Barton, R.D.

Too Rapid Reducing May Cause The Screen Type of Goiter

One of the tragic results of reducing weight too rapidly either by starving the unwanted fat from about or by taking one or more of the "obesity cures" in the form of tablets when the desired weight has been reached, the loss of weight continues. With this continuous loss of weight other alarming symptoms appear—loss of appetite, indigestion, constipation of the limbs, sleeplessness and rapid heart beat, until finally the nerve form of goitre—exophthalmic goitre or Grave's disease—develops. This is caused by overstimulation of the thyroid gland and in the remainder it was due to a variety of conditions such as getting down over the ice cause of stomach or intestinal ulcer, or because of the removal of two-thirds of the large intestine, diabetes and other ailments where food aggravates the condition.

Dr. Means and his associates warn physicians and patients against too vigorous reducing cures for overweight. Except in cases where operation for goitre is found necessary that the patient be built up before the operation is considered

Teaching Music to Children

Dr. Myers Considers Method Suggested by Instructor

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

A MUSIC TEACHER whose sister also is a music teacher offers some suggestions. Here are a few of them:

1. "See that your child has a regular time for practice, and does it at the same time each day. The music period should become as habitual and as unchangeable as the time for going to school, and should be taken just as much as a matter of course. Two half-hour periods are much to be preferred to one hour period."

We heartily agree up to the last sentence. We would like to revise it, except for a few musical geniuses to read: "Two 15-minute periods are better than one half-hour period." An hour a day will be done at the price of mental and physical health. Of course, if you are merely thinking of music as accomplishment, an hour may even be short. My first thought is of the child.

2. "We find that frequent practice recitals during the year, at which groups of the pupils meet and play for each other, afford excellent motivation, as well as fine practice. We make more of the party than anything else of these affairs, and find that the children look forward to them as real events and strive to have a piece learned so as to be among the performers."

Perhaps "most" should have been inserted just before children for the sake of accuracy.

Have Public Recitals

"In June we have large public recitals, and that our pupils look forward to these with no thought of stage fright (we are careful not to suggest any such idea to them) is evidenced by the statement of one four-year-old to her mother: 'This (referring to the public recital) is going to be so much fun! I can hardly wait to get there!' At the public recitals we award prizes for perfect attendance and for accomplishing the most work during the year, and these are eagerly worked for."

For music achievement the prizes are good. But while prizes for perfect attendance, except when ill, may have character value, prizes for most accomplished is very questionable from the standpoint of mental health.

I see the value in the June recital, but I should like to warn all music teachers not to set children at selections which require unreasonable amount of practice, or at selections which, though not likely to make a good showing at the recital. Too many heartaches over the recitals and offer made parents cause the most of them.

"Give your child complete vacation from music, as well as school, during the summer."

With this I would wholly disagree except with children who go away for a vacation. Most do not. For these summer is just the time, since they are not hampered by school work. They even could properly have two half-hour periods of practice during summer—hour over eight or ten years of age. Some children, indeed, should take music lessons only in summer. Because of their school work the nervous strain during the winter may be too great.

NEW SUITES FOR JUNIOR MISS

Season's—Debutante and College Girl Models Cleverly Designed in Styles That Are Versatile

By LISBETH

THERE'S A fine swing and a nice youthful softness in the spring suits for the junior miss. Fabric accent for the season's coats and suits is placed on lightweight materials that drape easily, and in keeping with the dressmaker trend.

Fine woolens such as twills—both corded and plain—wool tweeds and fine men's wear worsteds and flannels, take precedence among these favored.

Nicely adapted to sleek, slim tailoring, these fabrics are practical as well as attractive and smart.

The bright young thing's spring budget is apt to be limited, although that never seems to "cramp her style" as far as her numerous activities go. So this season's debutante and college girl suits have been cleverly designed in styles that are delightfully adaptable and versatile.

Adaptable for Varied Occasions

Jacket and skirt costumes in navy, and numerous grays, reddish browns and lighter spring colors are smartly cut to be worn for any number of occasions. The same suit that is attractive in the country with a sporting wool sweater and sturdy brogues, may be teamed with a candy striped shirtwaist and tailored shoes and be equally appropriate for town wear. For dressier moments it will be youthful and flattering with a sheer, ruffly blouse and formal accessories.

The wisdom of all this is illustrated by the two models shown here. Brief and slightly fitted, these suits are exceptionally flattering to the young figure in square cut types of jacket with notched collars and tucked waists, or they have a gay gaucho atmosphere that is smartly suited to selling. Or they may be collarless, with the new rounded front effect which follows the line of the jacket, after the fashion of the embroidered jacket worn by Spanish maidens.

Boleros Are Tops

Boleros, of course, are tops. The suit shown right is in dark gray men's wear wool flannel, with slightly flared skirt and waist-length bolero. For town wear a striped shirtwaist tucks inside the skirt, but the bolero is sharply squared with high, notched revers and collar edged with self-stitching.

Deep gray also was chosen for the smart little suit at left. This material also is in men's wear wool flannel. The collarless jacket is new this season and this one buttons smartly up the front with a double row of dull gold silver buttons. It has four flapped crescent pockets and a novelty action interest.

The accompanying short-sleeved blouse is white linen, with a childish Peter Pan collar which is worn outside the collarless jacket to give an attractive white accent.

Tuna Fish Is Main Dish Of Easily-Prepared Meal

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Tomato Juice Cheese Crackers
Riced or Mashed Potatoes
Creamed Tuna Fish
Green Salad Buttered Peas
Fruit Sherbet Cookies
Coffee

This is a dinner or supper menu that I planned for some intimate friends recently. The idea was that they call me up some time in which to do it, and so the easily prepared dishes were planned. The tomato juice was put to chill early in the day. The fish was prepared with the juice, a little salt, sugar and paprika, before serving. Crackers were sprinkled with grated cheese and put in the broiler for just a moment to crisp and the cheese to melt. The potatoes cooked very quickly as they were cut into rather small pieces, then they were drained and riced. They might have been mashed with butter, pepper and milk. A rich cream sauce made by adding cream to the broken up a little with a fork and added. The peas were put in seasoning makes a lot of difference in the taste of any creamed dish. A creamed dish may be made over hot water. The peas may be canned or fresh, whichever you can get or afford. Mine were fresh. And in my case I extravagantly bought fresh strawberries and served them with whipped cream and little fancy cookies or "bis-cuits".

Today's Recipes

GREEN SALAD — Shred or cut with scissors green leaf lettuce, add celery cut rather small, a little green onion finely chopped, if desired. Mix with mayonnaise. It is good on finely shredded, crisp cabbage.

Lamb Good in Casserole

"If you are a casserole 'fan,' and find it convenient and economical to cook meat and vegetables together in an oven meal, don't overlook lamb," says Inez B. Wilson, home economist. Lamb shanks are especially suited for this purpose. They have enough meat on them so that one makes a generous individual serving. Neck slices are also suitable for casserole dishes.

For braising, you will find that breast of lamb makes a tasty dish. This cut may be boned and rolled, or a pocket can be cut from the squared-off end and filled with ground shank meat or your favorite bread dressing.

A delicious way to prepare breast of lamb is to have it spread with sausage meat, then rolled and tied into a compact shape. Brown the meat on all sides in hot lard and season with salt and pepper. Add one-half cup of hot water, place on a rack, cover tightly and let simmer either on top of the stove or in a moderate oven (350 F.) until done, about one and one-half hours. Tomato juice used as the liquid adds a distinctive flavor to this dish.

Cut Food Bills With Casserole

Are your food bills high? And your menu ideas low? Serve casserole dishes, advises Adeline Mansfield, of the Better Homes and Gardens Housekeeping Institute. Casserole dishes whet the appetite. They deal capably and tastily with the less expensive cuts of meat, with eggs and fish, subtly combining them with seasoning and spice, and they are easy on both time and dishes.

Start your meal off with broiled grape fruit halves, then serve a casserole dish of savory vegetable pie with a tempting crust. For salad serve mixed greens with hard cooked egg dressing, endive, beet and finish with doughnuts and coffee.

Or start the meal with a casserole dish of scalloped of land with rice, salad of raw carrot and carrot strips, whole wheat bread. For dessert serve grape gelatine with sliced bananas, then coffee.

Another menu is to start the meal with creamed tomato soup. Then serve a hot frankfurter and potato casserole, and scalloped split rolls. For dessert serve prune betty with lemon cookies and coffee.

Built-in Bookshelves

Built-in bookshelves, above or at the sides, make a fire-place doubly attractive to bookworms, points out the Modern Home Institute. Shelves of maple, knotty pine or red cedar are attractive in an informal room, while more elaborate interiors call for more distinguished woods, such as mahogany.

Makes Cereal Popular

To encourage the children to eat cereal, cover the cereal with a sauce made of cooked figs and prunes. No additional sweetening will be needed.

Standardize Children's Attire

Dr. Eleanor Hunt and 70 assistants of the United States bureau of home economics have standardized sizes of children's clothes They measured children from two to fourteen years old in nurseries, playgrounds and schools all over the United States. It took thirty minutes to examine each child.

Love for Boy Conquers Illness

By VIRGINIA LEE . . .

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read in the paper about the young man who was ill and didn't know how to tell his best girl about it. The situation was so like an experience of mine that I couldn't wait to write to give him some advice and encouragement, as I can well imagine the state of mind he is in.

"So to him I say this: Go to another doctor, and perhaps one or two more, and don't give up hope, just as Virginia Lee advised, and tell your girl friend immediately.

"I had a similar experience, except the case was reversed. My boy friend had seemed worried for a long time, and although I knew he loved me, the matter of marriage never was mentioned. Finally one day he came to see me and put the matter to me in a straightforward manner. He told me for several months he had been suffering from an illness from which he was doubtful of ever recovering, and the doctor advised him to give up all thought of marriage, as his wife and children would be subject to contracting his illness. In all fairness he thought I should know and that we should part. He was a terrible blow to me at first, because I loved him dearly. I decided to stand by and help him to fight for our happiness and his health.

"He had the utmost faith in his family doctor, and as he was a man of good reputation, he seemed to doubt his word, but I persuaded him to go to another doctor who told us very much the same thing. Although we were almost ready to give up we visited still another doctor. This man told us he had a serious illness, and although it was a small one, it was worth the try.

"Neither of us had very much money, but with what he had and what I persuaded him to borrow from me, he was away for six months to a new doctor who very well taken care of, and received the right treatment, recommended by the last doctor. He had very little hope that he would get better, and truthfully, when I said goodbye to him I really thought we would never see each other in the world. Mail neither did he, for he tried to get me to give him up and I refused to do so. Then he became discouraged we were, and how black his skies looked.

"But today I am the happiest girl in the world. He is not completely well, but he is well on the way, and will not suffer any 'relapse, as the doctor says, and he intend to marry this June. And his illness was neither a pleasant one, nor a contagious one, as he feared the worst.

"So I cannot help saying, 'Don't give up.' Tell your girl friend. If she loves you, she won't mind. She will only want to help you and see you better. And you need someone to help you.

"A SYMPATHIZER."

I have perhaps told this letter because it is such a splendid, helpful one. Such letters make me feel this little world is worth while, if not only hope the discouraged young man who reads it will read it, but others who may be suffering from a similar kind of trouble. Thank you so much, dear "sympathizer."

Vitamin D Beneficial In Treating Skin Ill

Dr. Clendening Discusses Tests in Which Doses of It Cleared Up Psoriasis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

EVERY SO OFTEN we hear of a new remedy for that very common and troublesome skin disease, psoriasis. One gets to be a little skeptical because the successful treatment of psoriasis is so difficult, but, as the Journal of the American Medical Association says, the recent report of Cedar and Zon is arresting for that very reason.

Treatment is by the use of large doses of Vitamin D. It is quite probable that in many instances our bodily supply of Vitamin D becomes very low. We know from experience with children on the verge of rickets that it is very difficult to keep it up, high. The dosage of Vitamin D used in this treatment is tremendous, as much as 30,000 units a day.

The first case in which it was used was a case of chronic arthritis in which Vitamin D was given in large doses. The patient incidentally had a psoriasis which cleared up as the arthritis improved. Then the arthritis. It was tried after this in 15 cases. Eleven of these patients had complete disappearance of the skin eruptions within six to seven weeks. The psoriasis recurred gradually in two or three months in all but four of the recovered patients. However, the recurring eruptions were not as severe as the original ones, and one case in which the treatment was twice repeated gave an almost ten-week period of obtained complete disappearance again.

Great Care Needed

Great care had to be exercised in order to prevent a dangerous increase in the amount of Vitamin D in the body. Vitamin D, as is known, is capable of increasing the calcium in the blood, so careful studies were carried out in connection with the administration to see that the blood calcium was not greatly increased. No harm, however, appeared to be done in patients by these large doses, and patients who had had very severe and chronic widespread psoriasis, who could get no relief from anything with them, might get considerable benefit from such a treatment.

The treatment is described in Public Health Reports for Nov. 5, 1937.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

J. F.: "Can you tell me what is used to bleach teeth so as to make them look healthy in color?"

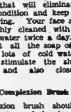
Answer: Bleaches are not naturally white, but are from yellow to grayish in color. The use of a bleach is dangerous. Good teeth require a liberal amount of calcium in the diet, such as is contained in milk and vegetables.

J. H.: "Can large protruding bicuspid teeth be corrected without an operation? Are injections beneficial?"

Answer: Injections have been found valuable in all kinds of periodontal disease. The question of what the proper case is must be left to a physician, experienced in the treatment.

F. N. L.: "Would you kindly let me know whether thyroid or iodine tablets are harmful or what other methods than surgery? What is the best way to apply iodine to tobacco, etc., on the goiter or thyroid gland?"

Answer: There are many different kinds of goiter. Some of them can be cured by the use of iodine; others, the large unsightly colloid goiters, are not cured by medical treatment at all and have to be removed by surgery. The goiters resembling diabetes are sometimes relieved by surgery and sometimes relieved. It is very difficult to make an explanation which is patient can apply to his own person and make a diagnosis. The decision had best be left to a physician.



S. L.: "My arms, knees and feet are covered with rough, red dried pimples, which appear to me to be some form of acne."

Answer: You should never apply creams on the arms, knees or legs. It is much more likely to be psoriasis.

Chronic Fatigue Tells of exhausted Nerves

In health, rest soon overcomes fatigue. When you become chronically tired there is an underlying cause.

Perhaps you cannot rest or sleep because of the irritability of the nerves. Memory and power of attention soon weaken when the nervous system is exhausted. It is difficult to concentrate the mind and the daily task becomes a worry and a burden. Indigestion and sleeplessness ruin your temper, and you become depressed and discouraged.

Whatever may have been the cause there is a way in which to regain health and that is by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Now Nerve Force is created to restore the functions to the bodily machinery and ensure the healthful working of the mental and physical organs.

Treatment Of Facial Blemishes

Suzanne Larsen

Has that "schoolgirl complexion".

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

ARE YOU a Cinderella who sits home with her cats while your sisters are out dancing at the party? And would you be taken for a member of the family if a fairy godmother came along and with a wave of her wand gave you a slick, clear healthy complexion?

Well, don't be downhearted. You may not have a magic wand, but you can roll up your sleeves and be your own fairy godmother. It will take a deal more than a minute and you'll have to stick with the treatment, but you can certainly get rid of two real headaches—an oily skin and blackheads.

The first thing to do is to wash your face and hands with soap and water. Dip a washcloth in hot water, wring it out and put it on your face to steam. This will relax the pores. Relax your face with alcohol. Then get out the blackheads with a sterilized comedone extractor. These can be bought in most drug stores and toilet goods counters. Be sure to sterilize by putting it either in boiling water or by leaving it in alcohol for five minutes. After the blackheads are out sponge your face again with alcohol. This will absolutely prevent any minor infection.

Now that the blackheads are out, the next thing to do is to make a wholesome cream for you to go in for the treatment that will eliminate the oily skin condition and keep them from recurring. Your face should be thoroughly cleaned with soap and warm water twice a day. Be sure to get all the soap off and then take lots of cold water. This will stimulate the sluggish circulation and also close the pores.

Use Complexion Brush

A complexion brush should be used in this type of cleaning three or four times a week. Rub over nose, chin and forehead an extra amount, going more gently when you are in the areas where the skin usually is most oily.

Now for your surface treatment. But don't stop at that. Give your face exercise. Learn to lead a band in helping you toward a clear, line-textured skin. Eat plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables and salads, and avoid eating too many fried foods, cakes, sweets and starches. And remember to drink just lots and lots of water. Get much outdoor exercise as you can. You'll really get to like the routine.

Make a daily habit of proper elimination because internal cleansing is one of the first steps toward having a lovely complexion.

After a week, you'll begin to see a really clear skin. In ten days or by, you'll be getting out that little cosmetic case and giving your sisters a run for their money.

Here's Trim Everyday Frock

By Central Press

EVERYDAY dresses are the salt of fashion. They are what "we" live in, like in, and love.

Smart little touches make these everyday frocks individual and wearable.

The one illustrated here and worn by Betty Grable, Jackie Coogan's bride, is in black crepe. It has a tuck pleat kick in the center of the skirt, which uses red and blue crepe in combination. Pretty these kick pleats!

The neckline is high—the preferred fashion in this type of dress. Three little pockets on either side of the bodice are piped in red, blue and gold.

The sleeves are long, with that broad-shouldered look so essential to the up-to-the-minute frock. A narrow self-fabric belt which knots in front, and buttons on the cuffs are other little details.

Style Whimsies

Printed crepe pajamas with full trousers and low-cut decolletes are worn by long chiffon coats in one color of the print.

* * *

Suede trimmings are used on some of the time coats, which are shown in both straight and swing silhouette. Often the jacket is made of suede.

Printed dotted Swiss dresses will impart a fresh, cool appearance to the dainty miss during the warm summer days.

* * *

In line with the times is the bolero in silver for for wear atop the bolero suit.

* * *

White lingerie glimpses are seen with black for navy town frocks which open at the front.

Flyers Defeat Petes 6 to 3 In Wildest Hockey Match Seen in This City in Years

Fist Fights Break Out in Every Section of The Arena—Police Busy Quelling Fist Fights Among Spectators

AIRMEN CLASSY

Backcheck Consistently And Outskated Petes All Evening —Every Goal Scored in Contest Clearly Earned —Referee Hurt When Hit by Stick

In one of the wildest hockey melees seen in the local Arena in many a moon a rampaging squad of R.C.A.F. pucksters met the fast skating Peterboro sextette at their own game last night and took the third edition of the five-game playoff series by a 6-3 score to gain a firm foothold on the local Senior "B" puck playoff berth.

With the speed and excitement of the game prying the lid off, pent-up feelings on the part of both players and fans, the game developed into a regular bedlam after the first period as excited fans took up the cudgels. Hard feelings cropping up in the game saw players given the gate and the reaction was seen in the crowded galleries as fist fights broke out like freckles on a blond. Excitement grew intense as fists flew with more or less reckless abandon. Practically every seating section had its main bout. The boys were out for blood and they got it. Police were called everywhere in an effort to curb the disturbance. Finally order was restored and the boys and gals resumed normalcy as the game got underway.

Swift, Sustained Action

Swift sustained action on the part of both squads featured the game from start to finish. With a lightning fast brand of hockey that had the twenty five hundred fans in an uproar.

Indicative of the fine brand of the pastime dished up, is the fact that every one of the nine goals scored resulted from brilliant individual plays or the culmination of speedy executed combination sorties. The Flyers swept into an early lead in the initial canto when after the pellet twice before the Petes narrowed it down to one. The Airmen maintained their swiftly moving offensive in the second and tallied another brace of markers to a single return from the now desperate Petes. Two goals came early from the sticks of the Flyers in the third heetic period with the Clubbers busy boys being held to a single counter by the winners.

With the members of both squads turning it on and the crowd yelling for scoring blood, it remained for the dashing Lecompte, Flyer centre to open the scoring as he swept in on Harding with a beautiful solo effort, that stood the crowd on its feet. Ernie McCosley followed in his best effort of the season found the twine for two more before the fans got set and the game while Halward who also turned in a reel-lester performance on the boards notched two to boost his average. Wiggett finished the night off for a single to end the scoring as far as the Flyers were concerned.

McDougall Standout

"Shrimp" McDougall, diminutive centre, starred the spotlight for the Petes, flashing an effort that reached him as a dangerous threat all night with Vitarelli and Kingdon a close second. Calladine, victory centre of the Petes visitors, had too many Flyer checks on his tail to get set and worked with a slight marker. Starr flashed the red light for the visitors in the third term.

Doug Brennan, ex-Ranger, was not the steadying influence, that has been his habit in former appearances and although he battled with more or less consistency was light on the soft scoring sheet by the speedy Flyer backliners. Macmillan, Rose with occasional bursts of speed but was usually turned aside by the Flyer defence or stalled out by the opposing front lines. Peterborough defence had difficulty in holding off the darting Flyer forwards, who matched speed for speed with their fleet opponents.

Accurate shooting generally on the part of both squads was lacking as some fine work on the part of both Clubbers and Airmen while both defences showed an inclination to let the forwards do a big part of the defensive work. Neither remained stood out with any sensational protective efforts held.

But, although handicapped by an injured shoulder, and looming up as a moral bulwark on the Flyer defence stood big Johnny Lalonde. The husky defenceman did not live up to his usual offensive game but his presence and poise undoubtedly proved confidence into the attacking lines up front. Lalonde deserves a lot of credit.

The Play

The game was delayed 30 minutes awaiting the 300 Peterboro supporters, who steamed into the city aboard a special train. Tension was particularly keen as the pastime got under way on a lightning-like sheet of ice. Both squads were checking throughout at the outset. So strenuously were the squads back-checking, they were using their sticks on the net until Lecompte broke away and beat the entire Peterboro team to knock-hand the rubber behind Harding for the game's initial goal, a sensational individual effort. The going was getting rough as Wiggett broke away, circled the Petes' net and passed out to Halward, who promptly picked the upper left hand corner for the Flyers' second goal. Personal feelings crept into the game, when McCosley picked up Tompkins's rebound to poke the rubber past Gibson to make the count 3-0. Calladine broke away and when in the clear, shot over the Flyer net. There was much personal contact as the period ended with Cowley scoring just after the period ended.

Long Range Barrage

The Flyers opened the second period with a long range barrage but the Petes rallied to keep the count close. Eric McCosley broke away and when close in passed to Wiggett, who scored with ease as McCosley drew Barnes out of the play. Kingdon and Brennan were banished behind the net and were given a rest as Ernie McCosley was banished for tripping Vitarelli. With the Flyers on the Petes held on tenaciously and protected by working back into the box. Barnes was sent off for tripping as Houston commenced to bear down. The Petes' defence was finally deceived in an attempt to pull down the lead. Gibson's error paved the way for Starr's at close range. Cowley broke away from the defence and with a clear field and over a perfect pass to Halward, who flipped the rubber over the prostrate Harding to make the count 3-1 for the Flyers. Partridge and Vitarelli tangled and were banished, when a general free-for-all broke out in the penalty box with fans and players mixing in the hostilities. Fights were breaking out all over the arena as Calladine broke away and beat the entire Flyer team to score. Free for all broke out in the stands as patrons took sides and commenced to swing fists. Fire and Provincial Police restored order.

Petes Gang Gibson

The Petes moved five forward and exchanged passes before checking the Flyers on the defensive. Ernie McCosley broke Legris' pass and went in on Harding with a clear run and he score with ease. In desperation the Petes became discouraged and Lecombe went through to miss the net. Brennan with a three goal lead the Flyers were playing a cagey defensive game in protection. Williamson was penalized but no damage resulted as the Flyers protected. Cowley went off for tripping and the Petes moved five up. Fouls broke out again as Vitarelli and Lecompte were chased and Starr scored from Calladine from the face-off. Legris and Brennan came to blows and went off leaving three men apiece. McCosley broke away, drew Harding out and passed to Cowley, who scored just before the end of the period.

THREE CLUBS IN A.L. STRENGTHEN

Cleveland, St. Louis And Chicago Add to Their Rosters

(By Eld Feder, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)— It doesn't figure to interest much in the continuation of the Yankees' pennant pasthover, but winter dealing in diamond flesh should make the coming American League wars more interesting for the home-town rooters in Chicago, St. Louis and Cleveland.

These three clubs have strengthened in spots where they most needed it a year ago. The Browns, in particular, have come up with 10 players and have sacrificed only four. Most of the newcomers should help, but even if they don't there's some consolation in recalling that the Browns can't be much worse than last year.

Manager Rollie Hemsley can be made to see the light, Cleveland's Indians should be tough contenders with his first rate backstopping. Rollicking Rollie's never lanced hitting has been timely. What's more, with the Indians, a pennant contender in any class, and Hal Trosky receiving should increase the effectiveness of a "top drawer" pitching staff.

You can't get Jimmy Dykes to admit it, but he's going to admit it, but the White Sox came out with a better club than they showed Sunday. Although they gave up a 15-to-20 game lead to the Yankees yesterday, they can hope for 15 games from Gerry Walker's bat and a lot more defensive ability at third base.

Won't be Missed

In fact, a capable bat corner performer to succeed Dykes, and an outfielder with explosives in his bat might have made the difference between second and third place for the Sox a year ago. And the receipt of Ted Kennedy, with 46 wins and 35 losses in four big league years, along with an earned run average somewhere around 4.60 hasn't exactly been a Christy Mathewson. At the same time the 28-year-old southpaw has won 20 or more 75 or more runs batted in during any season, and he's pitched over 200 innings. The other players the White Sox obtained from Detroit, Dixie Walker—won't be missed at Comiskey Field.

Dixie and Browns gave up Joe Vosmik a capable clouter; Hemsley, a back catcher; Bonura, Billy Knickerbocker, and pitcher Elon Hogsett. In return, they obtained Buck Newsom, who can win 15 games any year, even in the poorer years; Jimmy Bucher Mills, one of the better outfield rookies in baseball; Sullivan, who probably can fit better into the Brownie set-up than he did in Cleveland; Don Heffner, one of the fastest infielders afloat, and such other candidates as shortstop Red Kress, comebacking after a bad batting season in the minors; Beverly Beck, pitcher and Vito Tamulis, who may prove some help in answering the pitcher problem.

GOODYEARS WIN FROM SAILORS IN SENIOR A. FINALS

Score is 3-0 in First Game With Many Fights Noted

CHATHAM WINS

Kingston City Wins Group Title From Kingston Garrison

If anybody ever doubted the power of the Chatham Goodyears in Canada, the Ontario Hockey Association's senior "A" group, they probably knew better today after the 3-0 drubbing they gave Port Colborne Sailors last night in the opening game of a three-of-five series for the group championship.

In a game punctured with penalties, roughness and fights, Goodyear goalie Ballard, keeping at gaining the league title a decided jolt and seriously injuring his hand in the course of the game that carried them through eleven games without defeat early in the season.

With a strong defence, the Trenton gang, playing without the benefit of scheduled play, prevented Sailors from threatening with any formidable line of forwards set up a three-goal lead with scored in the second and third periods.

Scoreless First Period.

Sailors had the edge in goals Goodyears scoreless in the first period, but Don Metz sent in the first marker of the contest and big Red Heron added two goals in the third, a wild session that saw 30 minutes penalties handed out.

Eight of the third period penalties went to players who joined a free-for-all. The fight broke out near the end of the game after Heron and Metz had finished their scoring and Sailors' Ken Doherty, playing-coach could separate the scathing mass of players who had joined in the fracas.

Meanwhile, the Chatham Maroons were defeating Kitchener Greenshirts 5-2 in the second game of the senior "B" inter-group series. In winning the game, Maroons gave notice the senior "B" champions this year would be no push-over when they meet the senior "A" winners in inter-section playoffs. Greenshirts, who ended up in the senior "A" group's last place, entered the senior "B" playdowns by eliminating the Brantford Ranges, the fourth place senior "A" team.

In other O.H.A. playoff fixtures last night, St. Catharines won the intermediate "A" group championship by defeating Grimsby 8-2 and taking the group playoff in straight with scores of 10-3 and 8-2. Guelph became Collingwood Shipbuilders 4-1 to win the junior "B" group title.

Guelph Indians went two games all in the series from the powerful Stratford Midgets for the big five junior "A" group championship by scores of 3-2 and 5-3 last night. Other fixtures last night saw the Trenton Golden Hawks defeat Peterboro 6-3 in senior "B" playdowns; Collingwood win from Owen Sound; Orillia and Kenora City defeat Kingston Garrison 4-3 in intermediate "A" playdowns; and Kingston Frontenac 8-2 and Bolton tie Georgetown 2-2 in intermediate "B" playdowns; Port Hope win from Whitby 3-1 and Penetanguishene tie Barrie Colts in junior "B" games.

Hollywood, Calif.: Nick Peters, 193, Estonia, Tex., stopped Curtis Hall, Dundalk, 138, Windsor, Ont., (6).

Chicago: Henry Armstrong, 132 1-4, Los Angeles, world feather-weight champion, stopped Freddy Rightmire, 130, Sioux City, Iowa, (10).

Philadelphia: Frank Zamarie, 176, Orange, N.J., knocked out Paul Donofrio, 174, Philadelphia (1).

Peterboro series is slated to be played in Peterboro on Monday night. We understand the body of the late William Rorke is expected to arrive in Belleville either Tuesday or Wednesday and the Belleville fixture will be called off at that time, which will see the Arena closed on Wednesday. The Peterboro team agreed to postpone a possible fifth game until next Friday in Belleville under the circumstances.

Kingston beat the Garrison last night and will meet the Belleville Redmen in the first round of the intermediate O.H.A. playdowns.

Billie Hughes informed us yesterday he had officially signed Walter Gerow Jr. to a Blackhawk contract. The fact that the youngest Walter Gerow has signature to the contract does not mean to say he is actually a member of the Blackhawks. As Mr. Hughes explained the matter to us, Walt will go to Chicago and try out with the Hawks. If he makes the grade and believes he would like to remain in that company, then the matter of terms of money will be discussed and another contract entered into. If, perchance, he fails or does not feel inclined to make Chicago he is free to return home without having jeopardized his amateur standing in the least. The N.H.L.-C.A.H.A. breach does not operate under this agreement and a much different aspect on the whole amateur-professional relationship soon.

Coach Pie Beach's Albert College senior interscholastic squad landed to a two-all draw with the Marmora High School aristocrats in the first senior C.O.S.S.A. game played in the district in the northern village. The teams will play the second game of a home and home series in Belleville on Monday night and will commence on even terms. Albert has its best senior squad of pucksters in years and is looking for a victory.

It must be gratifying to the officers and members of the Quinte Skating Club to see so many favorable comments in reference to their recent Winter Ice Show at Belleville. The local speedy skating club has doubtless laid the foundation for an annual event that should prove one of the most popular entertainments to be looked forward to each succeeding year. The efforts of the junior members of the club were all worthy of honorable mention indeed and Judy Goeli, Avelyn Smith, Barbara Leslie, "Effie" Ridley, Georgia Scott as well as solo skating of Marjorie Smith's kindergarten skaters, most of whom are below school age, were a fitting finale to exhibition of skating presented by Miss Mabel Hunt, assisted by Miss Margaret Manahan of the Trenton Skating Club, should prove incentive to those who have designs to have them strive towards greater heights in the realm of skating as recreation. There is nothing we believe more quite as beneficial as the art of figure and fancy skating. The Quinte Skating Club is a young organization and has a brilliant future. If they continue to advance with degrees of caution.

The business of a shoemaker is of great antiquity. Romans wore cork soles to guard their feet from water, especially in winter.

Week-End Make Believe

by

Yale Kenny

A Playful Week End Home Party Becomes a Gay Adventurous Romance — With a Fascinating Touch of Mystery . . .

Kay Borden crossed over to the bulletin board and found on the hook directly beneath her name a small square of paper on which had been typewritten:

Agency Appointment for Mr. Lee Masters Reception Room 5B —C. A. Mc.

And below this rather cryptic message was a penciled notation: "C! me pa. — C. L. S."

Close at hand two girls were talking simultaneously over phones their voices persuasively pitched as they dealt with client and prospective client in the interests of the Gorman agency and the innumerable models who were registered there. Behind them a noisy "p" typewriter contributed to the general hubbub a constant click-a-tick — tick and tack-a-tack-tack with an occasional "Ding!" as a small element of variety. From a nearby corridor another point one might easily have mistaken it for a busy broker's office.

Kay read the memorandum again and glanced at her wrist watch. Eight forty-five. Then walking over to the switchboard operator she asked:

"C. J. in?"

"Yeah," the girl replied. "And he wants to see you. Told me to be sure you had a date with him as soon as you checked in this morning."

Kay said, 'All right. Is he free now?"

"Yeah. In his office ...."

Leaving the switchboard, Kay continued along a carpeted strip until she came to a door with an opaque glass panel in the lower left hand corner of which was lettered, MR. C. J. GORMAN — PERSONNEL. Below that, PRIVATE. Disregarding the dignity of the title, President, and the solid admonition of the word, Private, she turned the knob of the door without knocking and stepped into the office beyond. Found it a den. In the center of the room a florid faced man was poring over a mass of letters. He glanced up quickly at the sound of the opening door.

The analogy between the Gorman agency and a broker's office was closer than one might suppose. For while brokers might deal in stocks and bonds, or various other commodities, C. J. Gorman dealt in humans. Girls and boys, men and women registered with him. They furnished him with photographs and full physical descriptions of themselves. He in turn, based calculations upon this distributed among advertising agents manufacturers, artists and photographers. When members of any of these groups needed a model to pose for photographs which would be used as illustrations in magazine or in accompanying advertising copy, they looked through the catalogue, selected the type they needed and phoned the Gorman agency for an appointment with the model in question.

Kay Borden had been registered at the agency for almost two years. She found the work more diversified — more interesting than at the office job would have been. And it paid her much better too, but of course it had more expense attached to it. For instance, if an advertiser needed a photograph of a girl in a riding habit, Kay had to be on hand at the appointed time with a riding habit. Her wardrobe list brief had to include the whole gamut of costumes from summery sweaters dresses and bathing suits to skiing and camping outfits. And the expense of this wardrobe had to be borne personally out of her earnings.

Now she greeted the head of the agency cheerily.

"Good morning, C. J. Want to see me?"

He nodded. "Yes I do," he replied. "Come in, Kay."

She smiled at his invitation. "I'm already in," she pointed out. Then, "What sort of appointment have you made for me this morning?"

That's just what I wanted to see you about," he told her.

"And who is Mr. Lee Masters?"

Gorman pushed his long jaw and squinted up at the ceiling. "A young man in his early twenties, I'd say," he replied. "He seems to have a good deal of personality and had things pretty much his own way all his life. Returned recently from a trip to Africa. I checked up his references very carefully. They are quite in order in every respect. His greatest trouble, I imagine is that he has more money than he knows what to do with —"

"I can picture many things than that," Kay declared with a smile. "But the assignment?"

"Frankly I don't know," he admitted. "He said he preferred to explain everything to you. If it appeals to you, take it. Otherwise don't feel the slightest hesitancy about turning him down. We're not obligated in any way. But he has money enough to stand a high tariff."

Kay said, "I'll remember that." She glanced at her wrist watch again. Its minute hand had moved closer to the ten; of her appointment. "I'll have to run along C. J. Mr. Lee Masters cannot be kept waiting.

Gorman grinned. "Right ..... Good luck, Kay."

Instead of going immediately into Room 5B, Kay stepped into the powder room to make a hurried check of her appearance. Standing before the long mirror there she took pains to see herself with the critical eye of a client. Of course she was unable to do precisely that because, being inherently honest, she had no delusions. She could reach via that she was slim and smart looking in her printed flat crepe dress and that otherwise she would pass muster.

What she failed to appraise correctly was her small, delicately chiseled oval of a face that was quite capable of making masculine hearts take dizzy nose-dives — her long-lashed brown eyes —and her provocative lips that looked as if they were perpetually shaped to say, "Please," in a soft appealing way.

However, satisfied with her inspection she turned from the mirror, left the room and proceeded along the line of small rooms known as "Reception Rooms" of the agency, and paused before the one that was numbered 5B.

Just as Kay's hand was raised to turn the knob of the door she had a premonition that she was about to take a momentous step — a step which would influence much of her future life. But then the apparent absurdity of this thought caused her to shrug it away. This engagement, she assured herself, would prove of no more consequence than any of the others that had gone before it.

Reception room 5B was furnished with a small replica of the "conference table' found in the directors' room in many offices and six chairs which were grouped around it. At the head of the table was seated a young man who was holding himself in a rather stiff, strained attitude as if the ordeal of waiting had left its effect upon his nerves. Before him on the table was an ash tray partially filled with the butts of half smoked cigarets. As Kay stepped into the room he sprang to his feet and looked expectantly at her.

He started to speak but checked himself before any word issued from his lips. Then his eyes moved — certainly, it seemed to her, with admiration, along her face to her neck, her shoulders, her arms her hands. Finally he nodded approvingly.

"You're Miss —Borden, aren't you?- he said.

Kay replied "Yes. And you're Mr. Masters?"

He nodded again and hastened to draw out and hold in readiness for her the chair to his right. After Kay had sat down he resumed his former place at the head of the table.

"I suppose you're wondering what I want of you- he said with an embarrassed laugh.

"Naturally."

He hesitated as if he found it difficult to proceed. Finally he blurted "Well, it's like this. I'd like you to be engaged to me."

Kay swallowed hard. For a moment she was tempted to laugh in his face, but, resisting the impulse she repeated faintly, "Engaged?"

"Oh I don't mean really engaged," he told her impatiently, "I checked the days off on the fingers of his left hand as if he hoped that the visual evidence of them would make them seem of little importance in her eyes.

Kay traced a design on the glass top of the table with her fingertip "you know," she said with a doubtful smile, "I'm afraid I don't."

"I suppose it is," he granted her. "But it's quite bona fide, I assure you. The job is yours if you want it. I've furnished Mr. Gorman with the proper references —"

Kay waved aside this detail with an impatient movement of her hand. "Please don't bother to explain shortly. "I wouldn't have been here listening to you if that hadn't been understood up to Mr. Gorman's usual demands."

"Well, there you are," Masters said persuasively. "Why should you hesitate any further that's all."

"There are angles ..... Kay said. "Don't suppose you give me some of the details before I try to make up my mind definitely."

"Well in the first place, Tony Dean Jr., built a new house in Roggerport. By the way, he advised as an afterthought, "do you know Tony Dean?"

Kay shook her head uncertainly. "I'm afraid not."

"A prince of a fellow," Masters declared. "You might know him as Anthony L. Dean. He's a prominent of the Independent Broadcasting System.

"I've heard of him of course," Kay said.

"Good. Well, Tony invited me up to his place for the week-end." Masters went on. "It's a gala week-end party. The only other guests, I understand, will be Tony's sister and her husband and probably an extra girl. Tony's brother-in-law is Jack Stone who was radio's most popular entertainer last month in a contest held by a radio magazine, so Tony tells me. Jack writes, directs and has the leading role in a Friday night serial, "The Family Circle."

"I know," Kay said quickly. "I never miss it. Sometimes it's the only help it."

"Well, they'll all be in Roggerport when we get there. I say we because I'd like to take you along as my mate before flances."

"Ah that brings us back to the starting point." Kay said, "Do you realize how it would involve me?"

Masters saw her point instantly. "Oh, let's understand each other, please. There is to be nothing sentimental or personal about our arrangement. Everything is to be quite matter of fact."

Kay had to admit that he seemed serious and sincere enough. She said, "Don't you think all this is a little extraordinary?"

"I admit it is most sound crazy," Masters granted. "But don't forget that my references have been investigated. Also we're doing about ten-thirty in the GALLEY THREE STORY on- morning. If everything is not entirely to your liking, you may leave on the evening train."

Kay said doubtfully, "But what will Mr. Dean think when you appear suddenly with a fiancee?"

"There won't be anything sudden about it," Lee declared. "In fact he expects you to be with me"

Chapter 2

"But you didn't expect me until Friday," Lenoire said again and again when Lee Masters said his host expected Kay to be with him almost as his fiancee.

"I don't expect you precisely. But he does expect me to have my fiancee along."

"Well I was engaged to an English girl and he suggested that I bring her down. That, of course put me in a terrible jam."

"Why didn't you try to get out of it some other way?", Kay suggested. "You might have refused to go."

The young man's face darkened "I'm sorry," he said stiffly, "but that's strictly a personal matter."

"Oh, see here, now," Kay protested. "That wasn't an idle question. Don't think that I ought to know the reason behind the proposed masquerade if I am to be involved?"

"Not at all," he replied. "You agree to go there simply as part of a business engagement. I'll furnish you with all the information you need to help you carry off your part successfully. Beyond that, the details which concern me personally are, to be quite frank none of your business."

"I don't agree with you," Kay said indignantly. "What you call 'personal details' have a direct bearing on the whole matter. I think I ought to know as much as possible about all the angles if I am to do the job properly."

Masters flushed —and Kay realized instantly that he was confronted with an extremely sensitive person with whom she must deal. Also that the only possible reason you might give for wanting the information he to satisfy your curiosity. You are to be my fiancee, as far as anyone else will know, and a man doesn't always tell his fiances about previous unfortunate love —"

He paused abruptly, conscious of the fact that he had told her exactly what she wanted to know and angry with himself for having done so.

Kay said instantly, "Just what I thought. You're also sore. Dean's sister?"

"Quite determination!" Masters exclaimed. Then grudgingly, "Eleanor is at least three years my senior. She knows her precisely all my life without having been in love with her and if it is unlikely that I'll start at this late date."

"That it's probably true," Kay agreed.

"Wrong again," Lee announced "Dot Leeds is another member of the 'Family Circle' cast. And she is such a peat that I couldn't picture anyone failing in love with her."

"Another possibility," Kay went on undaunted, " is that the lady in question is a neighbor —"

Masters raised his head protestingly. "All right, all right," he said irritably, "I might as well give up. She is Tony's next door neighbor" Kay said, "and you expect to make her want to marry you by this trick?"

Masters moved his hand over the glass top of the table in a circular motion as if he purposely automatic action of which he apparently had no conscious knowledge. His thoughts seemed to be a million miles away At length, however, he said dismally "She was married eight months ago while I was in Africa. I heard about it only upon my return several weeks ago."

Kay bit her lip. When she spoke contrition was in her voice. "I'm sorry, really," she told him. "Naturally you don't feel like —"

"Of course you didn't," he said reassuringly, "and it doesn't matter in the least. It's just as well. You were bound to hear about it sometime over the week-end, I suppose."

"But why did you tell Mr. Dean you were engaged?" Kay questioned.

"Face. That's as good a name for it as any," Masters replied. "Her letters had stopped coming to me but I thought they had merely gone astray. Then when told me about her marriage it was quite a shock, I can tell you. I don't know what crazy impulse prompted me to do it, but I blurted out that I had become engaged too, after that there was no retracting the statement. He pumped as if struck by a new thought. Then he pronounced her name critically, "Kay Borden. I don't know whether that's English or not but it sounds all right."

My ancestors were English and Irish," Kay told him.

"Well, that's one point cleared up," he said with satisfaction.

Kay ventured, "I wouldn't consider going unless I were able to take a chaperon along with me."

"That's quite satisfactory," he informed her. "All I have to do is phone Tony and have him prepare another room. Have you anyone in mind?"

Kay said, "Why, yes. We could probably get Miss Linda Fawcett. She's registered here as a model, too—does middle-aged ladies. But of course that would increase the expense and—"

"Hang the expense!" Masters exclaimed. "You contact Miss Fawcett and we'll definitely count her in. Now wait, regard to clothes, buy anything you need and charge it to me. Remember, I'd like you to make a very good appearance. I have accounts in all the principal stores and naturally I want to protect you against any extra expense that you might have to go to."

"I don't need a thing," she interrupted him. "My wardrobe is quite complete. It has to be to this kind of work. But I haven't agreed to take the assignment yet, you know."

Lee said, "Listen it will only last three days— Friday, Saturday and Sunday. After that you'll be free. I don't know how much you're ordinarily charge for an assignment of this sort, but I'm willing to pay you and Miss Fawcett double your regular fee."

Kay exclaimed. "But it all sounds so wild and —she made a futile gesture in the air with her hands — "and mysterious."

There's nothing mysterious about it," Lee Masters denied forcefully. "Except for the deception that you'll have to practice, it will be simply a week-end visit. If you want to earn some extra money easily and pleasantly, the position is yours."

Kay sighed. "All right,' she said resignedly. "It's ill, but I cannot admit it's one of the most fantastic things I've ever done."

It is absurd to contend that two can live as cheaply as one, of course, but for a girl in a big city has lightened her personal expenses by taking a roommate.

For the reason Kay Borden shared her living quarters with Linda Fawcell. Although there was a span of more than twenty years between their respective a-es and because of this fact their views and habits were essentially different on many scores nevertheless they were drawn together by one common objective —economy. Women who think alike usually live well as the house in which they were located were strikingly unpretentious, but they managed to live comparatively low. This economical arrangement provided Kay with a larger margin of her earnings for her wardrobe necessities, To Miss Linda Fawcell it was a godsend.

No one knew better than Kay that of late agency calls for Miss Fawcell had been few and far apart. The trend in advertising methods had essentially befriended models. Photography is inexpensive and illustrations which were using photographs to illustrate the highly desirable qualities of their tooth pastes or stockings of cured hams, or electric refrigerators, or automobiles, or what not. And they all wanted pretty girls to tell a sales talk accompanied by dazzling smiles about the laudable features of their individual products.

Of course, occasionally there arose the need of a mother's aunt to stand beside the young creature and that was where Linda Fawcell got her assignments Considerably amazing, however, the demand was for youth and beauty In consequence Kay's stock had risen and Linda's had declined.

Kay realized that had Linda not been able to share her living expenses with another person she probably would have been forced to seek even less desirable quarters than those which she presently occupied. But Linda had a flair for in grace of being able to look upon her misfortunes philosophically, even to joke about them Declaring on one occasion that although Kay could not be called her bread and butter, she was at least one of them —either the bread or the butter.

Immediately after her appointment with Lee Masters, Kay hurried home to tell Linda the news of their joint week-end assignment in her room-mate. She found Linda in dust cap and apron giving their modest room a thorough cleaning As Kay entered, Linda paused momentarily in her task of vigorously thrive- a carpet sweeper over their thread-bare Axminster and looked thoughtfully at the girl.

"You're home early," she remarked. "Anything wrong? You didn't have any engagement today?"

"The only thing I had was an appointment with a prospective client," Kay said.

"Nothing posted on the bulletin board for me?" Linda inquired, loudly.

Kay replied, "Nothing on the bulletin board for you, but—"

"But there's bound to be something for me tomorrow," Linda interrupted her sarcastically. "I know I've been dragging that out before, how many times haven't I heard that one before?"

Linda returned away to resume her household duties. Kay smiled knowing well that nothing would gladden the older woman's heart more. "This time it happens to be the truth," she said.

Linda stopped abruptly and faced her roommate again. "What's that?" she demanded. "It's not the first time it happens to be the truth," Kay repeated.

Linda asked, "You mean —an engagement?"

"Yes, darling, an engagement." "Doing what?- Linda wanted to know.

"Being my aunt," Kay said, "in the presence of combined disappointment and consternation aroused Linda's face. "Addie-sticks!" she exclaimed, giving the broom a savage determined push. "For a moment I thought you were serious."

Kay returned, "I am serious. Stop making that noise and listen to me. It's a real engagement. For three days starting tomorrow, provided you can accompany me."

"Want it!" Linda cried. "Want it! Glory be! Tell me the details, honey; I can hardly wait."

RECOGNITION

ally in Mediterranean affairs, Delbos indicated.

Shortly before he began his address, it became known France already was entering upon commercial negotiations with Italy to restore normal business as it existed before hostilities were precipitated during the Italo-Ethiopian campaign.

Authoritative sources said the question of France's obligations to help defend Czechoslovakia against attack by Germany also was discussed.

"France's engagements with regard to Czechoslovakia will be faithfully fulfilled."

He said the government "still has the confidence of the majority of Nations."

Still Believes in League

"Certain countries are abandoning it," he said, "but I still believe in it."

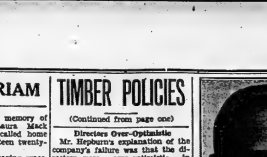
Delbos said there were absolutely no differences between him and Mr. Chamberlain." Then he paid high tribute to the resignation "nobility" of Anthony Eden, who resigned as Foreign Secretary of Great Britain.

"Our solidarity with Great Britain is the most solid barrier against the threat of war," Delbos said. "The recent crisis has not unchanged it."

Expressing his confidence that international tension, Prime Minister Chamberlain's efforts to strengthen national defenses, Delbos continued, "would be followed by a relaxing of tension in material patrimony, has a special patrimony to defend: respect for obligations and the conciousness of European solidarity."

Will Not Isolate

Were France to forget this, he said, she would be condemned in the near future.



Remarking that the government resolutely rejects such a policy," the Foreign Minister said. "France must remain in the first rank of peoples seeking to organize peace."

He warned that French influence will depend upon internal unity, which he urged as the best means of preventing war.

Delbos touched only slightly on the Mediterranean situation, saying: "Austrian independence is guaranteed by the signature of European peace," he said. "The presence of a minority in Austria (the Nazis) does justify foreign interference."

"France will watch and see that the independence of Spain is respected," he said, because it is a question of right for peoples to fix their own destiny, as well as a security for our frontiers."

He added that France would hold scrupulously to a policy of non-intervention in Spain.

TIMBER POLICIES

Directors Over-Optimistic

Mr. Hepburn's explanation of the company's failure was that the directors were over-optimistic in their hopes that the pulp and paper company's engineers had underestimated cash requirements. After they decided to enlarge their buildings, the business recession that developed in the United States resulted unfavorably on the pulp industry.

Both the Premier and Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, predicted a special shareholders' meeting in Montreal Monday would "iron out" the difficulties. Mr. Heenan predicted the company would be refinanced and would "be one of the best going concerns in Northern Ontario."

Mr. Hepburn said he would not have been surprised at such "propaganda" in "Bush', Toronto weekly gossip sheet which recently ceased publication, but he did not think men worthy of the Star.

"This propaganda emanated from the acting Mayor of Port Arthur who, I understand, is a defeated Conservative candidate (in last October's general election) and is associated with the Pulp & Paper people," he said.

Mr. Macaulay replied "Hush" was the governments strongest supporter" in the election and was "filled with pages of propaganda." He would like to know how much the government paid for it and said the opposition would find out how much it was later in the session.

Mr. Macaulay asked the question "if this was such a good company as the Premier claimed, why didn't the directors call on B. G. Sweezey and Company?" Mr. Macaulay asked. The prospectus said they would underwrite it. Why is the question of the meeting not being held in Montreal next week instead of having the underwriters called upon?"

Mr. Macaulay asked why the secretary-treasurer of the firm, who took something "instead of allowing financial magnates of St. James' (Montreal) to strangle this enterprise."

Mr. Hepburn said the government could not look into the financing of such a company.

Among new bills introduced yesterday were: Bill to amend Public Health Act, Minister of Health, bringing training of all nurses in the province under government control; Bill to amend Mothers' Allowances Act, Minister, Another Health Department bill; amendment of the word "hospital" by any institution not licensed under the Private Hospital Act.

A third bill by the Health Minister extends provisions of the Relief of War Veterans' Act. Burial of indigent veterans of the South African wars of the air services as well as military and naval veterans and, in addition, widows of the latter instead of only the Great War.

BELIEVES

He urged Britain to "stand by our conception of international order, without which there can be no lasting peace".

Nor must we, for one instant, weaken in our own faith in parliamentary government and individual liberty. These are the things that count."

Reiterates His Views

"Tonight, next week, next afternoon, I can say to you with absolute clear conscience, the words upon that decision. I am more than ever convinced it was right.

I should be false to myself this evening had I taken any other course.

He paid tribute to Viscount Cranborne who retires from Dominion Secretary with him. "I can never adequately express what his counsel, his patience, his courage, his unswerving sense of duty, have meant to me," he said, adding the prediction that "Lord Cranborne is destined to play a larger part in national affairs in the years that lie ahead."

Bay of Quinte To be Mecca of Skaters Sunday

There will be skating on the Bay tomorrow! A score of skating fans will greet the announcement with a thrill of pleasure for owing to cooperation between Alderman Glen, Thompson, chairman of the city public works and officials of the Belleville Kinsmen Club, the 24th year of fifteen miles of ice will be cleared on that part of the bay south of the Belleville Boathouse.

Under the direction of City Engineer Gordon Mott, a grader and truck swung into action this afternoon clearing that part of the bay between the mouth of the river and the Belleville Boathouse.

Kirkwood who was in Belleville on business, told of the attempt made by newspapers and syndicates to get the picture of Hitler, finally sold it for a handsome price, as afterwards it was proved that I had taken the only photo of Hitler at the time of falling."

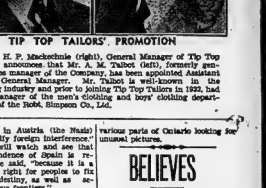
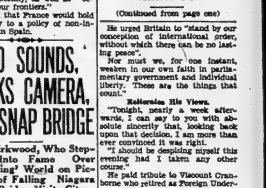
W. R. Kirkwood, Who Stepped Into Fame Over 'Scooping' World on Picture of Falling Niagara Falls Bridge Visits City

The story of how the love of an amateur photographer for his camera enabled him to "scoop" professional cameramen from all parts of the country, when he secured the only picture obtained of the Niagara Falls bridge disaster, at Niagara Falls, a few weeks ago, was unfolded here yesterday by W. R. Kirkwood, Simcoe amateur who the "man behind the lens" who gained his sinister as the huge structure crashed into the ice-choked gorge of the Niagara River. "There was little warning," Mr. Kirkwood said, " and I was very fortunate to be in the vicinity and get the picture. Standing on the Canadian side looking at the falls, I had sighted my camera on a portion of the approach to the bridge on the opposite side, and heard sharp staccato reports, say about four of these in quick succession. Then came a tearing rending sound as steel girders, slowly twisting, began falling, and I snapped the shutter or my Leeo camera three times, and prayed.



"The bridge crashed so quickly that no one had an opportunity to get an actual "shot" of the fall. Newspaper men and photographers were taking to gaze at wreckage. It has been issued by engineers that there was little question that the bridge going for some time as the water had receded some ten inches and the ice jam broke and was relieved."



"As we afterwards found out," Mr. Kirkwood, "this statement was issued to keep the people away from the danger zone."

Kirkwood who was in Belleville on business, told of the attempt made by newspapers and syndicates to get the picture of Hitler, finally sold it for a handsome price, as afterwards it was proved that I had taken the only photo of Hitler at the time of falling."

Another amateur photographer of repute, Kirkwood carries three cameras with him at all times. He has photographed nearly every outstanding event of the past year, and thanks to his camera, has lost business permits, and wandering around various parts of Ontario looking for unusual pictures.

General Foods Increase Publication Advertising

1938 Plans Call For Greater Use of Newspapers to Promote Products

Toronto, February 26—Long one of Canada's largest users of advertising space in newspapers and magazines, General Foods Limited are planning a substantial increase in lineage for these media in 1938, according to R. E. McIntosh, Vice-President.

"In completing our advertising plans for 1938 we are again recognizing the proven worth of newspapers and magazines in bringing the merits of our products to the attention of the public," said Mr. McIntosh. Maxwell House Coffee, Swans Down Cake Flour, Calumet Baking Powder, Jello-o Ice Cream Powder, Postum, Grape-Nuts, Post's Bran Flakes, Instant Postum, Minute Tapioca and Sanka Coffee are among the General Foods products which will receive wider advertising in publications during 1938.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Feb. 26—(CP)—Trading in Hard Rock and MacLeod-Cockshutt continued in heavy volume and the prices were pushed along to new highs on the Toronto market today. More gains than losses were boarded in the gold group and the tone of the Industrials also was steady while the base metals lost some ground.

MacLeod-Cockshutt sold up to 2.65 for a gain of 55 cents and then closed off only slightly from the top. Hard Rock touched 2.36 and closed around 2.30 for a net gain of 20 cents. The close was up narrowly for Little Long Lac, Macassa, Canadian Malartic, Preston-Arditas, Sladen, Dchi and Oro Plata.

International Nickel and Consolidated Smelters held to the up side while the close was down moderately for Noranda, Pend Oreille, Beattie and Sudbury Basin. Of the silvers, Mining Corporation was the weakest with a drop of about 10 cents.

Price adjustments were small in the senior oils, the foods, banks and beverages. Bell Telephone dropped a point and the Great Lakes Paper issues weakened up to a point.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Feb. 26—With inspiring news lacking for either buyers or sellers, stock market leaders generally were left to drift in varying directions during today's brief session.

While minor declines were in the majority, a few utilities and specialties managed to make fair gains for modest advances. Numerous issues were unchanged in dealings that barely got above the ticket tape in motion.

Steels marked time as little change was predicted in next week's mill operations.

Transfers approximated 350,000 shares.

The International Telephone was a comparatively lively performer on the upside most of the time, reflecting talk of better earnings and hopes the new European line-up may encourage a settlement of the war in Spain where the company has important interests.

Goodrich dipped on the disclosure of a sizeable loss last year against a profit of better than $7,900,000 in 1936. Armour of Illinois fell to a new year's low following deferment of dividends on the common and preferred.

In the realm of issues were Western Union, Consolidated Edison, North American, Woolworth, International Harvester, Dome, Alaska Juneau, Allied Chemical, Chesapeake and Ohio, Standard Oil of N.J., Allis Chalmers, Union Carbide and Deere.

Inclined to retreat were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, Dupont, American Can, Montgomery Ward, Anaconda, National Supply, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Texas Corp., Johns-Manville, U.S. Rubber, J. I. Case and Oliver Farm.

MARKET COMMENT

The action of recent sessions has indicated that the market could move ahead on a moderate amount of buying. The prolonged decline of 1937 completely eliminated the weak accounts with the result that there has been no pressure for the sale of stocks on minor setbacks. The heartening feature of the last few months has been the fact that despite considerable publicity in the press and elsewhere about the business "recession", stocks have held within a narrow range.

The impression has been gained, therefore, that if stocks will not go down on bad news, they are a purchase for the reason that they will advance on the first signs of favorable news. Many traders have acquired equities on this assumption, as it is understood that the next few months will witness a noticeable improvement in business due to spring influences.

Brazilian Traction has been a little better marketwise of late, although the issue is still close to its recent low. Conditions in Brazil are considered to be entirely satisfactory and earnings of the utility are still satisfactory, although somewhat under a year ago. Even assuming that the directors pay only half in dividends what was distributed last year, the stock returns a yield of nearly 5 per cent. On a $1.00 basis, Brazilian Traction's yield is about nine per cent.

Produce Prices On Montreal Market

Montreal, Feb. 26. — Fresh egg prices continued to decline, new receipts in the city being 2 cents per dozen lower than on Thursday.

Small lots to the retail trade were put down another cent per dozen. Monday's quotations prevailed on the butter market. Poultry, cheese, and poultry ruled steady. Receipts were limited at the Board of Trade as 1,311 cases of eggs, 17 boxes of butter and 300 boxes of cheese, excluding truck arrivals.

There were no sales at the Canadian Produce Exchange. Spot butter was quoted there at the close at 29¾ to 34¾c.

Butter arrives from England this week-end to help meet the present domestic shortage.

True Market Value of a Hog

The many market quotations of hog prices is, to say the least, confusing. The price that is of most interest to the farmers of the Belleville district is the price paid at the shipping station, which is the basis price, plus the grade.

Any farmer who accepts a flat price in lieu of the grade may not be receiving the true market value of his hogs. In such a transaction, the drover is assuming the responsibility of grading the hogs in a matter of dollars and cents in such a way that, when he sells the hogs on the graded basis, which is the only way he can sell them, he will not be the loser.

Farmers are urged to sell their hogs on the graded basis because it is the only way that they can receive the full value for the product which they have produced.

The official grades are posted at the following stations—Belleville, Trenton, Foxboro, Frankford, Stirling, Tweed, Shannonville, and Marysville, and the drovers will be there to pay grade on each shipping day.

Some good lots of hogs for the week of February 21, 1938, are as follows:

Name	Shipping Station	Grade No. A.	B.	C. Pres.

NOTED ARTISTS IN CONCERT RECITAL AT COLLEGIATE

Three of Canada's outstanding concert artists are to appear here on March 1, in a concert presented by the Canadian Concert Association of this city. This unique concert will bring to Belleville, Gertrude Huntly, pianist, Adolph Koldofsky, violinist and Gwendolyn Williams, who will accompany Mr. Koldofsky.

Miss Huntly, who is of Empire Loyalist stock, began her musical studies at a very early age, and from the beginning impressed those who heard her with her extraordinary musical powers and her immense capacity for study. While in Paris, Miss Huntly numbered among her friends such artists as Godowsky, Rosenthal and Paderewsky, and their influence has left a definite impress upon her work as a pianist. She is a member of the faculty of Alma College.

Mr. Koldofsky's professional career has taken him to many parts of Europe. Born in London of Russian parents, he has studied under such world famous teachers as Sevcik in Czechoslovakia and Eugene Ysaye in Belgium. At one time, he was concert master of the Smetana Philharmonic Orchestra, and often appeared with the organization as soloist.

For some time he headed the Warsaw String Quartette, considered by many to be one of the finest in the world at that time. After making many tours with the quartette, Mr. Koldofsky engaged in concert work, and directed a series of important musical broadcasts over Radio in Canada he was a member of the Hambourg Trio and concert master to the de Kreo Little Symphony. More recently he has appeared in many cities as a recitalist, and a great artist with many of the Dominion's Symphony Orchestras.

Gwendolyn Williams, who is to accompany Mr. Koldofsky at the concert, has recently returned from a trip through western Canada, where she appeared in that capacity. Her work as an accompanist with many of the finest artists in Canada has made her one of the best known and skilful exponents of that difficult art. The concert which has been arranged for this trio of artists should be one of the most unusual and diversified that have been heard here in some time.

MOTORISTS FIND SHELTER IN FARMHOUSES

Heavy Snowfall Blocks Highways in W. Ontario Cars Are Left on Roads

Farmers' Homes Crowded With Snowbound Travellers

SUB-ZERO COLD

Cars Stalled by Melting Snow Seeping Through Engine Hood

Dundalk, Ont., Feb. 28—(CP)—Scores of motorists were forced to spend last night in farm houses when a snow storm blocked the Owen Sound-Toronto highway to traffic.

In below-zero weather, motorists and their passengers were caught on the snow-filled roads and sought shelter with farm people whose homes were crowded today.

Today the motorists emerged from their emergency retreats and began the business of digging out. Many of those marooned overnight were Owen Sound hockey fans who witnessed Saturday night's National Hockey League game in Toronto.

Many of them left Toronto Sunday bound for home unaware of the Dundalk district storm which raged south from Flesherton. Owen Sound was unaffected by the storm.

Snow Barriers

Majority of the cars stalled either from impassable snow barriers or ignition trouble caused by melting snow which seeped through engine hoods. Majority of the drivers then sought shelter in the nearest farm houses. A few managed to push through, not arriving in Owen Sound until early this morning.

One of the stranded travellers said how the wind was so strong that car doors were almost blown off when opened. Many frozen ears were suffered in the sub-zero temperatures which accompanied the gale.

Government dredges worked all night and expected to have all district roads cleared some time today.

Sudden Cold Snap

(By The Canadian Press)

Zero temperatures prevailed throughout Ontario today as blizzards and gales which brought the sudden cold snap from the far north blew themselves out of the Province.

An usually rapid transfer of air from above Chesterfield Inlet to the south-west was blamed for the cold, which struck a day before it was expected. Temperatures were expected to climb slowly.

Winds in the Welland area were strong enough to lift a section of iron roofing 40 by 30 feet, off the Crowland Coal Company's building. The roofing landed on the other side of the street, snapping a hydro pole and narrowly missing three boys. Hydro service was interrupted for a short time.

Conditions of Roads

Despite snow in many sections of the Province, most roads were in good shape. Exceptions were in the Parry Sound district where some main highways were heavy with drifted snow and at Lindsay where side roads were filled.

The continued cold packed fresh snow in the power lines, often by forcing motor cars to a snail's pace for safety.

Toll of the gales was light, being confined mainly to power interruptions, minor accidents and cancellation of bus service in northern districts. Loss to the Crowland Coal Company building was the lone property damage reported.

Girl Shot to Death

Weyburn, Sask., Feb. 28—(CP)—Fourteen-year-old Monica Geiger was shot to death yesterday on her father's farm in the Cedoux district 40 miles southeast of Regina, and Joseph Rot, 22-year-old hired hand on the Geiger farm, was held for questioning by Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Monica was reported shot once with a 22 calibre rifle and twice with a 12 gauge shotgun.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

A high air mass! Air masses can not, of course, be recognized by the layman, but the weather forecaster identifies them by their temperature and humidity characteristics. He also must take them into account in predicting the weather. They are defined as bodies of air which are approximately homogeneous horizontally; that is, dividing the whole mass into horizontal layers, it has been found that temperature and humidity are alike throughout each layer. The single sphere, then, is definitely an "air mass", but a high-pressure area is known to have no vertical currents and therefore retains the layer-cake formation forever, whereas the surface air masses are comparatively short-lived.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 28—(CP)—Synopsis—A fairly deep disturbance is centred this morning over the New England coast and a pronounced cold wave lies over the far northwest and covers Ontario and Quebec. Light to moderate winds from the Lakes and mid. to moderate districts from the Great Lakes eastward while in the Maritime Provinces the winds have been fair and mild.

Lake Superior—Fair with rising temperature, become a little colder again.

Manitoba—Fair and mild. Tuesday, partly cloudy; probably scattered snowflurries and becoming somewhat colder in northern and eastern districts.

Saskatchewan—Fair and mild. Tuesday, mostly fair; somewhat colder in eastern districts.

Alberta—Fair and mild today and Tuesday.

G-MEN IN QUEST OF NEW SUSPECTS IN U. S. SPY RING

No More Statements to be Made Until Case Completed

THEIR IN CUSTODY

Federal Agents Broke Case When One Arrested Confessed

New York, Feb. 28—(AP)— By plane and train, G-Men fanned out across the country today in quest of a score or more new suspects in a highly-organized spy ring which pried into United States army and navy secrets for cash from an unnamed European power.

Reed Vetterli, head of the New York office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced that the organization, apparently fast-acting ramifications of the spy ring which broke last week with the arrest of two soldiers and a red-haired German master sergeant, received "sealed" instructions from Vetterli.

The destinations of the G-Men setting out to track down other accomplices were of the combine, could not be ascertained.

Wren's Diamond Case

"I cannot discuss the case now," Vetterli told reporters, "no statement of any kind will be made until the case is completed."

LEGITIMACY OF FIVE CHILDREN UNDER ARGUMENT

Millar Will "Stork Derby") Moves to Close in Court

DECISIONS QUOTED

Toronto, Feb. 28—(CP)—Technical argument as to the legitimacy of the five children born to Mrs. Pauline Mae Clarke after she separated from her husband consumed Mr. Justice W. E. Middleton today as the Millar will "stork derby" moved to a close.

If Mrs. Clarke succeeds in having the children declared legitimate she will share with four or five other mothers the $1,000,000 estate left by Mrs. Vance Millar to the Toronto mother bearing the most children in the district by the time Oct. 31, 1936.

The difficulty in Mrs. Clarke's case apparently was that she had indicated Harold H. Madill as the father in the five birth certificates.

J. B. Cartwright, her counsel, presented a series of court decisions on the point. The presumption of legitimacy of a child born of wedlock could only be rebutted if it were proven access by the husband was impossible, he said, quoting a former decision by Mr. Justice Middleton.

Mr. Cartwright contended there was "not a scrap of evidence of non-access" between Mrs. Clarke and her husband. The only attempt to

Thousand Marble-Players Expected in Sussex Village

350th Annual Championships to be Held For World's Best

LESS PLAYING SEEN

Tinsley Green, Eng., Feb. 28—(CP) —"This quaint old Sussex village, famous for its marbles centre of the world, is getting excited about once more playing host to the world's best knucklers.

The 350th annual "world" championships—which usually only attract English players—will be staged here April 15 and the keen eyes and expert fingers of local players will be in trim to keep the title they have been winning for years.

There is another reason why the championship centre is all a-flutter, After last year's matches the ancient Greyhound inn, headquarters of the tourney, was pulled down. Many fans thought the end of the Greyhound was the death of high class marbles competition. But a new Greyhound has been erected and it sports three marble beds whereas its predecessor had only one.

Last year 500 competitors took part and from present indications nearly that many will be included this year.

Stan Spooner, winner of the singles title for the last 50 years, says he's in better form than ever.

There's dissension however, "The new beds are fine," declared one old timer, "but for all that marbles are not what they used to be. I remember the time when people here used to play all round the year. Nowadays they only wake up when the championship is in sight."

Nazi Uprising Checked By Alert Austrian Army

Swift Reinforcement of Gras Garrison Frustrated Scheme to Seize Control of City And Many Rooms Of Vienna—Two-day Armistice Arranged—Radio Report Given

Graz, Austria, Feb. 28—(AP)—An incipient Nazi uprising was smothered today by the alert Austrian army.

Swift reinforcement of the Graz garrison frustrated an enthusiastic Nazi scheme to seize control of the city and march on Vienna.

This Styrian metropolis, a hotbed of National Socialism, was turned into an armed camp as the government forcibly expressed its determination to maintain peace and order.

Sixteen tanks rolled into the city, squadrons of aircraft concentrated at Thalerhof airport, ready for takeoff. Artillery was replaced in commanding positions and machine guns covered highways leading into the city. The infantry garrison was strengthened.

Armistice Arranged

In the face of this stern government move, the Nazis temporarily abandoned their plans and announced a "two-day armistice" but the government was not impressed. During the "armistice" period, Nazi leaders said they would negotiate for more freedom of action.

Armin Dardieu, one of the Nazi leaders, declared plans had been made for 50,000 men to start the march on Vienna from Graz. He said they were to have been joined by 8,000 from Leoben, 3,000 from Zeltweg, 2,000 from Lienz and smaller detachments from villages throughout the province of Styria.

But the government's stern measure threw cold water on the march, at least temporarily, foiling the Nazi control plans in the city. No more than two persons were permitted to stand together on the streets. Schools were closed because authorities feared instructors were entering class rooms with "Heil Hitler" greetings to pupils.

Radio Reports Given

The government, at five-minute intervals, gave the people radio reports on developments. It appeared the Nazis are hoping for some concessions which will enable them to make a national demonstration which proportions that Vienna, which has not been touched to any great extent by the waves of anti-government sweeping the provinces, will be influenced.

The Nazi invited Arthur Seyss-Inquart, newly-appointed Minister of the Interior, to come to Graz. They promised to show him 60,000 uniformed Nazis. Seyss-Inquart was appointed two weeks ago with the approval of Chancellor Hitler.

In Vienna, it was said officials had not decided whether to send the Interior Minister "by reason with the Nazis." Chancellor von Schuschnigg, while not alarmed by the Graz uprising, dictated to Fatherland Front leaders he regarded it serious.

"There are difficult times ahead," he said "We must keep our nerves and observe rigid discipline."

DISCOUNT STORY TOLD BY PILOT

Don't Think British Passenger Plane Was Fired on by Japanese

London, Feb. 28 (C.P. Cable) Imperial Airways today discounted a report one of its passenger planes had been fired upon by Japanese warships off Hong Kong.

A Shanghai dispatch to Reuter's said the airliner involved was Dolphinus. The incident occurred Friday.

Imperial Airways pointed out the Dolphinus was flying at an altitude of 12,000 feet, out of range of firing. It was reported the machine was shortly flew over an area in which Chinese fighting was waged between Japanese and Chinese and that the pilot might have heard the firing before.

Shanghai, Feb. 28 (C.P.-Havas)—Japanese warships fired on a British Imperial Airways seaplane flying from Bangkok, Siam, to Hong Kong, with passengers and mail aboard, reports reaching here today said The plane was not hit.

Accumulation of Leaking Gas Is Given as Cause

Port Hope, Ont., Feb. 28—(CP)—Accumulation of leaking gas in a pit in a laboratory cellar was blamed today for causing an explosion in the Port Hope radium-refining plant of the Eldorado Gold Mines Company, Financial Post said in a story released undetermined.

No one was hurt in the explosion shortly before midnight last night and fire did not break out. The south-west corner of the laboratory was blown out and the roof of the building was lifted several feet, damaging its upper courses and window and one resident was knocked to the floor.

What caused the gas to explode was not known. A leak in a main apparently caused an accumulation in a pit in the floor of the room of the main laboratory where chemicals occurred. Marcel Pothon, chief chemist, said "comparatively slight" damage was done. Valuable radium solutions stored in the room were unharmed.

UNITED STATES' DEFENCE BILL MOUNTS STEADILY

Ultimately Will Need 20,000 Sailors to Augment 105,000 Enlisted

INCREASE GRADUALLY

Expect Bill to Mount to 1,200,000,000 Annually

Washington, Feb. 28—(AP)—The United States' annual defence bill, informed officials predicted today, will mount inevitably in the next decade to $1,200,000,000 or more.

This would be double the $611,314,000 allotted in 1932, when the Washington arms limitation treaty first was signed, but would be well under the $1,744,000,000 spent in peak year.

Exclusive of the increases which President Roosevelt has requested, prospective outlays for the army and navy this year aggregate about $1,000,000,000.

The chief factor in the future calculations is the $1,100,000,000 initially estimated as the cost of increasing the fleet's tonnage by 20 per cent, augmenting the naval aviation force by 900 planes.

This would be spread over the six or eight years which the House Naval Committee has been told would be required to complete the program.

Other factors include increased cost of manning, repairing and refilling a larger fleet, and $18,000,000 for army anti-aircraft guns, ammunition and other purposes.

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP)—Prospect of the "Leaders' Day" debate Tuesday in which Leopold Macaulay, Conservative House Leader, and Premier Hepburn will speak, overshadowed today's session of the Ontario Legislature which promised to be a routine affair with the Assembly after week-end adjournment for a session of considering various bills.

Skulls Indians' Perhaps Tutelos' Says Prof. Grant

Brantford, Ont., Feb. 28—(CP)— Professor J. G. D. Grant, head of the Department of Anatomy at the University of Toronto, said today that examination of the skulls and bones found near His Majesty's chapel of the Mohawk, on the borders of this city last week, were "definitely" those of Indians and were characteristic of those found all over the country. He expressed interest in the theory advanced that the remains are those of members of the Tutelo tribe incorporated with the Six Nations.

Nearly the whole tribe, or virtually the whole tribe, were wiped out in a cholera or ship fever epidemic which swept part of the country less than 100 years ago. The Tutelo tribe was the only potential possibility of them being the remains of the children or adherents of the Algonkian warlike tribe the warlike Iroquois exterminated nearly 300 years ago.

BLIZZARD ROARS IN FROM NORTH WITH SLEET, SNOW

At Times Visibility Was Extremely Poor on Highways

DROP 50 DEGREES

Soft Wet Snow Fell Practically All Day Sunday

The March Lion roared a foreboding overture yesterday as Jack Frosts' legions, sweeping out of the north in the van of a raging blizzard converted an almost Spring-like atmosphere into a typical mid-winter setting over the week-end with plummeting temperatures hitting a sub-zero mark and driving snow filled highways and byways into white drifts.

Coming with almost startling suddenness, on the heels of a mild storm, that was productive of wet, slushy snowfall, the blizzard roared in from the north in the early midevening. Temperatures dropped rapidly and the heavy snowfall turned to driving particles of ice as wind velocity increased. A 50 degree drop was registered on city thermometers over a 24-hour period.

Pedestrians caught unawares against the driving snow that practically obliterated vision, with hard particles of driving sleet forcing many to shield their faces from the storm. By six o'clock Sunday night front streets and other thoroughfares presented a deserted appearance with clouds of snow driving directly south in the teeth of the high winds.

On the highways automobiles were stalled as owners endeavored battling the driving drifts that whirled about them. Sidecreads and loose roads rumbled on and were were filling to a dangerous level by darkness.

Workers Heavily Clad

Office shop and factory workers heavily clad to fight a freezing wind early today as they went to their various places of employment. Slippery footing caused by frozen sleet added a light menace to the air and afforded dangerous hazards to pedestrians in crossing streets and lanes. Residents crossing the Collegiate campus exercised more than ordinary care as reactionary, for sloped gave little warning of hidden dangers to unwary pedestrians.

Prince Edward farmers in the city and district were busily engaged with with sidecreads more or less blocked.

Fellows Transport

Alfred Fellows building near Wellington, was forced to follow a heavy transport to the city Sunday morning in order to travel through heavy drifts that formed at various parts of the highway. Slippery surfaces of the highways last night due was freezing that converted the roads previous to the blizzard, forced several cars in the ditch along the Kingston-Bridge-Belleville route, to transport driver stated.

Driving snow causing poor visibility forced highway traffic to a minimum of speed, drivers of vehicles in some cases transport men, were held up by the blizzard, that reached its peak in the late evening.

FIRE DAMAGES C.N.R. ICEHOUSE

Firemen Handicapped by Exploding Fusees And Torpedoes

Battling for two hours on Saturday against a stubborn blaze, that ignited the east end of a frame building used as an icehouse, the property of the Canadian National Railway, located near the northend station, firemen succeeded in saving the west end of the building after considerable damage had been done by the flames.

Believed to have originated from overheated stoveipes in a room in the east end of the building used as a storeroom and clothing room for company employees, the flames swept rapidly through the wooden structure. Fire was bursting through the roof of the two-story building when the firemen arrived at the scene after a belated alarm.

Concentrating their efforts to the blazing east end, firemen were handicapped by exploding fuses and torpedoes housed in that part of the building. A combustible formed by the application of water to cans of carbonide and ignited by the flame, provided additional handicaps. Stoves and clothing were destroyed in the blaze.

Fire crept into partitions and sawdust in the west end of the building used as an icehouse, but prompt action on the part of a fire department soon had those minor blazes under control.

A refrigerator car standing on the track-spur alongside the building was scorched before it was drawn to safety by a yard engine and crew.

Considerable damage was done to the roof over the east end of the building while the east end containing the store-rooms is a total loss. The amount of damage was not ascertained.

Toronto, Feb. 28—Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Gaull were called to Ottawa owing to the death and funeral of her father, the late Rev. Dr. A. O. Cameron, who was minister of the Bank Street Presbyterian church in 1837, when he resigned owing to ill health. The funeral service was held in Ottawa on Wednesday.

41 CANDIDATES ARE CONFIRMED

Bishop Lyons Delivers Impressive Sermon at Church Church

Emphasizing the importance of the confidences of God in the Confirmation service, Bishop Lyons, declined your lives to God to live in Him", the St. Rev. John Lyons, M.A., D.D., Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, administered the rite of Confirmation, the Laying on of Hands at Christ Church last evening. Forty-one candidates were presented by Rev'd G. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church, in the presence of a congregation that filled the church to overflowing. The service was impressive throughout.

His Lordship selected a well-chosen text for his inspiring sermon, before a confirmation congregation, choosing the 24th chapter of Exodus, 11th verse—"And they beheld the nobles of the children of Israel he laid not his hand: also they saw God and did eat and drink".

After reviewing his text of the Old Testament, His Lordship vividly compared present beliefs with those of ancient times, the scene of which too practical to believe the Ten Commandments were written by the finger of God. Why, in our very life God writes in the presence of temptation makes himself known through all we observe in the world—the heavens declare His glory, the fail to grasp the expressions of the Christian spirit, unless it is through calamity or suffering, God is in the commonplace things of life, His supernatural power is seen in every reality in His exemplifications of Edward Eikind stated the bishop as he be dicated man's conceptions of God should be like that of an artist's, which is not in keeping.

"God provides for us, but all must work and labor, mentally. If is the person with a purpose and vision who really succeeds in this world" he said as he concluded with an appeal to keep the Church on a high plane in spite of the times and you have something in the church to look up to and reverence. Let us make it our effort to come nearer to God.

At the conclusion of the service, the choir, under choral and organ music was presented under the direction of Mrs. Charles Hall, organist and choirmaster at Christ Church. The processional was rendered by the Christ Church choir, with Master Jack Willshire, treble and Mr. A. E. Handel, bass soloist. Mr. Maytree presented the organ numbers. The program was as follows:

Symphony from Solomon—G. F. Handel.

"Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring"—Bach, arranged by Dr. Wood.

SUMMER HOMES ON BAY ENTERED

Some Books Taken From Cottage Owned by Harold Legate

Provincial Police investigated reported breakins at two summer cottages in the vicinity of Belleville over the week end, one on the shores of the Bay of Quinte, east of Belleville, Provincial Constable A. A. Starr apprehended two "teen aged lads emerging from a summer cottage, the property of Harold Legate of this city. The lads were found in possession of some books admittedly taken from the cottage.

Constable Starr escorted the lads into the presence of Mr. Legate and subsequently allowed them their liberty following promises being given by the lads for subsequent good behaviour. Upon the departure Mr. Legate made the two lads a gift of two books, which they accepted.

On Sunday Provincial Police accompanied by Constable Harry V. Wills to his summer cottage along the Trent Road where robbers had gained entrance on Saturday. Investigations revealed nothing of value had been stolen from the premises, it was announced.

The burglars had forced a pane of glass in the front door and reached inside the building to unlock the same. Here also, provisions are believed to have been responsible.

Habitues of Police Court Disappointed

Anxiously, a filled court room sat awaiting the conventional Monday morning Police Court in Belleville, today. The bell in the City Hall turret tolled ten o'clock, yet no signs or appearance of court officials were in evidence. The spectators assumed a rather anxious appearance as 10.10 a.m. appeared on the face of the City Hall clock and still no signs of court proceedings. Suddenly the slow methodical steps of persons ascending the court room steps were heard, silence predominated throughout the room as necks stretched and all eyes peered to watch the prisoners' entrance to the court. Suddenly Provincial Constable Everett Smith's round smiling face appeared.

"Well, I guess you can depart in peace, there will be no court until tomorrow morning", informed the officer and the large audience drew long breaths in unison and departed their various ways.

At the request of His Worship, Magistrate R. J. Butler K.C., today's local police court was postponed until Tuesday morning, as His Worship was absent from the city today.

Week-End Make Believe

A Playful Week End House Party Becomes a Gay Adventurous Romance — With a Fascinating Touch of Mystery . . .

SYNOPSIS

One morning Kay Borden finds her name posted on the bulletin board at Gorman's agency for models for an appointment with Mr. Leo Masters. Kay thinks him a quite presentable young man who makes a most unusual request. He asks her to go with him to a week-end house party. For, he says, his host, Tony Dean, expects him to arrive with his fiancee.

Kay Borden accepts an odd assignment one morning at the models' agency where she is registered. She agrees to go with Leo Masters as his fiancee to a week-end house party at Tony Dean's. Masters explains that he is really in love with a neighbor of Tony's, June, who had married another man while Masters was in Africa. He wants to make her jealous by producing Kay as his fiancee. Kay asks her roommate, Linda Forwell to go with her as her aunt and chaperone.

Chapter 2

And so Kay told Linda about Leo Masters, and about the week-end masquerade he had proposed. Miss Forwell's enthusiasm for a change to wine as Kay's recital progressed. In the end, she was silent for several moments.

Then she asked, "And you say of his references were all right?"

"Very much all right." Kay assured her, "C. J. looked them up and it was offered to me. You should have known that!"

Linda's doubts May have been entertained during the night about the meeting of the venture dispelled the following morning when, advancing across the station waiting room of the railway station, she saw Leo Masters waiting for her from the information desk as he had promised. Kay fell a little heavier and sure of herself isn't going to work out the way this fine morning in her dark tailored suit and her winged hat which was set on her head at a snaky provocative angle. Masters gave a glance of thorough appreciation as she approached him, walking confidently several paces ahead of the red-cap who was carrying two heavy traveling bags and a hat box; all of the latest design.

As she reached him Kay smiled brightly and said, "My word! I see you are arrived ahead of me. —I late?"

As if he hesitated to appear too enthusiastic about her his manner underwent an abrupt change, his warmth in his eyes gave way to manifest coolness and when he spoke his voice had a brusque, defensive tone to it.

"No, not late," he said rather shortly. "Where is your 'aunt'?"

"She couldn't get away—at the moment," Kay replied. "She started out ahead of me this morning, but have time to stop at the agency and see if there was any mail for her — and there she is now!"

Linda Forwell's baggage was more conservative than Kay's as indeed it should have been, both in quantity and quality. And she might be in harmony with the role she had adopted for the whole, but she questioned the picture of a middle-aged lady of refinement in the clothes had just taken note of retiring gentility about them, just the right appearance for the companion present that was not quite so prosperous as to be overdressed.

Masters looking at her admiringly, "Perfect!" he exclaimed. "Perfect in every detail."

Kay said sweetly, "Aunty dear, this is Mr. Masters who is going to your darling little niece."

"And you are Miss Forwell," Masters added gallantly, playing up the situation.

Linda nodded her head emphatically. "I was afraid you'd be like that," she replied.

Masters colored slightly, not with embarrassment but as if he intended to be complimentary. "Like what?" he asked.

"Charming and — never mind!" she ended shortly. "Come and get your mail, Kay, if there is any. I'll look after the baggage."

Kay and the porter-bearers said to Kay, "You know, I've been thinking over what you told me about it being necessary for you to know all the facts if you are to help me, and I've got this thing successfully . . . Would you mind if I take you a little more about it?"

"Not at all," Kay replied instantly. "It probably will make you feel better to get it off your mind, anyway."

Masters stared out the window for some moments before speaking again. Then he said, "Well to begin with, her name was Vivian Forwell. He's dropped now. Her husband is Stephen Pierson, financier and banker. He's filthy with money that she wanted, she could have married me just as well."

"Most women marry for love, regardless of what the cynics say," Kay declared. "Must you look beyond the usual reason to explain her actions?"

"I'll say you must!" Leo exclaimed. "Evidently you don't know Pierson. Listen June is somewhere around my own age—maybe several months younger. I'm twenty-two. Pierson is in the neighborhood of sixty. Under ordinary circumstances you would say the basis for that marriage was love?"

"Twenty-two and sixty! Kay didn't answer him but sending a hidden motive for that marriage. "Was she engaged to you?"

"She certainly engaged, he confessed, "Not that it was my fault that she changed her mind. You see I had known her ever since we had been kids and I had known Tony Dean, although he was five years our senior. I thought she understood that I cared for her. If I had as much as suspected that this part of the world would have happened in my absence I never would have taken that trip to Africa. And then, besides, there wasn't the slightest intimation of it in her letters up to the time that they stopped coming."

Kay said, "My advice is to cast her completely out of your mind. From what you've told me I doubt if she's worth grieving over."

But Leo replied quickly, "You've got her all wrong. She isn't the type you might imagine, just from hearing what she did. She's—well, sweet. Quiet mannered, appealing and normally as square as a die in everything that she does."

He slumped into a moody silence from which Kay finally routed him.

"Before we get to Roggeport," she said, "I think we ought to decide upon this detail."

Masters looked at her in surprise. "I thought everything was decided," he replied.

"Not by any means," she declared. "There are certain dangerous possibilities in connection with this affair. All along we've apparently been working on the assumption that after week-end there'll be no kick-back from my harmless little masquerade. But a month from now you might meet Mr. Dean or Mr. Stone or even Mrs. Pierson. And they are almost certain t easy to you. "How is your fiancee, Leo?" and when is that wedding going to come off? You won't be able to tell them the truth, you know. You won't be able to say, 'Oh, forgot it, I wasn't really engaged. That was only a little week-end make —believe! You couldn't possibly tell them that."

"I realize that," Lee replied. "And I've provided for it."

"Really?" she inquired. "Would you mind telling me how you propose to dispose of Kay Borden, of the girl I'm supposed to be?"

"Gladly," he said. "In the first place, there was another problem that you didn't even mention. As I said before, I've known June and Tony nearly all my life. They either know or have heard of practically all the girls that I know. When I introduce you to them I would not want them to think that I became engaged to the first un-with the affair, was only made before. But she could not restrain the gasp of delight that rose unbidden to her lips. Regardless of the fashion which surrounded it, there was nothing fictitious about the ring itself.

Eagerly she slipped it upon the third finger of her left hand — and held it high above her head so that the light from the solitary window make it sparkle brightly.

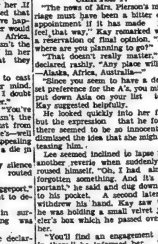
"You think of everything. don't you?" she murmured. "And some of them are the nicest things imaginable!"

The influx of prominent wealthy residents in Roggeport had been stretched over a comparatively long period of years. Hence, the town and its environs had seen able to keep pace, in civic developments, with its progress as a fashionable suburb of the great and the near great. It boasted, and not without justification, of its excellent roads, of the finest golf course within several hundred miles, of many new public buildings, including a combination county jail, court house and police headquarters, of an architecturally beautiful country club and a new road skirting that new club, a delight to the city fathers.

Lee Masters, Kay Borden and Miss Linda Forwell were among the first to descend from the train as it pulled into this station and came to a stop. A youngish man of medium height, with prematurely gray hair and the slim agile body of an athlete, he was typical of Masters almost instantly and shouted at him.

"Hello, you young mug! he called. "Glad to see you! Welcome to Roggeport."

Masters said under his breath to Kay, "From now on we're sweethearts. Don't forget it." Then he started the man who had hailed him. They came together with a rush, and Tony Dean wrapped his arms around Masters in a bear hug that would have worried any less heavily designed greeting. Masters, however, was prepared for an introduction to his companions.



He said, "This gray-haired, bewhiskered looking old gentleman is my fiancee's aunt, Miss Forwell. Imagine her being the mother of girls!"

Tony Dean bowed his acknowledgement of the introduction to Linda.

"And this, Tony," Masters added, "is the lucky young woman who has promised to be my wife. Kay Borden, the future Deleise."

Kay was a bit stiff formality about Tony Dean. "Hello, Kay", he said, "glad to see you." Then apparently struck by a sudden thought, he added, "I'll tell you later."

Kay laughed over the limousine she saw that Horace was smiling at her from the window and Masters was probably never further from a person's

DR. MAX BERNHARD SAMMETT

War Hero Murdered

Was Dr. Max Bernhard Sammett, 44, slain Jewish political refugee from Germany, active in some intrigue involving the Nazi regime to be blamed for his exile? That's what Chicago police attempt to discover as they investigate his death from bullet wounds. Dr. Sammett, a German war hero, was studying at the University of Illinois Dental school.

Kay replied in a frightened whisper, "Okay, Chick!"

The incident in actual time had not consumed more than a second or two. Yet Kay felt as if it had lasted throughout an eternity. A sense of guilt made her fear that the eyes of everyone in the station were upon her. But a hasty glance about her proved that this fear had no foundation in fact.

After the man passed them Linda whispered to Kay, "Who is he?"

Kay replied under her breath, "I'll tell you later."

Looking toward the limousine she we'll wait for them just the same," she said. "Cousins will be back with the bags in practically no time."

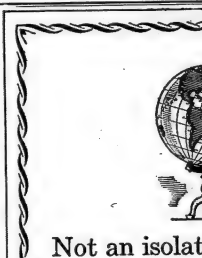
Kay was weak with apprehension, but she entered the car with the other two and waited until the men came. All three returned at the same time. Cousins stowed the bags in front and climbed into the driver's seat. He seemed to be taking particular care not to glance in the back of the car where Kay was seated.

Tony said "I hate to inconvenience all of you, but if you don't mind, I'd like to stop for a moment at Jane's house on the way home. Something rather strange happened last night."

Kay felt the sudden stiffening of Lee's body as he sat beside her. "Something happened at Pierson', Tony?" he asked.

"Yes," Tony replied. "A prowler broke into their home last night. He evidently was a vicious devil, it seems—"

"June wasn't hurt, I hope." Lee said quickly.



"No, she wasn't, Lee," Eleanor informed him.

"Pierson was, though." Tony added. "Got a nasty crack on the head. It laid him out. I understand. Their cat was injured, too. Funny for a midnight prowler to attack a cat, isn't it? I want to see Pierson now because I found something on his lawn that I thought he should know about. You don't mind do you, Lee?"

"Not at all. I'll be glad to see June again...."

From the two things Lee had told her about June Pierson, Kay had formed for as an attractive, artistic, self-centred young woman who was sufficiently cruel to let nothing stand between her and her material ambitions.

But when she actually saw the girl in person she realized fully the folly of conjuring mental pictures of people simply from what their names pronounced and having certain actions ascribed to them, could she found, was charming beyond description, fine mentally and utterly physical charm, although she was not lacking in that, she had a beauty and tranquility of spirit that made itself felt above and beyond all mortal qualities and attributes. One could not imagine this girl descending to petitiveness or malice or jealousy. She was probably never further from a person's

Not an isolated experiment.

Both here and south of the line, we have had to learn by bitter experience that an unenforceable law is worse than no law at all.

Literally, worse than no law at all, as reasonable men who remember the abuses of prohibition, will agree.

Adroit prohibition propaganda leaves the impression that Ontario is the exception in its abandonment of prohibition and adoption of control.

As a matter of fact, the Liquor Control Act of Ontario has its counterpart in various forms in Great Britain, all the British Dominions, the United States, Scandinavia, South America and in six of the nine Provinces of Canada.

As a further fact, the Control Acts of Ontario and the four Western Provinces are more restrictive than those of Great Britain, the United States, etc. ·

Its purpose is to attain, progressively, a greater acceptance for true temperance through control—in the belief that external control exerted by the Government will ultimately induce a greater individual control and discipline—by which, alone, temperance can be attained.

THE OPINION OF A LIFE-LONG TEETOTALER

"In the attempt to bring about total abstinence through prohibition, an evil even greater than intemperance resulted—namely, a nation-wide disrespect for law."

—JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Full of Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Blood poisons go into the body, making you feel sunk, weak and the world look black.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes these good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those extra pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do not gripe or sicken like a cathartic or mercury or oil calomel. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25c at all druggists.

THE DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER is published every afternoon (Sunday and holidays excepted) at the Ontario Intelligencer Building.

THIS WEATHER

February has ended like a lion and so March, the spring month, may come in raging like the same lion. With a suddenness which was unexpected Sunday's light snowstorm gave way to a wild gale, rarely equalled for intensity, howling through the night and still blowing today. Fortunately the material out of which a real winter tie-up might have ensued was lacking—there was little snow for the wind to play with, the scanty fall of early Sunday.

The old lullaby is still sung. Many a child must have gone to rest on Sunday night in the arms of the storm with the words in its ears "Rock-a-bye Baby" which opens with these words,

"Rock-a-bye Baby, in the tree top,
When the wind blows the cradle will rock
If the bough breaks the cradle will fall
And down will come baby, cradle and all."

If there were rocking cradles today, children would have been lulled to rest in their swaying beds to the murmurs of this simple song and the howling of the wind and the rattling of window frames and strange creaks in houses and garages.

Fifty years have not stilled this lullaby, and though many cradles have departed into attics or other places, the song stays.

The windstorm was of a kind always associated with winter. Bitter cold followed the gale which swept down out of the north. A storm in the daytime is not so impressive as one when the winds sing at night, and howl or murmur or moan and every living thing retreats into its home.

How the March lion can rage like the almost matchless gale of Sunday night and Monday morning is yet to be seen. Those who believe in old adages are almost certain to wish that March may enter furiously so that it may leave as gently as any lamb.

February has wound up a month of the unusual. Walking and driving have been difficult owing to the long drawn-out period of ice roads and sidetracks, no recent year approaching this February in these obstacles to safe walking and driving. There has been a mid-winter flood, which has left the bed of the Moira River piled with broken ice-cakes, in many places piled high on the banks but crest-fallen in the river. There have been rains, little snow, much sleet, some springlike weather in the midst of winter. This month has in many ways set a record long to be remembered.

It will have its hang-over into March. It may bequeath its gale to the incoming month or latch may its landlike in its entry. The spring break-up of the Moira in March will be interesting as the present situation is so unusual.

With March First near, thoughts leap forward to Patrick's Day on the seventeenth, which to many is the first of spring, though spring's entry officially takes place a few days later.

HOW THEY GET THEIR NAMES

Librarians in larger cities have many requests for suggestions for the name of babies, Brooklyn library has an average of three to four hundred requests for suggestions every week. There is a reason of tions every week. There is a reason of course, for 780 babies are born every week in that city and there are many races in such a city and it is not at all odd if many parents, realizing the euphonic value stated names used by many persons today, for instance in the moving picture, go in for high sounding cognomens to the retreat of such old names as were borne by their parents and grandparents and as were given themselves.

The child of immigrated parents is quite often given names of the country of their adoption, a wise precaution no doubt because of the social appeal.

Brooklyn library officials have three methods of satisfying curiosity, reference to books on naming of infants, the record of names of the 560,000 subscribers to the library and finally a third method, which the librarian, like a modern fairy, may coin a name for some fond parents and innocent child. Such names as Iamboy, Glamoureen, Stottaway and Flimpis have been given. Among the strange names filed in the registration office last year were Aviezer, Cello, Earthline, Heminous, Nercenis, Zipperath and Ordinary and such others as Axford, Bazile, Devella, Earline, Edellus, Emleta, Floraine, General, Gurdeon, Henry, Icelda, Linkton, Mergren, Nylete, Pence, Permetta, Shulamith, Vicilla and Wyema. Names of this type frequently are requested by Negro patrons of the Bedford and Macon branch of the library attaches reported. Some Negro patrons also are reported to be naming their offspring after stations on the Erie Railroad, such as Perth Amboy, Hackensack.

ELEPHANT SONG

TONG! TONG!
Tong-a . . . tong-a . . . tong.
That is the rhythm of the elephant song
As the big gray elephants shuffle along.
To the sing-song-singing of the old brass bells,
To the shrill harsh stridence of the mahout's yells,
To the shuff-shuff-shuffle of the great round feet
The elephants are swinging-down the village street.
A priest peers out from his white-washed cell
As he hears the ringing of the elephant bell.
A wild-eyed faquir flings a mumbled curse.
A baby peers from the arms of its nurse.
A cobra dances to a charmer's tune.
The street dogs scamper, the children scurry,
A woman hum-hums as she fixes curry
While the bells keep ringing like a distant gong.
TONG! TONG!
Tong-a . . . tong-a . . . tong.
The swing-along rhythm of the elephant song.

A BAREFOOT BOY, HAPPY AND CAREFREE, rounding up "de gang" to take a vote on going fishing or swimming, or both—or starting apples, perhaps, it is reason. Too bad we were never able to fully appreciate the carefree happiness of those days until they were long years behind us. Memory floats back over the years and smiling faces shine in glorified television, how on row, as the pals of boyhood are summoned out of the long ago into the now, with the stories of pranks and adventures in which each took a star part—long ago. The genii of the Lamp of Remembrance was summoned as the result of a recent article in this Great Family Journal reprinted from the Canadian Countryman, in which the writer referred to the Moira river as the Sagonaska, the original Indian name. . . then he tells of his adventures as a barefoot boy in Belleville, how the gang used to go swimming at the dam, then visit a cheese warehouse and pinch samples of cheese the inspectors had discarded. The article said "inspectors", but we can see no reason for introducing insects into the cheese so early in the season). From pinching samples of cheese the writer lived to see the day when he could pinch big Jim Irwin, Dominion Cheese Inspector, with impunity, for he was that boy. Continuing about cheese the writer in The Canadian Countryman remarked on the excellent practise of the New Queens Hotel in Belleville of serving cheese by the bloc to patrons. A small cheese of about ten pounds weight is brought to the table when the apple pie course is on, and with a silver spade the diner can dig out his own Old Belleville Cheese or have the attractive waitress do it for him. From barefoot and cheese-pinching days to pinching the Cheese Inspector is some far cry but farther still was the leap made by the Barefoot Boy when he addressed out a speaker at the convention of the Central Ontario Ayrshire Breeders. However, you can hardly wonder at it, for this was the lad who was always first to dive from the crow's nest of the lumber schooners in the harbor, the first to scale the orchard fence when borrowing apples or watermelons from "Old Skeezicks", who had every apple counted and every melon numbered. The same kid who in later years was brave enough even to write poetry and tell the world things about Nature and wild life that they never knew before —the same kid who dared to board the highbrows of Manhattan in their plush penthouses and tell them things they never even dreamed of before—and make them like it. Why shouldn't he make a good cattleman? I ask you.

GERMANY AND ITALY WAXED SO STRONG and impudent that they thought, combined, they might tackle even John Bull, and perhaps take world leadership away from that astute gentleman. Singly they knew they couldn't get very far, but in combination what great prizes might be theirs. Trouble was and is that neither of these Big Boys quite trust the other, and John Bull knows it.

That Body of Yours

Getting a Good Circulation For Tuberculosis Patients and For Ourselves

Years ago when it was found that rest, fresh air, and rich nutritious food would halt the progress of tuberculosis, it was not unusual to see these patients return to their homes, plump, with a good color, and apparently perfectly well. In a few months or even weeks it was noticed that this weight was gradually being lost, that the appetite was poor, and the cough was returning. Another stay in the sanatorium then became necessary.

The loss of weight and strength in many of these cases was due to the fact that the individual did not follow the method of living taught him in the sanatorium; he became careless about his rest periods, food and the outdoors. In the majority of cases the loss of weight and strength and the return of the symptoms of tuberculosis were due to the fact that the patient had rested almost entirely at the sanatorium and had taken no exercise whatever. Thus when he returned home and attempted to do some physical work, there was no strength to muscle, heart and lungs, and the relapse followed.

One institution with which I am familiar, more than 35 years ago began giving the patient some regular exercise daily once the temperature was down to normal. The exercise at first was just fifteen minutes slow walk on the walk. The exercise was gradually increased so that in a short time the patient was ready to leave the sanatorium he could do about five hours light work daily, and when he should not be returned home he was able, by gradually increasing the hours of living, to take some light employment.

In a recent issue of the Swiss Medical Journal Dr. Voute of the Davos Sanatorium has called attention to the fact that as the results of prolonged rest—no exercise at all—the heart muscle and the muscles of the chest become weakened. This weakness is called gymnastic exercise was given. When this was done, and breathing deep, it begun the rest periods should be gradually reduced so that when the patient should leave the sanatorium, he requires at the most two hours rest daily.

The thought is that if patients with tuberculosis to whom rest has taught much, should have regular exercise and should rest not more than two hours daily, what about those of us who are well? Certainly we have the best methods should get daily exercise if we are to have a good circulation of pure blood throughout the body.

When Doctors Meet

Give a thought to medical men, for example. In every country they are studying, experimenting. They have developed many intelligent techniques to compare notes on discoveries and to discuss problems and opinions. They take second seat to none in their love of demonstrated truth.

Yet there is more than science for science's sake; it is science with a purpose. Nor is that all, for as they apply their knowledge in healing the sick and mending the maimed, they earn the living that gives them status in their communities. A relationship exists between the service they give and the fees they accounts. And the zeal with which they press their researches into educational pursuit of truth is fortified by an economic motive implanted in a growing consciousness of the common stake medical men everywhere have in their profession itself.

An illustrative instance is the recent "floating convention" of the Pan-American Medical Association. Several hundred doctors and surgeons chartered a ship out of New York for a cruise to the Caribbean ports. Discussions and clinics were held on board. There was a three-day conference with some 700 more colleagues from Pan-American at Havana, Cuba. Here minyied medical men from Mexico, Brazil, Argentina, the United States, scores of nations. Still remaining citizens of their own countries, they discovered, nevertheless, that they belong to a supranational society—a realm of common intellectual and emotional interests.—Rotarian Magazine.

Where There's Smoke

Readings at six of the thirteen London stations engaged in observing atmospheric conditions have shown that there is a tendency toward an increase of soot and dirt in the air, and the Smoke Abatement Society is shortly calling a conference of local authorities to consider the matter. Not without reason is London known in cockney slang as "The Smoke," and today Mr. Herbert Morrison, Labour minister responsible for the ancient purlieus announces to her the ancient sobriquet of "Auld Reekie"; for the sovereign city has exchanged beauty for sables, and mourns perpetually under the canopy that her subjects have raised.

The statistics are awe-inspiring, showing a deposit of from 122 to 436 tons of dirt per square mile monthly—it is not so much the pollution as an intermenti it is Pontius Pilate.

CANADA'S CHARTERED BANKS VALUE YOUR GOODWILL

WHETHER you deal with a bank or whether you don't, some time soon—say the very next time you are passing the bank's door—why not drop in and get acquainted? You're sure of a welcome, because the bank manager wants to know you. So find out for yourself what kind of fellow he is. And before you leave, take a good look at his staff.

The head offices are manned and managed by just that sort of man! Every general manager in Canada started in the banking business as a junior in some small branch, and rose from the ranks.

This is your introduction to a series of chats in the course of which you will be surprised at how little of mystery and how much of service there is in the business of banking in Canada.

Canada's chartered banks want your goodwill.

It is only by goodwill that banks make a living—and bankers are your fellow-citizens, the same sort of people as you are.

Of course bankers have heard all the old, threadbare jokes about the banker who gives you his delight in humiliating worthy souls who ask for loans — you find great old comedians about lending the umbrella when the sun is shining and taking it back when it rains.

So if you think you have a new joke, drop in and spring it on your local bank manager—he'll appreciate it. And if it turns out his humor is better, he'll still have his sense of humour handy enough to get a chuckle, should you chance to tell him that the banks are being held responsible for the latest storms, or for the loss of the hockey game, or for his own neglect to summon prosperity from just around the corner.

Which should prove to you that your banker is, after all, a very human person. He likes people. All bankers like people. And they want people to like them.

Banks want to be helpful. They realize that they succeed only as the people of the community succeed. Enlightened self-interest? Well yes — but not altogether.

Your local manager will tell you that banks are not stiff-necked; that they do not enjoy refusing loans.

They'd be foolish if they did, for goodwill is the whole core and pith and substance of successful banking.

THE CHARTERED BANKS OF CANADA

Your local branch bank manager will be glad to talk banking with you. He will be glad to answer your questions, from the standpoint of his own experience. The next article in this series will appear in this newspaper. Watch for it.

Largely, the honest householder plays the part of the villainous servius. He does not use smokeless fuel nearly enough in keeping the home fires burning. It is partly a matter of expense, and partly, no doubt, thoughtlessness; but neither of the problems should be left beyond remedy. The factories are largely responsible for legislation; but the owners could co-operate more than they do. The problem is not, of course, confined to London, it is something of a blot on the escutcheon of many a city, and though a great deal of progress has been made in the last forty years or so, which may be instanced in London by the comparitive infrequency of today as against the "pea-soup" fog, it is unthinkable that the present state of affairs should be allowed to continue.

Apart from the fact that it costs the country something in the neighborhood of £80,000,000 each year, there are obvious reasons why the public should repeat the fest of their tragicomic amusements, and escape once more out of darkness.

More Interested in Making Up Than Receiving Allowance

Wrestler Husband And Princess Baba at Buffa-GREGORY WINS

Buffalo N.Y. Feb. 26 (AP)—Wrestler Bob Gregory said today he and his bride the Princess Baba of Sarawak would "like very much" to go to Europe to see her father "and fix things up."

The Princess' father Sir Charles Vyner Brooke Rajah of Sarawak, Borneo, said today in Singapore he would restored his daughter's $2,000 annul allowance, which he stopped when she married Gregory.

"We hadn't heard about it yet," said the Englishman, "but we'll have a letter might have missed us. We've been jumping about a bit."

He said the Princess was more interested in "mending up with her father than in the allowance."

"It would very much like to go and see him, but my business may keep me here indefinitely," he said.

The blond Princess and her husband prepared today for a visit to Syracuse, N.Y., and the third of Baba's North American mat contests.

The Princess, daughter of the white ruler of an oriental principality, looked on at one of her husband's matches here last night for the first time since their marriage in England.

She witnessed hubby's triumph over burley Fred Bruno of Boston with dignified interest. Gregory won in six minutes and 54 seconds before a crowd of 7,000 that spent most of the time cranking the collective neck in the direction of the Princess.

One customer, however, howled for "Jabez!" at Gregory after the match and was hustled away by police as the Princess' husband hurled a spirited challenge to combat.

The Princess said the match was "very nice," but added: I got tired of sitting so long. The hard seats..."

Then Mr. and Mrs. Kingston were invited to come forward while Mrs. H. R. Johnston read the following address:—

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kingston Dear Friends,—

It was with considerable regret that the members of the Wallbridge community, recently learned of your decision to remove from our district. It seems but a short while since you came to live among us. However, during the five years you have resided in this neighborhood you have made many friends by being yourselves, friendly and neighborly.

In your departure from what is known as "The Hill" we assure you that your absence will make a real difference up in that area of the community. Your friendly visits, having been the very best of neighbors in your immediate surroundings, Mrs. Kingston has been a real help in the Women's Institute, the Women's Association and the Women's Missionary Society of the Wallbridge United Church. Membership and activity in these societies indicate a wider interest than that of one's own friends and next door neighbours.

In leaving for your new home we feel you should take with you some concrete token of our friendship and esteem. It gives us pleasure, therefore, to present to you this set of dishes, in the use of which all your friends in this district may participate. We assure you our love and esteem for you will remain unbroken by your removal from our midst.—

Mr. Kingston read a song into the air. It fell to earth, I know not where, for who has sight so keen and strong

That it can follow the flight of a song?

But that song at last from beginning to end

I found again in the heart of a friend.

Signed on behalf of the community,

G. M. Nicolson, Hilton Shorey L. J. Ketcheson, Earl White F. B. Mills.

Common Sense About Constipation

If you knew that your constipation was caused by something left out of your food, wouldn't it be just common sense to put that something back?

Your trouble may be caused by nothing more than this. For the most common kind of constipation is due to lack of "bulk" in the body's bowels—just some food that passes on through the system undigested being discarded. Kellogg's All-Bran supplies this. It gives the bowels the bulky mass they need to work properly. And All-Bran also gives them the intestinal-tonic, vitamin B, which helps restore their tone.

Eat All-Bran as a cereal or baked in muffins. But however you eat it, be sure you get some every day. And drink plenty of water. All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ont. Sold by every grocer.

The Worthy Matron, Mrs. Parsons extended a cordial welcome to members and visitors. Various contests were enjoyed with the birthday groups contributing much merriment. March being the lucky month to carry off the prizes.

A special feature of the evening was the Grand March by Mrs. Jack Stephenson, a young Belleville artist, who received much applause for her sketches. A dainty lunch under the convenorship of Mrs. O. J. Read was served at small tables. The tea table centred with a lovely birthday cake was presided over by Mrs. Harriett McIntosh and Mrs. Carrie McGuire. The birthday cake was cut by the guest of honor, Mrs. Louisa Modeland, who had the distinction of being the first presiding matron of the Order of the Eastern Star in this district. The entertainment was in charge of Mr. W. D. Embury, chairman, Mrs. R. Benson, Mrs. A. Cooper and Mrs. A. Wonnacott. Dancing with Mrs. Gilbert at the piano brought the enjoyable evening to a close.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Kisses Are Saved For Loved Ones

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Is it proper for a girl to allow a boy to kiss her and put his arm around her, the first time he takes her out, or should they wait till the second or third date? My girl chum says she thinks it's cheap to let a boy kiss you the first time he's out with you, but a boy who took me out last week said it would be all right. I didn't allow anything or petting, and he was peeved and said I wasn't worth wasting gasoline on, and so he left. Later I heard that he got into some sort of law trouble, and wasn't I glad I wasn't worth wasting gasoline on, when it happened!

Bernice

The best plan is to be governed by your heart in matters of kissing, and don't let your heart run away with you too quickly or easily. Well-bred girls do not go in for immediate and promiscuous love-making. They're a bit too fastidious for that. And the sensible girl reserves her kisses for the man she really loves—even though sometimes she may be mistaken. At least, she has faith in her choice for the time being.

Tells Him He's Too Good For Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've fallen deeply in love with a certain girl, with whom I went steady for about seven months and then we broke up. She is now going with a fellow boy friend of hers, will go out with me occasionally, and I'm anxious for her to forget the past and start all over again. But she insists I'm too good for her, and that I should give her more time to think it over. What shall I do? I don't want to lose her, because I can't keep my mind on my work.

Arthur

What's the girl's reason for telling you that you're too good for her? Is she wild, or is it just an excuse to keep you at a distance? Perhaps she doesn't want you back on the old friendly terms. You don't tell me enough. If she's what is known as "wild", I believe I'd take her at her word and let things stand as they are.

Strict Parents and a 16-Year-Old Girl

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I don't seem to have any friends boys or girls—because my parents are so strict. I'm 16 years, and nowadays most girls that age are allowed to go to parties and have their friends come in for an evening or fun. But it's different in my case. Some of my friends have said they're never seen such queer people as my parents. If a boy invites me anywhere, I have to tell stories and say I have to go somewhere with a girl friend—or some relative. They won't listen to reason.

Lonely Girl

At 16, most girls are allowed a little freedom by their parents, and it's really too bad when they're too strict after that age. It's always a vicious girle to have patience and not to "sneak", which is always bad policy. Haven't you a family friend or a relative who can intercede for you somehow? Or who will tell them that girls find ways and means of meeting young people when they are too closely guarded at home. Parents should realize that it's always better to meet their daughter's friends under their own roofs than have these young people make hasty and acquaintances on the outside.

Engagement Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter will be twenty years of age very soon and I would like to have a birthday party for her and at this party announce her engagement. I will explain to you what I have in mind, and if it isn't correct, please do not hesitate to tell me.

I would like to have a very simple little party, and serve a buffet dinner, as my dining-room is not very large and neither is my living-room. My daughter would like to have it arranged so that each girl would receive a gardenia as a corsage.

She would like to announce her engagement at the party, but as we have never attended an engagement announcement, I do not know how to go about it. We think that it will be more of a surprise if we invite the girls as for a regular social escorts. . . .

Shall I come to a birthday party, rather than to just a party? They would think it strange to be invited to a party and not have the invitation include their escorts. What do you think?

Would it be proper to have the girl's escorts come to the party, or would it be better to just have the girls?

Mother

I am very anxious to have everything nice, but not too expensive.

Mother

Since you are planning to announce your daughter's engagement at this party, her fiance would be there, and therefore it would seem more appropriate to have the girls' beaux there too. I agree that the wisest and most convenient way of serving would be buffet fashion. . . . Most parties are done this way in these days of limited space, and young people especially like gay, informal way of serving the refreshments.

I like so much . . .

This Man Is Stingy To Family

By VIRGINIA LEE

I WONDER how many fathers answer the description furnished by a letter which three daughters have written me concerning their dad. I would very much like to print the letter because it might make some men up, but I was asked not to.

However, the case is like this: Most of the six children of the family are married and off the man's hands. He makes a fair salary and lives in the country where living costs are low. Moreover he owns cow and poultry. The two children and wife at home are very little, however, beyond board, room and a very few clothes.

While he is stingy with his family, this man is generous with outsiders and, according to the letter, spends money freely on his own hobbies.

The mother is in poor health and the children think she should receive medical attention, but the father laughs at his wife and says she is always "thinking things are wrong with her."

Neither mother nor children feel like talking matters over with this man, because they feel self-conscious in his presence.

Those are strangely familiar, girls. In fact, they are not confined to men. Folk generally are inclined to be stingy with the family but generous to outsiders.

What can these daughters do? I am hoping the husband and father will chance to read this column, recognize himself and reform. If not, the girls should take their mother to the doctor. Surely in these circumstances, a woman who has given birth to and brought up six children, has made a home for a man doing all the hard work that entails, is entitled to the same afraid to talk freely to him and scared to have him get "mad."

Take your mother to a doctor, girls, and if she needs treatment get it for her before it is too late. And if she doesn't heed it, a great worry will be taken off her shoulders and yours.

Lenten Fast Desirable From Physiological Angle

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN THE MIDDLE AGES, the Lenten fast was an imposition from below, rather than an exhortation from above. Nothing was known about the preservation and long distance distribution of food, and about this time in the spring the supply of fresh food was running low and the church's admonition to mortify the flesh came at the psychological moment when it was a grim necessity.

Somewhere between our own regular yearly moderate fast, amounting to a privation of many luxuries, has proved a good thing, and I urge my readers to keep up good Lent, or physiological, if they are not moved to on theological grounds.

In the first place, the church is right in insisting upon the spiritual exaltation. In the conspicuous example which recorded this year in the person of Bert Moe of Memphis, he asserted over and over his feeling of well being and confidence, and hoped to see. This is the experience of every faster.

A dog has been starved 117 days. At the end of that time it had lost 50 per cent of its body weight, but was quite active. One faster went without anything except water for 30 days, and gained such mental clarity that he wrote a book on mathematics. The loss of weight during starvation is not evenly distributed over the body. At first it is a matter of interest to look at some of the possibilities. Terence MacSwiney, Mayor of Cork, after his arrest, refused food. The bold signal of a hunger strike which lasted 76 days, and ended in death in coma. Meriatte, a professional faster of Paris, endured one stretch of complete abstinence from food for 50 days.

Not Advocating Extremes

No. I am not advocating these extremes, but there are a number of things most of us could give up for 40 days with, I believe, great benefit. To live on the simple sugarless diet which we give every fruit fat and protein would probably bring about some surprising improvements. Fruits and vegetables, potatoes (skins and all), milk, one egg or thin slice of meat a day, no stimulants—including coffee and tobacco; many chronic aches and fatigues are likely to disappear on this regimen.

I remember a man who had arthritis in his knee. He fairly was controlled by diet, but he became dissatisfied and went to a large city where he consulted a specialist who sent back a tin of 10 or 12 pages of stereotyped dope had been prepared by the specialist. He then brought them to me, and I said, "Well, I agree with my colleague. I don't think they'll do you any good." But you've been to a good deal of expense to get them, so I'll give them to you—on one condition. That if you get worse, you will agree to stop them."

He said that was fair and we began the vaccine. Thinking they would do the work, he resumed his hearty eating. During the third week he had a severe attack of gout, which was really his "arthritis."

Make Glamor Daily Ritual

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

IT'S THAN you did somewhere about being that luxurious and glamorous lady that you've always wanted to be.

Using the easiest and most inexpensive way to accomplish this is to make a ritual of your daily bath. Make it more than a boring cleansing process, get a real kick out of it.

A good warm bath relaxes your muscles, and is a wonderful curative for worry, excitement and nervous tension. And if it does more than that, it bucks you up, makes you feel like you've got a new lease on life, and also tones up the skin so that a short spell in the swim suits that you'll be donning in a few brief months.

A tip that will make the bath a combination cleanser and massage is to use a brush — not a bath sponge. The old fashioned soft wash cloth is definitely out. There's nothing which cleans so thoroughly and leaves your skin so clear and shining smooth as a brisk going over with a good bath brush. There are many different sizes and shapes on the market, but some new ones have just come out that are particularly designed for use in the shower too. They are small spatula-laied brushes with a short handle which makes them ever so convenient in the restricted area of a built-in shower. And they will do their job most efficiently, even on the most unreachable portion of your back. And you don't have to be a contortionist.

Gives Massage

The rough going-over is not only a "tone" but it gets rid of those unattractive rough spots and coarse pimples. The friction does it. You'll get a glow for your trouble, and your skin will respond gratefully to your self-imposed massage.

If you are one who likes to top your bath off with a shower that's almost like the glamor of your scented water here's the way to do it! Put a few of your bath crystals into a piece of cheese-cloth and tie it right over the head of your shower. If you are using oil dowse some on the cheese-cloth. This will scent the water as it comes down.

The cold final shower is a question of taste and temperament. If it exhilarates you by all means take it. But if it makes you angry and unhappy, you're not the type, so save it out.

Always dry with a big rough towel. This gives you a final gentle massage, and all you have to do is dust off the tone with a dusting powder and you are ready for fine feathers and new adventures.

STRICTLY IN THE SWIM ARE ONE-PIECE SUITS

They May Hug the Figure or Have Dressmaker Lines but All Show Clever Details and Trimmings

Knitted wool one-piece suit, front one color, back another

By LISBETH

AS PALM BEACH, Miami Beach, Fla., or Palm Springs, Cal., goes in January or February, so goes the nation in June. That is the case in fashions, anyway, and it is "preparedness" to know what we will be wearing on the beaches this coming summer.

One-piece, one-fitting suits, suits with dressmaker lines and details, and many unique little trimming details are shown on the new swim suits.

For instance, the vogue for contrasting colors is being carried out in bathing suits. The knitted wool mallot (one-piece), shown above, is done in cross-stitch with front in one solid color and back in a contrasting tone. It is made with an uplift brassiere.

Flaired rugs, laced through the neck, continues around the waist to give a decorative effect. The three-inch cork-soled sandals are striped to carry through the color scheme of suit. A large straw sun hat and buckle-shaped beach bag.

Simulates Hand Knit

Another one-piece is shown left. It is produced in wool in simulated hand-knit stitches. This one boasts a triple-link button-front adjustment and contrasting-colored buttons straps. Twine crochet espadrilles have a hand-made look to harmony with the suit.

The dressmaker type of suit is shown right. The bold signal stripes of this knitted wool suit accentuate the trim, general effect of the outfit. This flared skirt is set off with a twisted cord belt, matching the stripes in the suit and fastened by novelty buckles. Tiny cloth sandals with cork soles are worn with this suit.

The deficit of the Paris Exposition last year was officially announced to be $50,000,000.

Not What You Serve but How it Is Cooked and Seasoned Makes Meal Tasty

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Pork Chops Baked Potatoes
Apple, Celery and Cabbage Salad
Creamed Turnips
Blushing Rice Pudding
Tea, Coffee or Milk

It isn't what you serve nearly so much as it is the way that your dishes are cooked, seasoned and served that makes the difference between a delicious and a mediocre meal. I have long held this theory and I still maintain it is true. You can take perfectly ordinary foods like those suggested in this menu, and with a few delicious touches, good enough to serve to a king—or president. And you can make it as tasteless and uninteresting as is humanly possible. Rice is a very economical and inexpensive food stuff, but dressed up into this blushing pudding, it not only tastes good but looks appetizing. And makes your table look pretty. Use colors tastefully combined. I read a story some time ago of a girl in the poorest of poor homes in a mining district, big the mother had a good little flower in a glass to "dress up" the table, and give it a touch of daintiness. A small green plant in the center of the table will do much to make an ordinary meal partyish and festive.

Today's Recipes

BLUSHING RICE PUDDING — One-half cup rice, two cups milk, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup sugar, two egg yolks, one cup whipping cream, red jelly. Wash rice thoroughly. Cook slowly in milk until soft. Add sugar and beaten egg yolks. Mix well. Beat occasionally as rice cools. When cold, fold in whipped cream, salt and vanilla, pour in a layer of jelly into mold; pour rice into jelly and chill on ice or in refrigerator. Unmold to serve, and serve with currant or raspberry sauce or orange marmalade. This will serve six persons.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Use Imagination

Put a little imagination into the framing of your pictures and see what a difference this touch of individuality makes. Above all, avoid using a heavy, elaborately embellished frame, especially a gilt one, unless you have an Old Master to put in it and a very ornate room to hang it in.

For water colors, etchings and modern drawings, frames of simple design are much more pleasing.

The natural beauty of a fine wood, cup mayonnaise. Cut cheese fine, as in this case, mahogany, for instance, provides an ideal setting for the kind of picture appropriate to a smart room.

Potato Salad With Cheese Mask

One quart diced boiled potatoes, one cup diced celery, two diced hard cooked eggs, one cup diced cucumber pickles, two tablespoons chopped onion, two tablespoons chopped green pepper, two tablespoons chopped onion. Potatoes should be cooked with skins, peeled. Mix all ingredients with just enough mayonnaise and boiled dressing (half and half) to moisten well. Season with salt and pepper into a wet bowl. Set away to chill for a few hours. Unmold on a bed of crisp lettuce on a large platter. Cover mound of potato salad with thick mayonnaise made as follows: One-fourth pound American cheese (soft) grated, one tablespoon dry mustard, one-half cup heavy cream, one-half cup mayonnaise. Cut cheese fine, put in a pan of hot water, add a little of cream and stir until cheese begins to melt. Remove and stir until smooth with rotary beater, adding more cream if necessary. Whip remaining cream and add pimentos and mayonnaise and blend with cheese mixture. Chill and serve cold over salad.

Uses Thumb Tacks

A recent bride with a brand new house for her home, has her own ideas of caring for that house. She uses shelf oilcloth on her shelves, but doesn't paste it down, she states, with wallpaper paste, as many do. Instead she keeps it in place with thumb tacks, which she says, are easily removed when the oilcloth is worn out.

And another thing, she covers the oilcloth with a coating of quick drying wax so that her dishes will not stick to it.

WOOD TRIMMING CHIC

By Central Press

LIGHTWEIGHT and light colored coats are extremely "good" for both day and evening wear this spring.

Vivien Leigh, moving picture actress, is shown here wearing a long cream serge coat trimmed in dark brown silk and fastened with three grained wood buckles in the same shade.

This coat is worn over an underdress of brown crepe de chine, tied at the neck with a bow.

Brown gloves and shoes are in the same shade of brown, the suede gloves being worn with cocked cuffs.

The hat is in cream felt to match the coat, with dark brown stitching for trimming.

Style Whimsies

A large bonnet type of black shantung is very pretty with an embroidered blue ribbon drawn through the crown and tied.

A shallow crown of embroidered straw flowers completes a sweeping brim of stitched black maline, which dips close to the head at the back.

Very demure and feminine is a bonnet of black sapphire with a crown of closely massed pink moss roses.

Things in Which Folk Are Stupid

Husbands and Wives Annoy Each Other Over Trifles

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

A FRIEND of mine who has always struck me as almost an ideal father and husband once told me that it had just occurred to him that the stupidest thing he did was to be annoyed at small things his wife did or did not do.

"When I consider the significance of these matters," he continued, "in relation to the stores of lovely things she does and the lovely trails she has, and how patiently she endures my many annoyances, I really feel disgusted at myself."

"For example," he said, "I'll let a little thing like this spoil a morning or a day for her and me both—seeing the gas of the stove turned up twice as high as it should be. I have tried since we were married 20 years ago to make her see that once a container of uncovered liquid begins boiling, added heat does not make this liquid any hotter; that, moreover, a very high flame burning yellow, though consuming much more gas, is not so hot as a low blue flame. Every one of the ten thousand times I have so explained these things, she has grown angry; and so I have just come to the conclusion that I am foolish to bother about the matter at all, since I can do nothing about it; that, indeed, I have made her worse instead of better."

Man Is Wise

"You are wise," I answered. "I would be surprised that in those 20 years to come to that conclusion, were it not for the fact that I am guilty of like offences against my wife. Though I resolved years ago to cure myself, I still have some discouraging relapses, when they fever will run up again. Sometimes, however, I think I see real improvement. Now I want to tell you of a discovery I have made —that my wife has been considerable annoyances of like sort over chronic habits in myself which she has worked on in such a good many years; only she long since has given up and has let the problems 'get her down' as I am prone to do; which means that she is a better self-manager than I am."

We husbands and our wives seem never to learn the simple lesson that we cannot by nagging attacks correct what we count the faults in the other person. Nor, second as by adverse criticism we merely perpetuate supposed faults; and that, besides, we merely make ourselves and our companions miserably unhappy over matters of very small importance in comparison with the countless other things so lovely and worthwhile. When will we learn the secret of home happiness through celebrating the enormous worth of home and by keeping our eyes upon the endless good things and fine qualities they possess? How very stupid and perverse we are!

Young couples in love will tell each other before marriage how wonderful they are, how they help each other by pointing out those faults which ought to be corrected. Bless their souls! They never need to make such promises! They need to make a covenant that will actually help them enjoy a happy married life. Let me try to play up the best in each other.

Poems That Live

THE PARTING OF THE WAYS

Untrammelled Glant of the West
Thy mighty limbs shall be endowed,
With all of Heaven's mercies blessed.
Nor of thy power unduly proud—
Peerless in courage, force, and skill,
And godlike in thy strength of will—

Before thy feet the ways divide:
One path leads up to heights sublime;
Downward the other slopes, where'er it start.
O choose the nobler path and part!

Be thou the guardian of the weak,
Or, the unfriended, thou the friend!
No question for thy valor seek,
No end save the avenged end.
Wouldst thou thy godlike power be?
Be godlike in the will to serve!

Red Wing Boss Put Off Bench For Arguing With Referees

(By The Canadian Press)

Either Chicago Black Hawks or Detroit Red Wings probably will get a record before they decide which is to have that third playoff place in the National Hockey League's American division. But neither team will boast about this new mark.

With three weeks of the regular season remaining it seems certain Hawks or Wings will get into the playoffs with the poorest record of any qualifying team since the 14-game schedule was introduced in 1931.

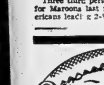
Unless one of them shows a drastic change in form the winner in their private war will fail to better the low mark for playoff teams made by New York Americans in 1936 when they slipped into the Canadian Division third spot with 16 wins and seven ties for 39 points.

Hawks, with six games to play, are eight points behind that mark now and Detroit, with eight games remaining, are ten behind it. To equite the dismal showing of the world champions all season they are still favored to slip into the playoffs a nose ahead of Hawks.

Wings Moved Up a Game

Detroit moved up to within a game of their rivals last night when they held Montreal Canadiens to a 1-1 tie in Detroit while New York Rangers were whipping Hawks 4-1 in Chicago.

Those games were only ones in the five week-end contests that were of vital interest to the teams, although Rangers improved their chances of catching Boston Bruins with two wins over Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs by scores of 4-1 and 4-3. They moved within two games of the idle Bruins. Canadiens' tie brought them the same distance from Toronto, Canadian division leaders.



Montreal Maroons saw their last chance of beating New York Americans out for the third playoff berth in the Canadian Division disappear, when the New Yorkers beat them 5-1 in Montreal, Saturday night. That Maroons reversed the decision by 4-2 at New York last night did them little good.

Three Games in Hand

With three games in hand Americans lead Maroons by ten points now. They need only five points in their remaining ten games to be sure of bowing out the Montrealers even if Maroons won all their remaining seven contests.

In Montreal Saturday night Maroons held Americans to one goal in the first and second period but the New Yorkers came through with three in the final session to make sure of the result Eddie Wiseman got two goals and Cecil Stewart, Lorne Carr and Johnny Sorrell the others while Herb Cain scored the only Maroon goal.

Three third period goals also won for Maroons last night. With Americans lead 2-1 in the final period

Next foe for Max Schmeling in the Germans comeback campaign for a bout against Joe Louis, will be Steve Dudas, shown here in his North Bergen, N.J. home. A former golden glover, Dudas will meet Maxie in Berlin in mid-March.

toda, Cain, Russ Blinco and Marvin Wentworth drove the puck past Earl Robertson for the Montrealers. Wiseman and Tommy Anderson had scored for Americans and Bob Gracie for Maroons earlier.

Toronto's loss to Rangers was their third defeat in four games. Art Coulter provided two second period goals that sent Rangers into a 3-0 lead after Lynn Patrick had scored in the first. Syl Apps and Bill Thoms scored for Toronto in the final period and Mac Colville for Rangers.

Eighteen Penalties Called

Eighteen penalties were called in the rough contest, 12 of them on Rangers. Coulter led in penalties as well as goals, getting two minors and a misconduct for arguing with Referee Mickey Ion.

Hawks used five forwards in the latter period of last night's game in an attempt to overcome a 2-1 Ranger lead. But all they accomplished in doing was provide Rangers with opportunities for two more goals. Jack Shill scored Hawks' only goal while Joe Cooper, Art Jackson, Neil Colville and Alex Watson got the New York goals.

Manager Jack Adams of Wings provided a highlight of the Detroit game by arguing with Referee Bert McCaffery. Finally the official ordered the manager off the Detroit bench for using abusive language to him. Herb Lewis gave Wings the lead in the second and George Mantha caught Norm Smith out of the Detroit net to tie it in the third.

HALL HAS CHANCE

Ten Provincial Champions ship Rinks Will Engage in Spiel

Toronto, Feb. 28.—(CP)— Ab Gowanlock of Glenboro, the "last cast" curling town in Manitoba, was looked upon today as the chief threat to Cliff Manson's supremacy at Beaon an' Slane as Canada's finest curlers made ready to tackle for the Macdonald's Brier trophy and the Dominion Championship.

Ten provincial championship rinks will engage in the 12th annual tilt-ider bonspiel, the modern round-robin series that will end Thursday night. The first round will be played this afternoon after the draw decides the placings, with two games tomorrow and three each Wednesday and Thursday.

But the curlers slithered for the gold expected the title would be decided before the last round is played. They figured the trophy, Manitoba has won seven times since 1924, will be beating emblematic of the Canadian title would go to the winner of the Gow-a-Lock-Manson match. The Edmonton skip is defending the trophy which he also won in 1934.

Not that the other Brier finalists could be counted out. Bert Hall of Kitchener, Ontario champion, was expected to provide stiff opposition for the tpied favorites. Hall defeated some of Ontario's best curlers in winning the right to British Comoia competition, to represent this province in the Brier. He won the Premier trophy in the Royal York, in the Ontario bonspiel event last week.

And masters of the rourin' game from Saskatchewan, Quebec hopped competitors: Billy Finlay of Vancouver, British Columbia's champion; Peter Pidgeon of Saskatchewan; J. R. Walker of Timmins, Northern Ontario; R. C. Cream, Quebec; C. W. Durant of Halifax, Nova Scotia; Bathurst Wilson of Fredericton, New Brunswick, and Rankine McLaine of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island.

BOB JOHANNSEN WINS SKI TITLE

Gave Daring And Spectacular Performance on Gatineau Hills

Camp Fortune, Que., Feb. 28. (CP)—Big, blonde Bob Johannsen wearing the crimson sweater of the McGill University Ski Club of Montreal, was acclaimed today Canada's outstanding skier after giving a daring and spectacular performance on the Gatineau hills trails and jumps at the Dominion Ski meet Saturday and Sunday.

Shooting the hazardous downhill run near this ski camp 20 miles north of Ottawa, in one minute, 22 1-5 seconds, the husky youth won the Canadian downhill open and closed championships.

He annexed the combined jumping and cross country open and closed titles. He finished third in the jumps and fifth in the cross country and the combined effort was good enough to give him the honors.

The combined downhill and slalom closed championship also went to Johannsen due to his win in the downhill and eight place in the slalom.

Almost 4,000 spectators skied into this remote camp to see Canada's best skimen meet the challenge of Eastern United States and European stars in every event except the slalom, won by Karl Ringer of Germany in one minute and fifteen seconds.

Saturday Bruce Hegqtvelt of Ottawa Ski Club eked out a one-second victory over A. H. Myll of Sudbury Ski Club in the 11-mile cross country event, covering the distance in one hour, 12 minutes and four seconds. The finish was one of the most exciting in Canada's competitive ski history.

Myll Tukka, also of Sudbury Ski Club was third, Hegqtvelt was rated Canadian closed cross-country champion at well.

Johannsen's triumph in the downhill also featured Saturday's events. Peter Vodja of Switzerland was second and Bud Clarke of Ottawa third.

Q. M. SCHOOL GIRLS WINNERS

Defeat Queen Alexandra Girls by 1-0 on Saturday

Displaying some exceptionally fine hockey qualities the girls from Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra Schools played a friendly game of hockey at the Belleville Arena during the Saturday noon hour. The game was the first scoring in evidence, although both squads displayed some fine hockey ability, both offensively and defensively for the remainder of the game.

A large gallery took in the proceedings, fully 200 fans registering surprise at the fine style of play displayed by the local public school girls at hockey. The lassies proved apt skaters, remarkably good stick-handlers and proficient at the art of checking. Assistant Principals E. Fairman of Queen Mary and H. Wallace of Queen Alexandra schools were present to supervise the game.

The line-ups—Q.M.S.— Goal, B. Goodfellow, defence, D. Arnott, R. Morden; centre, E. Reid; wings, B. Barrager and M. Kyle; subs— D. Rose, P. Daynaid, H. Salisbury, K. Greatrix, J. Lucas and M. OSHAWA JUNIORS MEET MARLBOROS

By the Canadian Press

A battling gang of Oshawa juniors, known as the "Generals" today were in the finals of the Ontario Hockey Association's chance for A "Big Seven" group against Joe Primeau's polished Toronto Marlboros.

The Generals reached the final bracket Saturday by defeating Young Rangers of Toronto 5-2 in the third game of a semi-final series. Marlboros got the other final berth by eliminating St. Michael's College 6-3.

Young Rangers went into the lead Friday night by winning the game. But in each case, Generals tied up the count and in the third period, they bunched four goals to fix their margin of victory.

Billy Taylor, scoring a goal in the second period for Generals, marked Rangers' first period goal scored by Imlach. The Ranger marksmen shot his team into a lead again in the third period, but four Generals' goals in the last 10 minutes by Taylor, Knipfel, Tonn and Dafoe gave the Oshawans the series.

Port Colborne Sailors, smarting under a 9-0 trimming handed them Friday night by Toronto Canoecrafters in the first game of the best of five Senior A playoff finals, took pains today for tomorrow night's fixture when they will have a chance of getting back at Goodyears on their own ice.

In other week-end games, Sarnia scored a 6-3 victory over Stratford and Preston defeated Acton 3-1 in the Intermediate "A" section; and Whitby edged out Peterborough 4-3 in the Intermediate "B's."

BARONS' RECORD AT HOME INTACT

(By The Canadian Press)

Philadelphia Ramblers, whose worries have disappeared as far as the playoffs in the International-American Hockey League is concerned, increased their lead in the league's Eastern Division this weekend by picking up three points in two games.

While the section's second-place Providence Reds failed to garner a point, Ramblers pressed their advantage by taking a 5-2 decision over Reds Saturday night and tying New Haven Eagles 2-2 Sunday. Reds saw Ramblers increase their margin to seven points Sunday night when the Providence team lost to Pittsburgh Hornets 5-2.

Cleveland Barons, who got their undefeated home record intact Saturday night with a victory at the expense of Springfield Indians who forfeited the game in protest, when they refused to take the ice for the third period following their last-second goal by Cleveland which knotted the score 2-2.

Meanwhile the last Barons four-point margin over the second-place Pittsburgh Hornets in the league's Western Section intact. Pittsburgh added four points to their total in two games with wins over Providence and Syracuse Stars. They defeated Syracuse 1-0 Saturday night.

Syracuse Stars, who learned their manager, Eddie Powers, had been fined $50 by the league for his part in a mix-up with referee Bert Corbeau and linesman Jack McDonald, got into two games during the week-end. After losing to Pittsburgh they downed Springfield Indians 8-1.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

With hockey feelings running at fever heat throughout the Bay of Quinte district another capacity house should welcome the Belleville Redmen as they skate out into the O.H.A. playdowns versus the fast Kingston squad at the Arena tonight. The 1937 intermediate "B" champs, the Redmen have been playing a notch and are playing intermediate "A" this year. The Redmen are out for the finest exhibitions of how hockey should be played when they wind Queen's out recently and Skipper Thomas' charges are right on the ball and ready for Howard Reid's Limestone City pucksters tonight.

The Kingston service is meet the Redmen in the first round intermediate "A" provincial playdowns is the same squad that is at present tied with the Flyers for the championship of the Yeo Heene Memorial finals. Well known Kingston sportsters such as veteran "Pip" Roberts, "Rabby" Gow, the fiery "Red" Godkin who is equally as colorful as Red Vilarelli of Peterboro, Mathewson Gowsell and Murray and only a few of Coach Reid's Kingston squad. The Bentley-Murphy-Wilson-Jackson scarlet clad Belleville team has been playing fine hockey of late and hope to gain a substantial edge to take the second game at Belleville Arena. A Kingston-Belleville hockey match always can be publicized as a thriller, as feelings rise to about the same level as between the Flyers and Peles, when these two ancient enemies clash. Tonight's agreeable will be no exception to the rule, we can assure the fans.

Friday night's Peterboro-Flyer game is still the talk of the town and recalling the result of tonight's fourth game at Peterboro. Incidentally the Peter rooters certainly performed us on Friday that all seats for tonight's game had been sold out as early as last Thursday and Manager Reid was in the city on the fans journeying to Peterboro as the rink there could not accommodate any more patrons. The S.R.O. sign was hung out Saturday a.m.

There is no use denying the fact that the referee appointment of Johnnie Lalonde with the Flyers here is lauded the Lawrence-town crowd as the "big lad" seems to have a great effect on Flyers' play. Despite the brave checking and personal contact of Referee Lalonde, the fans' squad will be at full strength tonight. Personally we expect to see a rough passage afforded the "birdmen" in Belleville where the O.H.A. would have been wise to appoint Referee Lalonde for the two last between these two squads and a serious outbreak could easily happen without the least provocation.

Apparently the Peles aren't quite as cocky regarding their ability to be defeated on the local ice. Last Friday the Flyers were filling around the allegedly impregnable Peterboro defence of Brennan and Bayne, just about at will and scored the majority of their goals when this gair was on the ice. Incidentally we find the Peter scoring ace, Willie Calladine, has only one goal to his credit in the three games played in the group play-off thus far. Apparently the Airmen are taking care of the free scoring scorer, when the chips are down.

We understand the period scores of the game in Peterboro will be given out from the benefit of the patrons of the Kingston-Redmen game tonight as an extra service for the fans present only.

Coach Oven Atkins' Belleville "Y" juniors O.A.S.A. hoopsters take to the floor enjoying a six point lead over the Kingston Kids here at the Y.M.C.A. tomorrow night. The ultimate winner of this series steps up into the junior O.A.S.A. series. Incidentally, Saturday, The Belleville "Y" intermediate cagers are in the provincial playdowns this year also.

Complaining that our Peterboro supporters didn't get any too much of the breaks from the law in Belleville last Friday, the Little Lock City scribe suggests that the Flyer management is against playing a possible fifth Flyer-Pele game here under any circumstances. Due to "hostile attitude," was the Peter scribe's attitude today. He continues by saying the Peles were disregarded in their passage here Friday, played skimpy-like hockey and their defence was generally terrible. Of course he should remember, that the Flyers were really fast and clicking and when one club gets off on the right foot they usually have plays going off in anticipated manner, the losing club usually looks bad.

P. A. Houston, who referees here on Friday, has been signed as the referee tonight in Peterboro, while Bert Hedges of Belleville has been appointed to ring the bell here in the absence of Jim the squad. Incidentally Hedges is one of the O.H.A. Senior referees yet, who employs the use of a bell. "The players can hear the bell much better," Hedges commented Hedges to us relative to the subject recently. We can remember the day when Ontario hockey officials wouldn't consider the use of a bell—"it's only a Quebec custom, why should we use it?" was the oldtimers' attitude, but today apparently it's cheaper to purchase a whistle than a bell, as the majority of O.H.A. officials employ the whistle. Eastern boys we prefer the old bell, like Mr. Hedges.

"Merry Go Round of '38"

It's hardly fair to spring a picture such as "Merry-Go-Round of 1938" upon an unsuspecting public without due warning. The title is enough to expose innocents like a wreck-age; to endanger serenity, and to expose the public to nuances of dangerous doses.

"Merry-Go-Round of 1938" now playing at the Capitol Theatre until Wednesday, Mar. 2 is a smash. It's fun hilt, is a laugh-riot, a steam roller of hilarity, a deluge of delicious, delightful and grouch-destroying comedy.

Go to see this latest product of Hollywood and learn just how much you can laugh without getting a stitch in the side. If your ribs hold out until the final fade-out, you are a hopeless case and should be examined by a squad of psychiatrists.

Round and weighty Billy House, tall and thin Mischa Auer, short and shy Jimmie Savo and raucous Bert Lahr are teamed in what is known as the funniest foursome of the season. Four madder, screwier maniacs were never thrown together in one picture. The result is devastating.

Nineteen-thirty-eight finds four broken down and poverty stricken vaudeville comedians faced with the task of straightening out the love affairs of their adopted daughter. She is in love with a young man, heir to ten millions of an eccentric aunt. The aunt objects to the young man's marriage to any girl w'h a theatrical background. The boys determine to get straight and their little matter.

Dressed as, and pretending to be a titled Englishwoman, aunt of the girl, Billy House gets into the confidence of the Aunt Mischa Auer is introduced into her household under the guise of a Swami, with Jimmie Savo, world-famous Parisian tominalist, as his assistant. Swami Auer's powers surprise all but him who pretends to be the long-lost sweetheart of the aunt and then the fun becomes fast and furious, leading to a laugh-jammed situation galore.

The cast includes, in addition to the quartet of Technicolor, "Ramona," dubbed "The Four Horsemen of Hilarity", Alice Brady in the role of the hoity-toity and flighty aunt; Binnie Barnes as the hard-boiled but romantic theatrical boarding-house-keeper; Joy Hodges, a screen newcomer as the niece, and John King as her sweetheart.

Produced entirely in the new perfected Technicolor, "Ramona," is shown on the same program as a smash revival hit which has the added attraction of a comedy heading an exceptional cast including Kent Taylor, Pauline Frederick, Jane Darwell, Katherine DeMille and John Carradine.

Last complete show during the run of this splendid program starts at 6.30.

WALL STREET

New York, Feb 28 (AP)—The stock market loafed into a decline today that set many leaders back fractions of a point or more.

Brokers attributed renewed timidity of speculative forces mainly to the desire for more confirmation of a business upturn in business and more definite indications of the direction industry would take on the mid-dividend tax laws.

Most changes were on the downside among the American Can, Canadian Pacific dropped around 1-2, Fractionally higher were Montgomery Ward, Allied Chemical, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Johns-Manville, Allis Chalmers, Union Carbide and General Electric.

MARKET COMMENT

The stock market last week gave some signs of breaking away from its recent lethargy, this despite the fact that it had to contend with several unfavorable developments abroad. No one can predict the immediate trend of stock prices, but when consideration is given to the severe deflation in security values, coupled with the improvement in business outlook in the immediate months ahead, a constructive attitude towards the market does not appear amiss.

Gold stocks appear in particular favorable position. This industry is not affected by depressed business conditions as are the selling commodity prices. In fact, lower commodity prices mean better earnings for gold mining companies for the reason that their operating expenses are reduced. Consequently, particularly the senior issues, are still a buy if for no other reason than that they afford very satisfactory yields.

MOTHER AND SON DRINK POISON

Jobless Nurse Dies, Son Changes Mind, Wants to Live

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)— Lifesaving Mrs. Mary Welch, 44, a skilled nurse, and her unemployed son, Leonard, 21, sat silently at a kitchen table last night and stared at two glasses.

The glasses contained poison. They stirred them slowly, lingering-ly.

"Then, sick for oblivion, the mother drained hers. She rose, staggered to the living room and fell. The son, watching with fascinated eyes, raised his glass, drank deeply—then dropped it with a crash. Suddenly he didn't want to die.

His numbed fingers reached for the telephone . . . too late . . . he sagged to the floor.

A neighbor heard the fall and brought police. An operative Ernest Rice called a hospital ambulance—but the youth was his only passenger.

A note left by the nurse, estranged from her husband, gave her valedictory to a world that had denied her work. She wrote:

"My son and I have agreed to end our lives. We believe the poison ourselves."

But today Leonard Wish, more fearful of death than poverty, clung tenaciously in a hospital bed to life.

TWO CHILDREN FIRE VICTIMS

Father at Time Taking Bodies Out of Child to Railway Station

Ste. Scholastique, Que., Feb. 28—(CP)—Louis Legare prepared today to bury two of his children, victims of a fire which burned their small frame home on the outskirts of this Quebec town 25 miles northwest of Montreal yesterday.

The children, Marie, 2 1-2 years of age, and Pierrette, six months old, were trapped when fire swept through their home while Legare, a blacksmith, was driving his wife and sick son to the railway station, half a mile away. Giselle, six, tried to save her baby sister, but she was too heavy and she had to drop her before reaching safety.

Neighbors were unable to get into the house to save the children. Planes enveloped the building and the flames broke out and volunteer firemen found the charred remains of the children several hours later. Verdict of accidental death was returned by the coroner's jury.

Mrs. Legare was taking Andre, six years old, to Montreal for treatment for an injury. Legare pointed the fire as he was leaving the station. He telephoned the volunteer firemen from Gustave Lalande's restaurant. Lalande fainted from excitement when Legare told him of the fire.

MR. ALEX LIPSON TALKS OF CANADA

Gives View on Season's Possibilities in Canning Trade

EUROPEAN SCENE

Italian stocks that flooded the British market into the country when Canadian goods were unobtainable, and the fact that there is a surplus of goods in Canadian warehouses at the present time, will have a dereciable effect on the Canadian canning industry this year, Mr. Alex. Lipson, prominent Belleville and Picton business man and canning executive, stated on Saturday.

"The Italians flooded the British markets with their canned goods after our navigation season closed," Mr. Lipson added, "and their prices were better than ours. So there is no reason for us to get over-optimistic over the prospects of a banner canning season this year. After all, the average Englishman is a good business man and will buy where he can get the best prices".

"How about the present European situation, will that have any effect?" he was asked. "Maybe yes and maybe no," he replied. "After all war is not declared as yet and although feelings may be somewhat strained between Italy and Britain I do not believe they will get to the point where the British people will boycott Italian goods. The Englishman likes to make business with us as the rest of us. And the fact that we are giving them Canadian goods doesn't seem to make much difference.

Situation in Europe

Queried regarding conditions in the chief European countries as he has visited them within the last three years, Mr. Lipson declared that the finest thing about the British is their British traditions and heritage. "You fellows should be proud of the fact that you were born under the British flag", he declared. "We do not realize the meaning of the word 'freedom' until we have seen conditions as they were over there at that time, and we have reason to think they have changed for the better. The Italians seemed to be good to me as it did at that time as I travelled through the continent and as we all know they are.

Heard Der Fuehrer Speak

"Germany on the surface seems unperturbed. But when one has friends over there, one hears the whole story. Laboring men were getting an average wage of $25 per week and seemed to be happy about the whole thing. But everywhere you go you see flags and the name, 'Der Fuehrer'. While in Nuremberg I heard Hitler speak, guard, when demanding my ticket, noticed my passport on which was stamped the Canadian flag. He at once became curious and asked me countless questions before passing over here. He seemed astounded when I told him that I was not a Jew, and how, if we did not like the men at the head of things at the election, we had the right to throw them out.

"Speaking of hearing Berlin', he asked me. Upon being told 'no', he advised me to stay over Sunday (as he was selling chest) Der Fuehrer was to speak. I heard him and I'll say he's a speaker," and Mr. Hitler is one of the most finished orators in Europe today."

Germans Described

"The Germans are one of the most cultured races on earth", he continued, "but they are cruel and merciless with it. Many Jews I found were inclined to be gay, but Germans I asked about, and one Frenchman if he would fight for France if the occasion arose. A Jew replied with a shrug of the shoulders, "Yes, gladly", he answered, "tomorrow if necessary".

"The English, while, as the former Kaiser styled them, are a nation of shopkeepers, are scrupulously honest. They are keen business men and drive a hard bargain, but you will never rob you."

Mr. Alex. Lipson, Belleville, concluded, "I am proud to live in this country. Europe may eventually break out, but if the British Empire hope she does without resorting to arms. Over there we are happy, conditions are getting better and we are all working our best to help make money to put into battleships and other means of warfare."

G-MEN IN QUEST

Meanwhile, as Col. Thomas Hamilton Kennedy, retired head of the army base at Mitchell Field, Long Island, where many of the army's secrets allegedly were stolen by the conspirators, District Attorney Lamar Hardy of Suffolk County, jury action against the three pris-

Held incommunicado after arraignment on charges of conspiracy on espionage charges, they were listed as:

Johanna Hoffman 26, a German citizen and native of Dresden, employed as a manicurist-hairdresser on the north German Lloyd liner Europa, accused by federal agents of being the "payoff" agent for the foreign nation;

Gustave Gustave Rumrich, 27, German-educated American citizen, a former United States army sergeant, once stationed in the Panama Canal zone; and Erich Glaser, 34, a private in the 18th Reconnaissance Squadron, stationed at Mitchell Field, air defence centre for New York City.

The Give Gave Confession

Vetterli said Rumrich made a complete confession, including the theft of highly confidential data on Atlantic coastal artillery defences and the mobilization plan for defending the Panama Canal zone.

Federal agents broke the case when they trapped Rumrich in an attempt to obtain a batch of United States passports, allegedly for fraudulent use of a European nation's secret agents or ejected Soviet Russia.

Vetterli said Rumrich impersonated State Secretary Hull in a telephone conversation with the local passport office, demanding the blanks be sent to his hotel. A G-man disguised as a messenger delivered the blanks—and promptly arrested Rumrich.

Vetterli said Rumrich confessed he received $50 a month for his work, that some parts of the plot originated in Germany, and that the former army sergeant admitted he was "in the process" of trying to purloin secret designs of two new navy aircraft carriers.

Needs 20,000 Sailors

The navy figures it ultimately will need 20,000 more sailors—in addition to the present 105,000 enlisted men—and 1,000 commissioned officers, 47 warships, 22 auxiliaries and 1,000 planes.

Prospects are that the defence bill will increase gradually. The first bill authorized $1,000,000,000 for ship-building facilities. Navy officials estimate from $2,000,000,000 to $10,000,000 would have to be spent at each of a half dozen years ahead.

Since the United States is a late entry in the world armaments race, the projected increases are expected to leave the strengths of the army and navy at his present relation to the forces of other nations.

Weaker Than Year Ago

As for the army, War Secretary Woodring said in his annual report that despite advances in mechanization and efficiency, it was "relatively weaker" compared with the armies of the other great countries, than a year ago.

The first 18,000 annual increase in the regular army forces proposed by the administration would boost the army's net total of trained men to 500,518—just beyond the 497,000 of Argentina.

Next are United States defence statistics brought up to date from official sources:

Navy—ships, afloat and under construction, 1,408,625 tons; 193,000 enlis: ..l men and 6,341 officers.

(Great Britain has 1,737,743 tons of warships built or under construction, and Japan has 871,855 tons.)

Army—enlisted strength 169,957, officers, 13,309, total force, including reserves, 492,518.

(Army ranks 20th in trained manpower, and 11th in number of men under arms.)

Corps Large

Aviation—army: Air Corps has between 1,300 and 1,400 modern fighting planes, expects to have 1,800 by end of year, and to reach a goal of 2,320 by middle of 1940.

Navy: On land or aboard ships, 1,870 modern planes. Goal is 2,050 by 1942.

Finally, all the world's aircraft" adjudged United States army-navy combined aviation is now one of the largest and possibly the most efficiency equipped in the world." Foreign sources credit Russia with 5,000 first line planes, Germany 3,500, Italy with 2,100, Japan with 1,870 and France with 1,500—compared with approximately 2,000 first line American military aircraft.)

LEGITIMACY

give such evidence had been Madill's statement, that he had been with Mrs. Clarke constantly, although he later said he spent a vacation away from her and worked in Hamilton and Brantford.

Relevant Periods Questioned

Counsel said he would regard registered with Madill named as father had been only five months after Madill said he and Mrs. Clarke began living together. He coniended, however, that he had been out of Toronto at the "relevant periods registered in the birth certificate 1932 and the twins born July 1936.

As to Mrs. Clarke's statement in the examination that Madill was the father, counsel cited an authority which said that proof of adultery at the relevant time was sufficient evidence of legitimacy unless it were proved access of the husband was impossible at the time."

"You meant to say that all that evidence fails to the ground unless you have a detective following husband and wife night and day?" asked Mr. Justice Middleton. "I wish those Judges had heard this evidence."

Mr. Cartwright insisted the decisions were conclusive and that there must be evidence of the strong improbability of access.

SHE had enjoyed a sheltered and happy life with her husband and though luxury had not been theirs, yet there had always been some of the little extra pleasures and they will be continued — a matter of great satisfaction to her husband when he talked over his estate plan with us.

Her husband realized, however, that his plans for her protection relied on at least one major factor . . . there would need to be wise and efficient management of the estate he would leave.

He appointed this Trust Company to be executor and trustee under his Will. Our experience, economical management and constant attention to his estate have resulted in a trouble-free and serene life for this one he loved so well.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating supper and ma said to pop, well pop, I was sure the new woman next store was going to turn out to be a borrower, and there's nothing worse to have living a few feet away than a confirmed proverbial borrower.

How the dooce did you know she was a borrower before she attempted to borrow anything? pop said, and ma said, I cant quite explain, I seem to have a 6th sense developed to the 7th degree, if you know what I mean.

I was willing to learn, pop said, and ma said, Anyway, this morning I was making some little cakes for my bridge crowd this afternoon, and I could hear Mrs. Shiggsby calling over the back fence, Mrs. Potts, Mrs. Potts, O Mrs. Potts, and I thought, Here it comes, she's going to break the ice and borrow the first article, and after that the deluge. So I just remained as still as a mouse and as deff as a barn door, till finely I thought I had discouraged her, but far from such, because in 5 minutes the door-bell rang and Nora answered it and called ma and I we and behold it was Mrs. Shiggsby, but I must admit I was agreeably astonished, ma said.

You mean she didn't try to borrow anything? pop said, and ma said No, she wanted to show me a set of hand painted Philippine doilies that somebody just sent her from abroad, and I must say they were beautiful and I must say I was filled with envious compunction to have them for my bridge crowd this afternoon, and I must say she was more than pleasant about agreeing to lend them after a first moment of hesitation over the fact that they had never been used yet.

You borrowed them, for Pete sake? pop said, and ma said, Isn't that what I'm telling you?

I'm not sure, I dont think my mind is working very well. I think I'll consult the sporting editor, pop said.

And he got behind the paper and stayed there.
